SEARCH FOR THE VICTIMS

Death List in St. Louis and East St. Louis is Increasing Steadily.

Aggregate Number of Dead Will Not Be Known For Some Days.

Troops Present to Protect Property and Order Coming Out of Chaos.

St. Louis, Mo., May 29.—Desolation still reigns supreme in the tornado striken districts of East St. Louis and this city. The day opened up clear and cool, and everywhere could be seen gangs of men searching the ruins for victims and clearing the streets of dismantled poles, wires and general debris, repairing the damage done to thousands of buildings and relieving the injured and homeless. As the time goes on it becomes more and more evident that the tornado is the worst that ever visited this or any other city on the North American continent. Horrors multiply every hour, and the list of dead is appalling.

More than 130 dead bodies have been rescued in St. Louis, and over 400 persons are known to have been injured. Mangled cadavers are found in innumerable places along the path of the storm, and are being taken to the improvised morgues in the different portions of the distressed districts. It will be weeks before a list of those killed can be made, but the list of dead is climbing to the 200 mark.

In the wake of the tornado came grave problems to meet, one of them—the protection of the city in the absence of the electric lights. The First Missouri regiment has gone on duty for patrol service, and the police commissioners will add 150 men to the force. Beside this all previous calamities of the kind seem trivial in cost. Manfully the business men of St. Louis have made up the work of relief. An earnest meeting on "change" yesterday was the beginning. There are thousands who can pull themselves out of this trouble. There are other thousands who have to stali and must be helped.

A partial resumption of the street car service has been effected. The east and west roads, north of Market street, are in operation, and also the Broadway and the Grand avenue north and south lines. The southern division of the Sculin system is the most badly crippled, owing to the destruction of the power house, and the officers venture no prediction as to when cars will be running.

A partial restoration of the electric light service is promised in forty-eight hours, but it will be a couple of weeks before all of the circuits are in order. The destruction of poles and wires along the path of the storm was complete. Inquests on the bodies of forty-two of the slain in St. Louis have been held by Coroner Waite, and that duty continues. A verdict of "shock and injuries, accidental," was rendered in each case.

East St. Louis has issued a touching appeal for aid, and the committee, which prepared the manifesto, estimates that 200 persons were killed, and that the number of injured will foot up in the thousands. It is known that a number of persons are still buried in the debris on the southwestern end of the island and in the ruins of Hallsey's hotel, the Martell house, the Relay retreat and the Durant house. However, some conservative persons assert that the list will not reach the estimated total of 200, though enough persons are now missing to create a fear that the fatalities will approach that number. All business is virtually suspended. Every one agrees that months will fail to reveal the extent of the tornado and devastation in the Illinois town. From the surrounding country thousands of men, women and children flocked into the city to view the scenes of ruin and death.

SCHOOLS SUFFERED SEVERELY.

The officials of the board of education are busy figuring out the enormous loss which the schools suffered. All the south end schools between Choteau avenue and Arsenal street were badly damaged. Some had roofs blown away and walls caved in, and others got off with ruined windows and chimneys. The schools which suffered most are the Clinton, Clinton branch, Peabody, Charles Hodgen, Pestalozi, Grant, New Shepard, Lokverture, Froebel, Lafayette, Longfellow and Madison. The Compton, Marquette, Choteau and Garfield also suffered. The school board cannot repair the damage for less that $50,000, and perhaps a larger sum will be needed. Several of the schools will not be opened again until September.

St. Patrick's Roman Catholic church, Sixth and Biddle streets, was damaged even more than was first reported. The spire was ruined entirely, and in falling destroyed a 2-story brick building on the corner of Sixth and Biddle. The organ of the church is a wreck and covered with bricks and debris. Despite this gloomy state of affairs, services will be held as usual Sunday morning.

The emergency hospital at the old Good Shepherd convent on Seventeenth and Pine streets is running along in good shape, considering that it was only instituted in the present capacity Thursday morning. Some of the doctors took their first rest after midnight Thursday, but they were all up and busy by 6 o'clock Friday morning. There are nearly 300 sick in the emergency hospital, transferred from the city hospital after it was demolished. The clerk of the hospital has checked up his list. He thinks that there are not more than five unaccounted for. Some patients, who were prisoners from the jail, workhouse and elsewhere, are known to have escaped during the confusion.

The militiamen were on duty all night in watches. They have been of great assistance to the police. At St. John's hospital, on Twenty-third street and Lucas, the wounded are being well cared for. One patient, William Plenke, of 1008 Lafayette avenue, died. He was sent first to the Good Shepherd via the dispensary, and then to St. John's. He was badly injured internally and had several bones broken. An unknown man is unconscious and on the verge of death. The others are doing as well as can be expected under the circumstances.

THE WRECKED STEAMERS.

The boatmen today began the arduous task of recovering the wrecked and disabled craft, at least such portions of them as appeared to be worth saving. Eleven boats and tugs are badly demolished and sunk, most of them being thought to be beyond repair. They are as follows: Dolphin No. 2, J. J. Odil, City of Quincy, Libbie Conger, Bald Eagle, Belle of Calhoun, East St. Louis, Andrew Christy, Henry L. Clark and the tugs Baton Rouge, Belle and S. C. Club. An effort will be made, however, to raise some of them. With respect to loss of life, the J. J. Odil was the most unfortunate. Five persons who were members of her crew or passengers on the boat were reported missing yesterday, and as none of them was accounted for by nightfall, they were all given up for lost.

WORSE IN EAST ST. LOUIS.

The situation in East St. Louis has grown worse each hour. The crews of rescuers at work have made comparatively little progress, and the belief that large numbers of bodies are yet to be found is growing. The wrecked town presents an awful appearance today. The debris choked streets are patrolled by militiamen and police, and the work of the rescue parties has made little impression on the jumbled masses of brick and timbers. Scores of dead horses and cattle are scattered among the ruins and are adding a sickening feature to the already unsanitary condition of the district.

In the morgue today, there are nine bodies still unidentified. The stream of visitors has diminished, but hundreds have viewed the mangled and blackened remains in the hope of identification. As two days have gone by it is likely that the nine will be buried as unknown, as there is little chance that the bodies would be recognized even by intimate acquaintances. Thomas Griffin, the ex-policeman, who was killed at his home, was one of the few survivors of the 600 who survived the famous "charge of the Light brigade" at Balaklava during the Crimean war. While on the police force he won the title of "the old Sleuth of East St. Louis."

LATEST DEATH ESTIMATES.

The following list was tabulated at police headquarters this afternoon: Known dead in St. Louis, 157; unknown dead in St. Louis, 24; fatally injured in St. Louis, 15; missing in St. Louis, 25; known dead in East St. Louis, 138; unknown dead in East St. Louis, 3; fatally injured in East St. Louis, 3; total, 365. This list, being prepared from police figures, is not accurate in detail, but is said to be approximately correct. The police believe, with everyone else, that the total is likely to be swollen when the work on the ruins has been completed.

Up to noon today the coroner had eighty inquests at East St. Louis. Henry Sexton, a city official there, estimates the property loss at East St. Louis at $20,000,000, but this estimate may be high. There are this afternoon 300 families on "the island" alone who are homeless. Comptroller Sturgeon thinks the city treasury will be heavily taxed as a result of Wednesday's storm. He says it will take nearly $600,000 to repair the damage done to city buildings. It will cost the city, Mr. Sturgeon says, probably $500,000 to erect a new hospital, $20,000 for repairs to the poor house, $10,000 for the work house, $5000 for the house of refuge and $2000 for the female hospital.

RELIEF FREELY OFFERED.

St. Louis, Mo., May 29.—Local papers today tell of the sympathy offered by the whole country to St. Louis in its present state of woe. Offers have come to Mayor Walbridge from commercial organizations all over the United States, and from the mayors of cities, large and small, to extend financial aid as the situation demands. Chicago was the first to extend offers of assistance, the city being represented by the Union League club, Commercial club and Mayor Swift. It is not likely that Mayor Walbridge will accept these kindly offers, for while the losses are stupendous, local citizens are going down in their pockets and have already established a large-sized fund for the sufferers.

Fighting Prohibitionists Get Into a Big Tangle at Pittsburg.

Regular Convention Puts Up a Ticket and Endorses Sound Money.

Disappointed Silverites Bolt, Organize and Start on Their Own Hook.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 29.—The Prohibition convention yesterday nominated the following ticket: For president, Joshua P. Levering, Maryland; vice president, Hale Johnson, Illinois.

The free silver plank was rejected and the candidates were placed upon the thinnest kind of a narrow guage platform, embodying merely the principle of prohibition, and even omitting the woman suffrage plank which has been a feature of its platforms for years past. Ex-Governor John P. St. John, seconded by nearly all the Western delegates, made a gallant fight for the free coinage of silver, and Helen M. Gougar, of Indiana, and Mrs. L. A. Poole, of New York, struggled in vain for woman suffrage, but the narrow guage people controlled the convention and took everything.

When the nominations for president was reached the name of Charles E. Bentley, of Nebraska, the broad guage candidate, was not presented, his boom having been burst by the overwhelming defeat of the silver forces in the afternoon session. It was long after midnight before the last business was concluded, and the convention adjourned.

During the afternoon the convention proceeded to the consideration of the planks in the majority report referring to Sabbath observance and against appropriation for sectarian schools. These were adopted when the convention was thrown into confusion by the action of R. H. Patton, of Illinois, who presented a substitute for the entire platform as far as adopted. The new platform excluded everything but prohibition, even woman suffrage and was the narrowest kind of a narrow guage declaration. The vote on the silver plank had shown the strength of the "narrows," but the "broad guage" people made a strong fight against the substitute.

The entire afternoon session was given to the discussion of the money plank. The arguments were spirited, but by rule of the convention, speakers were limited to ten minutes each. It evolved that the fight was not so much one of gold vs. silver as it was the narrow guage faction against the free silver advocates. Several speakers who opposed the plank expressed themselves as personally favorable to free coinage.

The evening session opened at 8:45 and immediately got down to business. The first order was national committee hour but by consent this was passed for the time and nominations for president and vice president of the United States were called for. The roll call of states was called with no response until Maryland was reached when J. Frank Tucker, of that delegation, came to the platform to present the name of Joshua P. Levering. Mr. Tucker's speech was a very neat and convincing effort and was received with hearty applause.

Elisha Kent Kane, of Pennsylvania, made a motion that Levering be named by acclamation. When the chairman put the motion every delegate and spectator jumped to his feet and the hurrah that followed was deafening. Cries for Levering came from all over the hall. A committee hurried to the rear of the hall and escorted Mr. Levering to the platform amid shouts and cheers.

The presidential candidate made a brief address accepting the nomination, promising to make a vigorous campaign and exhorting every Prohibitionist to work hard.

Mrs. L. A. Poole, of New York, received unanimous consent at this point to present a resolution which provides that the right of suffrage should not be abridged by sex. She moved that this be added to the platform. This opened the old fight that had caused a disturbance at the afternoon session and a dozen delegates clamored for the floor. After a brief but sharp debate, Mrs. Poole withdrew her motion to make it a part of the platform and offered it merely as a resolution. It then passed. Hale Johnson, of Illinois, was put in nomination for the vice presidency by National Chairman Dickie, of Michigan, and Louis O. Hughes. A number of names were presented all of whom declined with the exception of Johnson and Hughes. The result of the first ballot was: Johnson, 369; Hughes, 123. The nomination of Johnson was then made unanimous. After closing routine the convention adjourned.

TODAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 29.—The national committee of the Prohibition party was in session until nearly 4 o'clock this morning, completing arrangements for the campaign. Nominations for the chairman resulted in the re-election of Samuel A. Dickie. Other officers were elected as follows: Vice chairman, James Tate, Tennessee; W. T. Wardwell, New York, secretary; Samuel D. Hastings, Wisconsin, treasurer; A. A. Stevens, Pennsylvania; W. C. Karskadden, West Virginia; John Hipp, Colorado; Volney Cushing, Maine.

The selection of a place for permanent headquarters of the committee was referred to the executive committee.

BOLTERS ORGANIZE.

And Will Nominate Free Silver Candidates.

Pittsburg, May 29.—The broad guage element left the convention hall late last night and organized a rump convention in aonther hall. Eleven state chairmen were among the bolters, and twenty-four states are represented. They considered the formation of a new party, and a motion to adopt a platform and nominate candidates for president and vice president. Mr. Moore, of Nebraska, presided.

Among the prominent bolters are Helen M. Gougar, of Indiana; ex-Governor John P. St. John, R. S. Thompson, of Ohio, editor of the New Era; John Lloyd Thompson, of New York, and L. B. Logan, of Ohio.

It was decided to appoint a committee of fifty to visit the national Democratic and Populist conventions and get dissatisfied persons to unite with the national party. The platform declares for the election of president and senators by a popular vote. It is generally conceded that the nominees of the new party will be the broad gauge candidates, Charles E. Bentley, of Nebraska, for president, and J. H. Southgate, of North Carolina, for vice president.

REAVIS CONSPIRACY.

Two Spaniards Will Reveal the Big Plot.

San Francisco, May 29.—Sandoval and Valencia, the aged Spaniards of this city, who are under indictment as alleged conspirators with James Addison Peralta-Reavis in his famous land fraud, have withdrawn their petition in the United States district court for a writ of habeas corpus, and agreed, on their own accord, and contrary to the advice of their attorneys, to go to New Mexico for trial.

It comes from an official source that they have confessed their part in the gigantic conspiracy, and agreed to turn state's evidence against Peralta-Reavis, whose trial is to take place in Santa Fe during the latter part of June.

For this service, it is stated, the government had promised immunity from prosecution. The confessions of Sandoval and Valencia, it is stated, will assist the government in making out the case against Jose Ramon Noe, who is also under indictment for conspiracy, but who has not yet been apprehended. He is said to be now sojourning in Mexico.

The theory of the government land office is that Noe had a sort of partnership with Peralta-Reavis, by which he agreed to secure much of the fraudulent evidence by which Reavis hoped to establish his right to a vast acreage in New Mexico and Arizona. His wife imparted it from her forefathers, who secured it through a grant from the king of Spain. The story goes that Valencia's confession confirms the charge of the government that he had entered into a contract with Noe by which Valencia was to receive $10,000 for the evidence he secured in case Reavis succeeded in establishing his claim. Valencia has been subpoenaed as a witness in the Reavis trial which is to take place in Santa Fe in about three weeks.

Our friends

say their children have kept strong and well all winter by taking Scott's Emulsion. Many children do not assimilate enough fat with their food, hence they need this easy fat food, and thrive on it. It is for all children that are not absolutely strong. The combination of Cod-liver Oil and Hypophosphites as prepared in Scott's Emulsion is marvelous in its power to arrest wasting.

The 50 cent size is especially useful as a trial size for babies and children.

FRIENDS ASTOUNDED.

At the Wonderful Recovery of Hon. William D. Park.

The Famous Discoverer of "Broiled Live Lobster" Writes of His Condition.

He Tells of Hope Abandoned and Then of Health Restored as if By Magic

Not only in New England, but all over the United States, Hon. William D. Park, who first gave "broiled live lobsters" to the world, is known and respected. Read this letter from him:

"Boston, March 24, 1896.

"For two years I was much afflicted with dyspepsia, rheumatism and general collapse, which was superinduced by an unusually active business life for forty years. I had supposed my health was gone beyond recovery, but being induced to try Dr. Charcot's Kola Nervine Tablets, to my surprise and gratification the use of two boxes has resulted in the disappearance of dyspepsia, rheumatism and lassitude. I feel a new man; my friends are surprised and congratulate me on my recovery to health. I am glad to give you these facts and heartily commend the Tablets as marvelous in their curative properties. Yours truly,

"William D. Park,
"Late of Park house.

"P. S.—My sister, Mrs. Caroline E. Gillhan, late of Washington, D. C., has used the Tablets with excellent results in insomnia."

What reason is there that you, if afflicted as was Mr. Park, should not be cured as he was, by the use of the famous Dr. Charcot's Kola Nervine Tablets? Thousands as sick as he have been made well by this miracle-working remedy.

CULLOM

Illinois Senator Speaks in the Senate About Bond Issues.

Says Their Stoppage Would Bring Untold Disgrace on America.

But He Also Laments the Necessity Which Causes Them.

Washington, May 29.—The bill to prohibit the issue of bonds was up before the senate today for discussion, and the debate attracted many listeners.

Mr. Cullom spoke at considerable length in the senate today against the pending bill to prohibit the issue of bonds. He said in part: "No one on this floor deplores the issue of interest-bearing obligations by this government, in time of peace, more than I do. But does any senator imagine that the causes which made the issue of bonds necessary, and which may require further issues, can be removed by simply passing a bill prohibiting it? The consequences of the passage of the bill, if it shall become a law, to my mind, are so far reaching as to be simply appalling.

"In my opinion it would be the untying of all that has been accomplished since the passage of the resumption act. It would mean the repudiation of our obligations. Its tendency would be to place this country at once upon a silver basis. It would seriously endanger every business concern in the country. It would have ushered thus far the terrible financial storm of the past three years. It would throw out of employment hundreds of thousands of laboringmen and women who had begun to hope that the dawn of brighter days was at hand. It is wholly wanting in common honesty, and would forever be a blot upon the page of American history."

Mr. Cullom declared the United States alone could not restore silver as money and added :"What the nations need is an international conference and ratio agreement, and every day makes it clearer to me that such a conference is sure to come, and I believe very soon. I am in favor of using all the silver as coin. We can and may be able to use even more than we are now using, but the question of the standard should be settled. We should not depart from the gold standard until we can have the cooperation of other great commercial nations. Such a settlement of the financial question I hope and look for."

ZEIGLER WON.

Philadelphia Boy Defeated Hawkins at Frisco.

San Francisco, May 29.—By hard, consistent fighting Owen Zeigler, of Philadelphia, bested Dan Hawkins in the eight-round contest last night, and got the decison of the referee and the purse. Zeigler opened with a terrific rush, intending to land a right hand blow on Hawkins' face. The latter only saved himself by a quick movement that enabled him to clinch, but immediately afterwards Zeigler planted a right hand swing on the jaw that knocked Hawkins down and looked for a second or two as though it had knocked him out. He recovered, however, and after a few blows knocked Zeigler down. The fighting was heavy, with the advantage on Zeigler's side for the rest of the round.

The second round was all Zeigler's way. Hawkins received severe punishment.

In the third Hawkins recovered better form, though he got a blow under the right eye that made it look funny for the rest of the night.

In the fourth Hawkins was decidedly groggy, and the call of time was a decided relief for him.

The fifth was slow, amounting to little more than an exchange of blows.

The sixth round was much the same, with the advantage to Zeigler.

The seventh round proved increasingly advantageous to Zeigler, he standing punishment much better than Hawkins, who was getting groggy again.

In the eighth, though Zeigler could not knock Hawkins out, the latter was constantly clinching for time.

After the decision, Spider Kelley, one of Hawkins' seconds, applied an offensive epithet to the referee, which was promptly responded to with a blow. Speedy interference prevented another fight.

SUFFERING ORIENT.

Tormented With Fever and Other Diseases.

Tacoma, Wash., May 29.—The Northern Pacific liner Victoria, which arrived last night, brought news that the bubonic plague had reached the island of Formosa, and that at An Ping, May 10, there were nineteen deaths and twenty-nine new cases. The deaths at An Ping number from ten to fifteen a day. The disease is rapidly spreading, and is doubtless now raging over the entire island.

Japan is suffering from typhoid fever. According to Yokohama newspapers of May 12 and 13, over 2000 cases of fever recently occurred in Kagawa prefecture. A few cases of the disease are reported from Kobe and Tochigi prefecture. The Japan Private Sanitary association has arranged to despatch a doctor to Kagawa at the request of the home minister.

MORETON FREWEN TO BLAND

A Well Known Englishman on the Silver Question.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Will you kindly give space to the following letter (of recent date) to Hon. R. P. Bland, late member of congress from Missouri, better known to Americans as "Silver Bland," as I have the permission of the writer to publish it? I ask the favor, as its being from one outside of the United States and from an Englishman, too, may give it additional interest over exactly the same statements from one of our own people, who perhaps might and doubtless would be accused by the opponents of the expressed views as simply the ebullitions of one belonging to this or that one of our own political parties. His nationality and residence will, however, preclude such criticism, thus adding weight and value to its impartiality.

I would show the shallowness of the reasons of those opposing this nation's return to the financial and currency system established by the founders of this greatest and most powerful republic, and that upbuilded and developed it and carried it successfully through three great wars, the last one the largest in the number of men engaged the world ever saw. Hence, as these thoughtless or willfully traitorous opponents to the returning of our people to the inherited principles of our financial interests, the wisdom and soundness of which results have proved correct, so long as they were practiced and maintained. But as they now unblushingly state as facts that we cannot now return to our inherited duty without the grossly false statement that we must have permission by "international agreement," because England prevents—a country that really has no claims or legitimate dictation whatever over these United States except what we may yield to her through the traditional ties of ancestry, blood and a common language and religious faith, and no more. She has no claims whatever she can enforce, direct or indirect, upon us, only those we may yield by and through our family ties.

It only shows how utterly shallow and false is the brazen assertion, made by the goldbugs, that it is simply impossible for the United States now to control its own financial interests, as they did for nearly a century, because of the unity of England's opposition, and it is the desire to show The Herald's readers that the unity of the English people in favor of the gold standard is the exact reverse of unity, that I ask you to publish this, and perhaps other English evidence that, outside of its simply money bankers (of very small per cent of its population) there is far less of unity for, and immensely greater opposition to, the single gold standard in England today than there is at present in the United States, even universally general as the protest against the single gold standard becomes in America as it is examined and understood by our people.

A word as to the writer of this letter. He is a gentleman of the highest social and business connections and of wider repeated travel and observation than very few, if any, Americans; one thoroughly familiar with the United States and the esteemed acquaintance of a large number of our leading politicians and business men, and who for a considerable time was connected, in high official position, with the finance or treasury of the province of Dizan, in the Deccan, India, at its capital city of Hyderabad, a very wealthy, growing, with a population of some 15,000,000, a higher position than is held by any of our American bankers. In short, a gentleman our gold advocates (either principals or echoes) cannot call a "crank," unless everyone who thoroughly understands his subject can truthfully so classed. The marked attention of your readers is asked to his remarks on the recent monetary conference at Brussels (held this month), in which a total of some twenty-seven countries, including all European nations, met in conference on the remonetization of silver, and note the opinions there expressed of the ability of the United States so to do, and further, as to the effect such restoration by the United States would have upon the value of silver. In short, the careful attention of all The Herald's readers is called to the entire letter. Very respectfully, Thomas Dowse.

Duluth, May 28.

London, 25 Chesham Place, May 10, 1896.—Dear Mr. Bland: Thank you for your very interesting letter of April 21. That crisis in the silver question which has been culminating since the legislation of 1873, but especially since our legislation, in closing the Indian mints in 1893, is now at hand, and it is impossible that the lesson of the last three years has been lost on your great educated democracy.

A fortnight since I attended a monetary conference at Brussels, and I was much struck by the unanimity of the recognition there, that those nations which are in Mr. Gladstone's phrase, the "creditor nations" are likely to concede as little as possible. The general opinion here in financial circles is that the United States is well able to pay the interest on her foreign debt, even should the price of wheat, cotton and your other staple exports fall much lower still; and further that if for a few years to come, you are obliged to borrow that gold interest from creditor England, which you owe her, all the better for the creditor. Money being a mere drug here at the present time, the creditor will be happy to oblige you! For while you borrow at something over 3 per cent, our consolidated 2¾ per cent bonds are now costing our investors 113.

Your entire financial difficulty is in this; you cannot maintain a sufficient balance of exports over imports to pay the $300,000,000 which you require to meet (1) the interest on your foreign loans, (2) the enormous expenditure of your tourists and residents in Europe, (3) the freights you pay to British ships. This is a difficulty not at all confined to your community; it is today the case of all debtor communities. In Australia, where I was traveling recently, I found that the trouble is far more serious than with you. Our colonists there are required to pay nearly $75,000,000 of interest yearly to England on the loans they have made here. They make this payment chiefly by their huge exports of wool; the price of wool having fallen 50 per cent, 2,000,000 bales are now required to pay interest, instead of 1,000,000. The result is that Australia, the most prosperous of pastoral communities only a few years since, has become embarrassed to the last degree, and but for "free wool" in your last tariff bill, the situation of Australia must by this time have been desperate. These seven debtor Australian colonies are financially in the same strained condition because of the fall of prices, that any seven of your once prosperous states are now in; their prospects and yours are equally engulfed by the increasing burden of fixed debts.

I believe that not much later the most bigoted gold monometallist will be obliged to recognize the disease. Since 1873 we have so legislated to depress the price of silver that 800,000,000 of Asiatics are able to buy silver—their silver money—at about half price; these hordes of Orientals selling their product in Europe for the gold sovereign, that sovereign sends them back, when exchanged into silver, twice as many rupees or taels or yens or dollars, as was the case twenty years ago; and meanwhile all the evidence shows conclusively that the value, the purchasing power, of the Indian rupee, of the Chinese tael, of the Japanese yen, of the dollar of the Malay peninsula, is no whit reduced. This is I believe the burden too greivous to be borne by the industries of competing white men, although the press of the great "creditor nation," England, and equally of the great creditor state, New York, revels in objections to this, the evident and rational explanation of your present trouble.

As to whether by going to free coinage, your great community can maintain steady exchanges everywhere at 1 to 16 between gold and silver, I am not going to dogmatize. At Brussels I found much difference of opinion. Herman Schmidt, whose knowledge of exchange problems entitles his opinion to respect, believes that you can. Mr. Grenfell, on the other hand, thought some small gold premium in New York probable. M. Raffalovitch and M. Fougirel, two eminent economists, inclined to the view that such a gold premium, acting as a protective tariff, the premium falling when you had a bountiful harvest and large exports, would rise in the event of hard west scarcity and a reduction of exports—that such an automatic tariff as this premium would create is likely to be welcome to both your protectionists and to your free traders, and if so, will obviate the necessity in future for frequent changes in your tariffs, a consummation much to be desired. For my own part, I have always believed that Lord Aldenham—then Mr. Gibbs—was right when he declared in his evidence before our currency commission in 1886, that any "first class nation" but especially America, could go safely to free coinage. Mr. Gibbs is, as you are aware, one of our most eminent and wise business men, whole life has been spent in trading with every part of the world, and to whom exchange complications are as familiar as the points of the compass to the mariner. Who is in a position to ridicule such an authority as this? Certainly not the ordinary editors of daily papers, who yet continue to call that "free silver" which Lord Aldenham declared practicable a "craze."

A word in conclusion. On a certain Monday in June, 1893, the ratio of silver to gold was as 1 to 24; on the Friday of the same week, it was as 1 to 30, your "70-cent dollar" had in four days become a "50-cent dollar;" and why? Because the mints of a single foreign country, India (not a "first rate" country in point of trade) had been closed. Presumably then, had the Indian mints reopened on that Friday, the ratio would have reverted from 1 to 30 to 1 to 24, before the following Wednesday. Now let me ask those who object to free coinage in the United States, what would have been the effect if on that same Wednesday you had opened your mints to the free coinage of silver? If India single-handed had been able to raise the ratio 20 per cent—that is from 1 to 30 to 1 to 24 by free coinage, would not the additional support of the United States have carried the ratio to 1 to 16, a rise of 33 per cent more; and if the United States could not have accomplished this through free coinage will somebody explain why?

The great difficulty, I am aware, as to this silver question, is to divest men's minds of their furious prejudices. It is by playing upon the prejudices and passions of honest and honorable men, that the one class now becoming rich and powerful by the misfortunes of the other classes, has been and still is able to thwart every measure of monetary reform. I am painfully aware of this difficulty which confronts us, because never having studied the question I was for some years so fully convinced of the soundness of the gold theory, that I could not bring myself even to consider the arguments of my then opponents, the bimetallists. Believe me, yours very faithfully, Moreton Frewen.

ENGLISH SYMPATHY.

Newspapers at London on the St. Louis Affair.

London, May 29.—The Times says of the St. Louis disaster: "The later, soberer accounts rather strengthen than weaken the general impression of an unsparing devastation. The imagination can but dimly depict the experience. It is characteristic of the American's indomitable force of purpose that they already talk of restoring the convention hall."

The Daily News says: "It would be interesting to be able to speculate with knowledge on the effect of this ever present sense of the inevitable upon the American character. It seems to produce fatality of a kind, but not of a passive order. On the contrary, the race has learned to make light of all calamities not positively overwhelming."

The Standard comments as follows: "It will excite in England a sympathy for the sufferers as deep and general as is felt throughout the United States. It may be hoped that it is less disastrous than was at first supposed."

Hibernians' Ball Will Be Given This Evening---Other News.

One of West Duluth's business houses was unceremoniously snuffed out of existence last evening. The firm was doing such a quiet, modest business that no name was hung out at the door, and a simple notice that meals could be obtained within at short notice was all the public advertising that was indulged in by the proprietors. The location of the "restaurant" was on Central avenue, directly opposite the West Duluth depot.

The firm did not go into voluntary or involuntary liquidation, but on the other hand it is understood that the business was thriving, and that if the proprietors had had their way they would gladly have continued in business. The police department has, however, had a weather eye on the place since its establishment in our midst, as there have always been more females about it than were seemingly needed for cooks. Several complaints have been entered against the house of late, and its suspicious character caused the police department to order it closed.

MEET IN INDIANA.

Presbyterians Gather in Hoosier State Next Year.

Saratoga, May 29.—The first regular order at today's session of the Presbyterian general assembly was the consideration of the next place of meeting. The claims of Winona assembly, near Warsaw, Ind., were presented by Rev. A. L. Dickey and George N. Peacock. The argument of the latter was based on the grounds of economy and convenience. Dr. E. G. Mathena, of San Francisco, represented the desires of the Pacific coast, saying that the influence of the assembly was wanted there and had been desired for twenty-five years. He said that provision had been made for the free entertainment of one-third of the assembly. Elder Trumbull, of San Rafael, seconded the proposal, saying that there was no land boom in the invitation.

Rev. J. G. Ingalls, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Petoskey, Mich., presented an invitation from his church. He called Petoskey the "Saratoga of the West," and urged that it was the cheapest place at which the assembly could meet. The vote was taken by rising and the Winona assembly was chosen by an overwhelming vote. As a result of this selection the rate of assessment upon the church, for the expenses of the assembly, was reduced from 7 to 6 cents per member.

A report from the finance committee followed and showed receipts of $62,998 by the treasurer of the assembly.

The subject of seminary control came up next with sixty-five minutes available for discussion. After an address by Judge Humphrey of Louisville, Dr. Agnew, of Philadelphia, presented a substitute for the second resolution of the committee's report, recommending the waiving of the assembly's vote power on professional appointments in the seminaries. The substitute was adopted by a unanimous vote. The passage of the report as amended was celebrated with the doxology. The remainder of the morning session was occupied with miscellaneous business. After the reading of a number of notices, the assembly adjourned.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

The doctor may be a good old man, but even so, medical examinations and the "local-application" treatment are abhorrent to every modest woman. They are embarrassing—often useless. They should not be submitted to until everything else has been tried. In nine cases out of ten, there is no reason for them. In nine cases out of ten, the doctor in general practice isn't competent to treat female diseases. They make a branch of medicine by themselves. They are distinct from other ailments. They can be properly understood and treated only by one who has had years of actual practice and experience in this particular line. This is true of Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician of the Invalid's Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription, a remedy for all derangements of the reproductive organs of women, has been in actual use for more than thirty years. It cures every form of "female weakness."

THE PRODUCE MARKET.

Cackle! cackle! cackle! Phew, but the poultry just swarmed in today on Michigan street. There were a good many old veterans in the coops which were all supposed to contain nothing but spring chickens, but buyers were not fastidious and everything went. Several carloads of strawberries, lemons and bananas were on the tracks this morning and a lot of fine veal. Cherries were plentiful and eggs were steady. It was a good day for the dealers.

PREVENTED BY KEM.

The Boundary Legislation is Held Up.

Washington, May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Owing to the fact that Populist Kem of Nebraska is determined to prevent all legislation that requires the unanimous consent of the house, the resolution suggested by Representative Towne in regard to the boundary line between Canada and the United States and the great lakes from the head of the St. Lawrence river to the head of Lake Superior, which was unanimously reported from the committee on foreign affairs by Representative Heatwole, is not likely to be acted upon this session. It was expected that the resolution would be passed long before this, but the filibustering of the Nebraska member will prevent its adoption.

Wheat Market Was Weak Again Today and Prices Still Lower.

Very Little Bullish Sentiment Visible and the Decline Was Steady.

There Was Active Bidding For Cash on the Duluth Board.

Wheat was weak again today and the price went farther on the down grade. There was little bullish feeling manifest in any quarter, despite the undoubted fact that the continued wet weather in the Red River valley and other wheat districts has reduced the acreage that will be sown to wheat to a very small fraction of the normal amount. There was fair trading in futures on the Duluth board. July opened ½c lower at 59⅝c, quickly advanced ¼c, but weakened at once and went down steadily until 59c was touched shortly before noon. It rallied ½c during the noon hour, but the strength was of brief duration and it sold down again to 59c before the close. The shippers and elevators bought 100,000 bus cash stuff and the mills took 20,000 bus, both paying July price. Bidding for cash wheat was active. The close was ⅜c lower all round than yesterday. Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 60c; may, 60¼c; July, 60¾c; No. 1 northern, cash, 58⅜c; May, 59c; June, 59c; July, 59c bid; September, 59¼c. No. 2 northern, cash, 56@56⅝c. No. 3, 54¼@55¼c. Rejected, 51¼@55¼c. To arrive—No. 1 hard, 60c; No. 1 northern, 58⅜c; rye, 32½c; No. 2 oats, 18¾@19c; No. 3 oats, 18¼@18½c. Flax, 85.

Car inspection—Wheat, 175; oats, 58; rye, 9; barley, 17; flax, 1. Receipts—Wheat, 78,768 bus; oats, 37,461 bus; rye, 6624 bus; barley, 14,212 bus; flax, 2053 bus. Shipments—Wheat, 50,526 bus; oats, 2965 bus.

GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 307 Board of Trade, Chicago, May 29.—Foreigners were inclined to take profits on short wheat both here and at New York at the opening. This being the last business day of the month and preceding two holidays, small operators were inclined to even up their trades. The crowd appeared to be short, and their covering caused two fair advances, but there was sufficient outside selling of September wheat to force the market down. The decline under 60c has developed some very good buying on downward scales by responsible traders, who have seen from experience that few fortunes are made in selling wheat under that price, yet from a scalping point of view the indications appear to favor a dull, declining market for some time yet.

Corn and oats shared in the general weakness.

Provisions, weak and lower on renewed selling by packers and lack of any but local scalping support.

Puts, July wheat, 57¼c bid.

Calls, July wheat, 58¾c.

KNOCKED HIM SILLY.

Thomas Clifford Struck By a Bicycle Today.

A bicycle accident occurred at the corner of Third avenue west and Superior street this afternoon, and for a time it was feared that fatal consequences might ensue, but this happily proved to be not the case. Thomas Clifford, second steward of the North Land, and John Conway, also an employe of the North Land, were crossing Superior street at Third avenue west. They noticed a bicycle coming toward them at a prety good speed, and stepped out of the way of it. Clifford, unfortunately, stepped directly in front of another, and was struck by it with considerable force. It threw him backward, and his head struck the pavement. He lay there stunned until picked up and carried into M. S. Burrow's store. He revived after a time, but it was a half hour or more before he could be made to understand what struck him.

The rider of the bicycle was Harry McMillan. His machine was a Syracuse, and he was going at a much faster speed than a careful and considerate rider would take in crossing a square so crowded as that one always is. There is no corner in the city where the bicyclists are required to exercise so much care.

TO REGULATE IT.

Ordinance in Reference to Street Walking Being Drafted.

An ordinance calculated to arm the police with authority to cope with the street-walking evil, and under which they will have ample power to keep the thoroughfares free from dissolute women, is being drafted by the city attorney and will be presented to the council on Monday evening. Under its provisions not only women known to belong to the demi-monde and who reside within the pale, but those who belong to the class that reside in respectable neighborhoods and maintain a semblance of right living, haunting the streets and public places in the evenings for immoral purposes, can be kept in check, and for such to be found abroad after 8 o'clock will, of itself, subject them to arrest and fine. Heretofore the 8 o'clock "curfew" has been enforced under a rule of the police department merely.

THE GRAY HEIRS.

They Ask For an Administrator of the Estate.

Tuesday, June 9, there will be a hearing in probate court on the petition of J. R. Gray and William E. Gray, for the appointment of the latter as administrator for the estate of Rish A. Gray, to whose estate she who has been known as Katheryn Weston, lays claim as his widow. At that time her claim will be heard, and it will be definitely established whether she is to be called Miss Weston or Mrs. Gray.

In the petition the following heirs are named: Joshua R. Gray, brother, aged 71, Duluth; William E. Gray, brother, aged 69, Vassalboro, Kennebec county, Me.; Charles H. Gray, brother, aged 65, Vassalboro; Emma F. Clark, sister, aged 69, Vassalboro; Mrs. Mary Woodbridge, niece, aged 30, wife of D. E. Woodbridge, of Minneapolis; Mrs. Alice Silvey, niece, aged 25, wife of W. B. Silvey, Duluth. The two last named are daughters of the late Mrs. R. S. Mungfer, Mr. Gray's sister.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Dull and Featureless Opening For Securities.

New York, May 29.—The stock market opened dull and featureless, aside from slight general advances in price. Sugar gained 5/8 and St. Paul and Burlington ½ per cent.

Speculation was quiet but firm up to 11 o'clock, with prices ruling at the earlier improvements. The speculative temper continued to improve in the second hour, and further advances were generally noted. Sugar rising 1¼ per cent to 123¾. The railway shares recorded fractional gains, St. Paul, Louisville & Nashville, Burlington and Southern preferred figuring for ¾ per cent each. The advances were based upon covering chiefly. The Rubber shares were conspicuously weak, the common reacting ⅞ and the preferred 1⅞ per cent. The last selling down to 81. The best prices of the morning were current at midday. The sales to noon were 42,959 shares.

WOMEN'S CLUBS MEETING.

Louisville, Ky., May 29.—The third day of the General Federation Women's clubs biennial meeting opened with a large attendance. At Liederkranz hall "Woman's Work in Trades and Professions" was considered and a number of interesting papers were read.

TWO DRUNKEN CLERGYMEN.

Cincinnati, May 29.—A Times-Star special from Middletown, Ohio, says: A sensation was created today in the synod of the Western district of the Evangelical Lutheran church by the announcement that two ministers, delegates to the synod, had been fined this morning for being drunk and disorderly. They were immediately expelled by the synod. They are Rev. Andrew Popp, Stanton, Ind., and Rev. O. T. Koblitz, Hopeville, Ohio.

WINONA MILLER ASSIGNS.

Winona, Minn., May 29.—Lemuel C. Porter, engaged in the manufacture and sale of flour, under the name of the L. C. Porter Milling company, made a voluntary assignment this afternoon to H. C. Bolcom. Assets are estimated at $200,0000, and liabilities the same. Stagnation in trade and increased competition has caused business to be conducted at a loss since 1892. The company has a capacity of 1600 barrels daily.

FREE SILVER AT CHICAGO.

William E. Curtis, writing to the Chicago Record from Washington, says it looks very much as if the administration was giving up the fight for "sound money" at the Chicago convention, and if that is the case the silver men will have a walkover like that which McKinley's managers expect at St. Louis. For some reason or other not explained, Secretary Carlisle declines to go to Kentucky and take part in the campaign. No explanation has been given of his refusal. Some say that the president has forbidden him to go because of the damage his defeat would do to the administration. But more persons think that the secretary is reluctant on his own account. He does not want to have a total defeat charged against him. He thinks that it would not be well to have is said in his biographies that the people of his state refused to indorse him as a presidential candidate.

Mr. Curtis states that there have been three or four gentlemen at Washington from Kentucky recently trying to arrange a compromise in order to save Mr. Carlisle from the mortification of defeat, but Blackburn and his associates sarcastically referred to recent events in Kentucky and particularly to the letter which the secretary wrote sustaining the "sound-money" Democrats in the legislature in opposition to Blackburn as a senatorial candidate. These gentlemen told Secretary Carlisle that the state was against him unless he could make terms, and it is believed he is following their advice in staying away from Kentucky. Senator Lindsay and Representative McCreary, the only "sound-money" Democrats in the Kentucky delegation, will follow Mr. Carlisle's example and remain in Washington, letting the convention go by default. They say that the administration and Secretary Carlisle have everything at stake, and if they do not make a fight they cannot expect their friends to do so. Therefore it is predicted that the silver men will win in Kentucky without much opposition.

Senator Brice has practically given up the struggle in Ohio, where it has been a straight-out fight between the Cleveland administration and the enemies of the single gold standard. In fact, it is said that at heart Brice himself is a silver man, but, being a member of the borrowing class he is not at liberty to declare his honest convictions, as he would be unable to secure a new credit for his vast railroad enterprise or to extend the time of present obligations. Gen. Thomas, who is his associate in railroad enterprises, talked to a Duluth gentleman in favor of free silver coinage. There is no doubt that Ohio is decidedly for silver, if the people are let alone in making up their judgment. A Columbus dispatch says that as fast as county conventions are held free silver seems to be indorsed without apparent opposition. Mr. Brice's own county declared overwhelmingly for silver the other day; in the city of Springfield, where Mr. Brice controls the revenue office for that district, the Democrats by an overwhelming vote placed themselves on record for free coinage and instructed their Chicago delegates accordingly. So far there has been an unbroken series of silver victories in counties not contiguous to each other and located in every quarter of the state. The "silver craze" has become so strong that even the most prominent gold men are going about claiming to be as good silver men as are the old-time advocates of silver itself. This is accepted by the silver men to mean that even the gold-standard element has concluded that they are vastly outnumbered and are declaring for silver for the sole purpose of befuddling the popular mind as to their real opposition on silver.

There is no doubt that Illinois Democrats will elect a silver delegation. Practically all the Southern states and many of the Western states, probably including Minnesota, will do likewise, and the result will be a heavy preponderance of silver sentiment at the Chicago convention.

THEIR LATEST GAME.

If Mr. Clough cannot carry his own home county, Hennepin, there is not even a remote possibility that he can be nominated. It is the opinion of those best able to judge that Hennepin county will be anti-Clough. The fact that the county committee in that county, which is controlled by the Clough men, will not call the convention until a late date is pretty conclusive evidence that they realize that his chances of carrying the county are very slim. If they had any confidence in the result being favorable to him they would call the convention at once, so that its effect would be felt in the other counties. It is noticeable that in the counties which the Merriam-Clough machine expects to carry, early conventions have been called, the Mille Lacs county committee having issued a call before the chairman of the state central committee had hardly signed his name to the official call for the state convention.

The Merriam-Clough machine is also fearful of the result in St. Louis county, and here also dilatory tactics have been pursued. Now that the time is short in which to legally call the county convention, the Clough men are figuring upon a new plan to save themselves from defeat. Their game now is to hold only one county convention to elect delegates to the state and district conventions, to nominate county officers and to select delegates to the judicial and legislative conventions. They hope, by precipitating a fight among the aspirants for county offices, to get enough delegates in the city that, combined with the "range vote," would give "the old gang" a majority of the convention and enable it to elect Clough delegates. This is the plan now proposed to steal St. Louis county for Clough, because they know that in no other way can the Republicans of this county be induced to vote for the perpetuation of the Merriam-Clough machine and the restoration of "the old gang" to power in this county. But even this game will hardly save the day for the political bosses.

RIVER AND HARBOR BILL VETOED.

Naturally the people of Duluth, in common with the residents of all the lake ports and of the great territory which is benefited to an extent that is not generally realized by the cheap transportation which the lake waterways afford, take much interest in the fate of the river and harbor appropriation bill, which was vetoed today by the president. It was the belief in congress that the president would, in this instance, depart from his usual practice of dealing with measures making appropriations for these improvements and veto the bill. Heretofore he has permitted similar bills to become laws without his signature, but the present measure makes such a heavy and unprecedented draft upon the revenues of the government that everybody believed the president would compel congress to resort to the unusual method of expressing its will anew, "the president's veto to the contrary notwithstanding." That this will be done no one doubts. When the question of concurring in the final conference report upon the measure was submitted to the house, the vote sustaining it was 189 yeas, 56 nays, showing a three-fourths majority for it, while the constitution requires but two-thirds of all voting to pass a bill over a veto.

The total appropriations, immediate and contingent, carried by the bill amount to $72,501,544, and while it does not propose to expend anywhere near that sum in the next fiscal year, it is understood that the president bases his objection to it on the ground that it commits the government to an expenditure expenditures for this class of improvements during the next fiscal year. Provision is made by the sundry civil appropriation bill for continuing the work now under contract authorized by previous river and harbor bills, as follows: Harbor at Philadelphia, Pa., $600,000; harbor at Galveston, Tex., $840,000; improving the Hudson river, $480,000; harbor at Mobile, Ala., $160,000; improving channel in great lakes between Chicago, Duluth and Buffalo, $500,000; improving canal at cascades, Columbia river, Oregon, $179,597; harbor of refuge at Point Judith, R. I., $300,000; harbor and bay at Humboldt, Cal., $225,000; total, $3,284,597. Making a grand total of expenditures authorized for the next fiscal year of over $32,000,000. The contract system, however, has been demonstrated to be both wise and economical, securing desirable improvements at the minimum expenditure of time and money, and saving the country large sums of money that are practically wasted in many instances under the system usually pursued.

President William P. St. John, of the Mercantile National bank, who occupies the unique position of being the only bank president in New York city holding avowedly pro-silver views, has published a "National Platform for the American Independents of 1896." The demands include a call for the reopening of the mints of the United States to the free coinage of silver and gold at the ratio of 16 to 1. The issue of coin certificates is proposed which will take the place of gold certificates, silver certificates and the treasury notes of 1890, also a temporary increase of $300,000,000 of paper money against the silver on hand in the treasury on April 1. Mr. St. John says the American Independents will be heard from this year.

The Cook county, Ill., Democratic convention made this declaration in its platform: "Should international agreement be deemed desirable, congress, in the very act of restoration, can make such trade regulations as will compel all nations that desire to trade with us to at once enter into such international agreement." This is similar to a suggestion once made by Tom Reed in a magazine article.

The Red Wing Republican, Tams Bixby's own paper, should take rank with the humorous publications. It says "the election of Governor Nelson to the senate was in a large measure due to the popularity and personal strength of Clough." The only strength possessed by Mr. Clough in that contest was due to the liberal manner in which he promised state offices.

The Prohibition national convention adopted a "narrow guage" platform, defeating the free silver and woman suffrage planks. The result is a bolt by many of those who have been most active in the Prohibition cause. Will the national conventions of the other political parties wikness bolts?

It is worthy of note that in the severe storm at Chicago last Sunday night, the "sky-scrapers" most successfully withstood the force of the enraged elements. The large buildings of iron and steel vibrated without the dislocation of a single joint.

The Eau Claire Free Press expresses the opinion that every man who parts his hair in the middle should be compelled to wear skirts. The Eau Claire paper is too extreme and not in line with the freedom of action which its name implies.

William E. Lee, who has been residing at St. Cloud for some time past, has moved back to Long Prairie, Todd county, but after Jan. 1 next his address will be "the capitol, St. Paul."

The senate refused to increase the tax on beer, and yet none of the senators are supposed to indulge in such common, plebeian stuff as beer.

It did not rain yesterday, and in this respect yesterday was different from many previous days.

The Prohibitionists split on the free silver rock. The money question cannot be straddled.

Coxey has come out against Boies. The Iowa man is entitled to congratulations.

SHOULD WORK TOGETHER.

Elk River Star-News: William E. Lee will go into convention with a strong backing from the Sixth district, and stands fully as good a chance of receiving the nomination as anyone. Of course it would be a big feather in the cap of the Sixth district to have a governor, and local pride will cut some figure in the selection of delegates from this district. By working together the district can accomplish a great deal, and it seems to the Star-News that it would not only be wise politics, but good business policy for the Sixth district to present a solid front for William E. Lee.

SHOULD BE MOVED.

Minneapolis Times: The romance formulated by Mr. Zeich, (that Merriam is not supporting Clough), and prompted evidently by that wondrous statesman—Mr. Bixby—may be believed by the politicians who are not cognizant of William R. Merriam's and David Clough's methods. But for the sake of common decency, and out of deference to that dignified and conservative public sentiment which makes all government respectable, would it not be wise for the chief executive officer of the state to transfer the political machine—and other machines supposed to be needed at this season—to some more secluded quarters, where the stench would not reach the nostrils of clean people having legitimate business at the state capitol?

SWIFT FOR CLAPP.

Appleton Press: There appears to be a decided preference for Moses E. Clapp for governor among Swift county Republicans.

HOW?

Minneapolis Tribune: How can Buffalo Bill be an editor up at Duluth and a candidate for governor of Nebraska at the same time?

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Burnham, the American scout, had some exciting experiences with Capt. Napier's column in the Insiza district, near Buluwayo. He was cut off by a large body of Matabeles, but rode at full speed, hotly pursued and managed to rejoin the vanguard which was itself surrounded, and had to cut its way through hostile natives. In the meanwhile the main body was heavily engaged and defeated the insurgents. A prisoner who was captured by the troopers says that the Matabeles are holding a white woman in captivity.

The schooner Albion brings news to San Francisco of the possible loss of the schooner Lincoln in Alaskan waters. The Lincoln had on board about 30 persons, all of whom have undoubtedly lost their lives. Most of the passengers were gold-seekers.

The Chicago postoffice census gives that city a population of 1,760,000, an increase of 200,000 over that of last year.

Winners at the Cincinnati horse races yesterday were Ornament, Say On, Scarf Pin, Harry Shannon and Miss Francis.

At Morris Park, New York, the racing winners yesterday were Sir Dixon, Jr., Don Dora, Premier, Volley, Dispenser and Clifford.

Cuba's constitution was stolen from the frame in which it hung at the fair in Madison Square garden, New York, Wednesday night. The missing document is the original instrument signed in Cuba on September 14, 1895, by President Cisneros.

Washington had a severe storm yesterday and people who had been reading about the St. Louis horror were much frightened.

Iowa bankers in annual meeting in Marshalltown, elected the following officers: President, J. K. Doming, Dubuque; vice president, C. R. Hannan, Council Bluffs; secretary, J. M. Dinwiddie, Cedar Falls; treasurer, Charles H. Martin, Des Moines; also a vice president for each congressional district. The next convention will probably be held at Mason City.

The packet St. Paul, of the Diamond Jo line, reported sunk in the St. Louis tornado, arrived at Keokuk, Iowa, safely last night. It was out of the path of the storm and suffered no damage.

Murderer Dunham was located late this evening near Smith Creek, Cal. He was riding the same horse as when he left San Jose. He had no shoes or socks on his feet. He had a bloody wound on his face, evidently received in the fight when he killed the family. A posse has just left for the mountains.

TAMS AND HIS WIRES.

Zumbrota News: Two years ago Boss Tams manipulated the county convention at his own sweet will and he is laying his wires to do the same thing this year. He is usurping the rights and privileges of the people for his own personal aggrandisement and that of his friends. Like a parasite he has fed at the public crib until bloated and puffed up with egotism, he imagines himself greater than his party. He is so all powerful that he can afford to heap contumely upon the heads of his associate editors in Goodhue county, and make sport of them and their friends. His power is so great that he laughs in his sleeve at the opposition which is steadily growing against him and which sooner or later will bury him in a political grave. The people of Goodhue county will not allow this self-appointed dictator to ride over them rough shod and usurp the powers and privileges which are theirs by right. All over the United States are the people rising up in their power and setting the stamp of disapproval on political bosses and political rings. Boss Tams should share the common fate. He and his political gang should be consigned to the oblivion yawning to receive them. The present crisis is a battle royal between the people and politicians, and Governor Clough and his infamous machine are doomed. No power on earth can save them from the just wrath of the people.

In Goodhue county the star of Boss Tams is on the wane and his political future dark with clouds. His overbearing and dictatorial disposition is working the leaven of distrust and opposition, and his unpopularity is daily increasing. The people do not relish the bossism of this St. Paul politician, who is a citizen of Goodhue county for his own political advantage only, and when the opportunity is presented at the county convention they will turn him down emphatically and determinedly. The days of political bossism in Goodhue county are numbered.

SIGNIFICANT DELAY.

Little Falls Transcript: The anti-Clough people of Hennepin county have urged the chairman of the county committee to call the Republican county convention for an early date, but that gentleman, who is a Clough man, is too busy to give the request prompt attention. The whole state is interested in what Hennepin county will do, and if Clough thought he could carry his home county he certainly would have the convention as soon as possible. The prestige of carrying Hennepin county would be valuable to either side, and the delay that the Clough forces are bringing about is very significant.

NOT ONE.

St. Cloud Times: If Mr. Towne goes into the fight against Clough, that doughty log driver will not carry a single county in the Sixth district.

THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Active arrangements are being made by the local committee of the annual meeting of the grand lodge of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows of North Dakota, which convenes at Lisbon on Tuesday, June 2, and the following program has been prepared: The local lodge accompanied by the First regiment band will meet the representatives and other visiting members at the railway station, and conduct them to the Opera house, where the regular business session of the grand lodge will begin. In the evening a grand reception followed by a banquet at the Imperial house will be given. The second day will be mainly devoted to business. In the evening a musical entertainment will take place, and a grand ball will follow. On the third and last day after the celebration and installation of the grand lodge officers and the adjournment of the grand lodge, the visitors will be treated to a splendid exhibition drill of Field Battery A, of the North Dakota National Guards.

The citizens of Emerado are considerably agitated at the disappearance of Henry Raymond, blacksmith of this place, who left home on the evening of May 10, saying that he was going to Grand Forks. Nothing has been seen or heard of him since, and it is thought he is the victim of foul play. He was very devoted to his family, consisting of a wife and daughter and two sons.

At Mandan, the jury decided in favor of the Northern Pacific in condemnation proceedings by which they seek to change the course of Heart river, thus doing away with two bridges, damages assessed at $1225. This is divided among twelve owners of land affected.

Several cases of glanders are reported around Maza. Some farmers are killing nearly all of their stock which are diseased.

The Democratic county convention met at Langdon and elected sixteen delegates to the state convention at Jamestown next Thursday. Some of them are federal office-holders. The resolutions declare for free silver, but the 16 to 1 ratio was defeated.

The Pythian grand lodge will meet in Fargo July 30 for a three days' session, and the local lodge last night appointed a committee to make complete arrangements for the meeting. There are thirty lodges in the state.

Arrangements have been completed for the annual G. A. R. encampment to be held at Hillsboro, Traill county, on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, June 3, 4 and 5. Two hundred or more delegates-at-large and one from each twenty-five members or majority portion thereof; also each commander and past commander. In addition to these a large number of veterans always attend these encampments. Thomas Nelson, in Bertram township, ten miles south of Grand Forks, whereby Mr. Nelson lost 700 bushels of wheat. The Pawnee steamer Grand Forks and several barges were at the farm and men were engaged loading Nelson's wheat in one of them. The load became more than the barge could properly hold. The barge sank, lodging on a stump which punched a hole in her bottom. The barge soon filled with water and the wheat became worthless.

Ben Badger and Albert Moquay were bound over in $500 bonds to wait the action of the United States grand jury by the United States commissioner at Bismarck. They are charged with stealing government property.

IN SOUTH DAKOTA.

New strikes of ore are of daily occurrence, and they are not confined to any particular district, says a Deadwood dispatch. In Strawberry Gulch, three miles from Deadwood, ore carrying from $10 to $15,000 a ton in gold has been struck in the Bristol mine. The ore is a carbonate of iron, showing free gold in large quantities. The ledge uncovered is twelve feet wide, and about four feet thick. The Juniper lode, located thirty-five miles south of Deadwood, sold for $60,000, which is the highest price ever paid for a prospect. The shaft had only been sunk to a depth of twelve feet, and a 2-foot seam of ore, carrying gold to the value of several thousand dollars per ton, was discovered. It lies half a mile south of the famous Holy Terror, and is a richer mine than that was in its palmiest days.

Mrs. Christianson, living ten miles southwest of Bradley, committed suicide today by hanging herself to a tree. She leaves a husband and three children.

Gen. J. S. Coxey, of Massillon, Ohio, will address the Populists at Sioux Falls, on June 15.

MERRIAM WANTS HIS PAY.

Elk River Star-News: The many manifestations of "Merriam methods" in the gubernatorial campaign, have led the Minneapolis Journal to lift the mask and disclose the smiling features of ex-Governor Merriam as the power behind the throne. Merriam expects to get his pay in an election to the United States senate to succeed Senator Davis.

MAKING A GOOD FIGHT.

Elk River Star-News: The Duluth Herald is putting up a nice fight for W. E. Lee in St. Louis county, and appears to be quite confident that he will have the delegation to the state convention from that county.

Proclamation.

Memorial Day, May 30th, being a legal holiday under a provision of the General Laws of the State of Minnesota.

Now, therefore, pursuant to laws, I, Henry Truelsen, mayor of the city of Duluth, do hereby give notice and proclaim that the provisions of the law, to-wit:

No public business except in case of necessity shall be transacted on said day, will be strictly enforced.

In connection with the above I would most respectfully ask all good citizens to take part in the exercises and memorial services of said day, and strictly observe the law and add solemnity to the day in honoring the heroic and patriotic dead who died for a free and undivided republic. I can find no more fitting words to express my feeling than those expressed by the G. A. R. Commander-in-Chief, General John A. Logan:

"We should guard their graves with sacred vigilence. All that the consecrated wealth and taste of the nation can do their adornment and security is but a fitting tribute to the memory of her slain defenders. Let no wanton foot tread rudely on such hallowed grounds. Let pleasant paths invite the coming and going of reverend visitors and fond mourners. Let no vandalism of avarice or neglect, no ravages of time testify to the present or to the coming generations that we have forgotten as a people the cost of a free and undivided republic.

"If other eyes grow dull and other hands slack, and other hearts cold in the solemn trust, ours shall keep it well as long as the light and warmth of life remain to us.

"Let us then gather around their sacred remains and garland the passionless mounds above them with the choicest flowers of springtime; let us raise above them the dear old flag they saved from dishonor; let us in this solemn presence renew our pledges to aid and assist those whom they have left among us as a sacred charge upon a nation's gratitude—the soldiers' and sailors' widow and orphan."

Let us teach our children and the coming generation to duly observe Memorial Day not as a day of jollification, but as a day of mourning and weeping; let us do all we can to make this the greatest legal holiday of our country and thereby show our everlasting gratitude to those who died in defense of justice and their country, and let us not forget that a people honor themselves in honoring their dead.

Henry Truelsen, Mayor.

PROGRAM SETTLED UPON.

Manner of Entertaining the Guests Decided.

At the meeting yesterday afternoon of the committees appointed to arrange for the entertainment of the State Firemen's association convention, the program outlined was as given in The Herald yesterday. There will be an excursion on the Christopher Columbus on the lake on the first day, the City band accompanying. A ball will be given at the Pavilion on the evening of the second day, after the opera is given. On the third a picnic will be given up the river, probably at Zenith Park, Peterson's new resort, or Fond du Lac. The committee has received invitations from both and will go up the river today to look them over and decide which is the most desirable. Badges have been ordered and are very elaborate.

The general committee organized permanently by the election of Commissioner McGregor as chairman and Commissioner Little as secretary. Committees were appointed as follows: Transportation, P. S. Anneke, J. T. Black, W. Buchanan; halls and decorations, J. T. Black, J. R. Randall; entertainment, A. T. McGregor, P. S. Anneke and Alderman Christensen; reception, J. R. Randall, Aldermen Christensen and Trevillion; finance, Alderman Coventry and the chairman of the other committees. The committee on reception is empowered to add to its numbers and select as many members of commercial bodies and prominent individuals as it sees fit.

FOLEY BROS' SUIT.

Argued Before the Circuit Court of Appeals.

Judge William Lochren sat on the bench of the United States circuit court of appeals at St. Paul yesterday, Judge Caldwell having gone to Denver. Judge Lochren was asked to sit by Judge Sanborn, the senior on the bench, in the absence of Judge Caldwell, and the ample black robe became him well.

The case before the court was that of Foley Bros. & Guthrie against the Guaranty Trust and Safe Deposit company, in which the contractors ask for an injunction preventing the sale of the Duluth & Winnipeg road under foreclosure sale. The case is before the court on an appeal. The plaintiffs allege, in brief, that there has been no bona fide default in the payment of interest on the bonds, and that such apparent default has been brought about by a combination of which Mr. Van Horne is the leading spirit in his attempt to wreck the road. After the argument the court adjourned.

Lumberman Drowned.

John Nygren, a lumberman on John D. Nelson & Co.'s drive on the Namakagan river, near Marshland, Wis., was drowned Wednesday evening about 7 o'clock. He was working on some logs in the river and rolled off into the water. He was evidently caught in a small whirlpool or eddy and sucked downward for he did not rise to the surface. The body was recovered some minutes later, but all efforts to revive the man were futile.

His home is at Forest Lake, on the St. Paul & Duluth road, and the body was brought in and shipped to that place last evening.

Do not be hoodwinked. Use no "just as good." Salvacion Oil is what you want when in need of a good liniment.

Cleveland May Come.

It is announced that Grover Cleveland may spend a few weeks fishing at Whimbijjun, the new fishing resort on the Brule, some time in August. He will be the guest of Senator Vilas, and will be accompanied by a party of friends.

Track Caved in.

A cave-in on the Northern Pacific road near Deerwood yesterday delayed traffic for some time. Owing to the continued rains a section of the embankment slipped away, and it was necessary to build a temporary track around the spot. This was done last night, and trains are running with greater regularity today.

Notice.

Saturday being a legal holiday the barber shops in the city will be closed from 12 m. to 7 o'clock p. m.

SENATOR ALLEN'S CAREER.

How He Made His Mark and Fortune.

Twenty years ago a young man, a minister's son, just 33 years of age, left Minneapolis dead broke, and a little worse, as he was in debt to quite an amount, says the Anoka Union. He had been associated with a big lumber concern in that city, which played upon him a magnificent game of freeze out. Our hero settled in Stillwater, determined to make his mark and fortune, and buckled down for the contest. Ten years rolled around and he had become vice president and manager of the C. N. Nelson Lumber company, of Cloquet, Minn. In 1890 and 1894 he was elected state senator from the Fifty-third district.

The young man's full name was William Prescott Allen. A short time ago the lumber company disposed of its entire business to the Weyerhauser company, and Senator Allen's interest figured up $160,000 alone. He was out of debt and therefore he became possessed of a splendid little nest egg. With the closing out of the business he resigned the senatorship, has foresworn politics in the future and removed to St. Paul, where he will hereafter reside to enjoy his honestly earned wealth, and you may be sure he will keep it, for it was gotten by hard work and hard knocks.

WHOLESOME ADVICE

For People Whose Stomachs Are Weak and Digestion Poor.

Dr. Harlandson, whose opinion in diseases of the stomach is worthy of attention, says when a man or woman comes to me complaining of indigestion, loss of appetite, sour stomach, belching, sour watery-risings, headaches, sleeplessness, lack of ambition and a generally run down nervous condition I advise them to take after each meal one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, allowing the tablet to dissolve in the mouth, and thus mingle with the food eaten. The result is that the food is speedily digested before it has time to sour and ferment. These tablets will digest food anyway, whether the stomach wants to or not, because they contain harmless digestive principles, vegetable essences, pepsin and Golden Seal which supply just what the weak stomach lacks.

I have advised the tablets with great success, both in curing indigestion and to build up the tissues, increase flesh in thin, nervous patients, whose only real trouble was dyspepsia, and as soon as the stomach was put to rights they did not know what sickness was.

A 50-cent package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets can be bought at any drug store, and as they are not a secret patent medicine, they can be used as often as desired with full assurance that they contain nothing harmful in the slightest degree; on the contrary, anyone whose stomach is at all deranged will find great benefit from the use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. They will cure any form of stomach weakness or disease except cancer of the stomach. Full sized package at druggists 50 cents and $1 or by mail from Stuart company, Marshall, Mich.

TWO FRAIL DAMSELS.

They Were Given a Ride in the Patrol.

At an early hour yesterday morning two policemen wandered into a well-known block on Superior street and rudely disturbed two fair young damsels who were entertaining a couple of young men. The entrance of the police caused great embarrassment to the quartet. The young women suffered most from the confusion for they were in a state of decided dishabille. The young men had evidently just dropped in, and after they had protested that it was only a formal call, admitting that at such a late hour it was bad form, they were allowed to go. The young women were given a ride in the patrol wagon to headquarters and after a good lecture there were allowed to go.

The young women have lived in Duluth for some time and at one time bore good reputations. They are bright and pretty and the temptations which have been thrown in their paths have been too strong for their moral natures to overcome. It is a deplorable fact that the number of young women, and even young girls, of uncertain reputation in Duluth is very large and seems to be constantly growing.

STILL ON

Braithwaite Case Continues in the Municipal Court Today.

Has Excited Great Interest and the Court Room is Crowded.

At Noon the Evidence in the Case Was Not All In.

The Braithwaite trial was still on in the municipal court at adjournment last evening. Following the prosecuting witness, Henry Grytdahl, whose testimony was detailed in The Herald yesterday, Louis Pierson, a schoolmate of Henry's, who was present when the offense was alleged to have been committed, was put on the stand, his testimony corroborating that of young Grytdahl.

The mother of the boy, Mrs. Henry Grytdahl, testified as to the boy's injuries. Drs. Pillsbury and Magle, who had examined the bruises soon after the occurrence, told of the appearance of the boy's limbs. According to their testimony, the black and blue marks extended over an area from just below the knee to above the middle of the thigh, on the right leg, and on the left leg a space somewhat smaller. The marks were caused by laceration of the smaller blood vessels, such an effect being caused usually by blows. The appearance might be presented in consequence of an abnormal condition of the blood vessels themselves, but no trace of the existence of such a condition had been discovered in this case. The conclusion drawn by the witnesses was that a somewhat severe whipping had been administered.

H. J. Davis, president of the board of public works, testified that the fence against which the boy leaned is city property and under the control of the board of public works.

Dr. Bakke, who had dressed the bruises soon after they were received, and who had been subpoenaed to testify as to the boy's condition at that time, sent word that he was attending a patient who was very ill, and the prosecution rested without his evidence.

MISS BRAITHWAITE'S STORY.

After a motion by the defense to dismiss, on the ground that no offense had been proven, which motion was overruled, Miss Braithwaite took the stand. She testified that Henry was insubordinate, and had vicious habits. She feared he would contaminate the young pupils. The rules she had adopted, of which those relating to leaning against the fences, loitering in the porches and regulations concerning the toilet rooms, were designed to guard the younger scholars from pernicious influences. At the time Henry was leaning against the fence, he was exposing his person. She detailed the circumstances of the whipping, and showed the jury how she had held the tubing. She had wrapped an end of it once around her wrist.

On cross-examination, she said she had had trouble with the boy continually, but had tried to encourage him in the hope that she might make something of him. She had not called on nor sent word to his parents in regard to his conduct. They had not called on her in regard to the matter, and she felt for that reason that they could not take much interest in his progress, and had, therefore, not communicated with them. On being asked if she never interested herself in the moral and intellectual welfare of her pupils unless their parents called on her about such matters, she said she did. She testified that the punishment she administered on the occasion complained of was not for the one offense she had mentioned, but for a series of delinquencies of which he had been guilty. On being asked if she had called his attention to these other matters for which she had punished him, she said she had in a general way—so he understood it, she thought.

SAW THE WHIPPING.

Miss Moffat gave an account of the whipping. Dr. Salter testified that he had examined the bruises some nine days after they were received. They were then of a greenish color. They might have been caused by a moderate beating.

On rebuttal the prosecution introduced Henry's report card for the period from Sept. 1, 1895, to May 1, 1896, showing his conduct to be good for the first two months and fair for the remainder, scholarship average from 80 to 90 per cent up to the first of the year, and from 70 to 80 per cent for the remainder of the time.

After the prosecution had rested its main case, the boy was examined by the jury.

Editors Mitchell, of the Tribunal, and Lange, of the Scandia, were present and took copious notes of the evidence. At 5 o'clock court adjourned to 9:30 this morning.

THIS MORNING'S SESSION.

The forenoon was taken up by the rebuttal on the part of the prosecution in the Braithwaite trial today. The defendant was put on the stand for cross-examination. City Attorney Benham asked her to detail to the jury exactly what the Grytdahl boy did while he stood leaning against the fence.

Attorney Banks raised a strenuous objection to this question. He remarked that the city attorney was degoid of decency and insisted that the matter had already been explained with enough particularity to inform the jury.

The city attorney said that if there were any present who did not care to listen, they might leave the room, but it was necessary to go into the matter. The evidence had pointed to two conclusions, and one of them was that the boy was doing something which, while the place was not a proper one, was not criminal. The court ruled that a detailed statement would not be necessary, but that questions might be asked that might show that the boy was not wantonly exposing his person.

The witness said that she had attempted to explain to Mr. Grytdahl why she had whipped his son, but he refused to hear her. She could not remember what she had said, but was sure she had tried to explain the matter. In answer to a question from her attorney, she said the rubber hose, which is about three-quarters of an inch in diameter, is such as is in use in the schools as a means of punishment. On cross-examination, she had no personal knowledge of the use of such hose in any school but the Bryant.

Dr. Bakke testified as to the appearance of the bruises the day after the whipping occurred, his testimony and that of Dr. Walker being introduced to rebut evidence introduced by the defense in support of the theory that the bruises were caused by a moderate beating. Dr. Bakke testified that he did not count the welts, but he could swear there were more than ten. In some spots more than one blow had fallen. He was asked on cross-examination if he could tell how many blows had fallen in one spot, to which he replied that he could tell if there were more than one. He was asked how he could tell if the lines of demarkation were the same, and he finally said that he could tell provided they had not fallen in exactly the same place, at which there was some merriment among the spectators. The boys' legs were bruised, according to the witness, about as testified by Drs. Magle and Pillsbury.

Louis Pierson, Frank Scovey, Henry Trudo and Peter Westenholm, boys who were with young Grytdahl and in his vicinity when the offense was said to have been committed, all testified that there was no exposure of the person on the part of any of the boys. Two of them had gone with the Grytdahl boy to the place and one had joined them immediately afterward, and all had remained with him to the time school convened. Cross-examination failed to shake them.

Mr. Grytdahl, the father, testified that no complaint had been made to him by defendant, and that he had not observed his boy to be addicted to bad practices.

George Spencer and C. H. Laland testified that Henry was of good character. Laland had been a near neighbor for two years up to March, but had not seen Henry much since then.

VETOED

President Cleveland Returns the River and Harbor Bill Disapproved.

Claims Many of the Items Are to Benefit Private Individuals.

And He Hints at Some Other Objects as Very Extravagant.

Washington, May 29.—President Cleveland this morning returned the river and harbor bill to the house with the following veto and comments:

"To the House of Representatives: I return herewith, without approval, house bill numbered 7977 entitled 'An act making appropriations for the construction, repair and preservation of certain public works on rivers and harbors and for other purposes.' There are 417 items of appropriation contained in this bill, and every part of the country is represented in the distribution of its favors. It directly appropriates or provides for the immediate expenditure of nearly $14,000,000 for river and harbor work. This sum is in addition to appropriations contained in another bill, for similar purposes, amounting to a little more than $2,000,000, which has already been favorably considered a. the present session of congress.

"The result is that the contemplated immediate expenditures for the objects mentioned amount to about $17,000,000. A more startling feature of the bill is its authorization of contracts for river and harbor work amounting to more than $62,000,000. Though the payments on these contracts are in most cases so distributed that they are to be met by future appropriations, more than $5,000,000 on their account are included in the direct appropriations above mentioned. Of these remainder nearly $20,000,000 will fall due during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1898, and amounts somewhat less in the years immediately succeeding. A few contracts of a like character, authorized under previous statutes, are still outstanding; and to meet payments on these more than $4,000,000 must be appropriated in the immediate future.

"If therefore, this bill becomes a law, the obligation which will be imposed on the government, together with the appropriations made for immediate expenditure, on account of rivers and harbors, will amount to about $80,000,000. Nor is this all. The bill directs numerous surveys and examinations which contemplate new work and further contracts, and which portend largely increased expenditures and obligations. There is no ground to hope that, in the face of persistent and growing demands, the aggregate of appropriations for the smaller schemes, not covered by contracts, will be reduced, or even remain stationary.

"For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1898, such appropriations, together with the establishments on contracts which will fall due in that year, can hardly be less than $20,000,000, and it may reasonably be apprehended that the prevalent tendency towards increased expenditures of this sort, and the concealment which postponed payments afford for extravagance, will increase the burdens chargeable to this account in succeeding years.

"In view of the obligation imposed upon me by the constitution, it seems to me quite clear that I only discharge a duty to our people when I interpose my disapproval of the legislation proposed. Many of the objects for which it appropriates public money are not related to the public welfare, and many of them are palpably for the benefit of limited localities, or in aid of individual interests. On the face of the bill it appears that not a few of these alleged improvements have been so improvidently planned and prosecuted, that after an unwise expenditure of millions of dollars new experiments for their accomplishment have been entered upon. While those entrusted with the management of public funds, in the interest of all the people, can hardly justify questionable expenditures for public work by pledging the opinions of engineers, or others, as to the practicability of such work, it appears that some of the projects for which appropriations are proposed in this bill have been entered upon without the approval, or against the objections of the examining engineers.

"I learn from official sources that there are appropriations contained in the bill to pay for work which private parties have actually agreed with the government to do, in consideration of their occupancy of public property. Whatever it was of doubtful propriety may have escaped observation, or may have been tolerated in previous executive approvals of similar nature. I am convinced that the bill now under consideration opens the way to insidious and increasing abuses, and is itself so extravagant as to be especially unsuited to these times of depressed business and resulting disappointment in government receipts. This consideration is emphasized by the prospect that the public treasury will be confronted with other appropriations made at the present session of congress, amounting to more than $500,000,000.

"Individual economy and careful expenditures are sterling virtues which lead to thrift and comfort. Economy, and the exaction of clear justification for the appropriation of public moneys, by the servants of the people, are not only virtues, but solemn obligations. To the extent that the appropriations contained in this bill are instigated by private interests and prone to local or individual projects their allowance cannot fail to stimulate vicious paternalism and encourage a sentiment among our people, already too prevalent, that their attachment to our government may properly rest upon the hope and expectation of direct and especial favors, and that the extent to which they are realized may furnish an estimate of the value of governmental care.

"I believe no greater danger confronts us as a nation than the unhappy decadence among our people of genuine and trustworthy love and affection for our government, as the embodiment of the highest and best aspirations of humanity, and not as the giver of gifts, and because its mission is the enforcement of exact justice and equality and not the allowance of unfair favoritism. I hope I may be permitted to suggest at a time when the issue of government bonds to maintain the credit and financial standing of the country is a subject of criticism, that the contracts provided for in this bill would create obligations of the United States amounting to $62,000,000, no less binding than its bonds for that sum.

"Grover Cleveland.

"Executive Mansion, May 29, 1896."

OVER THE VETO.

House Will Try to Pass the Bill on Monday.

Washington, May 29.—The managers of the river and harbor bill in the house intend to move the reference of the veto message to the committee on rivers and harbors and bring it before the house on Monday. There are many members out of town, and the friends of the measure do not wish to risk an attempt to pass the bill over the veto until more members arrive.

The veto message was expected by friends of the bill, and during the past week they have been at the war department daily gathering information in the possession of the army engineers respecting the projects mentioned in the bill.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Senators Arrange the Taking Up of Bills.

Washington, May 29.—The Republican senators held a caucus today and decided upon the order in which bills on the calendar should be taken up. There was a general understanding that nothing should interfere with the consideration of conference reports on the appropriation bills, and that no obstacle should be placed in the way of reaching a vote on the Butler bond bill. Other bills are to be taken up and disposed of in the following order: Filled cheese, alcohol in the arts, fruit brandy, immigration, 5 per cent land bill, labor commission, election of senators by the people, bankruptcy, contempt of courts, courts in Indian territory, reorganization of the Northern Pacific Railway company, Alabama election investigation, animal industry, New Hampshire war claims.

It is generally conceded that the list will be by no means completed before adjournment, and the prevailing opinion in the caucus was that it would be impossible to dispose of more than the first three measures, though the friends of the immigration bill will press it to consideration if it be possible to do so.

There was an effort to have the Pacific railroad refunding bill placed ahead of the immigration bill, and a motion was made to this effect, but it was defeated and a definite decision reached not to attempt to take up this bill until the next session. On motion of Senator Nelson the caucus decided not to accept any amendments to the filled cheese bill.

A DECEPTION EASILY PRACTISED

Is the offer of a reward for "any case of catarrh not cured" by certain "cures" or "blood medicines." Nothing is said regarding the number of bottles required, and therein lies the deception. The makers of Ely's Cream Balm have never resorted to such devices. Cream Balm is an elegant preparation, agreeable to use, and immediate in its beneficial results. It cures catarrh. You can rely upon the fact that it contains no mercury nor other injurious drug. Fifty cents.

NEW NATIONAL PARTY.

Leaders Arranging For a Vigorous Campaign.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 29.—About seventy-five members, including the leaders of the new national party, organized last night by the bolters from the Prohibition convention, met at the Central hotel today and arranged for a vigorous campaign. Nearly $2000 was subscribed to meet the expenses. Mrs. Helene Gougar, Mrs. Richards, of Ohio; L. B. Logan, of Ohio, who acted as chairman; Candidate Bentley, ex-Governor St. John, and others made addresses. Mr. Bentley asserted that he would get 100,000 votes from the Prohibitionists, and that many Western silver men would flock to the new party. He feared that the Australian system of voting in several states might result in keeping the new ticket from the ballot. The executive committee of the new party is in session this afternoon.

Just what will become of the Prohibition party is a matter which politicians are now discussing. The bitterness of the feeling among the advocates of cold water as a result of the bolt of the broad gaugers last night is manifested on every side. Some of the narrow gaugers claim to entertain the hope that the bolters will yet come back to the parent organization, but others are just as certain that the two elements will never again be brought together. Homer L. Castle, chairman of the Prohibition local committee, said that so far as the East is concerned the Prohibition party will not be in any way affected by the bolt. With the West matters are different, and some of the leaders, he said, were blind to the situation. He made the prediction, however, that 75 per cent of the bolters would be back in the fold within two weeks. "Such people as John P. St. Johns, Mrs. Gougar and R. S. Thompson," he said, "are Populists with Prohibition tendencies. I presume they will go to the Populist party or the free silver party, which is to be formed July 22 in St. Louis."

A CHEAP KINGDOM.

From the South seas, that were shrouded in mystery until Stevenson and Louis Becker lifted the veil, comes the story of another sovereign thrown out upon the world, says Harper's Weekly. Queen Mamea has sold her kingdom—one-half of the island of Raiatea, in the Tahiti group—for 4000 francs. In 1842 the French took Raiatea. One-half of the population submitted with a good grace; the other refused to capitulate, built a high stone wall across the island, and lived on the far side of it in a state of revolt. A few months ago a French gunboat appeared at their side, and by its menacing aspect crushed the rebellion of a half century. Queen Mamea, who is 22 and has a dowry of 4000 francs, will, like her countrymen, Lilikuokalani and Kiaulana, be added to the list of throneless queens.

SLIGHTLY CONFUSED.

Washington Star: It was at the breakfast table of a boarding house where some of the people affect literature. One of them had been "being bright" and another was moved to remark:

"This reminds me of Holmes' 'Autocrat of the Breakfast Table.'"

The girl with blonde frizzes shivered and exclaimed:

"I'll never read another line that Holmes has written."

"Why not?"

"Well, in the first place, his confessions were horrible, and in the next place, I don't believe that half of them were true."

SLAVERY ECHOES.

How a Colored Family Was United.

In the early part of the eventful year of 1861 a gentleman called at my office in Cincinnati and presented a letter of introduction from a mutual friend in Cleveland, says a contributor to the Chicago Inter Ocean. He was invited to my home, where he spent the night, and told me that he intended going to Frankfort, Ky., to rescue a woman and her three children from slavery, either by purchase or some other method known only to the agents of the underground railway.

He became specially interested in the case, as he had met a young colored man who was the husband of this woman and father of the children. He was a freedman and a servant of an officer in a United States regiment then stationed in Central Ohio, but expected to be called into active service at any moment. There were mutterings around Fort Sumpter; war was imminent and friends in Northern Ohio advised haste in the consummation of his plans. We decided that he should go to Frankfort and see if a purchase could be made of the woman, who was her master's daughter, and was allowed to use her profile in soliciting for the support of herself and children.

After an interview with her, Mr. R. went to see her master and father, a wealthy slaveholder, and twin brother of a former governor of Missouri. He found very little disposition on the part of her master to dispose of his slaves. He demanded a greater sum than Mr. R. could think of paying, even with the threatenings of Sumter in view. The definite offer of $8000 in hand was at once decidedly refused.

Knowing that further attempts to purchase were futile, my friend, disappointed but not discouraged, returned to Ohio. He next decided to revisit Kentucky in disguise. Divesting himself of an upper set of teeth and a handsome diamond pin, which he left in the care of my family, and clad in a business suit borrowed of a friend of mine of about his height and proportions, he was ready to return to Kentucky and engage in a horse dealing trade or any occupation that might seem necessary to fit the occasion.

Everything worked well in his new vocation. He called on Mrs. Marshall at a neighboring plantation and saw several fine horses that were held at figures somewhat in excess of his orders for the present trip. He had a splendid dinner provided for him, showing the hospitality for which Kentucky has always been so noted. He then found time to see Maria and plan for her escape by Louisville to Jeffersonville across the river, and then by rail to Cincinnati.

Comfortable quarters were secured for them in the garret of a hotel at Jeffersonville, and strict orders given that their door should be kept fastened during the day.

The time set for taking them from the hotel was the next night after their arrival, so that they might have at least two days' rest. Maria was about three-quarters white, with good, regular features, and in many cities she might have passed for a white woman, and her children were neat and well cared for. At the appointed time for leaving the hotel I was on hand and found already. It was thought best to walk through a sort of by-way in preference to risking the street cars, and the moon had kindly hidden her face in our favor. Mrs. R. took one child in his arms, I another, and the mother led the eldest, a boy of 5 years, by the hand, and we struck off by the canal locks to the Little Miami depot. A long mile brought us to the mail train just ready to start, and in a few minutes they were off for central Ohio, where the happy father was anticipating their arrival.

The pathos, the humor, characteristic of an enslaved race nowhere appeared more affecting than in their joyous reunion at Wooster. Before many hours they were on their way to Canada beyond the reach of the fugitive slave law that was compelled at length to bow in submission to the emancipation proclamation.

SOUTHERN GARDEN TRUCK.

In the busy season the railroad runs two trains daily, each carrying from 3000 to 4000 boxes and barrels; while the steamers take from 10,000 to 12,000 of them a week, says Harper's Weekly. The farms about New Berne and Elizabeth City produce large quantities of potatoes, two crops being grown annually. According to a recent statement made to the writer the truck shipped from New Berne last year amounted to seventy train loads, or about 240,000 boxes and barrels and 150,000 packages by steamer. The value of this truck is estimated to have been about $1,000,000.

From Wilmington to Goldsboro along the Wilmington & Weldon railroad, almost every station is a shipping station for strawberries and truck. The most attention is paid to strawberries, and many of the growers have been very successful. At Mount Olive one truck farmer, who has about seventy acres under cultivation, thirty-three being in strawberries, told me that two years ago his berry crop brought $16,000. He figured that his net profits were not less than one-half of that, or $8000. The shipments here begin about April 20, and last about a month. The berries are sent to New York at a cost of 5 cents per quart.

The truck from North Carolina is followed into market by that from Norfolk, Va. This is the center of the greatest trucking area in the South. The location of Norfolk, with quick railroad and water transportation, gives it many advantages. The trucking country is almost surrounded by salt water, and is cut in by numerous sounds and channels from the ocean, from Chesapeake bay, from Hampton roads, and from the Elizabeth and James rivers. Besides, the warm waters of the Gulf stream make the season earlier than at inland farms in the same latitude, and admit of the growing of a greater variety of vegetables than can be safely attempted elsewhere.

THE THRIFTY BELGIANS.

Great attention is being drawn to the unparalleled influx of foreign capital into Russia during the last two years, which is still on the increase, says the Chicago Inter-Ocean. It has been calculated that within a very short time thirty-one new industrial undertakings have been started in Russia by the Belgians alone, with a capital of 181,000,000 rubles.

Shipments For the Month of May Break the Record.

Twelve Million Bushels of Grain Shipped So Far This Season.

Engine of the Steamer Merida Broke Down on Lake Huron.

This season in lake shipments started out with a rush. It has not kept up, but the figures for the month of May, when they are completed, will show that a record has been made. For instance, on Sept. 1 last year, Duluth and Superior had shipped about 10,500,000 bushels of all kinds of grain. Up to date this year about 12,000,000 bushels of grain have been shipped, with over three months to come to make up the equality in time.

Lumber shipments are also greatly increased. In May last year 32,234,149 feet were shipped from Duluth alone. So far this month Duluth has shipped 38,147,280 feet. Ore shows another large increase. In May, 1895, Duluth alone shipped 188,017 tons. So far this month Duluth has shipped 228,860 tons. These figures do no include Two Harbors. The total tonnage of shipments in May, 1895, was 311,000 tons. So far this month it amounts to 125,000 tons.

Some ore has been sold during the past few days and shippers that have been practically out of the market are now bidding for tonnage. Rates firm at 95 cents from head of Lake Superior.

The steamer Kalaska, bound down with lumber went aground Wednesday night on a crib at the mouth of the entry to Portage river. She was released without damage after lightering a large part of her cargo.

THE DISTRICT COURT.

Mrs. Alward Gets a Three Thousand Dollar Verdict.

In Judge Moer's division of district court this morning the jury in the case of Mary Zoe Alward against the Northern Pacific returned a verdict of $3000 for the plaintiff for the loss of her husband's life in a collision on the Northern Pacific, near Staples.

Judge Moer next took up the case of Emma Holmes against the city, to enforce the removal of retaining wall built near the plaintiff's lots in the West End.

Judge Morris, at noon, gave the case of Andrew Swordling against the Security bank to the jury. This afternoon the case of John R. Rollin against the St. Louis Lumber company was to be taken up. Rollin wants $15,227.50 for the loss of a thumb and two fingers in a sawmill. The case of Haldor Sigurdson against the Duluth Transfer Railway company was dismissed.

Judge Ensign this morning gave the case of August Fliger et al against C. M. Hill to the jury, which was still out at noon. The next case taken up was that of Sam Brusell against Peter Larson. Brusell alleges that in 1892 he owed Larson $250, and he turned a piece of land over to him to sell, and the payment was to be made out of the proceeds. Brusell claims that Larson told him that he had sold the land for $500, and that he turned over to the plaintiff the balance of $250. Brusell claims that in 1894, two years later, he discovered that Larson had sold the land for $1100 instead of $500, and he wants the matter squared up.

SHILOH

Reunion of the Survivors of the Famous Battle Being Held.

First Monument Will Be Unveiled By the Ninth Illinois Infantry.

Prominent Generals of the War Have Promised to Be Present.

Shiloh, Tenn., May 29.—The third annual reunion of the survivors of the battle of Shiloh, or Pittsburg Landing, will be held on the battlefield this afternoon and Saturday. One feature of the programme will be the unveiling of a monument dedicated to the memory of the fallen comrades of the Ninth Illinois Infantry. This regiment lost 365 men in killed and wounded in the battle, the heaviest loss of any regiment that took part. Prominent speakers from the North and South will deliver addresses.

This is the first monument to be erected on the Shiloh battlefield. The monument is made of Barre (Vermont), granite, and is six feet long at the base, three feet six inches thick. The monument is seven feet five inches high, and weights 16,000 pounds. The cost was $1000. On the cap is a knapsack crossed guns and a military cap with olive branch and oak leaves. On the front view it reads "Ninth Illinois Infantry Volunteers." On the reverse it reads "April 6, 1862. Present for duty, 578 men; killed and died of wounds, 103; wounded, 263; total killed and wounded, 366." This is the heaviest loss sustained by any regiment in this or any other single battle of the war, according to the number engaged.

At the unveiling Col. Clements, president of the Ninth Illinois Veteran association, will make an address. Then Gen. Jesse J. Phillips, former colonel of the Ninth, and now one of the supreme court judges of Illinois, will give an historical review. The monument will be unveiled by Mrs. Capt. N. C. Kniffer, of the Ninth. The decoration of the monument will follow. After this will come the decoration of the 4000 graves in the cemetery with 10,000 white Cape Jasmine flowers by 100 ladies, a flag being placed at each grave.

At 2 p. m. there will be a mass-meeting, when addresses will be made by the Hon. Josiah Patterson, the Hon. John E.

Secretary E. T. Lee.

McCall, Gen. Basil Duke, Senator Isham G. Harris, Gen. J. R. Chambers and others. The presentation of a floral shield by Charles Lolland, of Paducah, Ky., in honor of those who served in the navy and marine corps during the war will precede the farewell addresses.

On the day preceding, ex-Governor Robert Taylor, of Tennessee, will make an address of welcome in the National cemetery. Gen. B. M. Prentiss, who was captured at the battle of Shiloh by the Confederates, will respond. Gen. Don Carlos Buell will follow with an address on "The Army of Ohio." The Hon. John M. Allen, of Mississippi, "Private Allen," will also speak. Capt. Edward T. Lincoln, commander of the Illinois naval veterans, will talk on "The Navy at Shiloh."

During the reunion Senator Harris will mark the exact spot where Gen. Albert Sidney Johnson fell, a much-disputed point. He was with the general when he died.

The secretary of the Shiloh Battlefield association, Col. E. T. Lee, has charge of the reunion. Col. Lee has 30,000 members on the list of veterans of Shiloh.

PENNSYLVANIA'S DEATH.

Three Dead and Many Injured Near Ambler.

Ambler, Pa., May 29.—The tornado which swept through the lower end of Montgomery county yesterday, carried death and destruction before it. Three lives were lost and many persons were more or less injured, besides thousands of dollars' worth of damage done to property. The storm seemed to gather its destructive force just west of this place. It missed the center of the town by a few hundred yards, careened through the farming region, leveling barns, fences and trees, until Jarrettown was reached, where the most damage was done. Four men took refuge in a stone barn. The wind struck the building with cyclonic force, burying Alfred Moffit, Winfield Emslie, John Betts and Charles Spencer in the ruins. The two former were dead when taken out, but Betts and Spencer escaped with a few bruises. There were four horses in the stable, all of them being killed.

The big stone crushing works of Dr. Wilson, a few yards further east, were razed to the ground and two men badly injured. The extensive greenhouses of C. W. Bergner, just west of Ambler, were ground to pieces. The summer mansion of Alexander Knight was literally ruined. The wind seemed to drive down and scoop the center out of the building. The occupants were not seriously injured. Dr. R. V. Matterson's big barn was torn down.

The house of Charles Aiken, near Fort Washington, was badly wrecked, his barn left a rubbish heap and four horses killed. Three tenement houses on the farm of William Potts were rendered uninhabitable and the barn destroyed.

The Jarrettown Methodist church and school house were wrecked. John E. Tacner's barn was demolished and two valuable trotters killed.

At Langhorne, George Wenterk was killed in a barn in which he had taken shelter. The large tobacco house of Joseph and Samuel Headley was blown down.

At Bennsmanor, the barns, tobacco houses and outbuildings belonging to James Lovett, Caleb Taylor, Andrew Crosier, Henry Lovett and Edward Kirkbride were completely destroyed.

The storm left this county near Bashertown with most of its devastating force spent. The loss to fruit trees and growing crops will be enormous.

ANOTHER CYCLONE IN MISSOURI.

Chicago, May 29.—A special from St. Louis says: Capt. Tipton, of the government snag boat General Barnard, states that he had received reports from people on shore below the city that there had been a severe tornado in Missouri back of Hannibal, and that the town of Bowling Green, the county seat of Pike county, had been swept from the face of the earth. He could not obtain any definite information of the catastrophe, as all the telephone and telegraph wires in that section of the state were down.

BOWLING GREEN ESCAPED.

Kansas City, Mo., May 29.—A dispatch received this morning from Bowling Green, Mo., by the local manager of the Postal Telegraph company states that place was not touched by the recent tornado. The dispatch comes from the agent of the St. Louis & Hannibal railroad, at Bowling Green, and adds that the twister struck eight miles from there uprooting the depot at Burryville, demolishing several houses and killing one woman, name not given.

WHERE HELP IS NEEDED.

Chicago, May 29.—The following messages were received by the general manager of the Associated Press:

St. Louis, May 29.—St. Louis does not need assistance. East St. Louis is appealing for aid. The proportion of destruction to population there is something awful. Charles W. Knapp, editor of the Republic."

"St. Louis, May 29.—St. Louis is profoundly thankful for sympathy and proffered aid, but is amply able to care for her sufferers. East St. Louis, however, is worse hurt than we are, and help is badly needed there. Albert Lawson, managing editor of the Post Dispatch."

AN OKLAHOMA HURRICANE.

Kansas City, Mo., May 29.—A special to the Star from Perry, Okla., says: Jawnee, thirty miles east, was visited by a hurricane yesterday and a half dozen people were killed and wounded. Hail four inches in diameter fell and did great damage. All window lights facing north and west were smashed.

In the vicinity of Sheridan, ten miles from Henenssy, many houses and barns were destroyed or wrecked, but as far as known no one was killed at that place. Details are meager.

THE ROAD RACE.

Weather Bureau Says the Weather Will Be Pleasant.

Tomorrow afternoon the annual road race of the Duluth Cycle club takes place on London road, and the outlook is that it will be the greatest event of this character that has ever been held in Duluth. In the present unsettled state of the atmosphere one of the greatest concerns is the weather. The signal service office here promises good road race weather. It will be a trifle cooler, on account of a mild northeast wind.

The entries are about twice as many as in any previous road race, and more interest is being manifested than ever before. The local riders who are entered have been doing their best to come up to what they consider necessary to win a prize, and speaking of prizes, there are enough of them and they are good enough to satisfy any crowd of scorchers. The race will start at 2 p. m. on London road, at Fifth avenue east, and the finish is at Fifth avenue.

In the evening there will be a parade for prizes for the best dressed wheels, one each for man and woman. At 9:30 there will be a banquet at the St. Louis. The handicaps for the race will be announced tomorrow morning.

He drew a pistol and sent a bullet through his own brain, dying almost instantly. The tragedy resulted from the refusal of the girl to marry Scaromelle. She is fearfully cut but may recover.

FAVOR ONE

The Sentiment Seems to Be For a "Bunched" County Convention.

Present County Officers Are Almost Unanimously In Favor of It.

Legislative Committee Will Meet and Issue a Call Tomorrow.

It is now an uncertain question whether the county committee will call a "bunched" convention, that is, one at which delegates shall be chosen to the state, congressional, legislative and judicial conventions and county officers nominated, or simply a convention to select delegates to the state and congressional conventions and have a later convention for the other purposes. The chances at present seem to be in favor of the "bunched" convention.

The reasons for this are several. The range people do not want to come down to two conventions, and they must be on hand if they desire representation. One trip down is expensive enough. They, therefore, are inclined to favor the single convention. The seekers after nominations also seem to be in favor of the "bunched" convention, at least the majority seem to. The present officers, and they propose to stand together, to be a "ring," as it were, are mostly all in favor of one convention. Messrs. Arbury, Whipple and Davis are known to be and Mr. Butchart is also supposed to be, Mr. Halden undoubtedly is also, for it would give less time for any opposition against him to develop. He seems to have none now.

The new aspirants also seem to be on the whole agreeable to one convention, the idea being probably to have the agony over with as soon as possible.

The legislative committee of this district will get together tomorrow in George R. Layfourn's office and decide what to do about calling the legislative convention.

The judicial committee has made no move so far as can be learned. D. H. Twomey was chairman. Since he has removed from the city he forwarded his proxy to Page Morris to place as he sees fit.

AT FOND DU LAC.

MEMORIAL EXERCISES.

Program Which Will Be Followed Tomorrow.

The veterans will visit the graves of their comrades tomorrow forenoon, when the usual impressive and solemn rites in memory of those who have crossed the river and gone into camp on the other shore will be performed. The ceremony will be in charge of Culver post G. A. R., and will be in accordance with the Grand Army ritual.

The members of the Grand Army desire that all citizens should attend at the cemetery and also, and especially, at the exercises at the high school, which will be held in Assembly hall, commencing at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Addresses will be delivered at the school by Rev. G. H. Humason and W. B. Phelps and music will be furnished by the high school chorus, under the direction of Professor Custance and the American band.

For the cemetery, in the forenoon, cars will leave the corner of Second avenue east and Second street at 9:30 o'clock.

AT FOND DU LAC.

Decoration day will be observed at Fond du Lac, Saturday, May 30. Trains leave Union depot on regular time.

BIRTHS AND DEATHS.

The following deaths have been reported to the health department: Rufus Terrell, of 949 Rice avenue, of heart disease; J. E. Gustafson, of 1917 West First street, of diphtheria.

The following births have been reported: A son to Gust and Anna Borg, of 1118 London road; a daughter to G. and F. Poterek, of 510 Eighth avenue east.

DECORATION DAY, MAY 30.

The elder sisters of the First Swedish Baptist church will have a banquet at 8 o'clock p. m. Pastor F. Linden, of West Superior, will make an address. The whole program is excellent. The quilt of names will also be sold. The last of all will be a good cup of coffee and refreshments.

New Discoveries of Dead Are Being Made Every Hour.

Only the Main Streets as Yet Are Opened For Travel.

St. Louis, May 30.—By slow degrees St. Louis is recovering from the business paralysis caused by the awful storm. Some of the principal thoroughfares that were choked with wreckage have been opened and a few of the street car lines have been started, but the telephone system of the town is practically useless. The side streets through the storm-wrecked district are still in a chaotic condition. Telegraph and telephone poles, with a tangled net work of wires, roofs of houses, uprooted trees, wagons and vehicles of all kinds and the shattered remains of whole buildings are still strewn through most of them, so that traffic is in many instances impossible. It will require weeks to restore some of the streets to their normal condition.

The number of dead is hourly growing greater as the work of rescuing the ruins progresses. The ruins where at first it was not thought there were any dead bodies are now yielding them up. It was said by the officials at the city hospital the day after the storm that no one was crushed in the ruins. They are now beginning to change their minds. It has been ascertained that sixty to seventy-five of the patients and four or five employes are missing. Until this morning practically nothing towards exploring the ruins had been done. But a large number of men were present to work at daylight today.

This was done only at the loud demands of those who had friends at the hospital during the storm and who have not been heard of since. Father Kendrick, of St. Vincent's church, who had been attending to the spiritual wants of the patients in the hospital for years, says that fifty bodies will be found, if not more. Dr. Starkloff says many are dead under the wreckage. Dr. Suter estimates the number at twenty-five, but would not be surprised if it run over that figure.

Demand for houses and flats by those who were rendered homeless by Wednesday's storm is great, and real estate men think there are not sufficient vacant houses in St. Louis to supply the needs of the people. More than half of the available supply has been exhausted, and the real estate offices are constantly besieged by applicants for quarters. It is estimated that 7000 homes were so damaged as to render them uninhabitable. Real estate agents say that the number of vacant houses and flats at the time of the storm would not exceed 6000, and in any event some of the families will have to go temporarily without shelter, or depend upon their more fortunate neighbors.

The storm has attracted to St. Louis an enormous crowd. The streets are thronged with strangers night and day. The hotels are taxed almost to their utmost capacity to care for their guests. Some of the big down town hotels have had to put cots in the rooms to meet the extraordinary demand for accommodations. For the past three days all the railroad trains into St. Louis from every direction have been loaded to the guards with passengers. The Union station is jammed constantly with a moving, eager, restless mass of humanity. In the rush of visitors there are about as many women as men. Apparently all the towns within a radius of 100 miles of St. Louis have emptied their populations here and thousands have come from far beyond that limit.

The devastated district in South St. Louis has a peculiar fascination for the visitors. Thousands of them throng the Lafayette Park region and really impede the work of rescue. The scene throughout the wrecked district last night was a peculiarly weird and dreadful one. Up to 10 o'clock it was in broken darkness, save here and there where a dim lamp sent faint gleams outward, indicating the few houses which had not suffered to such an extent as to be uninhabitable. These seemed but to accentuate the gloom of the scene. Constantly passing to and fro were shadowy forms sometimes alone, but more often in twos, and indicating their progress could sometimes be heard faint metallic clicks, which to those familiar with the sounds indicated the presence of the militia.

The entire First regiment, to the number of 450 men, were patrolling the district embraced by Choteau and Geyer avenue from Grand avenue to the river. They had received explicit orders to halt everyone they met and to demand explanations of their presence on the streets, and if these were not entirely satisfactory and above suspicion they were arrested as suspects. In the event of resistance they were then to use their rifles or bayonets, and if that would not suffice, then the cartridge. The demeanor and evident resolution of these militiamen was impressive and encouraging. It was apparent that they felt the responsibility which had devolved upon them and they were determined to prove worthy of their trusts. Every nook, which might prove the hiding place of those on an evil mission bent, was minutely examined, and it would have gone hard with any one caught committing a crime. A large number of hard looking characters with appearances against them, were halted and given explicit orders to move on.

In passing the more noticeable wrecks a most uncanny feeling came over one that it might yet be the funeral pyre of some unfortunate whose life had been crushed out. Relief and rescue work had been entirely suspended and even relatives of people for good reasons presumed to be under some particular mission had gone to some hospital to seek rest after the fatigue of the dreadful day. All who had a room inhabitated had freely offered it to the poor outcasts. Rank and station were entirely forgotten, each remembering that he was but a member of the great human family. Vacant houses were thrown open. Cots and bedding furnished by neighbors the counterfeit of the death which had but just passed by them. The frequent rapping of night sticks indicated, too, the presence of the regular police, whose numbers had been increased.

MILITIA DISPERSES A MOB.

But little marked disturbance was encountered, but at Seventh and Park avenue, where a gang of hoodlums, headed by Thomas McDermott, a notorious character, attempted to hold a high carnival of bacchanalian revelry. They entered the home of William Dolphin, picked up his lamp from the table and took it across the street, where they proposed to have their reveling. Dolphin reported to First Lieut. F. S. Charlot, of Company A, who was in charge at that point. He took a squad and proceeded at once to the rendezvous of the revellers, where he rounded up fifteen thugs. By this time a very large crowd had gathered at Eighth and Park avenue intent upon rescuing the prisoners.

Lieut. Charlot was informed of their design, and leaving two of his four men on guard, took the other two and proceeded to clear the street. The crowd was inclined to dispute this, but Charlot gave his men orders to shoot straight and fast if necessary, while he displayed his revolver at full cock. It was a question for a moment whether or not there was to be bloodshed, with chances greatly in favor of the latter, but only for a moment. There was a surging back and forth, and finally the mob broke and dispersed.

NEAR BOWLING GREEN.

Cyclone Caused Much Loss and Killed Many.

St. Louis, May 30.—A special from Bowling Green, Mo., says: "This city was not swept off the earth, as was reported in some quarters by Wednesday night's storm, but has suffered great loss of property. Two miles west of Bowling Green residences and barns were blown to atoms. A house was picked up with its contents and occupants, carried over tree tops and set down again in one instance, without injury to the family. In a strip of country, a mile wide and extending from here to Curryville, eight miles away, almost every house is damaged and many are utterly demolished.

"At Curryville not a single house escaped damage. The residence of J. W. Alvis was crushed in like an egg shell and Mrs. Rebecca Reed instantly killed. Jack Emerson and Henry Cash and wife were injured. The damage to property will aggregate many thousands of dollars. Four miles west of here Mrs. Carrie Bradbury has her ribs crushed and sustained internal injuries; Louie James' boy had both arms broken, and Joe Smith's boy had his scalp taken off and will die. In most places the wind was a tornado, but at others it took on cyclonic features, twisting off elm trees three feet in diameter and whirling houses around on their foundations. Inside of thirty minutes the rainfall was 3½ inches, and from 4 to 6 o'clock it aggregated 7 inches. No such wind or rain was ever before seen in Pike county. Creeks and rivers are higher than ever known, and five bridges are washed away, almost every one on the St. Louis & Hannibal railroad, from Hannibal to Gilmore, is gone. This road will not be able to run trains for several days.

Reports received from other storm-visited places outside St. Louis add to the number of dead and injured, and tell of great destruction of property. The section of Missouri that suffered is northwest of St. Louis, while in Illinois the tornado moved almost directly east.

Near Germantown it has been learned that a farmer was killed. New Minden, Ill., is practically swept away. Five are dead and a score are wounded. Besides the six dead in Audrain county, Mo., three are so badly hurt that they will die. Late news from the parts of Audrain county, devastated by the terrible tornado of Wednesday afternoon, is worse than the first reports. Up to this morning, the total of dead is six, with three who are fatally injured and probably will die within a day or two, making the number of victims nine. Riley Hogan, 22 years old, who resided near Laddinia, died last night of injuries. Those who will probably die are Eugene Lott, 7 years old; Pearl Hodge, 8 years old, son of Frank Erdell, 8 years old.

FREIGHT RATE WAR.

In Which Lake and Rail Routes Appear.

Chicago, May 30.—The Lake Michigan Car Ferrying company are now engaged in a freight rate war that threatens to demoralize rates all over the West. The Lake Michigan and Lake Superior Transit company has taken steps to protect the differentials which it has enjoyed heretofore, and to protect its interests against the Lake Michigan Car Ferry company, which disputes the right of its rival to have any differentials whatever. So far the fight concerns only freight passing between Chicago and St. Paul.

The Chicago Great Western road is inclined to dispute the right of the transportation company to any differentials and will meet any rates it may put into effect. The fight is growing very bitter, and the chances are that it will drag the Western roads into the trouble before long. In addition to the Great Western, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul have, and the Wisconsin Central announced their intention of meeting the Chicago-St. Paul rates to be put into effect the first day of the coming month by the Lake Michigan Car Ferry Transportation company. The Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, and the Burlington & Quincy are expected to follow the example within a few days.

TWO TOWNS DESTROYED.

Missouri Settlements Washed Away By Flood.

Kansas City, May 30.—It is reported that the towns of Sarcoxie and Seneca, Missouri, have been washed away, damaged by floods which have prevailed in that vicinity. Sarcoxie is a town of 2000 people, while Seneca has half that number. They are situated in Jasper and Newton counties, in the southwest corner of the state.

WELCOMED A WORKER.

Victoria, Col., May 30.—Robert J. Lyons, a leader of the miners during the strike of 1894, who was convicted of inciting the Strong mine shaft house riot was welcomed back to the camp last night by 2500 people with a brass band on his return from the penitentiary, a pardon having been granted him. Mayor Doyle made a speech of welcome. The miners, to show their good will, set fire to the celebrated Fort Dean on Bull hill, and it was entirely destroyed.

SPORTING

Chicago's Big Cycle Road Race Was Won By O. Nelson.

B. P. Wilson Was Winner of the Time Prize in the Event.

Baseball Games and Other Sporting Amusements of Today.

Chicago, May 30.—The Chicago road race will be remembered as having been run over a course that was unavoidably heavy and slow. Last night's rain left the road in some places very slippery, and in others full of ruts. There were 640 entries, and until the rain, all but a few were expected to start, making the event one of the most notable on record. A strong south wind was blowing today, however, right in the face of the riders, and this with the condition of the course, deterred about one-third of those entered from starting.

The start was made at 11:02 a. m., near the village of Wheeling, twenty-five miles northwest of the city limits. A new plan was adopted this year in having a straightaway course the entire distance, instead of having a turn with the start and finish at the same spot. The finish today was at Garfield Park, on the western edge of the city. Accidents were numerous. Four miles north of the Jefferson boulevard there was a bad mix up. Palmer, of the Lakesides, riding hard, found two young men and two wheels struggling in the mud, and he took a header into their midst. Another unknown joined the party, and then J. L. Smith, of Frankfort, Ind., came along and, as the others were scrambling to their feet, plunged on top of them, knocking them all down again. All five men received painful injuries.

The winner was O. Nelson, of the Monitor Cycling club. The time prize was won by B. P. Wilson, of the Chicago Cycling club.

RAILROAD REORGANIZATION.

Frankfort, Ky., May 30.—Attorney Helm yesterday filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state to reorganize the Louisville, St. Louis & Texas railroad, now in the hands of a receiver.

SHE HAD A DOG.

I saw a woman stop at the entrance to one of the big railroad stations the other day, remove her mackintosh and seize a handful or so of dog which had been trotting along beside her, says the New York Herald.

It was a very wise looking dog, with long hair, which all but hid two eyes that told of rare sagacity.

"Don't you dare to move," she said to the woolly thing. "Do you hear?" The dog heard and seemed to understand. "If you make any noise you're a dead dog," she continued. The woolly thing, by its eyes, seemed to say that it understood.

She hid it under the cape of her mackintosh, and one could have sworn that she had nothing under her cape but her arm. I supposed that she was going only a little way out of town. To my surprise she bought a sleeper ticket and paid $10 for her regular transportation.

There was never a whine or a motion under the cape as she offered her ticket to be punched and passed through to the train. The woolly thing knew. It seemed, that dire things would befall if the sleeper were not reached in silence. Nothing short of X-ray glasses would have betrayed his mistress.

ST. LOUIS CONVENTION.

No Change in the Date Talked Of.

Washington, May 30.—Contrary to reports, there has been no communication between Chairman Carter, of the national Republican committee, and the St. Louis local committee having charge of the arrangements for the national Republican convention, respecting the question of any change in the date for holding the convention than on June 16, because of the possibility of the local committee not being able to repair the roof of the convention hall by that time. The chairman is leaving that matter in the hands of the persons to whom it is entrusted, and does not expect to take any initiatory steps regarding it. Mr. Carter's advices are that about two weeks will be required to put the building in condition for the convention, assuming that an adequate force of workmen can readily be obtained to do the work.

There has been discussion among prominent Republicans concerning the power of the national committee to postpone the convention, should this be found necessary, and Secretary Manly has been quoted as expressing the opinion that such authority does not rest with the committee. While not anticipating such a possibility, Chairman Carter says that should the local St. Louis committee find it impracticable to be ready by the time required and ask an extension of time, he would communicate by telegraph with each member of the national committee, submitting the request to them and would abide by any decision the majority might reach.

TO COVINGTON JAIL.

Scott Jackson Will Be Confined There.

Newport, Ky., May 30.—After making a personal examination of the jail, Judge Helm today declared it unfit and unsafe for the keeping of Scott Jackson, and ordered his removal to the Covington jail, which is very strong and secure.

It is now apparent that it will be impossible to get the case before the court of appeals before it at its September term, so that the sixty days' stay allowed will have to be extended. In case the lower court is sustained, it will then be the duty of the governor to fix the date of execution.

MISTAKES ON MEDALS.

Some of the Names Spelled Wrongly.

Washington, May 30.—It has been found that some of the names on the World's fair medals are incorrectly spelled. These errors, however, are not chargeable to the treasury department, as the spelling in every instance corresponds with that in the lists furnished by the fair bureau of awards. In order to avoid any dissatisfaction on the part of exhibitors, the department announces that it will make the needed corrections free of charges if the original medals are returned.

KENTUCKY DEMOCRATS.

Gold and Silver Men Make Many Claims.

Louisville, Ky., May 30.—The Democrats of Kentucky will hold mass conventions in every county in the state at 2 o'clock this afternoon to select delegates to the state convention to be held at Lexington on June 2. Both sides claim to be confident, but the free silver men are the more aggressive.

The gold men claim the Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth and Eleventh congressional districts, while silver men claim all but the Fifth, the Eleventh and the Tenth, which they classify as doubtful.

PRISONERS RELEASED.

All Are Free, Except Four, at Pretoria.

London, May 30.—The secretary of state for the colonies, Joseph Chamberlain, has received the following dispatches from the British agent at Pretoria: "All the prisoners have been released except the four leaders. The latters' cases will be considered later. The fines and punishment in lieu of payment remain and the banishment remains, but is suspended on the agreement that the prisoners will not interfere with the politics of the republic."

CHARGED WITH EMBEZZLEMENT.

New York, May 30.—John L. White, formerly president of the White Locomotive company, of Buffalo, is in custody here, accused of the embezzlement of $60,000. It is alleged that Mr. White's shortage in his accounts with the corporation named is much beyond the sum named. White resigned the presidency of the company some time ago, being succeeded by Henry McKenzie, who caused an examination of the books to be made. It is alleged that numerous false entries were discovered, showing that the company has been robbed between $50,000 and $80,000. Mr. White refuses to say anything about the charges made against him.

TRAGEDY

Horrible Happening at a Rifle Range in Pennsylvania Today.

A Militia Sergeant Instantly Killed While Watching the Targets.

His Friend Accidentally Puts a Bullet Through His Brain.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 30.—A terrible tragedy occurred at the rifle range of the Ninth regiment, National Guards of Pennsylvania, at Parsons, Pa., at noon today. The members of Company E were at practice, and Obediah Rhoades, the fifth sergeant of the company, was looking after the targets. He gave the signal to fire and then raised his head above the danger line.

The large crowd present were horrified to see a bullet from the rifle of John R. Hipple strike him in the head, killing him instantly. Hipple is prostrated over the sad affair. He and Rhoades were fast friends. The latter was 26 years old, and a well-known resident of Parsons.

REPRESENTATION BASIS.

Will Be Agitated at St. Louis Convention.

Washington, May 30.—The question of the basis of representation in future conventions is again to be agitated at the Republican convention at St. Louis. At present the representation in both the Democratic and Republican conventions is based on the congressional representation from each state, no account being taken of the party vote in the states. The scheme of basing the representation in Republican conventions on the Republican vote in each state was brought before the convention in 1884 by Gen. Ewing, of Pennsylvania, who proposed that the representation be based upon the Republican vote cast in each district.

It was bitterly opposed by the Southern delegates, led by ex-Congressman Lynch, of Mississippi, who claimed that the proposed change was unfair because the Republican vote in the South was suppressed. In 1892, the Southern vote was a potent factor in determining the result and in the succeeding summer, N. B. Scott, the West Virginia member of the Republican national committee at a meeting of the committee offered a resolution to provide representation on the basis of one delegate for each 7000 Republican votes by congressional districts. Action on the resolution was not taken. The matter will be again brought to the attention of the committee by Mr. Scott, when it meets in St. Louis, June 8.

Mack encountered J. M. Paine, Asa's father. In the altercation Mack called Paine, Sr., several naughty names, and Mack was hauled from his buggy and received a severe flogging.

Several homesteaders from the lower end of the county proved up on their lands before Clerk of Court Ed A. Page. This arrangement is a great convenience to homesteaders, as they are saved much time and expense by not having to go to Duluth to make final proof.

LONDON

Society's Season is Not Quite as Gay as Former Ones.

Many Prominent Americans Are at Present Stopping In London.

Why the Duke of York Did Not Go to Moscow--- Gossip.

London, May 30.—(Copyrighted, 1896, by the Associated Press.)—The opening of the military tournament on Thursday and the first meet of the Coaching club in Hyde Park today, are the two elements which mark the height of the season. But, while both displays are very gay and attractive, smart society persistently remains in the country, only coming to town for a day or two at a time. Among the lavish entertainments in the country have been those of the earl and countess of Warwick, who have given one large house party after another. Early in the week they had the duke and duchess of Marlborough among their guests, and today they are entertaining Lady Randolph Churchill, among other distinguished people. The queen's final decision regarding the marriage of Princess Maud of Wales, to Prince Charles of Denmark, is that it is to take place in the private chapel of Buckingham palace, which has caused serious discontent among the masses who have been anticipating a state procession and an attractive spectacle. Altogether, the season promises to be the least successful in years.

Truth says: "It is not curious that not many West End traders are on the bank of bankruptcy and it was hoped that the court would have seized upon the opportunity to assist them. The collapse of agriculture and the long-continued inactivity in the city have seriously affected every class in the West End.

The marquis of Salisbury's present house party will be a historical event, as it is one of the grandest entertainments since the days of Queen Elizabeth. As a most unusual compliment, the princess of Wales, her daughters, and Prince Charles of Denmark, are present, and the other guests include the duke and duchess of Marlborough, Mr. and Mrs. George N. Curzon, A. J. Balfour, the marquis and marchioness of Londonderry, the marquis and marchioness of Lansdowne, and the various members of the Cecil family, of which the marquis of Salisbury is the head. Half of the aristocracy would have given much to be invited. All the family treasures in the way of plate, tapestries, etc., have been taken from the strong rooms. In addition to her querries and ladies in waiting and the usual train of royal servants and dogs, the princess of Wales took her footman and a functionary styled the "sergeant footman," resplendent in gold lace, whose special duties include that of waiting upon the princess of Wales at her table.

England is suffering from the most severe drought in years. In six weeks the rainfall in London has been only .20 inch. This lack of rain is very serious as far as the country districts are concerned.

It is stated that the reason the duke of York was absent from the ceremonies attending the coronation of the czar is that his great personal resemblance to the emperior of Russia caused the Russian police to refuse to be answerable for his presence in Moscow, claiming that it would mean guarding two czars instead of one, and the duke was finally persuaded to absent himself.

Beatrice Harraden, author of "Ships That Pass in the Night," is ill. She has been compelled to stop work on her new novel. The prominent Americans in town include Consul General Morse Henry Watterson, of the Louisville Courier Journal; Frank Jones, of New Hampshire, and Hannis Taylor, the United States minister to Spain. All, or nearly all, of those gentlemen, with Senator Hoar, will be present at a dinner which is to be given tonight by al the United States consuls in the United Kingdom to Patrick A. Collins, the United States consul general here. Mr. Jones says he thinks the Democrats will renominate President Cleveland.

Mr. Taylor is here to see his wife and children sail for home in Mobile, Ala., by the steamship New York, on June 6. In an interview, Mr. Taylor is quoted as saying that he intended to spend a few weeks at the university of Oxford and then return to Madrid. He also says he hoped that the relations between the two governments, Spain and the United States, would be always cordial during the term of his mission. Continuing, Mr. Taylor says that the Spanish government fully appreciated the loyal and unbending spirit of President Cleveland in the discharge of every international obligation, and it reciprocated by its readiness to respand to any reasonable request in favor of American citizens.

Mr. Taylor's object in visiting Oxford is to obtain material with which to complete his book, "The Origin and Growth of the English Constitution," which he is able to do, as there are no urgent diplomatic questions pending which require his immediate presence at Madrid, the last difficulty, regarding the export of Cuban leaf tobacco to the United States having been satisfactorily settled by Spain agreeing not to apply the decree to contracts made prior to promulgating the latter agreement. This, according to Mr. Taylor, indicates that Spain is amicably disposed towards the United States. Mr. Taylor has had a long interview with Thomas F. Bayard, the United States ambassador, and will be presented at the levee on Monday. Charles Dana Gibson, George E. Cook, Douglas Grant and the Rev. Livingston E. Schuyler will be presented upon the same occasion.

Mr. Watterson declines to talk politics, and says he will not return to the United States for a year. The census of London, just taken, shows a population of 4,441,271, an increase of 200,528 since 1891. There are renewed rumors of Ambassador Bayard's retirement from the court of St. James.

Nellie Neustater, the famous Parisian demi mondaine, has recently been causing much sensation in the gay circles of Paris. Since she has been under the protection of a well-known American millionaire she has been noted for the smartness of her gowns and an exceedingly handsome victoria drawn by seal brown horses with silver mounted chain harness. The equipage is seen almost nightly at one of the fashionable restaurants in the Bois De Boulogne. It is stated in Paris that she threw over a prominent Minneapolis man to accept the attention of her present admirer.

Princess Lilliuokalani of Hawaii is still in Italy, but is expected in this city towards the end of June.

THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

An example of how the recent Dunkard immigrants from Indiana and Illinois are becoming landed proprietors on a large scale is given in the family of Elihu Bower, of Wabash county, Indiana, who was one of the arrivals in this state this spring, says a Fargo dispatch. The elder is blessed with a family of nine grown sons and daughters. He came with the first of the Dunkard parties of the season, and found a locality where there were a number of claims untaken, though of good wheat land, and fairly near a railway and a market. Bower and each of the children selected a quarter section of land—160 acres—and homesteaded it, and the father has his eye on six quarters more that he is now negotiating for on the crop payment plan. This will give the family 2560 acres, almost every acre of which is suitable for immediate cultivation. Four of the sons are engaged to be married to young women of Indiana, and the weddings have all been postponed till the brides-elect can come out to North Dakota and select claims for themselves, which they have the right to do while unmarried. This will give the various branches of the Bower household land equal to a young principality, and the entire cost will be the filing fees of the United States land office—$14 for each 160 acres. Bower lived on a rented farm in Indiana, and it was of small size, too.

Richard Dalley and C. C. Connelly, who were elected at the Business Men's union of Devil's Lake, to visit Crookston and induce prospective settlers on the Red Lake reservation who were disappointed and unable to secure suitable land, to locate in this county, are still at Crookston prosecuting their labors. So far they have been successful in securing about fifty settlers, most of whom had stock and farming implements. A good many of them have already been located and are apparently well pleased with the country and the prospects. Ramsey county is receiving a large immigration this spring and it will not be long before all the desirable cheap lands have been taken.—The city will put in an electric light plant and is now awaiting propositions. Mayor Whipple is determined to push the city to the front during his administration and the council is backing him loyally.

Judge John M. Cochrane, attorney for the North Dakota Milling association and for its receiver, H. K. Lyon, has submitted his final reports of the numerous cases that were brought in connection with the insolvency of the association at Grand Forks. The reports were submitted to Master in Chancery Montgomery, for a United States district court, and by him accepted. The report for the state of North Dakota was submitted to and accepted by the court several days ago. The report for the state of Minnesota was submitted to the court yesterday and noted in full. This ends the matters so far as all litigations are concerned, and any claims that were not accepted are lost, so far as this or any other deal is concerned. A large amount of work has been done, as was necessary, and the prompt acceptance is alike creditable to all concerned in this immense case.

Col. W. H. Robinson, chairman of the Republican state central committee, is in Grand Forks conferring with Secretary Hamilton in reference to issuing the call for the state convention which meets in Grand Forks July 22. There will be 492 delegates in attendance. Grand Forks county will be entitled to forty-one.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

The remains of ex-Governor Mellette were laid to rest in Mount Hope cemetery in Watertown, Thursday afternoon. The funeral was the most largely attended of any ever held there. Many of the prominent citizens of the state were present, acting as pall-bearers. The cortege was headed by a military escort, followed by an escort of Knights Templars, under the rites of which order the ceremonies were conducted. The procession was composed of the Masonic and Grand Army fraternity, the bar of the Third judicial circuit and other local organizations, followed by citizens. Rev. S. G. Updyke, formerly of the Brookings college, preached the sermon.

It now develops that George F. King, the Campbell county school teacher, not only ruined Miss Annie Fadness, of Mound City, but Miss Ada Alexander, the daughter of John Alexander, as well. The Fadness girl aided and abetted by King, brought Miss Alexander to Aberdeen to procure an abortion, but the arrival of the sheriff and the girl's father spoiled the scheme. Miss Alexander was taken home yesterday by her father, and the strongest kind of an effort will be made to send King to the penitentiary. His latest victim is about 20 years of age, plain looking and not very bright. Her relatives are among the best-known people in Campbell county.

What was Thursday reported a suicide turned out to be a probable case of wife murder. Mrs. Christianson, wife of a Danish farmer, was found hanging to a tree in a grove. Her husband with whom she had trouble made conflicting statements and after the inquest yesterday was held for murder. The evidence is strong against him.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

MOSCOW

Frightful Catastrophe at a Popular Russian Fete This Morning.

Hungry Peasants Trample Each Other to Death--- Many Injured.

A Very Gloomy Event Which Shadows the Gay Doings of Coronation.

Moscow, May 30.—(Copyright, 1896.)—A terrible panic, resulting from the great crush of people at the popular feast here today in honor of the coronation of the czar, caused the trampling to death of many people, including a woman who was delivered of a child during the excitement. In anticipation of the grand holiday and popular banquet on the Hodynski plain, tens of thousands of people began trooping toward the Petrovsky palace, in front of which the plain is situated, during the early hours this morning. In fact, so much interest was taken in the open-air banquet that thousands reached the grounds last evening and camped there, or in the immediate vicinity, during the night, in order to make sure of good positions today. The majority of these people came on foot, but some came in the oddest kinds of vehicles, country carts and turnouts of the most primitive description, and others traveled on horse back.

On the Hodynski or Khodijnijoje plain (it is written both ways) long lines of rough tables, flanked by rougher benches, had been erected. In the distance those lines of tables looked like immovable regiments of soldiers on the trenches of some extensive series of fortifications. It was at first arranged to accommodate 400,000 people, but in view of the immense crowds assembled in and about this city for the coronation fetes, extra tables and benches were hastily erected and every effort was made to provide seating room and a hearty meal for 500,000 of people. Twice that number was taking part in the feast, but the authorities decided that there must be a limit to the number to be entertained, and so the figure was fixed at 500,000.

To feed this multitude an army of cooks and waiters was gathered together, the army bake houses were taxed to their utmost capacity, and 500,000 mugs, each bearing portraits of the czar and czarina, were ordered and manufactured for presentation to the people taking part in the great banquet. Thousands of cattle, train loads of provisions and ship loads of liquid refreshments were sent to the Hodynski plain during the week, and this morning all was in readiness for the gigantic meal. In anticipation of the assembling of an immense crowd and the possibility of disorder, strong forces of police were detailed for duty on the plains some three miles outside of this city and on the road to St. Petersburg. In addition, several detachments of infantry and cavalry were stationed in the vicinity, in order to support the police should such a step be necessary.

By dawn today the mass of peasants about the tables was really enormous and they were all desperately hungry. some of them having fasted by choice or necessity for nearly twenty-four hours. The police did everything possible to keep back the crowd, but suddenly the masses, controlled by some inexplicable impulse or impatience to get at the food, pressed forward, swept everything before them and overturned tables and benches as if made of grass, trampling hundreds under foot and crushing the life out of a great number of people. The oldest and weak naturally suffered the most, and one poor woman, who gave birth to a child during the excitement, was trampled to death. The fate of the infant is not definitely known, but it is believed to have shared the fate of its mother. The exact number of people killed is also not definitely known, but from all parts of the field where this dispatch is sent, for the police and military eventually succeeded in restoring order and carted away the dead and injured, and preparations were made to proceed with the banquet as if nothing unusual had happened.

The czar and czarina, when informed of the disaster, were much distressed, and sent additional physicians to the scene to care for the injured and issued instructions that a full report of the tragedy is to be made, in order that the distressed families may be relieved. As this is the first serious accident reported since the festivities commenced, it attracted much attention and has cast quite a gloom over the city.

The French ambassador, Comte de Montebello, is scheduled to give a ball at the embassy this evening, but it is reported it may be abandoned, although a large sum of money has been spent on the preparation, France being greatly desirous of testifying to her friendship for Russia by making a display upon this occasion which would pass into history. The decorations for the embassy and ballroom have cost a fortune; miles of the most valuable carpets have been laid, fruits, flowers, fishes and birds from all lands have been imported for the supper, and nothing has been spared to make the French embassy ball one of the most striking features of the coronation fetes.

Unless there is a change in the program, the foreign envoys will be entertained at dinner at the Kremlin palace tomorrow, and in the evening Prince Lichenstein, the ambassador of Austria-Hungary, will give a ball, intended to rival, if not eclipse, that prepared at the French embassy for this evening. On Monday there will be a solemn service in the Chrodov (miracle) monastery in the Kremlin, and on Monday evening the governor of Moscow, the Grand Duke Serglus, will give an elaborate ball.

During Tuesday morning the czar and czarina, accompanied by the imperial court, will make a pilgrimage to the Troitcourt monastery, situated about two and a half miles from this city, and on Tuesday evening the nobility of Moscow will give a ball in honor of their imperial majesties, the czar and czarina. The czar and czarina on Thursday will give a ball in the Alexandria hall of the Kremlin, and on Friday Prince Von Radolin, the German ambassador, will give a grand concert at the German embassy. Saturday next is the birthday of the czarina, and her august husband will proceed in state to the cathedral of the Assumption, where a special birthday service will be held.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

Dun Recounts the Outlook in Various Lines.

New York, May 30.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: Continued exports of gold, amounting to $3,900,000 this week, are recognized as natural results of the borrowing and importing early in the year, but caused no serious apprehensions. There is a general conviction that destructive schemes will not succeed, although at present political uncertainties cause part of the business that might be done to be postponed until the future is more clear.

Markets for products are weak rather than stagnant. The business done is small, but is largely governed by the belief in large crops and in sufficient rain. Wheat has fallen 3 cents, though low prices bring larger Atlantic exports than a year ago, for the first time in many months, flour included 1,543,973 bushels for the week against 1,433,745 last year, it remains that for May these exports have been only 4,742,777 bushels, flour included, against 6,183,420 last year, while Western receipts are for the week nearly 10 per cent larger, and for four weeks 8,048,645 bushels, against 5,944,572 last year.

Estimates vary widely, but nobody looks for a crop so short as to exhaust the surplus in sight. Cotton has fallen an eighth in spite of continued reports that famine is near. Decrease in manufacture of 30 per cent at the North, and, perhaps, more at the South, show the real nature of estimates based on continued manufacture at maximum rate. Receipts still indicate a crop of 7,000,000 bales last year and a yield is promised much greater than consumption in any year.

Except in print cloths, which are weak, with stocks of 1,723,000 pieces in sight, nobody can tell what quantities of goods have been accumulating while mills have been waiting for demand. Wool sales, exclusive of a few speculative transactions based on extreme low prices, are less than 40 per cent of a week's fair consumption, and for May have been 12,711,900 pounds, against 20,800,750 last year and 20,159,350 in 1892.

The iron and steel markets are weak, with lower prices, because the demand for finished products is entirely inadequate, though prices are higher. Pig iron has fallen over 5 per cent since April last, but the average of finished products has been advanced 3 per cent. Lower quotations for Bessemer and grey forge, and local coke at Chicago, with the stoppage of two-thirds of the furnaces in Virginia, some in Pennsylvania and others in the Mahoning and Shenandoah valleys result from inability of manufacturers to sell at prices which their combination demands, billets being undersold by open hearth iron bars, by steel bars, and nails by new concerns which are rapidly putting in machines. Plates weaken and there is no improvement in sheets and rods, but beam makers have raised the prices $2 per ton, making a slight advance in the average of all prices for the week. It is possible that rebuilding after the disaster at St. Louis may affect iron and steel markets extensively. The minor metals are all a shade stronger.

Failures for the week have been 239 in the United States against 215 last year, and twenty in Canada against thirty-four last year.

WHAT BRADSTREET SAYS.

New York, May 30.—Bradstreets says: The improvement in the trade situation is confined to the demand of hides, leather and shoes, the tendency of the price of the same to advance, and an improvement in respect for dry goods, hats and shoes from wholesalers at St. Paul, Kansas City, Omaha and Baltimore. The crop outlook in South Carolina and Kentucky is brighter because of recent rains and a generally better feeling exists among sugar producers and handlers in Louisiana and Texas because of the recent sugar bounty decision.

General business continues quiet, and at larger financial centers less commercial paper is making, even at lower rates. A between season has begun to assert itself, and from a number of points mercantile colections are not satisfactory, and in some instances more difficult.

The price movement is again downward, wheat, corn and oats, as well as pork and lard, exhibiting unexpected shrinkages. Coffee, cotton and petroleum are likewise lower, and sales of pig iron and billets by middlemen have been made a shade under nominal figures. Wheat, flour, coal and print cloths are practically unchanged, while refined sugar and tinplates recorded advances. Hides and leather are firm at recent advances, and the tendency is upwards.

Exports of wheat (flour included as wheat) from both coasts of the United States during the week amount to 2,064,000 bushels, as compared with 1,906,000 bushels last week, 2,426,000 bushels in the week one year ago, 2,401,000 bushels in the week two years ago, and with 2,253,000 bushels three years ago.

The total number of business failures in the United States during the week is 227, as compared with 216 last week, 205 in the week one year ago, 183 in the corresponding week two years ago, 214 in the like week of 1893 and 163 in the corresponding period of 1892. The total number of business failures in Canada this week is twenty-five, compared with twenty-eight last week, twenty-five in the week a year ago and thirty-six two years ago.

THE SUPREME COURT.

Justice Buck Hands Down Several Decisions.

St. Paul, May 30.—Several decisions were rendered by the supreme court yesterday, all signed by Justice Buck. The decision in Schofield vs. the National Elevator company develops the important opinion as to seed wheat notes that such a note conveys no title to the wheat, either qualified or absolute, in default of the note's payment, and the title of the maker of the note to the grain can be decided only by proper legal proceedings. In the case in hand the plaintiff claimed that because he held the note, the wheat was his, and for that reason only. His claim was upheld in the judgment appealed from. In the opinion of the supreme court he should have asserted that he had a lien on the wheat, and brought proofs to that effect without assuming that his ownership would be taken for granted, because the seed wheat note was in his favor. Other decisions were: A. J. Schofield, respondent, vs. the National Elevator company, appellant. Judgment reversed.

William P. Jewett, assignee of Elm Park company, appellant, vs. Iowa Land company et al, respondents. Judgment reversed.

SATURDAY HALF HOLIDAY.

Open Letter to the Good People of Duluth.

Citizens: The committees on the general adoption of a Saturday half-holiday, appointed by the chamber of commerce and the Trades and Labor assembly agree on three propositions: (1) that the question is so well understood that any argument would be superfluous; (2) that it is only a question of how to bring it about; (3) that the only way for each to enjoy a half-holiday, is for each to get a half-holiday—it is an individual matter.

The bankers, the board of trade men, the coal men and the insurance men have acted, and it is spreading. The suggestion of the committee is for each manufacturer to shut down his factory, without waiting to see if his neighbor is going to do the same thing. Let each wholesale and each retail establishment take a day off. Don't think it can't be done. It has been done, is being done, and can be done in Duluth, if you are in earnest. Let each office man take a half-holiday, and insist on his help doing the same. Let the common council, the county commissioners and the judges please an admiring constituency by letting their employes off duty, and get off themselves, and let all those who are their own servants give their hired help a half-holiday.

But the women of Duluth must do the most of this work, and unless the committee can be assured that they will have their assistance, they feel they may as well resign and report, "can't be did." But they believe they have the hearty co-operation of all the good women of the city, who, if they will refrain from purchasing anything on Saturday afternoon, will settle the whole matter in short order, and the clerks, the milliners, the dressmakers, and all the grand army of workers who serve her majesty, can have their holiday.

The committee believe the success of this movement lies in the earnestness of its advocates, and if the people want the holiday they must make themselves heard in the matter, for this is a case in which each individual, or group, or community must speak for itself, and as far as the committee are concerned, they earnestly recommend it to the consideration of each man and woman in Duluth, and request each to do his or her best to bring it about, either by requesting it, if they have not the power to take it without the request, and granting it, if they have that power, so that beginning on the 6th of June, all Duluth may enjoy the Saturday holiday, and we request each newspaper to assist in the spreading of the gospel of sunlight and rest.

Memorial Day Exercises at the Schools Were Well Attended.

No Special Observance of Memorial Day at West Duluth.

Firemen's Convention Committee Was Pleased With Zenith Park.

The Memorial day exercises at the schools yesterday were well attended by parents and friends of the pupils, and were of a most interesting nature. At the Irving building the program was of special interest owing to the songs by Mrs. Olund and the cornet solos by Harry Lanners. Speeches were made by Capt. Smallwood and other members of the G. A. R.

At the Longfellow school a very fine program was given followed by speeches by Col. C. H. Graves and J. R. Brearley.

No special observance of the day was held in West Duluth, many people going to Duluth proper to join in the commemorative exercises there. This evening the Epworth league of Asbury church will give a concert and the Swedish Good Templar society will also give a strawberry social at their hall on Central avenue.

LIKE ZENITH PARK.

Yesterday afternoon J. W. Peterson entertained the committee appointed to look for a place for entertainment for the delegates to the Firemen's convention, which meets next week. The members of the committee were P. S. Anneke, Alderman Christiansen and Fire Commissioner Randall. It is needless to state that the committee was well pleased with Zenith park and its provisions for the entertainment of guests, and if the proper arrangements can be made the fire laddies will be invited to visit the resort. The Duluth City band will furnish music and an orchestra will be engaged to furnish dance music.

BOATS HAVE TROUBLE.

A number of vessels on their way to New Duluth have run aground lately and caused considerable trouble to the captains. Yesterday a schooner and the tug Excelsior were both stuck hard aground about in line with Fifty-eighth avenue west. The Zenith came up and got off the schooner, but this morning the tug was still aground. The schooner was loaded with nearly 1,000,000 feet of lumber.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Rev. S. A. Jamieson left this morning for Rush City, where he will take part in the Decoration day exercises, and where he will preach tomorrow.

The dance given by the Hibernians at Great Eastern hall last evening was largely attended and a highly successful affair. The evening was perfect for dancing and it was a happy crowd that for several hours kept time to the fascinating music of the ball room.

Miss Stella Hancock, who has been visiting her brother, J. O. Hancock and family for some time, left this morning for her home at Red Wing.

L. L. Prescott and family, of Virginia, are in the city visiting relatives.

A. J. Anderson, an employe of the Ironton Steel company, had his foot injured at the works yesterday.

Services will be held at Westminster Presbyterian church tomorrow at 10:30 and 8 p. m. Morning topic, "Hearing and Doing." Evening topic, "Two Stages in Life—Development." Sunday school at Bay View Heights at 3:30 p. m.

THE HANDICAPS.

Final Arrangements For the Road Race.

With fifty-two entries, the annual road race of the Duluth Cycle club could not fail to be a success. It fairly outclasses anything of the kind ever given in Duluth before, and it was expected that records would go flying today. August C. One minute is the standard time, and One Minute Cough Cure is the standard preparation for every form of cough or cold. It is the only harmless remedy that produces immediate results. S. F. Boyce.

THERE ARE OTHERS,
But there is only one Ideal Beer hall.

The doctor may be a good old man, but even so, medical examinations and the "local-application" treatment are abhorrent to every modest woman. They are embarrassing—often useless. They should not be submitted to until everything else has been tried. In nine cases out of ten, there is no reason for them. In nine cases out of ten, the doctor in general practice isn't competent to treat female diseases. They make a branch of medicine by themselves. They are distinct from other ailments. They can be properly understood and treated only by one who has had years of actual practice and experience in this particular line. This is true of Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician of the Invalid's Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription, a remedy for all derangements of the reproductive organs of women, has been in actual use for more than thirty years. It cures every form of "female weakness."

THE PRODUCE MARKET.

Market tumbled down this morning. Berries were short, some carloads being spoiled in transit by the delay of the St. Louis storm. Prices were steady and trade poor.

DULUTH QUOTATIONS.

Note—The quotations below are for goods which change hands in lots on the open market; in filling orders, in order to secure best goods for shipping and to cover cost incurred, an advance over jobbing prices has to be charged. The figures are changed daily.

THE LAST STRAW.

Chicago Tribune: President Krueger was estimating the damages, actual, collateral and possible, suffered by the people of his republic in consequence of the Jameson raid.

Mechanically he reached for his scrap book, opened it, and turned the leaves until the poem "Jameson's Ride" met his eye.

He read it through once again.

Then he took his pencil and added a cipher to the estimate he had previously made.

"I think," he said to himself, "considering everything, $1,500,000 will be about right."

HIS REVENGE.

Chicago Post: "Mean! Why, he's the meanest man that ever lived!"

"What has he been doing?"

"He has made a collection of all the presents that his wife has made him in the course of their married life—dressing gowns, embroidered suspenders, shaving sets, slippers, neckties and hat bands—"

"And then?"

"Why, ever since she put on bloomers he has been giving them back to her as anniversary presents on the anniversary of everything connected with their married life. In that way he hasn't bought her a single thing that pertains to femininity."

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

John C. Eden Is Made General Freight Agent of the Eastern.

Will Succeed G. O. Somers and Be Located in St. Paul.

Business of the Eastern and Great Northern Will Be Separated.

By an order, taking effect June 1, John C. Eden, who has been general agent for the Eastern Minnesota in Duluth for several years, is promoted to the office of general freight agent of the Eastern Minnesota Railway company, with office in St. Paul. He succeeds G. O. Somers, whose time will be devoted exclusively to duties connected with the Great Northern Railway company. The office of assistant general freight agent is abolished, and all Eastern Minnesota agents are ordered to report to Mr. Eden on all matters relating to freight traffic. The business of the Eastern Minnesota will hereafter be separate entirely from that of the Great Northern.

This will of course necessitate Mr. Eden's removal to St. Paul, and while his many friends will regret his departure they will rejoice at the merited promotion.

PLAYING CARDS.

Royals, Spanish and New Poker Decks.

Among the new designs in playing cards are cards of American manufacture which are known to the trade as "Royals." The fifty-three cards which comprises a deck of "Royals" are handsomely finished in old gold, and the kings, queens and jacks are in thirteen colors each. The pictures are good likenesses of the crown heads or leading scions of royalty in Europe. The queen of England, czar of Russia, King of Italy, German emperor, are all pictured, says the New York Journal.

These cards are the most expensive ones in the market, and retail at $2 a deck.

Another new card is called the "Spanish," and represents kings, knights and pages as face cards. There are no queens in the "Spanish" decks. The cards are very odd. When "squeezing" them the paper squeezes down horizontally, the indicators, being in spaces as well as figures. For instance, the knights have three spaces in the frame, while there is no space in the king's frame, and only one in that of the page. The cards are "squeezed" down so that the player judges the value of his hand by these spaces. The figures are practically unnecessary. The cards are known as circles, urns, clubs and swords. These cards are apt to be confusing to anyone unaccustomed to playing with them, although the manufacturers say they are selling rapidly.

The new "full house" poker deck which has caught the fancy of the lovers of the great American game, has eleven and twelve spots, so that a six or 8-handed game of poker may be enjoyed. The origin of this deck was from a bet in New Orleans, which destroyed one of the largest club houses in the Crescent City. The members of another club immediately threw open the doors of their house and told the members to make themselves at home. They were all hard poker players, and it happened that there were not cards enough to go around. So there were added to the regular deck eight cards—four eleves and four twelves—and this deck has been steadily increasing in favor in all large clubs. Another change that has been brought about in the staid old designs of kings, queens and jacks, and even in the spot cards, is a deck known among dealers as the "vanity fair." The cards which comprise the deck represent fifty-three different illustrations in vari-colored hues. The themes are sports and pastimes, and range through the whole realm of sport from the savage amusements of the aborigines to the modern trials of competitive skill, including even the new bicycle woman in highly colored bloomers.

On another new pack in light colors, known as the "Hustling Joe," the pictures represent sketches of various trades and occupations. The court cards are even more resplendent than those of the "vanity fair," and range from the bedecked queen of diamonds down to the jack of spades.

GREENLAND WHALE FISHING.

To the Greenlanders the whale is an animal of great importance, and these people devote much of their time to chasing the big mammal. When the natives set out upon their whale-catching expedition they dress themselves in their best apparel, imagining that if they are not cleanly and neatly clothed the whale, which detests a dirty, slovenly garb, would certainly avoid them, says the Cleveland World.

In this manner about thirty persons, men and women, set out together in one of their large boats. The women take with them their needles, thread and other implements to mend their husbands' clothes, in case they should be torn, and to repair the boat if it should happen to receive any damage.

When the men discover a whale they strike it with their harpoons, to which are fastened tubes two or three fathoms long, made of sealskin inflated with air. The huge animal, by means of this kind of bag, is in some degree compelled to keep near the surface of the water.

When he is fatigued and rises the men attack him with their spears until he is killed. They then put on their spring jackets, made all in one piece, of a dressed sealskin, with their boots, gloves and caps, which are laced so tightly to each other that no water can penetrate them.

Thus attired, they plunge into the sea and begin to slice off the fat all round the animal's body, even from those parts that are under water; for their jackets being full of air, the men do not sink, and are able to keep themselves upright, standing, as it were, in the sea.

SHE WAS IN A DILEMMA.

Chicago Post: The beautiful maiden seemed perturbed.

"They'll do these things better when woman has absolute sway," she said at last.

"What's the matter?" asked her dearest friend.

"Oh, I'm in a fearful lot of trouble," she replied. "I've just received a present of the most beautiful parasol you ever saw."

"But I don't see—"

"That's because you haven't given the matter any thought. How would I look trying to carry a parasol of brilliant hues on a bicycle?"

"Decidedly foolish."

"Precisely, and how would I look in my brilliant-hued bloomers without a bicycle?"

"Worse than foolish."

"Of course. And here I am with a parasol and bloomers that match exactly and I can't exhibit them both at the same time. It doesn't seem right."

CHILD AND THE KING.

From the German: Would you hear the beautiful conversation between the good king and the pious child?

One day the king met a little girl just coming out from school, and he said to her: "What have you learned today?"

"The kingdoms of nature," the child answered.

Then said the king: "In which kingdom does the pebble belong?"

The child—In the mineral kingdom.

The king—In which belongs the big tree?

The child—In the vegetable kingdom.

The king—In which does your kitter belong?

The child—In the animal kingdom.

The king—And in which kingdom do I belong?

Then said the child, straight from the heart, "In the kingdom of heaven."

BENEATH THE SOD.

I saw the mortal laid beneath the sod,
With carven cross above her breast,
I knew the immortal spirit was with God,
A bright, pure soul had gained eternal rest.
First of a band of friends to pass away,
Her busy, useful life on earth is done;
Ended forever is her toilsome day,
For her the promised rest has now begun.
I stood and heard the solemn accents fall,
"I am the resurrection and the life."
God, whose great mercy watches over all,
Had taken my friend from out our earthly strife.
We left her lying in her peaceful bed,
Until the dawning of that last great day,
Trusting in One who long ago hath said
That he will wipe all bitter tears away.
—The Academy.

HAPPY LITTLE BIRDS.

Judge: Fair visitor (to convict)—I suppose, sir, that the singing of the birds relieves the monotony of your dreary life?

Convict (profoundly nonplussed)—The singing of the birds, miss?

Fair visitor—Yes, sir; the little jailbirds, you know. They must be such a comfort to you.

CAREER WELL STARTED.

Washington Star: "I have been thinking for a long time," she said, with a serious expression which contrasted strongly with her usual airiness, "that I ought to have some serious purpose in life, so I have decided to go into literature."

"You intend to pursue it seriously, do you?"

"Yes, indeed. I've bought a lovely Louis XVI desk and I've got some of the most exquisite stationery you ever saw. Mother gave me a gold pen and a mother-of-pearl penholder, and I have just the prettiest silver inkstand! All covered with filigree work, you know."

"You are certainly well equipped."

"Yes," she replied serenely. "I've got a splendid start. All I have to do now is to sit down some time and think up a piece to write."

MEMORIAL DAY.

May 30 has been dedicated to the memory of those who sacrificed their lives to defend the Union in its grave hour of peril. It is fitting that the people should, at least once in every year, pause from the rush of business and do honor to the heroic dead. It is an occasion when feelings patriotic should be given full sway, and when gratitude to those who fought, bled and died for their country, that this country might not be dismembered and destroyed, should be felt and expressed. The nation can never repay the debt which it owes to these brave and patriotic men. The best it can do, with respect to those who now sleep in our cemeteries, or in the battlefields where they fell, is to reverentially extend its righteous remembrance by decorating their graves with beautiful flowers and in public address extolling their bravery and self-sacrifice, while at the same time it makes due provision for the comfort of the veterans who still linger with us.

It is to be regretted that thoughtless people have to some extent turned this sacred day into a festival of mirth and sport. There is a time and a place for everything, but Memorial day is not an occasion when sports and revelries are in order. Memorial day should be kept sacred, and anything which tends to deprive the day of its sacred and patriotic character is an offense against good taste and genuine patriotism.

MR. LEE'S RECORD.

The Herald has not deemed it necessary to say very much about Mr. Lee's public career, because it is very generally known. It is worthy of note, however, that during the whole time that he has been in the legislature and in other public positions, the charge has never been made that he has been unfaithful to the interests of the people. In the session of 1885, at which railroad legislation occupied a prominent part, Mr. Lee was foremost among those members who sought to regulate the railroad corporations so that the people of Minnesota could not be injured in any way. The Clough organ a few days ago made reference to Mr. Clough having aided the Duluth lumbermen to secure relief from the Cloquet boom company's exactions. It was the first time that any one here heard that Mr. Clough had anything to do with it. He was never accused before of making any impress upon legislation while he was in the house or senate. Mr. Lee's record on this question, however, is straight. He voted on every occasion to give the Duluth lumbermen the relief which they desired, believing that the franchise granted many years ago, giving the boom company a practical monopoly of the river, should be modified in the interest of Duluth lumbermen. In fact, Mr. Lee's record in and out of the legislature, shows that he has always been with the people on every question which has come up, and he always responded to the legislation which they demanded.

During the term that Mr. Lee was speaker of the house he effected a saving of $22,000 by economical management in the sessional expenditures, as compared with the previous session presided over by a Populist speaker. Again, as superintendent of the state reformatory, which he resigned several months ago, Mr. Lee inaugurated reforms and introduced business methods which saved in current expenses within nineteen months between $9000 and $10,000, as compared with the nineteen months preceding, and in addition he added $5000 of betterments to the institution without any expense to the state. These facts demonstrate that Mr. Lee has always endeavored to conduct the public business entrusted to him with the same regard for economical management that he exhibits in the conduct of his own private business. It would mean much to the people of Minnesota to place such a man in the governor's office.

WHAT BIMETALLISM MEANS.

Despite all that has been said and written on the money question there is still a surprisingly large number of people who are absolutely ignorant of the subject. Even among people who are regarded as well educated and cultured, there is dense ignorance respecting the real meaning of bimetallism. They are misled by the cry of "cheap money" and a "dishonest dollar," and scared by gold bug talk of the awful results that would attend the restoration of bimetallism in this country. They accept the statements of the Wall street money lenders and stock gamblers as facts and refrain from any investigation or study on their part. To this fact may be truthfully ascribed the spectacle which the Republican party now presents of having abandoned entirely the position which it has always held on the money question and has stated and repeated in every state and national platform since silver was demonetized.

In a recent magazine article ex-Congressman Bryan, of Nebraska, one of the ablest and most eloquent advocates of bimetallism in the country, gives an excellent explanation of what bimetallism really means. He points out that within the last few years an attempt has been made by Senator Sherman and others to substitute a new definition and to define bimetallism to mean the use of gold as a standard, with silver coined in limited quantities as a limited legal tender and redeemable in gold. This is simply the English system at this time, and cannot properly be called bimetallism. If to use gold as a standard and silver as token money redeemable in gold can be called bimetallism, then there is no such thing as gold monometallism, because every gold standard country uses silver as token money. The absurdity of such a definition is shown by the fact that we have quadruple metallism in this country now, if that definition is correct, because we coin copper and nickel, as well as silver into token money.

Many people, says Mr. Bryan, confuse the bimetallic principle with the concurrent circulation of gold and silver. There is an essential difference. While the advocates of bimetallism believe that there will be concurrent circulation of gold and silver under free coinage at the present ratio, yet concurrent circulation is not necessary to the bimetallic principle. For instance, we had the bimetallic principle in operation in this country from 1792 to 1834, and yet gold was at a premium and silver was the money in common use. From 1834 to 1860 we had the bimetallic principle in operation, and yet silver was at a premium and gold was the money in common use. From 1860 to 1873 we had the bimetallic principle so far as metallic money was concerned, but we were in fact on a paper basis, with gold at a premium above paper, and silver at a premium above gold. Bimetallism is theoretically better than monometallism, because the use of two metals as standard money gives stability to the volume of the currency, and therefore makes the purchasing power of the dollar less changeable. One economist has illustrated it by comparing it to a river fed from two sources, which will be more uniform in volume than a river fed from one source. The great thing desired is stability in the purchasing power of the dollar.

DODGING THE ISSUE.

If anything were needed to demonstrate the weakness of the Clough forces in this county it is furnished by the combination which they are forming to have a "bunched" county convention, so that a straight fight at the primaries between the people and the Merriam-Clough machine will be made impossible. They are afraid to trust the "great popularity of the governor," about which they boast so loudly, to a direct vote of the Republicans of this county. Therefore they are preparing to drag in the contest for county offices, and by combinations and deals with the making of which the machine is familiar they hope to get enough strength in the convention to defeat the wishes of the rank and file of the Republicans and send a Clough delegation to St. Paul. But they may find that their dodge will not be successful.

This move shows, however, that they are afraid to enter a contest on the gubernatorial question alone. They are afraid to meet the issue. They do not want to let the people decide at the primaries whether St. Louis county's delegation shall represent the wishes of the people or shall vote for the continued power of the Merriam-Clough machine, and thus aid Mr. Merriam's ambition to succeed Senator Davis at Washington. They know that in a straight battle at the primaries upon this issue they would be hopelessly beaten, and consequently they seek to avoid it by injecting into the contest the scramble for county offices. It will place all the candidates for county offices at the mercy of the Clough machine, and he is a wise man who can now predict the outcome of the fights for the various offices. It may be taken for granted that if the Clough men win, only those who have made terms with "the old gang" will secure nominations for county offices or for the legislature. Do the Republicans of St. Louis county, who frowned this "gang" two years ago, intend to let it regain power this year?

A LEGISLATIVE CANDIDATE.

Dr. H. L. Darms, of Eveleth, has authorized the announcement that he is a candidate for the Republican nomination for the legislature, having been urged by many Republicans on the Mesaba range to enter the field. Dr. Darms has a host of friends who will be pleased to see him obtain the nomination.

The people residing on the Mesaba range believe that section of the district is entitled to one representative on the legislative ticket, and in view of the large and rapidly increasing population and the important interests centered there, the claim is well founded. Of all the candidates mentioned from that section, Dr. Darms appears to be the best equipped for the position. He has the ability and the energy to do good work for the district in the next legislature, which will deal with questions of great importance to this section of the state.

The Washington correspondent of the St. Paul Dispatch says there is always a large silver element in congress, which is a factor in all legislature and sure to stand together when it comes to such matters as consideration and order of business. He adds: "If Minnesota has one free silver man out of seven who can, when the interest of the state is involved, make peace and agree upon terms with the silver men, it will certainly be of advantage, so far as local matters are concerned. This is the view, at least, that several of Mr. Towne's colleagues from Minnesota take of the situation."

The Mapleton Enterprise says: "The goldbugs say that the adoption of bimetallism will drive our gold out of the country. Perhaps it will, but it is already pretty well driven out when one reads the statement of the United States consul to Russia, in which he says he was permitted to view over $30,000,000 of our gold coin lying in the coffers of that government. Were we to know how much of our gold was also held by other countries, the amount in circulation would be found so small that it would make out some of our goldbug speakers confounded liars."

The St. Paul Globe quotes Alvah Eastman, of St. Cloud, one of the best informed politicians in the state, as follows: "Alvah Eastman, editor of the St. Cloud Journal-Press, said William E. Lee will get practically the united support of the Sixth congressional district. In this respect Lee will have the advantage of any other candidate." And the Globe adds: "Thus, taking the delegates by congressional districts, Lee has a decided advantage over the balance of Clough's opponents."

If St. Louis county Republicans do not work in harmony with the rest of the Sixth district, they cannot expect any aid politically from the district at large. And St. Louis county will require the friendship and assistance of all the Sixth district members in the next legislature.

The Pioneer Press is opposing the election of a Clapp delegation by Ramsey county and is supporting Clough. This is further evidence that Mr. Merriam does not want Mr. Clapp or any other man except pliable Dave Clough as governor.

Ex-Speaker Charles F. Crisp is certain to be elected to the United States senate from Georgia. Secretary Hoke Smith has admitted Crisp's election since he returned to Washington from the joint debate with the ex-speaker.

James G Blaine believed in silver as redemption money and advocated its remonetization. Yet no one ever accused the great "man from Maine" of not being a true and consistent Republican.

There is not the slightest doubt that Clough cannot and will not carry Hennepin county.

FIRST LOVE.

First love is best the poet said—
Ah, poet wise and true—
In youth it fanned my heart to flame,
In manhood burns—about the same—
And will my whole life through.

That first love! Can I e'er forget
The dawn of that fair time?
When dimpled cheeks and soulful eyes
Revealed a glimpse of paradise,
And I bowed at the shrine.

'Twas then I swore my heart was true—
That she was wondrous fair!
But here today I've tried in vain
Just to recall her Christian name,
And gave up in despair.

Many a maid I've loved since then—
Hope to love many yet:
An Alice once, a winsome Ray,
A Beatrice and twice a May,
And then a Margaret.

But then I know the poet said
"The first love stirs the flame;
Tho' maids galore you love and woo
The first love lasts your whole life through,
Naught changes but the name.
—Albert Lang, in Boston Globe.

WHEN EVERYBODY IS RICH.

When we all have made our millions, and on terrapin we sup,
And play at stocks and railroads, instead of seven-up,
Do you think our thoughts will linger with persistency intense
On the time when we were dining for the sum of fifteen cents?

Do you think we'll feel a yearning for the days before the boom,
When we stored our few possessions in a six-by-seven room?
Do you think we'll linger sadly at the
Greenback club to quote
Reminiscences of dinners at the side-street
table d'hote?

I have known them to do it often—in a novel, it is true—
Weep for days when coat-tails were threadbare and the bills were always due;
And my fond anticipation is that some day
you and I Shall be in the proud position where we'll have the chance to try.

DECORATION DAY POEM.

"Forward!" was the word when day
Dawned upon the armed array.

"Fallen!" was the word when night
Closed upon the field of fight.

"Hurt, my boy?" "O, no! not much!
Only got a little touch!"

"Wonder what the folks would say
If they knew the news today!"

"Forward!" was the word that flashed
Homeward, when the cannon crashed.

"Missing!" was the word sent home,
When the shades of night had come.

"Fallen?" "Yes, he fell, they say,
In the fiercest of the fray!"

"Died last night!" the message said,
Thus the morrow's papers read.

One young heart that heard the word,
Fluttered like a wounded bird!

One was broken! Bowed her head!
"Mother! Mother! Mother's dead!"

Two green graves we'll deck today,
Sons and mothers side by side,
None will dare to tell us nay!"
Both for Right and Freedom died.

While we honor him who fell
In the fiercest of the fray,
We will honor her as well
Lying by his side today.

Let the flowers forever fair
Bloom above our fallen braves,
While the angels guard them there,
Glory lingers o'er their graves.

Long ago one sweet young soul
Entered her Gethsemane,
Death to her the greatest goal,
As it must to many be!

But life lingers—O! so long!
And the years so weary grow!
Tears have choked her heart's sweet song,
Dimmed those eyes that used to glow!

O! the bleeding broken hearts,
Living long their lingering death,
Pierced by countless cruel darts,
Smothered sobs beneath each breath.

Comrades! Call the roll again!
Write their name on glory's page!
Those who bore the grief and pain,
Fiercer far than battle's rage!

When they lie there by his side,
Dearer to him than his life,
Mother, Sister, Sweetheart, Bride,
Or, his dear, devoted Wife.

And you deck his grave again,
Write her name—but not beneath!
By her agony and pain,
Crown her grave with fairest wreath.

Angels called the roll again,
Wrote her name above the stars
For her patient faith in pain,
Deeper far than battle scars.

These green graves we deck today,
This is the third, where lies his bride—
None will dare to tell us "Nay!"
For these three for freedom died!
—H. H. Van Meter.

OUR PATRIOT DEAD.

In memory green their deeds we keep,
They live in song and story;
Wreathe flowers today where'er they sleep,
The Nation's boast and glory.

The pledge that patriot fathers made,
With lives and sacred honor,
Columbia's freemen nobly paid,
Yet Freedom smiles upon her.

First backward from her shores was hurled
Forever the invader,
Then Liberty her flag unfurled,
In stars and stripes arrayed her.

For union once to arms awoke
The cannon's echoing thunder,
When Sumpter fell and with that stroke
The flag seemed rent asunder.

The freeman's price our patriots paid
Of victory crowned with honor—
Our country's God her battles stayed,
His benison upon her.

Wreathe rose and myrtle where they sleep,
The nation's boast and glory—
In memory green their deeds shall keep
In patriot song and story.
—Walter B. Moer.

Duluth, May 30.

READY FOR THE FRAY.

Redwood Falls Gazette: The Minneapolis committee of 100 in favor of any candidate but Clough, appears to be ready for the fray, as it has asked Chairman Johnson, of the Hennepin county Republican committee, to call the convention to elect delegates as soon as possible. The 100 is composed of men favorable to Van Sant, Lee, Bustis, Clapp or Gibbs, and its existence is a moral necessity. By such an organization alone can David M. be defeated. We congratulate Hennepin Republicans in getting together.

THE CZAR CALLED DOWN.

The Mesaba Range: It appears that Governor Clough, in his capacity of czar of the universe, also attempted to interfere in a boxing exhibition given in Duluth by instructing the sheriff to suppress it—entirely ignoring the mayor. It is needless to say that it wasn't suppressed and Mayor Truelsen has written a letter to the governor politely inviting him to mind his own business in future.

THE TOOL OF NO ONE.

Hinckley Enterprise: The politicians are making a strong fight for the nomination of Clough. The people want either Lee or Van Sant. Lee's prospects for carrying every county in the Sixth district are good. Wherever he is known, his friends and well-wishers are numerous. Do we want a man of the people or a politician's tool for governor? Lee is the tool of no one.

CLOUGH WILL BE ROUTED.

Winona Republican: It is generally conceded among observing readers, whether active politicians or not, that the stand to be taken by Hennepin county in electing delegates to the state convention to be held in St. Paul on July 1, will practically determine whether Governor Clough shall succeed himself for the next two years in the office he now holds, or some other man shall be the people's choice for that position. This fact gives a certain degree of popular interest to all the movements of the managing elements of the Republican party in Hennepin.

Preston Times: The anti-Clough committee of one hundred in Minneapolis are anxious for the fray and have called upon the county committee to call an early convention. Much sarcasm has been written about the one hundred above referred to, but just the same they include some of the very best men in Minneapolis and it is barely possible that their strength is not to be sneezed at.

WILL NOT BE CLOUGH.

Minneapolis Journal: Mr. Lee is still confident that Clough will not succeed himself as governor. Said he to the correspondent: "Clough is beaten, but who will be the nominee I do not know at this time. But it will not be Mr. Clough."

THE PEOPLE WILL WIN.

Osakis Review: The people of the state want Lee or Van Sant for governor—the politicians want Clough. The fight is on and until after the nominating convention will continue to be a battle royal between the rank and file and the would-be political bosses of the Republican party. Through the country press the people are making a righteous fight. They want a man of the people and not a politician's tool in the highest office of the state, and propose by all fair means to put one there. Their effort is most certainly a laudable one and they will win.

ASTRONOMICAL PARADISE.

There is a plan on foot to erect the largest astronomical observatory in the world on the summit of Mount San Miguel, near San Diego, says Harper's Weekly. The observatory is to be an international one. A member of the Proctor Memorial association is now on his way from San Diego to Belfast to see the widow of Richard A. Proctor and afterward will visit Washington to call upon the representatives of the various governments to secure their co-operation. The new observatory is to be fitted with the largest two telescopes in the world. These, with the great Lick telescope on Mount Hamilton, ought to make astronomers flock to California.

ACROSS THE TEA TABLE.

June is just about to open her doors to us, and we must say "adieu" to May. Sweet May, who though she paints her flowers her liveliest hue finds June will make them sweeter, lovelier far, and give them just a touch of more exquisite beauty. The soft cool air of May unfolds the leaf buds, and touches them with a tender green, June smiles upon them and a richer tint is theirs, May sows the woods with pale, frail, dewy blossoms, June's breath is too ardent a kiss and they vanish at her touch, while the winds of June scatter the rose petals of the sweetest rose that ever grew—the wild rose which blossoms thickly at our doors, which has not been frightened away from our meadows, whose tint is a fair rival for her queenly sister of the hothouse, and whose perfume is far more dainty and elusive. June is the fulfillment of all the promises of May, the sweetest month of all the year, and May the loveliest, for to her is given the sweet task of unfolding the secrets which have lain hidden through the dark and dreary months of winter.

Summer in our Northern climate brings a brilliancy of the atmosphere which is attractive itself, but in the absence of large trees from which our city suffers, it is apt to be a trifle pitiless. But spring has a certain indefinite haziness about it which is wonderfully beautiful. These last few days my walks have taken me out to the East End, and after reaching the summit of "some o'erlooking hill" to gaze back to town, a view which is unrivalled in picturesque beauty unfolds itself. And we do not appreciate it. Is it that we have grown sordid? Is life too hurrying and rushing a business for us to stop and let nature whisper some of her secrets to us? Have we become so accustomed to decrying the charms of a new home in comparison to one we have left that we cannot appreciate the view daily unrolled before our vision? There is no more perfect picture than one that can be seen from almost any point near Twenty-fifth avenue east. To the east lies the dark forest of pine and birch, the birch an indescribable beautiful green in contrast to the somber darkness of the pines, the tall slender white trunks of the trees rising high into the air in emulation of their brothers, "the sentinel pines." The broad stretches of the lake give one a sense of vastness. To the west the city lies. The soft haze of spring softens crudities and wipes out incongruities; and on the summit of the hill beyond rise the towers and spires of church and school. One catches glimpses of green lawns and budding trees, which though small make a brave showing massed in the distance. There is an enchantment in watching that mere populous center of town on the crest of those great towering rocky cliffs; the turrets of the houses look like the embattlements of ancient castles, the school house looks like a great Norman cathedral and the chimes borne to one on the winds ring softly of a bygone time. Believe me, we will yet see one of the most picturesque and beautiful cities in the country here. Nature has given us so much, has dealt so lavishly in the setting of our lake, that we will not long look about us with the eye of faith, but in a few short years our trees will have grown to give us just the softening shade that we need. Appreciate your blessings, my dear sister, and don't demand too much or decry your "marcies."

My little friend, the robin red breast, who sang to me of spring from the branches of my neighbor's poplar tree, has not been proof against flattery and a few crumbs. He condescendingly chose a few from a store laid temptingly on the window ledge and gazing warily about him hopped off. The next morning he came again, he liked them and he ate quite heartily; again he came, and yet again, until feeling that he had learned to expect, I withheld the crumbs to avoid future developments. He hopped about in a most disappointed manner and lingered near until I placed them on the ledge. Emboldened by love of these dainties he allowed me to stand just inside the window. The next day the crumbs were ready for him, but the day following I determined he should seek for them, and placed them on the inner window ledge. He came bravely up, spied them and me sitting quietly sewing, gazed at me anxiously and watched me with eager caution, but took the crumbs; and now he is my chosen friend. One morning the rain necessitated a closed window, and robin pecked noisily at the glass until I lifted it and gave him his breakfast. He is more anxious for his crumbs than I for his expected visit; my day is lonely if he fails to come, and I have fearful and dismal forebodings that harm has come to him if he neglects to come to my window.

These days remind me of an old nursery rhyme, a jingle about the woods, beginning "Let's go to the woods, said Richard to Robin," and after going through successive invitations from Robin to others who were of the same mind, it ends up, "Let's go to the woods said everyone." It is an invitation which it will do everyone good to accept. It broadens one's mental view immensely to get out of one's environment. I do not wish to suggest the inevitable picnic which is one of my pet abominations, but a ride upon any one of our car lines leading out of the city will repay one well for the effort. Woodland, Lakeside, Lester Park, the boulevard drive, all are wearing their prettiest welcome. The streams are full enough to be beautiful. The gold of cowslip is waiting to be gathered the green of fern fronds and bracken which shake their lacy shadows at one's feet. The pale blue violets are part of nature's most exquisite carpet, and every little spring breeze scatters perfume from blossoming trees and bushes. If no other day offers itself, surely one cannot worship God more fittingly on the Sabbath than in contemplating the works of his hand—"The heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament showeth his handiwork," sang the psalmist in one of his most inspired utterances, and one must be better and nobler and finer in contemplation of these than surrounded by the works of poor mortal man, and seeking elevation from his works. To truly and honestly worship the Lord one must not only worship in the house of God, but adore him in the groves which "were God's first temples."

In our library there are some books and essays which are delightfully charming to the nature lover. Ellwanger's "Story of My Garden," and later essays are quite as beautiful as many of Thoreau's; Jeffries' "Field and Hedge Row" is a collection of essays published from time to time in English and American magazines, and there are a number of others, which just at this season are especially inspiring. One of Jeffries' most beautiful chapters is "Nature and Books," and the opening sentence is: "What is the color of the dandelion?" I think you and I can safely say "A glorious golden yellow," but Jeffries says there is no color in the alchemy of art which can duplicate that yellow, and he writes charmingly and entertainingly on the subject. Now if you cannot rid yourself of the presence of this weed, why not utilize it, and at the same time bow to the mandate of that tyrant we call fashion? For, strange as it may seem, quite the latest thing these days is the dandelion salad. There are wonderful curative powers stored somewhere in those dentated lance-like leaves, and you must find it in the salad and be up-to-date. The plants must be bleached, and the young plants are selected as soon as the leaves have matured and before the flower buds have formed. Pile them up to the tips of the leaves in stand, holding the leaves closely together in doing so. In a month, perhaps less time, the leaves will be snowy white, crisp and tender. These now are the basis of your salad. Not long since I went to a supper party where this dandelion salad was served, and as an accompaniment, thinest slices of cold boiled ham. This is a favorite supper dish in Virginia, renowned for the best sugar-cured hams in the country. The ham was so thin that it must have curled up following the knife in cutting. So dry, so sweet and toothsome, and the crisp bitter biting leaves of the salad were with it delicious. The leaves after they have been taken from the sand must be very carefully washed and wiped, that no particle of gritty substance adheres to them, then they must be placed on the ice to crisp them. This salad, like cress salad, must be eaten with French dressing, in fact a French chef never serves a vegetable salad with anything else. Mayonnais is served for heavier salads, meat and fish. Cold boiled beets cut in dice and served with dandelion leaves are very good. These make a very beautiful addition to lettuce or potatoe salad. Also one of the best ways of serving the dandelion bleached leaves I saw not long since, and save to tell you over the tea cups. Fry until crisp and brown three or four slices of best bacon cut in dice. This ought to make about two large spoonsful, toss it into the salad, pour only vinegar over with seasoning added, not much salt, and serve before the bacon has a chance to cool.

There is another product of the garden and the fields which can be utilized these days. In not many gardens of our city does the queen of flowers hold her court. To us she comes with the breath of the hothouse on her cheeks, but no matter where she was born, to many a maiden roses have a tender sentiment, and in June days one is apt to go searching amongst yellow books and in out-of-the-way corners for the rules our grandmothers used in making potpourri. To be sure, our grandmothers used the sweet, old-fashioned cabbage rose. And I have a remembrance of a sweet little old lady who bore her eighty summers as lightly as possible, but who never allowed anyone to spare her the task of gathering the rose leaves for the linen closet and rose jar. Daily in May and June she went forth to the rose garden back of the lilac hedge, a garden where mignonette and sweet alyssum, and lries and Jonnie-jump-ups grew at the feet of the stately tall cabbage and moss roses, and the great crimson "giant of battles" shook his pearls down on the white micropyhlla, and the Baltimore Belle climbed up on her lattice almost to the leaves of that apple tree which had delicious sweet green apples on it in the latter part of June. Armed with her garden basket, holding in her soft, plump little hands her garden scissors, her snowy tulle cap and sweet gray hair crowned with her garden hat, while yet the dew lay upon the rose leaves, her little figure went in and out of those rose bushes which she and a loved husband had planted years and years before in the dawn of youth and love. Every rose bush had a story. Many of them were but the children of bushes which had grown old with her, and had died, but it was her garden, and those rose bushes were her friends, and this is her rule for the pot-pourri:

The rose leaves must be fresh, and to a half peck of petals take a half pint of salt. My grandmother used an old blue and white India soup tureen for this. In it she laid a thick layer of rose petals; on this she put a layer of salt, another layer of petals and another layer of salt, until all the salt and petals were used. This should stand three days until the salt had drawn out a great deal of moisture. To the mixture of a half peck of rose leaves and half pint of salt the rule allows three ounces of dried allspice and one ounce of stick cinnamon broken in pieces and placed among the rose leaves on the fourth or fifth day. Then let this stand for a week closely covered, stirring it daily with a wooden stick, it begins to look ugly and brown. Spread out upon a tray at the end of the week and let it dry, then add one ounce of powdered allspice, an ounce of cloves, half a pound fresh-dried lavender blossoms, one ounce powdered cinnamon, two grated nutmegs, one ounce ginger-root sliced thin, half an ounce of anise-seed, ten grains finest Canton musk, two ounces of the essential oil of rose geranium, an ounce attar of roses, half an ounce each of the essential oils of jessamin, lavender, lemon verbena, musk, violet, rosemary and bergamot. This is the original receipt; in making it now we add cassia buds one ounce, and some good violet toilet water and half a bottle Florida water.

The leaves must be quite dry before the spices and oils are put on them, then all must be placed in the rose jar and allowed to stand closely covered until the ingredients are thoroughly incorporated. It should be stirred now and then, and in a short while the fragrance from the jar when opened will come to you as Creams of Araby the blest.

Truly it is but a step from the sublime to the ridiculous. A friend of mine laid me across the tea table of the ridiculous aspect the bicycle craze had assumed in the city which was her home, a larger one than ours, with airs perhaps more metropolitan, and where the bloomer costume is worn to some extent. Thank goodness, we have not suffered from bloomers, for if women wish to utterly cheapen themselves and make themselves unspeakably hideous, the bloomer costume on the bicycle is an easy aid to their endeavors, if inclination points that way. Having advertised for a servant, she went down in the kitchen to interview one who sought the situation. A wheel stood at the kitchen door, and leaning easily against the doorway stood a maiden arrayed in bloomers of a conspicuous pattern and cheap build. She announced her desire to secure the place, but stipulated for certain privileges. That her work must not interfere with her exercise was the chief one, and that she must be allowed certain hours in which to secure that exercise. Madam told the aspirant for culinary honors that the bicycle was all very well in its place, and on the afternoons and evenings which she allowed her cook she had no possible objection to her using her wheel, but she must be the judge of the time accorded, and that she did not think their ideas would coincide on the subject. Cook is perfectly right to have her outing, but after exercising all day in a hot kitchen, is there not a time to rest instead of ride?

The mistress who rides cannot blame the maid in free America for wishing to do likewise, and soon we will all be asking, as did the bewildered congressman, "Where are we at?"

COPELAND MEDICAL INSTITUTE.

A Well-Known Institution Where Catarrh and All Chronic Diseases Are Successfully Treated by the Latest Methods and at Nominal Cost.

Read the Experience of Engineer Mutch

The Copeland Medical Institute has been before the people of Duluth for nearly four years and has been subjected to the most critical investigation, both in treatment and business methods and proven to be thoroughly reliable and honorable in all its dealings and giving universal satisfaction to the multitudes that have been successfully treated by the well-known system. The treatment while given in a scientific manner is not harsh or painful and is easily tolerated by the weakest individual and gives speedy relief.

Catarrh and all chronic diseases are treated in a systematic manner, all medicines being furnished, each patient receiving the care and attention his individual case requires to secure the speediest relief from his trouble. While the Copeland system of treatment is world renowned, it is not expensive, but aims to give the best of service to those who suffer from the most prevalent diseases at a nominal cost.

AN ENGINEER'S EXPERIENCE.

James Mutch is a well known marine engineer in Duluth. He has worked at his trade at the head of the lakes for ten years. For several years he was with the Inman line. Last season he was on the tug Keystone and this year he is on the tug Mystic with the Stevens Towing company.

Some years ago Mr. Mutch began to be troubled with catarrh. About three (3) years ago his complaint became very serious and troublesome. The disagreeable disease gradually increased in severity until Mr. Mutch was in a very bad condition, but that can best be told in his own words:

"The middle of last March," said he, in narrating the history of his case, I was in such a condition from the effects of catarrh that I feared I should be compelled to give up my work as a tug engineer, which is quite profitable, of course. I had terrible headaches and the membranes of my nose and head were greatly affected. I could not stoop over without the most intense pains. At every attempt to do so, it seemed as if my forehead would burst. Prospects looked pretty dark, as a marine engineer is of no use if he cannot stoop over.

"At length I determined to take a course of treatment at the Copeland Medical Institute. There I found that all the trouble was due to nasal polypi or tumors, which had grown in my nose and sometimes swelling up and obstructing the nasal passages until I could not breathe through them. These polypi or nasal tumors were successfully removed, giving me relief from all my trouble. I expected to experience much pain during their removal, but the operation was done so skillfully that I hardly felt it.

"I am more than satisfied with the six weeks' treatment and the reasonable charges for it. The Copeland system is not severe in the least, and I want to particularly praise the careful and patient treatment of the physician in charge."

TO CURE PILES.

Remedy That Will Do It and Is Perfectly Safe.

We take pleasure in calling attention to a new pile cure which has been remarkably successful in curing every form of itching, bleeding or protruding piles. The remedy is known as the Pyramid Pile Cure and is recommended on account of its absolute safety, ease of application and instant relief from pain.

The Pyramid Pile Cure contains no opium or other poison and does not interfere with daily occupation while using. People who believed nothing but a surgical operation would cure them have been astonisfied at the results from a single 50-cent package of the Pyramid.

Mrs. Mary C. Tyler, of Heppner, Ore., writes: "One package of Pyramid Pile Cure entirely cured me of piles from which I have suffered for years, and I have never had the slightest return of them since.

Mr. E. O'Brien, Rock Bluff, Neb., says: "The package of Pyramid Pile Cure entirely removed every trace of itching piles. I cannot thank you enough for it.

The Pyramid Pile Cure is sold by all druggists at 50 cents and $1 per package.

Treatise on cause and cure of piles mailed free by addressing Pyramid company, Albion, Mich.

Heart Trouble Quickly Cured.

A Convincing Testimonial.

MISS ELLA KURTZ.

"For 19 years I suffered from heart trouble. During that time I was treated by five different physicians. All of them claimed that I could not be cured. I was greatly troubled with shortness of breath, palpitation and pain in the side. If I became excited, or exerted myself in the least, the pain in my side became very severe. At times it seemed as though needles were shooting through my side. Sometime in the month of November last, I commenced taking and since then I have improved steadily. I can now sleep on my left side, something I had never been able to do before. I can walk without being fatigued, and am in much better health than ever before. I would recommend all sufferers from heart trouble to try Dr. Miles' invaluable remedy without delay." MISS ELLA KURTZ, 518 Wright St., Milwaukee, Wis.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

All Scholars Are Preparing For the Closing.

"Time rolls its ceaseless course," and June is again upon us, bringing its sweet boy and girl graduates. The Assembly hall is in constant demand by the youthful orators, historians, essayists and prophets, who are to make their debut during commencement week, astonishing the world with their genius, and altogether the high school students are very busy.

The routine of work went along about as usual during the early part of the week, but on Wednesday afternoon the junior class gave a picnic to the seniors. The jolly party, chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Lohr, met at Lake avenue and Superior street, whence they proceeded to the canal. Here, the bravest boarded the ferry boat and breasted the stormy deep. Unmindful of the gentle zephyrs which lovingly tossed their locks hither and thither, they persevered and soon reached the opposite side. They immediately took possession of the street car and the fiery steed eagerly champing its bit, and when the rest of the party arrived there was no car in sight. They arrived at the pavilion at about 5:30 and were soon engaged in dancing. Bountiful refreshments were served and the hot coffee was by no means the least acceptable to the shivering guests. After a speech by Mr. Lohr, Hale Horton gave a toast on the "Guests," to which Miss N. Josephine Carey responded on the "Hosts." Sumner Prescott toasted the "Girls," and Miss Cora Robinson responded on the "Boys." Everybody had a delightful time and the return trip was exhibit of the cars' speed, twice running off the track. Ever since the eventful picnic the seniors have been telling how remarkably nice the juniors are.

On Friday morning Memorial exercises were held at the high school, and the following interesting program was given:

Song—"America" ..... Audience
Invocation ..... Rev. Dr. Ryan
Address ..... J. D. Holmes
Song—"Vacant Chair" .....
..... Musical Society.
Address ..... J. G. McGrew
Song—"Tenting Tonight on the Old Camp Ground" .....
Recitation ..... Mr. Rudolph
Vocal quartet—"Blue and Gray" .....
Address ..... Mr. Bates
Song—"Soldier Rest, Thy Warfare O'er" .....
Salute to the Flag .....
Address ..... Mr. Phelps
Song—"Star Spangled Banner" .....

Friday evening at Turner hall, the boys of the school gave a minstrel show. It was well attended and was in every way a success.

The seniors are looking forward to their trip to the iron range with considerable pleasure. They expect to leave on Friday next and are earnestly soliciting the weather man for a pleasant day.

It costs you nothing—Free to all. 2 grand concerts by the Duluth City Band at the Pavilion Tomorrow Afternoon and Evening. Take car on incline.

SUMMER OPERA.

The Company Which Will Sing at the Pavilion.

With the Temple burned and the Lyceum closed for the season, the Pavilion will be the only place of amusement running this summer, and this will be formally opened one week from tomorrow under the management of D. R. Smith, formerly treasurer of the Temple Opera house, this city, and Powers' Opera house, Grand Rapids, Mich.

The Gonzalez Comic Opera company has been secured as the first attraction, and is acknowledged to be one of the strongest repertoire organizations now before the public. The repertoire is an extensive one and embraces many new operas which have never been heard in Duluth, as well as all of the light popular favorites.

The principals of the company are well known comic opera artists, most of whom have appeared here on several occasions. Heading the company is Miss Lizzie Gonzalez, the well known comic opera prima donna, who is said to possess a beautiful soprano voice of wide range, which she uses to excellent advantage. She is described as a charming little footlight fairy and is bound to become a great favorite here. Other members of the company are: Mattie Reeves, mezzo soprano; Fanny Gozalez, contralto; Teddy Webb, tenor; Adolphe Mayer, baritone; George Balfe, bassa; John Young and James Donnelly, comedians, and Orville L. Mayhood, musical director, most of whom have been connected with some of the well known operatic organizations which have appeared in Duluth in the past few years.

This company has played extended engagements this season in Pittsburg, Indianapolis, Buffalo, Rochester, Cincinnati and Wheeling. They close a very successful four weeks' engagement in Wheeling tonight and will leave tomorrow via the Baltimore & Ohio for Duluth, arriving here Wednesday, June 3. This will give the company a much-needed rest before commencing their long engagement here.

A feature of the performances, and something which has never been used in Duluth in the production of comic opera will be the full orchestra consisting of fifteen picked musicians from the City band. Manager Smith is having extensive improvements made, such as enlarging the stage, new scenery added, stage lighting rearranged, etc., which will insure smoother and more pleasing performances. It is probable that the Pavilion will have a very successful season.

The company will open in "La Mascotte" and will sing that and "Chimes of Normandy" during the first week.

The Northern Pacific Steamship company's steamer Olympia, to sail from Tacoma, June 21, will connect at Hong Kong with the steamer Congello, sailing from that port about July 25 for Port Natal, East London, Delagoa Bay and Cape Town, in South Africa. Freight will be carried on this steamer, and through bills of lading issued to cover. For freight and passenger rates call on R. A. Eva, general agent Northern Pacific railroad, Spalding Hotel block, Duluth.

THE BEST WAY TO TRAVEL.

A Route That Deserves Its Growing Popularity.

"This is different," said the fat man to the other three in the smoker. "I should say as much," assented the thin man with an anaemic pallor; "I came up the middle of Lake Superior last week and I'd like froze to death."

"It's just the other way with me," responded the man of avoirdupois. "I came up the Chicago way from Cleveland and it was so hot going through Indiana I was near dead. This South Shore road makes just about the right combination for summer travel. You can be pretty sure it won't be too hot or too cold, and you get the best part of the lake trip from the Soo down to Cleveland. That's the way I'm going home and I would have saved about twenty pounds of flesh and 100 pounds of worry without losing any time if I had come up that way. Ever try it?" he added, turning to one of the others.

"No," he said, "I never heard of that combination. I'm going to Boston myself, always go that way now. You don't get better train service anywhere, and it's much the most comfortable way of making the trip. My wife prefers it because you don't have to chase across a big city like you do going Chicago way."

"Same here," said the fourth man, who had not spoken before. "Only I'm going to New York. It was a long time before I'd believe the shortest way was round by Montreal, but it's pretty much so. But this lake trip is something new. What is that?"

The fat man and the anaemic traveler took turns explaining. The Canadian Pacific steel express steamships Alberta, Athabasca and Manitoba for Owen Sound make direct connections at Sault Ste. Marie tri-weekly with Soo-bound Soo-line train. A delightful sail of twenty hours down the St. Mary's river and through the innumerable islands of the Georgian bay lands one at Owen Sound, Ont., where the Canadian Pacific railway steamship express is waiting and whisks the passenger along to Toronto in a short five hours. The passenger may go through Mackinaw island instead of Sault Ste. Marie and there take the floating palaces of the Detroit & Cleveland Steam Navigation company, the coast line to Detroit, a twenty-four hours' run.

"But what's this place?" said the large man interrupting himself. The train was stopping at a bridge over a rushing stream with heavily wooded banks. Half a dozen men in tourist garb with fishing equipment were getting off.

"Brule," replied the Boston traveler sententiously. "Fine trout stream—rainbow trout, brook trout, all kinds. Beautiful woods. Stay at one of the club houses or at one of the nicest rustic hotels you ever saw or lent out. I tried it two weeks once and had all kinds of fun."

"Rather picturesque country, too," commented the thin passenger after a moment. They were passing one of the numerous lakes that lie in the rolling forst country. Here and there was a sawmill by some stream and a thriving village grouped about it. At intervals farm clearings were seen, always with two or three sturdy youngsters running to see the train speed by. Some of the buildings were mere log cabins, some were more pretentious houses, and occasionally one saw large farm manors set pompously in a group of great barns.

"All done in the last five years," said the Boston man. "But it was a tough looking country the first time I saw it. Never thought they would make a habitable land of those pine barrens."

"Some way with the road," added the New York passenger. "It was like a corduroy road the first time I tried it. They have improved it wonderfully recently, got a smooth roadbed, good trains and they are constantly adding some new conveniences for the passengers."

The four travelers who left Duluth that afternoon had a cosy meal in the buffet car, smoked and chatted and read all evening, slept softly—the fat man cool and the thin man warm—and separated at the Soo the next morning, one for the lake trip to Toronto, another going likewise to Cleveland, the other two going together as far as Montreal. The last thing they did was to vote that the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic deserved its growing popularity.

THE SILVER REPUBLICANS.

A Duty Which They Should Promptly Perform.

To Silver Republicans of St. Louis County and Sixth District: The events which are crowding fast and thick politically point you a duty to perform at once. The Prohibition convention has split in twain upon the mountain of finance. The silver Democrats even now have enough delegates to handsomely control their convention at Chicago. The defiant attitude of the Cleveland gold men is giving way to utter rout. Carlisle is shaken to pieces in his own state of Kentucky. The astounding farce of liberty-loving Farmers' Alliance and free silver South Dakota sending, through manipulation, gold delegates to Chicago is being rendered of no effect by West Virginia, Ohio and Indiana sending silver delegates. All these things are having their effect upon our party; the violence of the gold press is decreasing, and where a gold plank of a pronounced type seemed to be a certainty at St. Louis but a few weeks ago, through the urging of a certain press element, etc., now it is certain there will be a great modification of that idea.

But this has only been made possible because enough men have had the courage to speak out boldly against the heresy of a gold plank, a thing unknown in a Republican platform. For that these men who have the courage to run their own party, instead of letting assuming dictators run it for them. Every Republican should feel in a crisis like this that he is in the party and the party is in him. If you are to be cut down for your ideas, be cut down as a man, not as a mouse, or tossed off finally at the end of a gold faction which has no use for you. Undoubtedly eight out of ten Republicans in this district are silver men naturally. The Republican convention meets June 16. If you know any delegates to that convention go to them or write them your ideas upon the duties of the hour. If you are personally acquainted with Republican senators or congressmen in any of the states, not merely your own, or even smaller politicians, write them your ideas on the silver question and emphasize the peril of anything like a gold plank at this stage of the game, even if thought expedient by selfish gold advocates before. Tell them of the percentage of silver to gold Republicans in your own knowledge. All this will have its effect. These men will bring pressure to bear upon the delegates at St. Louis, as you make plain your ideas to them, and they will thank you for them. It is a foolish politician who listens not to his constituents. Mould your party instead of letting a minority mould it. The men at Washington are only men like ourselves, only grown fat and big with power, but they fear every man at home who has ideas and who will clearly express them.

The writer candidly believes that the era of better times is not far off if every silver Republican will do his duty at this time and shape his party's plank at St. Louis during the next sixteen days. There are some men who will not be aroused by this. They are the same who allowed gold delegates to be chosen to St. Louis. But all things are possible to the energetic Republican.

COULD NOT AGREE.

Financial Problem Which Perplexed Two Women.

If this was not a true story it would not be so ludicrous, says the New York Herald.

They had been shopping. There was no room for doubt on that score, and bundles of all sizes and shapes encumbered their laps and two or three seats in their vicinity in the New Haven railroad waiting room at the Grand Central station.

I had, fortunately, secured my resting place to wait for a train before the women entered. They flounced into seats directly behind me as they dumped their bundles down, and almost simultaneously remarked, "Oh, my, but I'm tired."

"Let me see," one tried to whisper to her companion, "what did I pay for that ribbon you bought?"

"One dollar and fifteen cents."

"Oh, yes; and then I gave 25 cents for your comb."

"Yes."

"That makes you owe me $1.50—"

"No, $1.40. Can you change a $5 bill? I—"

"It's $1.50."

"It isn't, either." The speaker was getting excited. "It's $1.40."

"Goodness! Can't you figure? $1.15 and 25 cents make $1.50."

"Well, just take your pencil and add it up."

"I don't need a pencil. You figure it if you want to.

"I don't need to. I can do it without a pencil."

Well, it's $1.50."

"Upon my word, you provoke me with such stupidity."

"If you'd take your pencil and—"

At this juncture the blue-coated ticket-puncher at the gate called out their train. The women kept up the argument while getting up their bundles, continued it through the gateway and into the train.

As I passed them in an aisle in a car the woman who started the argument was still talking about a "pencil" and "one-fifteen."

The Chronicles of Wabojeeg's Wigwam.

"The winter is ended," said Wabojeeg, the white fisher. "I am tired of white man's life of close confinement in the heated air of the houses and offices; the same narrow paths of trade and business, called streets, weary me. I will break away from this civilization now that the spring has come and the birds are in the leafage of the wild wood. I know on the muskadas, the meadows, and the sloping shores of Gitchie Gummie, the great lake, among the rocks along the little seebes, the little rivers, the flowers are opened by the bright sunshine and warm showers, and the ferns are lush and coyly uncurling their sweet, graceful volutes to languorous zephyrs that dally about them and invite their yielding to the promises of Segwun, the spirit of spring.

"I know this, I feel it. I, too, must go and live in the wildwood, on the meadows, on the rocks and sloping shores of Gitchie Gummie, and drink in the bounty of what the Great Spirit so lavishly gives and provides for his tired children. Yes, I must go. I will find me a pleasant nook where I may idly dream in quiet. Yes, I bethink me of one such unfrequented spot. It lies upon a high and gently sloping bank, two bow shots, looking eastward, from the great lake's wrinkly bosom, that in the calm of summer evening makes a path of flashing, watery diamonds leading from where the sun god rises in his golden splendor to this enchanted noon. Upon the right a streamlet, a restless little seebe, rushing, leaping, foaming and fretting down its little leaps, the stairway of a rocky canyon guarded with gnarled old cedars, whose knuckled roolets sink their grasping fingers deep into the fissues of the trappean walls, and loan far out and fling down purple shadows upon the waters below where the red spotted trout dwell and sport in its crystal basins, flash and gleam among its agate shallows and sands as bright and golden as those of Pactolus. Upon the left and back a grove primeval of great ruddy trunked pine trees stand whispering and heaving murmurous sighs and fragrance to the passing winds, while under foot upon the slippery russet of the fallen needles, seedless and dilated cones of bygone seasons that mask the fragrant earth, creeps the arbutus and the cedar vine, while the modest Gaultheria, and chimaphilas flowers lend their sweet odor to the scented silence that pervades their shady corridors.

"Here I will build me a wigwam, and above the lodge's doorway fain would I write a legend that reading it the returning guest would know that welcome was as wide, free and untrammeled as the air around.

"Of my guests, one shall be On-lancome guck, the newsgatherer, surnamed Wabasso, the winter hare, because his changes with the seasons and is gentle and silly, and wise in woodcraft, and a lover of rhymes, and pleasant withal. Another shall be Meeda, the medicineman, whose feet have stood in many places, south, west, east and even in the darkness of the north Wabasso land, and hath had many adventures in strange countries and among wild and savage races, hath seen much understandingly and knoweth many pleasant things to tell. The third shall be the White Spider, Unktomaska, so called in the tongue of the Nadawissioux, because they know of no reason for an entomological collection if not to be eaten by the collector. These shall be my family," said Wabojeeg, "and we will dwell in the wigwam I will build here and dwell in till the cold winds of the autumn come and make our comfort here uncertain."

Wabojeeg's wigwam is builded and stands due east and west, is spacious, high arched and dry, ditched without and banked within so no wind or water beats in during the gales and storms. Its skeleton of wythes and poles are bound firmly and steadfast. Fresh birch bark matting covers its sides and thatches its dome-like top. Fragrant spruce and arbor vitae boughs overspread the leveled earth with an elastic green carpet as soft and cushiony to the tread as the vaunted Axminster or Wilton looms ever furnished. It is lighted in day time by the skylights or smoke holes in the roof at either end; at night by the light of the fire kept burning under them, and whose lambent flames illumine the interior with a pleasant and cheerful glow. The eastern extremity has a doorway opening towards the shining Gitchie Gummie and ushers into the audience chamber of Wabojeeg's stronghold. Another doorway opens at the western end and ushers into the banquet chamber, presided over by the cook, Hyppolite Boncour, a happy combination of French Canadian and Algonquin ancestry, devoted to his calling and capable and willing, with the experience of many a lumber camp in winters past, and now installed as chef in the wigwam's kitchen.

Between the audience chamber and the banquet room is an ample space divided into stalls for sleeping, and each stall is furnished with foot-thick mattresses of fragrant arbor vitae sprigs and sprays and ample supply of blankets for covering. Overhead a rack of poles supports the paraphernalia of the disciples of the gentle Isaac and the deadly tubes of the followers of Nimrod, and further garnished with nor'westers, rain coats and long-legged rubber waders, gives indication of inclinations and intentions of both host and guests. Between this cavern of enticing, shadowy twilight, consecrated to Nepahwin, the spirit of sleep, and the eastern audience chamber was a rustic table of pine boards supported on stakes driven into the ground and littered with paper, pens and ink and the solace and aggravations of the day-newspapers. A few folding camp chairs here and there about the lodge were the only signs of luxurious civilization visible.

'Twas the first night in the hospitable wigwam. The rain had fallen all day long and the wind had risen and was soughing loud, and in the long blasts through the tall pine tree tops above and around our shelter, but what cared we? The lambent flames of the fire upon the floor in the center of the audience chamber illuminated the faces of the guests circled around it, reclining upon the bosom of their mother earth in true aboriginal fashion, while their shadows fresco'ed the birchen walls behind them with dancing shadows as the flickering flames rose and fell to the cadence of the winds. The ever-changing chiaroscuro would have stirred the spirit of Rembrandt, could his artistic shade have looked in upon this comfortable chamber of indolence. The night air was sweet and heavy with the delicious odors of the newly-peeled birch, the balsamic fragrance of the verdant bough carpet and couches, the soothing, earthy, woodsy circumambient atmosphere laden with the indescribable perfumes of the scent'd incense that the fire's warmth accentuated and enhanced.

The rattle of the rain upon the birchen dome fell like flights of arrows when the blast drove fiercest; the wind whistled and moaned and eddyed down the smoke hole, driving back the spicy vapors and scent'd smoke till it hung like a canopy over our heads in the hollow of the roofing.

Little cared Wabojeeg, for his lodge was dry and storm-proof; little cared Wabasso, for he sought no news to gather; little cared the Meeda, as he was resting from his travels; little cared the Spider, for he could dose and weave his airy webs in quiet. But when Wabojeeg rose from the circle and entered the cavern of Nepahwin, all turned their eyes in questioning upon the retiring host, who in an instant returned, saying: "I am Mishinawa, the pipe-bearer, and here is the Kinnikinick of the Dacotas and the esamin of the paleface, let us make Pukwana."

As Meeda filled his bowl with the crisp kinnikinick, he said: "I have seen the women of the Sioux in the land of the Dacotas, gathering the branches of the red rose willow, who, after scraping off the green outer bark, chip off the white inner layer, dry it for smoking. The fume is cool, fragrant and soothing, and the Ojibbeways call it Pukwana, or peace smoke. Hiawatha, who seems to have been an aboriginal kind of an Edison, is given the credit of its introduction to the red man."

"And who, pray, was the thrice-blessed human consoler that first made known the comfortings of tobacco smoke?" said the Spider, rising to a cross-legged, Turkish position as he helped the esamin into his pipe and passed the buckskin bag to his neighbor, Wabasso, who shook his head and passed it on to Wabojeeg. Then lighting his pipe with a glowing coal from the hearth, and taking the preliminary whiffs, glanced around for an answer, when, with a slight preparatory cough, Wabojeeg began: "I think Sir Walter Raleigh," and hesitated, for he, too, was busy filling his pipe bowl with the soothing weed. "O, no," said the Spider, too intent in watching the ascending wreathes to notice Wabojeeg's occupation. "I was intending to say Sir Walter Raleigh first introduced it to England, but I know no; who first discovered it. Canst thou not tell, O wise Meeda?"

The Meeda removed the stem from between his lips and blew the white fumes slowly upwards, and said, after a moment's silence: "There is reasonable evidence to believe that the tobacco plant, nicotiana tobacum, is native in tropical America, where it was found by the Spanish discoverers upon their first arrival, and in use by the aborigines. It is now cultivated in almost every land on the globe, and nowhere more extensively than in the United States. The tobacco of Virginia is, perhaps, the best, and that state is the most celebrated for its culture. There are two varieties mentioned by authorities on the subject, the broad and narrow leaved, but they differ but little materially in their properties. The great diversity in the quality of the plant is produced by the difference in the soil and mode of cultivation, and several varieties are known in commerce. There are other species of nicotiana said to be cultivated, especially nicotiana rustica, and nicotiana fanicalata, the former is thought to have been the first introduced into Europe, and is thought to have been cultivated by the American aborigines, as it is naturalized near the borders of our small northern lakes. The variety of nicotiana quadrivalvis is used by the Indians along the Missouri and Columbia rivers. The nicotiana fruticosa is a native of China, and its cultivation in Asia probably long antedates Columbus' discovery of America. Smoking was learned by the Spaniards from the American Indians. The French ambassador to the court of Lisbon introduced it into his own country in the year 1560, and his memory is perpetuated in the name Nicotiana, given to the plant in his honor.

"There is an Arabic version of its origin I learned in the orient, which is as follows: The father of the faithful, while journeying through the mountains of Irvinstan, saw a serpent lying upon the ground, stiff with the cold of the night and early morning. Moved with pity, he placed it in the folds of his cloak against his bosom to warm it back to life. When it felt the warmth and was restored to vitality it said: 'Divine prophet, listen: I am now about to bite thee.' 'Tell me why, I pray thee?' asked the prophet. Because thy race wars against mine own and fain would exterminate us from the earth.' 'But,' answered the prophet, 'does not thy race war unceasingly against my people also? How canst thou so soon in thy ingratitude forget my hand has saved thy life?' 'Gratitude!' said the serpent, with sparkling eyes; 'there is no such thing as gratitude upon the whole earth. And if I spare thee now, either thou or another of thy race will slay me. By Allah, I will bite thee!' 'As thou hast sworn by Allah, I will not make thee break thy vow,' said the prophet, placing his hand before the serpent's mouth. The serpent struck his venomed fangs into Mohammed's hand. The prophet sucked the wound and spat the poison on the earth, and from the spot there sprang up instantly the plant which holds within itself the deadly venom of the serpent and the sweet, calming spirit of the prophet. This plant men know and name tobacco."

Wabasso, who had been listening, leaning back upon his elbow watching through half-closed lids the face of the raconteur, sat upright and said: "O, Meeda, it is good to hear your story. While I do not make Pukwana, I enjoy it when others make it. I can dream and float with the hazy, filmy tissue of the smoke clouds of your pipes and follow you to the land of the Koran, mosques and minarets where the muezzin calls."

"What is the hour?" asked the Spider, irreverently.

"I'll punish you for that," said Wabasso, "for I have my guitar with me and I'll sing you into penitence for your interruption." So saying, he plunged into the cavern a moment and reappeared with his instrument. Reseating himself in the glowing firelight, with a prelude of sweet chords, he sang from the popular American Canoe club song:

"Comrades, the embers are fading;
Paler the sleepy stars glow,
Night into morning is shading—
Sing, ere to slumber we go.
List to the bird dreaming yonder
Trills a soft note in its sleep;
Hark to the breezes that murmur
And whisper their plots to the deep.
Hush we our stories and jesting,
Laughter a moment restrain,
Here's to the homes where are resting
The loved ones we'll return to again."

The fire had died down to a glow reflected by the birchen walls, and by its rosy glimmer we all turned in, saying "Good night."

Since E. J. Luther took charge of the Deerwood inn that popular resort has experienced a regular boom. Among the Duluthians who enjoyed the fishing there of late were W. A. Foote and cousin, Mrs. Thayer, and Mr. Foote not only fished up to his well-known record, but Mrs. Thayer also captured some of the largest bass yet taken this season. Other visitors from Duluth were H. M. Bradley and party, Mr. Bradley securing a 19½-pound muscallonge; Alderman Hale and son, Messrs. Johanson, Fryberger and Harris, Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Cutler and Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Silvey, Dr. McNulty, Dr. Elliott, O. C. Hartman, A. W. Hartman, Morton Miller, Fred Reynolds and George Suffel, and all had good luck. The fishing is excellent and quite a large party are making arrangements to leave for Deerwood tonight. —Little Ike.

EMPEROR'S PAY DAY.

Royal Ghost Walks With Much Ceremony.

Emperor William receives his salary quarterly in advance. The money is thrice counted by different functionaries at the national treasury, and is afterward placed in a number of strong boxes and carried to the royal mail wagon, waiting at the door between a troop of mounted gendarmes. After the load has been placed in the vehicle the ministers of finance of the empire and of the kingdom place the seals of their respective offices upon the door and accompany the minister of the royal household in his carriage to the palace, the mail wagon with its escort of gendarmes following immediately behind, says the Chicago Record. Not until the money is actually deposited in the vaults of Emperor William's Berlin palace does the minister of the household sign the receipts, which are made out with the name of "Wilhelm Rex," and "William Imperator," respectively, one-half of the sum being derived from the treasury of the kingdom of Prussia and the other from the treasury of the German empire.

Two days afterward the court functionaries receive their pay, but although the emperor receives his salary in advance, not one of the employes is similarly favored, so that the emperor is practically always three months behind in the pay list of the household. The only exception which the emperor makes is in the favor of his consort, whose personal allowance of $250,000 per annum is paid to her quarterly in advance.

At no court in Europe are the salaries so low as that of Berlin, the so-called great dignataries having to satisfy themselves with a pittance of $2000 a year, while the minister himself receives but $5000. This is not surprising when the enormous number of persons whose figure on the pay roll is taken into consideration. For instance, there are no less than 500 housemaids and 1800 liveried footmen. Every servant, high or low, is entitled to a pension after working in the royal household for twenty years.

Over and beyond the civil list received by the emperor from the treasury of the empire and that of the kingdom, he draws from the war department full salaries for the different military commands he assumes. As commander-in-chief of the army, he is continually appointing himself colonel in chief of this or that regiment, which has thereupon the right to style itself the "leib" or body regiment of his majesty. Whenever one reads in the gazette that he has thus honored a regiment in the army, one may take it for granted that it entails an addition to his income in the shape of a colonel's pay and allowances. Inasmuch as all the present moment he holds the colonelcy of some fifty different regiments, it will readily be seen that this constitutes no inconsiderable addition to his income, all the more as the colonelcies carry with them forage allowances for about 200 horses.

Out of this civil list the emperor is expected to pay the allowances of the various members of his family. But this is not a heavy drain on his purse. His brother, Prince Henry, and his brother-in-law, Prince Frederick Leopold, have each inherited immense private fortunes and are practically independent of any allowance, while the only other princes of his house, Prince Albert of Brunswick, the crazy Prince Alexander, and the eccentric yet talented Prince George, all three elderly men, are exceedingly wealthy. Indeed, they figure among the richest princes of the blood in Europe.

BOB IN THE EIFFEL TOWER.

Harper's Round Table: The elevators in the Eiffel tower are wonderful. They run right up its legs, the way ants do us at picnics, only inside, and glorious to say they were made not only in the United States, but in Yonkers, where I was born, and going up in 'em makes you feel as if you were at sea, because they can't go up straight, the legs being bandy. At one time you'd have thought I was lying on the floor when I was only stading up straight, it got off the perpendicular so far. Pop asked why it was they didn't have a sign up telling people that these elevators came from Yonkers, and a man that knew all about it said it wouldn't do any good because the French people didn't know where Yonkers was, and besides they were excitable, and wouldn't ride in a machine they thought wasn't French "Let 'em walk, then," said Pop. "It's too high up," said the man. "Well," said Pop, 'as a walk it may be high up, but as a trick it's low down." And the man agreed with him, but he said: "It isn't my fault. Mr. Eiffel built the tower, I didn't. I'm only a green-grocer at Leamington." And then we all laughed but Pop's kind of mad about it yet, because he's proud of Yonkers, and thinks people that do things ought to get credit for 'em.

After we came down from the tower I wanted Pop to take me up in a balloon they had flying about a mile away, but he wouldn't. He thought we'd had high living enough for one day, and, besides, Jules advised us not to go. He said every once in a while the balloon broke loose and landed in the desert of Sahara, which is very awkward to those who can't go a week without water and don't eat sand. And the walking is bad, so we didn't go.

BARNATO'S PALACE.

Barney Barnato's London palace, opposite Stanhope gate, Park lane, the most desirable site in Mayfair, is beginning to rear its profusely ornamented white walls above the boardings that surround it, says the New York Mail and Express. Barnato has not had to contend with the rules and ordinances of the Westminster estate in the same way as his friend, Albert Belt. The latter gentleman's house is now completed, and as it stands in a direct line with Grosvenor house, the duke laid down very stringent rules as to its height. The result is certainly an architectural monstrosity, despite the money that has been lavished upon it.

HOME, SWEET HOME.

How the Song Liberated John Howard Payne.

When the boundary line between Tennessee and Georgia was established, it passed half a mile south of the spring Tuck-a-lee-chee-chee, among the foothills of the Unakas, and as it crossed one of the principal Indian trails, it became a place of much importance, says the Atlanta Constitution. There had already grown up a strong rivalry between the Tennessee tribes, headed by Chief Ross, and the Georgia tribes, headed by Major Ridge, both half-breeds and men of extraordinary ability as leaders. The establishment of a new boundary line fixed the limits of their respective territories, and to try and harmonize as far as possible the contending factions, the government established a trading post there. John Howard Payne appeared upon the scene, and was accused of inciting the Indians to insubordination. He was placed under arrest as an incendiary and carried to the council house. The name of the place was changed from the euphonious appellation of Tuck-a-lee-chee-chee to the one more easily pronounced of Red City, because of the color of the soil in that vicinity.

While Payne was held there one of the first bands arrived, and among the Indians was the chief, Oo-chee, or Rattling Gourd, a broken-hearted man. He was moody and abstracted, and refused all invitations to the council house, and would partake of no festive enjoyments whatsoever, but spent most of the time at the graves of his wife and child further up in the valley. At last one morning he was missed from his accustomed place by the campfire and an alarm was immediately raised that Rattling Gourd had escaped. The patrol scattered in every direction in search of him, and some of them bethought them of his fondness for the spot where his loved ones slept, and went in search of him there. They found him. Weltering in his own blood, his body lay between the little mounds that covered his squaw and papoose. In some way he had secreted a bayonet when the Indians were being disarmed, and, brooding over his wrongs, he became desperate, and seeking that lone spot, he chanted his death song, fell upon the point of the bayonet, which pierced his heart, and died on the spot where he had often expressed a desire to be laid for his last long sleep.

The affair caused great excitement and indignation. The malcontents took advantage of the distressing occurrence to stir up strife, and fears were entertained of a mutiny. A grave was dug on the spot where he lay, and the chief was buried by the soldiers, one of the Moravian missionaries officiating. After the services were over John Howard Payne, who had been a silent witness of the pathetic scene, began singing softly to himself the song which has since been echoed through every land on the earth. Gen. Bishop, who had kept a close scrutiny on his actions, heard the song and called Payne to him.

"Young man," said the stern old Indian fighter, "where did you learn that song?"

"I wrote that song myself," replied Payne.

"And where did you get the tune?"

"I composed that also."

"Would you let me have a copy of it?"

"Certainly I will."

"Well, a man who can sing and write like that is no incendiary. Appearances may be against you, but I am going to set you free. I shall write your discharge immediately, and a pass to you anywhere you choose through the nation."

Payne had been housed at the home of a family living near by, and on his return there he exhibited his pass and related the circumstances. That was the first time that "Home, Sweet Home" had ever been sung in public.

FAVORED LUNCINDY JANE.

Detroit Free Press: A noted Eastern lecturer says that the most surprising compliment she ever received was at the close of a lecture she gave in a town in Idaho. The hall in which she lectured was crowded, and she noticed in the audience an elderly man who riveted his eyes upon her and listened with open mouth to every word she said.

He came up to the platform at the close of the lecture and said heartily, while he grasped her hand until she winced with pain:

"Yer the livin' immidge o' Lucindy Jane, my first wife, an' what's more, you talk perzactly like her."

"Indeed?"

"Yes, you do. She could out-jaw any other woman that ever walked the earth, and every time you opened your mouth I could of took my oath it was Lucindy Jane come back to life. You raly made me omcomfortable, sein' as I've been married three times since Lucindy Jane left me. Beats all how you favor Lucindy Jane. I tell you that you an' her would of made a great team."

ARIZONA RAIN MAKING.

"There is a novel rainmaker in Arizona" said B. T. Bartlett, of Nogales, at the Arlington, according to the Washington Star. "He owns a piece of lowland about a mile from the Gila river. It seldom rains in that country, and, notwithstanding the proximity of the land to water, it must be irrigated in order to raise any crops. To irrigate costs a good deal of money, more that the owner of this particular tract of land possessed, so he hit upon a scheme. He constructed half a dozen large sheet-iron contrivances exactly like the spout of a sprinkling pot, except a good many times as large. These he placed at angles of about forty-five degrees in different parts of his land. All of these were connected with drain pipes to another larger pipe that went to the river. A shut-off in the main pipe completed the outfit. He can turn on the water and move just as much or as little rain on his ground as he pleases. The water, falling in a spray like a shower of natural rain, is very much better for his ground and growing plants than any other system of irrigation could possibly be adn he has the benefit of the river at a trifling cost."

Inventions Whose Utility Depends Entirely Upon the Vacuum Space.

An Attractive Field of Invention Judging From the Patent Office.

Many Industries Affected By the Processes on File There.

Making money out of nothing! The notion is attractive. Many millions of dollars in this country are invested in patents depending upon a vacuum, which is less than what most people call nothing. These inventions cover a great variety of industries, such as preserving foods, tanning, fermenting, bleaching, hardening stone, and making woods imperishable. Some of them actually replace the keeping of corpses and the manufacture of mortuary memorials, says the St. Louis Globe Democrat.

The history of the vacuum in the United States patent office is an interesting one, dating back to 1833, in which year George H. Richards took exclusive rights in a process for preparing leather from various substances by evaporation in vacuo at a temperature below 212 degrees, the object being to avoid injuring the product by too great heat. This method is applied in obtaining flavors for syrups dispensed at soda-water fountains. It also serves in making extracts from malt and hops and from coffee. The fact is well known that firms engaged in the business of roasting coffee for market commonly deprive the beans of their volatile flavoring essence and sell the latter separately. An honest coffee roaster returns this essence to the beans. Much of it passes off during the ordinary cooking process, and thus it happens that at times the streets in the neighborhood of a grocery store are fragrant with the odor of coffee. It is agreeable to the nostrils, but very wasteful. A properly constructed roasting machine saves and condenses the precious vapor.

There was once a firm of bakers in London that hit upon a very novel expedient. The process of breadmaking depends upon a fermentation which develops alcohol. This alcohol passes off in vapor from the ovens under ordinary circumstances. The concern in question devised a method by which it could be saved, the vapor being passed into a condenser. Unfortunately, rival bakers took a notion to advertise as widely as possible that their bread was sold "with all the gin in it." As a result the enterprising establishment lost its trade and was ruined. To assist the process of fermentation methods have been contrived for partly baking bread in vacuo. Bakers, by the way, use great quantities of egg meats dried in vacuum pans. The eggs are broken into the pans, the whites and yolks being separated. They are then evaporated to absolute dryness, after which they are scraped from the pans and granulated by grinding. The product looks very much like sawdust: it is comparatively cheap and will keep good for many months, taking the place of fresh eggs when the latter are scarce and dear. It is prepared on a considerable scale in St. Louis. A similar process is employed in the manufacture of so-called "egg albumen," which is said to be composed largely of the whites of the eggs of wild fowl. It looks like a fine quality of glue, and costs 55 cents a pound, being used by bakers and for glazing prints.

Several processes have been patented for preserving eggs in their shells by means of the vacuum. One method is to place them in a chamber, which is then exhausted of air. The air, containing the germ of decomposition, is thus drawn out of the eggs, and carbolic acid is forced into the receiver to take the place of it. The eggs are taken out and covered with a varnish to prevent the air getting into them again. A variation of this idea is to introduce into the receiver melted paraffine, which fills the pores of the shells.

By far the most useful application of the vacuum has been for the preservation of wood. Scores of patents in this line have been granted. So far back as the year 1837 August Gotthilff, of New York, secured exclusive rights in a process for "protecting timber from destruction by worms, dry rot, and other causes of spontaneous decay." His idea was to exhaust the air from the wood and fill up the pores with coal tar and turpentine. In this direction a great industry has since grown up. At Wilmington, N. C., piles and railway timbers for the entire South are impregnated with preservative substances. Railway ties are commonly treated in this manner, while metallic solutions are employed to defend bridges against the depredations of the devouring shipworm or teredo.

Wood is artificially colored by using the vacuum to withdraw its fluid juices, the place of which is filled with solutions containing pigments. In this manner ordinary pine may be beautifully stained and made to serve as a substitute for rare and costly wood. Lumber is seasoned offhand by exhausting the air from it, and, then forcing dry air through the pores to carry off the moisture. Wood is hardened for all sorts of purposes, from bridge making to wagon making, by a process called "vulcanizing." Rubber, of course, is vulcanized by treating it with sulphur, being thus transformed from a substance soft and flexible to one that is hard and brittle. This idea was long ago applied to wood by saturating the latter with a solution of rubber and then applying the sulphur. Nowadays the rubber is not used, the wood being subjected to the action of hot air under pressure in a closed chamber. The pressure prevents the escape of the sap and gums, while the heat has a hardening effect. This is what is now termed vulcanizing.

The records in the patent office would seem to show that people in these days are almost as much interested in preserving corpses as were the ancient Egyptians. Inventions in this line are multitudinous. One of them describes a coffin of glass, which is to be exhausted of air, a gas that is destructive of all animal life being substituted. For this purpose sulphur dioxide or carbonic acid gas will serve. A method of embalming consists in withdrawing the fluid contents of the body by means of an air pump as a preliminary to forcing antiseptics into the arteries and cavities. An ingenious Yankee has devised a scheme that is calculated to be a consolation to surviving relatives. The ashes of the cremated defunct are to be reverently collected and compressed into a suitable memorial likeness, bust, or statuette, at once ornamental and sacred. The patentee suggests an air pump shall be employed to facilitate the drying of the ashes.

There are numerous patents for preserving foods with the aid of the vacuum. One idea is to extract the air contained in the meat, fish and fruit, which are to be impregnated thereupon with a solution of gelatine, sugar and gum, so as to give it a coating on the outside. Thus it will keep for an indefinite period. A young woman of Philadelphia, Isabel M. Mitchell, proposes that food of all sorts shall be kept good by means of ozone gas. Her machine manufactures the ozone, which is permitted to fill the exhaust chamber after the air has been withdrawn. She says that articles thus treated may be subsequently exposed to the atmosphere without risk of decay.

Vacuum processes are today largely and successfully employed in the salting and pickling of meats and vegetables. They are shut up in chambers from which the air is withdrawn, and brine then forced in under pressure. The meat is sometimes stuck full of tubular perforated skewers, to permit the gases to escape and to admit the brine to all parts of the substance treated. Another method adopted is to withdraw the brine with the air pump and force smoke into the meat, which is thus smoked as well as salted. On this idea there is an improvement, which consists in utilizing a smoked brine. This is prepared by withdrawing the air from a tank containing the brine and forcing the smoke into it under pressure. Then the smoked brine is applied to the meat.

Methods are used on a considerable commercial scale for preserving meats and vegetables by withdrawing the air from them and substituting various gases, such as oxygen, nitrogen, hydrogen, carbonic acid gas, and even illuminating gas. Argon has not been suggested for the purpose as yet, but before long it will be, doubtless in 1855 Henry Hunt took out the first patent for employing the vacuum in canning food products, such as would suffer injury from heating. His idea was to exhaust the air from the cans in order that no germs of putrefaction might remain. A singular adaptation of the same notion is credited to Nat Raymer, of New Sterling, N. C., who has invented a fruit jar stopper with a short metal tube attached to it. The housewife, when she has closed a filled jar of fruit with such a stopper, has only to suck the tube and pinch it with pliers, fusing the end with redhot iron, to make it air tight.

Eggs are canned by the vacuum process, being heated somewhat to preserve them, but the temperature to which they are raised cannot be high, for the white hardens at 140 degrees. Oysters are put in cans with salt and carbonic acid gas, the air being withdrawn by a pump. Milk is condensed by a vacuum process, because it would be spoiled by raising it to 212 degrees. The same idea applies to sugar, which is refined in vacuum pans. Thus the molasses is evaporated to crystallization much below 212 degrees. Boiling would invert it, as the chemists say, making it like glucose. Glucose, by the way, is distinguished as the non-crystallizable sugar, but recently a process has been found by which it is crystallized, resembling brown sugar. Butchers and meat packers still adhere to the old-time methods of slaughtering cattle, though John Gamgee has patented a much better plan. He proposes that the animals shall be caused to inhale carbonic acid gas, after which they may be killed and dressed in the usual way. The flesh of beasts thus treated, it is alleged, retains its fresh appearance longer than meat that is killed in the ordinary way. Another inventor has a process for hardening artificial stone by exhausting the material of the latter of air before impregnating the sand and silicate of soda with a solution of lime. Yet another genius has originated a plan for preventing barrels from leaking. He exhausts the air from the staves and fills the pores with melted paraffine thus making the wood impervious to fluids. The variety of purposes to which the vacuum is applied is well-nigh endless. It is used to make candied lemon peel, to disinfect baled rags, in the preparation of dried potatoes, in making pickles, for bottling beer, for cleansing fabrics, and for rendering explosives safe against spontaneous combustion.

A DUSKY RECRUIT.

Experience of a Colored Salvation Army Lass.

She was a new recruit in the Salvation Army. A little dark complected, as she herself said, but worth more than lots of the white trash floating around, and as full of zeal and holy fire as if she had been a major general for years, says the Portland Telegram.

She arose last night in barracks to give her experience. The soldiers were on tiptoe with expectation. They did not know how the lady would acquit herself before the big and exceedingly mixed audience which packed the hall. But they were not long left in doubt. The new soldier talked like a veteran.

"O my breddern and my sistern," she said, "I praise de Lord dat at last I am walkin' in de holy ways of peace. I'se tried odder ways, but dey did not lead my soul to happiness. (Loud applause on the tambourine.) I tried de Baptis' fust, but dey had done got their religion too much diluted. I done try de Mefodis' an' for a time, honeys, dey was consolin' to my soul. But dey snuggle up so close to de throne of grace dat dey couldn't see de poor and lowly what was knockin' outside for to be let in. I try de Piscopls', but dey was too sassalety for a poor lorn nigger. But one night, dear frens, de spirit walked me into this blessed place an' I foun' rest to my ebberlastin' soul.

"I lub you all. I lub cherry precious soul in this room. I lub—"

Just then the eye of the new soldier caught sight of some young fellows laughing in the back of the room.

Her eyes blazed with righteous wrath.

"See here, young men," she said, extending a long and bony finger, "you I mean, you in the third row from the back. What yo' mean, I like to know, laughin' in this holy place? Eh? What yo' mean, I say? Yo' better be in better business, young man, than pokin' fun at a poor old colored woman who's prayin' fur ye night and day. I want yo' to understand dat if my skin is black my soul is whiter than yours. Come up to mersy seat, young man, an' flap down on your knees befo' it is too late. But don't yo' go pokin' fun at me or I'll make yo' wish yo' was dead."

The older soldiers declare that there is grand material in this recruit.

DESOLATE

Vancouver Island Is Very Much Lacking in Marriageable Women.

Thirty Thousand Women Can Find Homes and Husbands There.

Bachelor Miseries Are Much in Evidence---Sale of Wives.

There is a city in the western part of Canada, close to the Pacific ocean, which is named by all who visit it the most desolate spot upon the face of the earth, says the San Francisco Examiner. Its climate is good, its natural resources excellent, its houses fair, its streets well paved, yet within this town there is an air of forlorn dejection that strikes the most careless traveler that comes within its boundary.

It is on Vancouver Island, a sweet, fair spot. And the desolation is caused by one thing—one only. The lack of women and girls.

This particular town is scarcer of the product than any of its locality. There are many towns upon the island, but this one lacks women so sadly that in a recent census of the place it was found nearly 30,000 short. This number includes a count of serving women, women to do the work of the house, cook, wash and iron. It also includes working girls and women who are not expected to marry. And, of course, it took in the queens of the city, the fair matrons of the homes and the mistresses of the pretty establishments.

Today the doorsteps of these houses yawn vacantly and the vines fluttering over the portals seem to say: "She cometh not yet."

It is not to be expected that such a condition of affairs could exist; without becoming known. The thrifty long-shoremen of the place and the woodmen, the miners and the merchants have written East about it, and a few days ago the mayor of the place was surprised and delighted to receive a letter containing a suggestion. It was that, as women were too numerous in the East to find the homes they desired, that he, the mayor, should devote a part of the funds of the town to sending East for a carload of marriageable young women to come out and settle in the vacant homes.

The letter suggested that as the young women were not in affluent circumstances, most of them living with married sisters or supporting themselves, it might be a good thing to provide each with a small "dowry" with which to equip herself to come out to the frontier coast and marry one of the needy men.

The letter so impressed the mayor of the place that he laid it before a committee of men and women, for there are a few women there, and they decided that nothing could be better. Their fertile brains hit upon the expedient of fitting up a hotel or "home" for all the new arrivals, and they suggested a reception committee of women and men to meet them. "When they get off the train," said the chairman of the committee, "we will approach them, shake hands with them and make them feel at home at once, and as well as women being there to say 'How do you do,'"

The scheme at last reports was being carried out and a hundred little grip-sacks in the East were being filled with the small belongings of femininity, the same that were to transform that corner of Vancouver from the most desolate place upon the earth into a paradise for men.

In other countries, especially those of Europe, women are so much more plentiful than men that certain inducements are held out to men to marry. These people can hardly believe that there is an El Dorado for woman, where a woman needs only a wedding gown and a bouquet to be the possession of by a delighted and worthy man.

In these European countries the men have been thinned out by emigration. They have gone out to Australia, have gone upon the high seas, have come here. But the women have stayed at home. Hence the dower question became important, and grows more and more so every year. In France the poorest girl must have her dot, and if her parents cannot give it to her she must work until she gets it. Here a girl, if she be poor, works only to give herself a trousseau, and is very fortunate if she comes to her husband with a $5 bill in her purse. Women of America do not know how like queens they are compared to those of other countries.

There are places upon the frontier of the United States, villages bordering upon recently opened places, territories, and upon the limits of cultivation, where a woman is worth her weight in gold and a great deal more. There is a genuine bartering of women constantly taking place.

Let a woman from the city go there and the "courtship" begins immediately, and great rivalry there is for her hand. The men have gold ore to offer, they own "claims," they have partly worked farms, and they want a good home to live in. They will hire Chinamen or half-breeds, anything to do the hard work, if only a good-looking woman will light the parlor lamp at night and sit in the window and wait for them to come home.

The "price" for a pretty woman of good education and family in a newly constructed town is great enough to establish a man in business in the city and introduce him to society. The agent of a matrimonial bureau in Chicago, who, as much out of curiosity as for business, kept himself in touch with frontier needs, received a letter from a wealthy miner of a certain desolate territory. "I need a wife," wrote the miner, "and if you can persuade a good-looking woman to come out here and take a look at me I can gamble she will have me. I won't show her my own bronzed mug, but I'll let her get a squint at the ore. If she'll name her figure she can have it. Mines put in her name the day she becomes Mrs. Hawkins."

The "price" of a woman—for with such quick matrimonial arrangements "true love" goes to the wall and poor Cupid goes home out of an occupation—depends upon the woman and the location. In thriving villages, where every man owns his own farm, a pretty girl wants a good house "clear," a big acreage of land and a good-looking man. The live stock is also taken into account by her. Homelier girls get less. And so all the way down to the woman who is angular and sour, and who must be contented with a farmhand and lots of hard work. This is the way things are managed in the woman's El Doradoes, where every woman can have a husband "as quick as 'wink,'" and where every man is waiting for a girl to come along.

In the most desolate spot on earth, where a delegation of women is expected to arrive almost any day, the matrons of the town are determined that there shall be romance in their city and enough courting to make matters spicy gossip. The married men are likewise inclined to this arrangement, as part of the cost of transportation comes out of their pockets as taxpayers.

The matrons propose to open the amusement halls every night and give sociables, fairs and tea drinkings. They have planned an amateur dramatic company, and as for dances, each is to have a dancing class under her own chaperonage. The girls upon the day of their arrival are to be given a reception, and all will become acquainted speedily.

The greatest bargain sale of wives ever known took place upon a recently opened domain a few years ago. A frantic call was sent to the cities for 100 women. And poor girls, out of fun and curiosity and willingness to have a home, went out there. The men met them at the station. The girls looked them over slowly. By evening all the girls had found boarding places in the wooden shanties of the "town." And by Sunday the parson was kept busy tying the nuptial knots. The prettiest girls and the richest ones got the wealthiest men. A girl with $50 was an heiress and a man with $100 a prince. The plain girls took up with poor fellows with hopes and chances. It was a quick, natural selection.

One very handsome fellow, with blonde curls, got a very pretty girl, though neither had a cent. It was a case of beauty. The rude courtship was carried on in the three evenings between the time the girls arrived and Sunday, and within a week there were nearly 100 small wooden houses going up in the town.

There is no name for this peculiar state of society where women are wanted to make homes and where money is laid down for them and paid to them to queen it over a home. A glaring headline in an English paper once called it "The Barter of Women in America." But among those who see the satisfactory after-workings it is merely the good-natured consent of the girls to adjust themselves to their country, which is yet new enough not to be as evenly distributed as it will be when the twenty-first century man and woman come in.

IMPULSIVE PEOPLE.

Who Are Sometimes Thought to Be Insane.

Quite apart from the number of persons whose erratic and impulsive actions end in their being consigned to the seclusion of an insane asylum, there are numbers of ordinary people who suffer at times from a form of mania that is both peculiar and distressing, says the New York Mercury. Many, for instance, have a strange feeling come over them when standing on the platform of a railway station. Two ladies, known to the writer, have often been heard to remark that, on the approach of a train, an almost irresistible impulse came over them to throw themselves in front of it. Others again, when looking over a precipice or standing on a tower or other high place, have a strong inclination to cast themselves headlong down, and they say that, sooner or later, the impulse to jump would be too powerful to overcome. But what is very peculiar and often a very expensive impulse to yield to is that of which a certain New York lady, whenever she sees anyone carrying a basket or similar article upon their heads, can not refrain walking up to the unsuspecting one and knocking this off. This may sound grotesque and impossible, but, nevertheless, it is perfectly true.

Since this strange freak has taken possession of her she has knocked baskets of crockery ware, vegetables, meat platter of paris ornaments and a host of other things from the heads of people in the streets. Not so very long ago she met a boy who was walking on the opposite side of the road carrying a basket of eggs upon his head. She deliberately crossed over, gave way to her unhappy impulse, and treated some astonished onlookers to the sight of a dollar's worth of eggs rolling on the pavement. Then, her impulse being gratified, she walked with the frightened boy to his master and, smiling, paid for the damage, which, as a matter of fact, she willingly does every time she indulges her peculiar freak.

However, her husband now, as often as possible, escorts her through the streets—for he has found the strange hobby of his wife's somewhat expensive to encourage, and the moment he espies a person with a basket upon his head he darts off in the opposite direction, dragging his wife with him.

Another strange freak to give way to is that which affects a New York man. This gentleman can never pass a dead pig or fowl or piece of meat hanging outside a butcher's shop without giving the inoffensive fowl or pig a smart cut with his stick or a slap with his open hand. Many are the amusing scenes he says he has with butchers and others whose meat he thus assails. Although for years he has tried to resist the temptation, he does not remember one instance in which he was successful.

WHY SHE REFUSED.

Chicago Post: She paced excitedly to and fro.

Just why she paced instead of trotting or galloping is a matter that is difficult to understand, but it is not unusual for women to pace in novels.

"It's too bad, too bad," she said.

Then she continued pacing.

"Such a combination of circumstances," she declared a moment later, "is enough to drive one crazy."

"What's the matter?" asked her dearest friend.

"I received a proposal of marriage from Mr. Goodfellow this morning," she explained, wringing her hand at the thought that there was no ring to be wrung with them, "and he sent it by telegraph."

"By telegraph!"

"Yes. He was suddenly called away, and he couldn't wait until he came back for my answer, so he telegraphed."

"Rather awkward," suggested the dearest friend.

"Worse than that," she answered. "I might have forgiven the awkwardness, but he wanted me to telegraph my answer."

"Oh, dear. I never would have the courage to take such a message into a telegraph office and watch the clerk count the words."

"Well, I didn't like it, but I might have overlooked that."

"What was the trouble, then?"

"Why, try as hard as I might, I couldn't put an acceptance into exactly ten words. Eight was the nearest I could get to it, and it was hard work to make it eight."

"Well, what did you do?"

"Oh, there was only one thing for me to do, so far as I could see. I found I could put a refusal into exactly ten, and I either had to do that or let the company beat me out of two words. If he doesn't get angry and marry someone else before he gets my letter explaining matters it will be all right, but, if he does—"

She wrung her hands again and continued to pace.

COSTLY

Immense Number of Things Required to Fit Out an Ocean Steamship.

Many Kinds of Supplies For the Different Classes of Passengers.

Meat By the Ton and Other Eatables or Drinkables in Proportion.

Not only are the American line steamships St. Paul and St. Louis the only transatlantic passenger-carrying vessels of the first grade built in this country for a score or more of years, but they are the only ones in that traffic fitted out here, says the New York Sun. It is one thing to build a monster steamship, and it is another thing to supply and arrange its furnishings. Every fitting needed in navigation goes with the building of the ship, and is a part of the general contract. After the ship is finished and ready to sail away, so far as the contractors are concerned, another problem arises. It is the same problem that confronts a man when he builds a new house. How shall we furnish it?

The task of fitting out a vessel like the St. Louis or St. Paul is simply enormous. No less than 100,000 articles must be purchased and put in place. It takes months of study in prices, and texture of wares. Elaborate schedules of the articles needed for each department of the ship are prepared, and then a lo: of shopping and correspondence follow. Like the furnishing of a house or a hotel, there are two ways of going about it. One is to set aside a certain sum and strike a certain average of quality and quantity of articles purchased, so as to bring the cost of the fittings within the sum set aside. The other is to decide what is needed and of what quality, and to purchase the supplies as reasonably as possible. It is this plan practically which must be adopted by a steamship company. For not only must the fittings be suited in quality and quantity to the size and character of the vessel, but they must be as good as the fittings of any other vessel of a corresponding size afloat, and if possible better.

Of courses it could not be expected that the management of the American line should reveal what it costs to fit out such a vessel as the St. Louis or St. Paul. Persons familiar with the prices of household articles of various kinds might figure approximately what the cost would be in this or that department, but no one outside the inner circle of the management knows or can even approximate the cost of fitting out the entire ship. Practically all the fittings were purchased in this country. There were four exceptions, however, that could be purchased to better advantage in England than here. As might be expected, one of these was linen. The others were blankets, cotton coverlets and glassware. The cost of these, although a large item of themselves, was comparatively a small matter when the cost of fitting out the entire ship is considered.

Here are some of the articles and the quantity required in a general way for such a ship as one of the new American liners. For the first cabin alone there must be 3000 spoons, 2000 forks, 1000 napkin rings, 3000 knives, 500 finger bowls, 300 salt cellars, 2000 tumblers, 1000 cups and 1000 saucers, 6000 plates of various kinds, 12,000 napkins. In the outfit of the staterooms there will be required at least 2000 blankets, 1000 counterpanes, 500 mattresses, 800 pillows, 7000 sheets, 1000 bath towels, 10,000 other towels. It will surprise many to know that about 35,000 yards of carpet are necessary to fit out the ship. When one considers that the second cabin requires from one-half to two-thirds as many articles as the first cabin, and that in these days there is very little difference in the quality of the articles used in the two cabins, one can see the addition there must be to cost and quantity in the furnishing of the second cabin. There are certain required supplies for the steerage, but in quantity and quality they are a small matter compared with the other fittings of the ship.

But the supplies do not stop with the cabins. The kitchen and pantry supplies and fittings are more elaborate than any hotel requires. The list of implements required in these departments contains hundreds of items. Every variety of cooking utensil is supplied. Every kind of household article of known utility is purchased. In addition to all these, every ship contains two kinds of supplies that no hotel ever has. One of these kinds is the outfit for a hospital, and the other is the outfit for an apothecary shop. The list of surgical instruments alone occupies several pages of the outfitting schedule of a ship. The same is true as regards the apothecary outfit. Besides all these, the butcher shop outfit and that of the baking department is more complete than that of a great hotel. There are no butchers' or bakers' shops at sea where supplies may be replenished in an hour or two, and in consequence the fittings of these departments are most elaborate.

A ship like one of the new liners frequently carries 1500 persons across the ocean. There is probably no hotel in the world that frequently has any such number of guests for a week at a time. It must be remembered, also, that these guests are of three classes, the first and second cabins and the steerage. This brings problems that no hotel is called upon to meet, not only in supplying food, but in supplying the furnishings. Almost every article that can be imagined to be of use in a hotel or private house is included in the list of supplies. The list ranges from beer mallets to pianos, from cheese scoops to "paste juggers," from dishwashing machines to dice boxes, from dark lanterns to costly stationery, from a printing press to a fireproof safe.

The supplies for the physical comfort and necessities of 1500 persons on a ship may be measured by the ton. Fifteen tons of beef, for instance, are often used on one voyage.

The supplies consist of two general kinds, those for the ship itself and those for the passengers and crew. The chief supplies for the ship are coal and water. About 3000 tons of coal are put on board for every voyage, and about 150 tons of water for cooking and drinking purposes. In addition to this amount of water, about fifty tons are made a day on board by the evaporators from sea water. This water is largely used for cleaning purposes. The water for cooking and drinking is taken from the ordinary water supply of New York city. There are hundreds of items for the engine room and the other departments of the ship that require replenishing from voyage to voyage.

Few persons realize the variety of the food supplies required. For example, no less than fifteen kinds of cheese are used. Fish in fully 100 grades and forms is stowed away. In the list of fruits, dried, fresh and canned, there are at least 125 varieties. The same is true of vegetables. So far as possible, the supplies for the American line boats are purchased in this country, and each ship is stocked for an eastern and also a western bound voyage at one time. Each ship carries a meat supply for its outward and homeward trip. A fresh supply of fish, of course, is purchased in each port, but it will be news to most persons that all the ice cream required for a round trip is put on board the ships in New York. The English do not make what we know as ice cream. All the flour used on shipboard is purchased here. Sometimes potatoes are purchased on the other side, and, of course, the celebrated English mutton can be purchased to best advantage over there. To give a list of supplies required would be to repeat the items of an inventory of a retail grocery store and every article of food kept in a wholesale fish or meat depot. The wine list includes every article that is in general demand and many that are called for on shore only occasionally. The lists of supplies needed must be gone over minutely and everything required must be delivered promptly. It will not do to overlook a single article. There is no way of telephoning at sea to your wholesale grocer or meat dealer to send a supply of some important article overlooked when the other supplies were ordered.

Fresh fruits far in advance of the season are always purchased. A Sun reporter crossed on the St. Louis early last summer, long before apples were ripe in this country. On the voyage he noticed that apples of an unusually fine quality and flavor were served at dinner. He asked the table steward where they came from. To the general surprise of all those at the table it was learned that they came from Tasmania. They had been brought to England and from there had been carried to New York for use on the return trip to England. Not the least astonishing part of the matter was the general ignorance among the passengers at that particular table as to where Tasmania was. Most of the passengers thought it was somewhere in the eastern end of the Mediterranean. Others were willing to place it somewhere off Arabia. Still others thought it was somewhere on the Malayan peninsula. An English barrister, who had traveled once or twice around the world on legal business, came to the rescue and asked if any one knew where old Van Dieman's Land was. At once half a dozen remembered that that was Tasmania, and were then puzzled that those apples had been brought from below Australia to cater to the tastes of early summer travelers from New York to England.

Here is part of what is required in the way of supplies when a ship like the St. Louis is crowded: 25,000 to 30,000 pounds of beef, 5000 pounds of mutton, 2000 pounds of veal, pork and corned beef, 8000 pounds of sausage, tripe, liver, calves' head, calves' feet, sweetbreads and kidneys; 2000 pounds of fresh fish, 10,000 clams and oysters, 250 tins of preserved fruit, 200 tins of jam and marmalade, 100 large bottles of pickles and sauces, 500 pounds of coffee, 250 pounds of tea, 250 pounds of potted fish, 300 fresh lobsters, 3000 pounds of moist sugar, 600 pounds of lump sugar, 500 quarts of ice cream, 3000 pounds of butter of various grades, 16 tons of potatoes, 5 tons of other vegetables, 15,000 eggs, 1000 chickens and ducks and 2000 birds of different kinds. Lard by the ton is used, and frequently as many as 140 barrels of flour are consumed.

Several years ago there was published the record of the amount of food consumed on the entire Cunard fleet for one year. The record is probably as large, but not much larger, at the present time. In one year it was shown that the passengers on the Cunard boats consumed these items of food: 4656 sheep, 1800 lambs, 2474 oxen, the total being equivalent to more than 2,000,000 pounds of fresh meat. There were also used 52 tons of ham, 20 tons of bacon, 25,000 chickens, 4500 ducks, 2000 turkeys and 2000 geese. The number of eggs used in one year on the fleet was nearly 850,000. The supply of tea amounted to 25,000 pounds. The amount of coffee used was nearly 72,000 pounds. The pounds of sugar consumed reached nearly 300,000. In the matter of spices the figures reached 30,000 pounds of mustard and 35,000 pounds of pepper. There were also used more than 7000 bottles of pickles, 8000 tins of sardines, 30,000 tons of salt fish, 4000 jars of jam and 15,000 tons of marmalade. The consumption of raisins, currants and figs amounted to about 22 tons. In the consumption of pearl barley 15 tons were used, and other figures follow: Split peas, 18 tons; rice, 17 tons; oatmeal, 34 tons; flour, 460 tons; salt, 33 tons. There were also used nearly 50,000 loaves of bread, 15 tons of cheese and 930 tons of potatoes. The consumption of wines and other liquors aggregated: Champagne, 16,000 quarts; claret, 16,000 quarts; other wines 9000 quarts; mineral waters, 175,000 quarts; ale and porter, 240,000 quarts. Nearly 35,000 pounds of tobacco were used and 64,000 cigars were sold to passengers.

The fleet record of the large German lines, of course, would greatly surpass that made by the Cunard line in one year. No one has yet computed the amount of food and drink consumed in the entire passenger-carrying ocean traffic of the world.

CONSCIENCE MONEY.

A merchant in Bradford, Me., a few days ago received a letter enclosing $1 and a sheet of paper, on which the word "Conscience" was written, says the Troy Times. This calls to mind a nold story of a thief who broke into a store in Skowhegan several years ago, and secured a good sum of money from the cash drawer. A few months afterward the merchant received a letter in which was a $10 bill and the following note: "I stole $78 from your money drawer. Remorse gnaws at my conscience. When remorse gnaws again I will send you some more."

The announcement is made that George Bliss has resigned the management of the Spalding. Frank L. Taylor, manager of the Euclid in Superior, will succeed him and the change will go into effect on June 15. Mr. Bliss has been manager of the Spalding for several months and has made a fine record in that capacity and conducted the hotel in a manner that has placed it in the front rank among those of the Northwest. Mr. Taylor has managed the Euclid for more than six years and is a hotel man. If the Spalding is as well conducted under his management as it has been under Mr. Bliss—and it undoubtedly will be—the traveling public can ask for no more.

E. A. Shores, Jr., secretary and treasury for the E. A. Shores Lumber company, is in the city today. He consulted with several parties in reference to the rebuilding of the company's mill at Duluth. A site can be secured without doubt, the company would hardly consider this as sufficient inducement because it already has a very fine site with improvements such as docks, foundations, etc., at Ashland.

Mr. Shores said today that the company cannot afford to make any change and be put to expense to do it. Its payroll is about $30,000 monthly and in the winter several hundred men are employed in the woods. Five boats are owned and it would be worth $2000 a month or more to have them come here.

The company will not make a decision for some time to come. The people of Ashland are making a strong effort to hold the plant.

MEMORIAL

Old Veterans Strew the Graves of Dead Comrades With Flowers.

Exercises at the High School Assembly Hall This Afternoon.

Speeches By W. B. Phelps and Dr. Humason—Mr. Gearhart's Suggestion.

No fairer Memorial day ever dawned on Duluth than this. Typical of the years of stress and strife of the war in which the heroes honored today were ennobled, and the following balmy period of peace, were the sunshiny day and the dark, gloomy days that for weeks preceded it. Just a bit slower than in the years before were the steps of those of the Grand Army, and a bit more scanty the locks on the heads that were bowed at the resting places of their comrades in arms today, but who shall say that the Grand Army will ever grow old in the hearts of the nation. Immortality is theirs.

The program in the morning, as heretofore outlined, was followed. There was no parade—no glitter of arms and crash of martial music. In reverential quiet, as befitted the occasion, the members of the Grand Army and the noble women, who, too, fought great battles that the Union might be saved, gathered about the graves to deck them with flowers. The Grand Army posts and auxiliary organizations gathered at their quarters at 9:30 o'clock in the forenoon, from which they proceeded to cars in waiting at Second avenue east and Second street, to convey them to the cemetery, where the services in memory of the dead were performed, according to th Grand Army ritual.

AFTERNOON PROGRAM.

In the afternoon memorial services were held in assembly hall, at the High School, at which a large concourse was present. The exercises consisted of an address of welcome by Comrade N. A. Gearhart, who presided as chairman of the occasion, addresses by Rev. G. W. Humason and W. B. Phelps, vocal selections by the High School chorus, under the leadership of Professor Custance, and music by the American band. Chairman Gearhart's address was as follows:

"I welcome you, and it gives me pleasure to welcome you in such large numbers, to these exercises. It is not my purpose to occupy time which has been apportioned to others, but I want to leave with you this one thought: I know I express the sentiments of my own heart, and I believe I voice the sentiments of the Grand Army of the Republic, when I say that we hope the time may soon come when the citizens of our city, and all over the land, may feel it their privilege and their duty to take upon themselves the arrangements for a proper observance of this day. Those whose memory we honor today left their home comforts, imperilled their health, and, in many instances, gave their lives to preserve this nation. We who survive them had some little part in making it possible that the old flag may float over an undivided nation, and it seems to us particularly appropriate that the citizens should not only meet, but that they should have charge of all the arrangements for the observance of this—to us—holy day. Soon those of us who remain of that once glorious army will have passed to thebeyond, and if Memorial day is to be perpetuated, the citizens, sooner or later, must take this loving burden from the old soldiers. Think of this, friends, and as another year rolls round, some of you take the initiative—call a meeting of the citizens appoint committees and make the necessary arrangements for the observance of the day, and I assure you the 'old soldiers' will be glad to be your guests."

MR. PHELPS' ADDRESS.

At the close of his remarks, the chairman introduced W. B. Phelps, who addressed the assemblage, recounting briefly the history of the war, and pointing to the benefits in the way of modifications of the fundamental law that rendered it impossible that slavery should again find root in our soil.

Mr. Phelps opened his address by saying that there was a time to rejoice and a time to lament. "In another month we will celebrate the nation's birthdead. The poet has said, 'Sweet yet mournful to the soul is the memory of other days.' Few, but share these memories, but private griefs are not to be intruded in the presence of the public sorrow. The last summons comes to the veteran as well as to tender youth and with bowed heads the last act in the tragedy is awaited. The race of man is like the leaves of the wood, passing away in the rustling blast to give way to others. It is fitting that at least one day in each year should be consecrated to the memory of the dead. Each recurring season finds in the columns a lesser number of those who responded to the call of their country. In a few years the silvered locks of the little band of veterans will rest beneath the sward, which is nature's decoration.

"Sweeping back the mists of the year with the wings of memory, there is to be beheld a fruitful land torn by dissensions, resulting from conflicting views of state rights and African slavery. In 1861, there was heralded the news that upon American soil, by American citizens, the American flag had been fired upon. The people awoke to the fact that this had long been premeditated, and that, in anticipation, a traitorous secretary of war had so disposed of the army and munitions of war as to weaken the nation. The men of 1861 were called upon to save the country in the face of the disadvantages of a lack of preparation, and the necessity of carrying on an aggressive warfare amid a hostile population. For them, however, no price was too great to pay, and flying to arms, they poured over the borders of the Southern confederacy. There ensued one of the bloodiest wars of history, in which men of the same tongue, the same traditions and brothers in interests lifted their hands against each other. In the shock of the onset, the foreign born citizen and the descendent of generations of Americans stood shoulder to shoulder. The army of the North, composed of men imbued with the patriotism and courage that are born under free institutions, was one of the mightiest engines of destruction the world had seen. Undismayed by defeat, superior to hunger and fatigue, it fell back, but to charge again, its ranks decimated, but to be refilled with recruits. Campaign followed campaign, and the lines of the confederacy were steadily forced back and contracted. Step by step, at Vicksburg, Atlanta, Gettysburg, and, finally, Richmond, was the South dismembered, and again subdivided, paralyzed, annihilated. Under the sledge hammer blows of Grant, the confederacy was given no repose, no chance to recuperate.

"But bloodshed did not end with the dawn of peace. 'Men do not gather grapes of thorns or figs of thistles!' Toward the close of the war, a conflict between the white and colored races in the South loomed like a specter across the sky. And at this juncture was slain one who, more than all others, appreciated and was fit to cope with the danger that threatened. He whose noble kindly heart, patient soul, firm will and clear intellect had made possible the triumph of Northern arms. As a martyr, at the hands of an assassin, he died, and in his death the people of the South lost their brightest hope and the nation its brightest star. In the nature of man there is an inheritance of savagery, varying in degree according to the interval separating him from uncivilized ancestors. Opportunity for crime has ever been a potent cause of its increase. Such an opportunity is afforded by war. The material effects of war might be overcome, but the moral effect was disastrous and enduring. Yet this war required no apology. It was justified by its fruits. Those of the South who laid down their arms have lived to thank God that they failed. With the stain of slavery erased, our country now stands respected by the nations, and flushed with the rosy glow of hope. By amendment of the fundamental law, the enfranchised slaves were assured of freedom, and the nation insured against committing the sin that brought upon it an awful visitation of civil strife.

"With the curse of slavery removed, the South entered upon an unprecedented era of prosperity, and today the 'New South' promises to equal, if not surpass the North and West in the attributes of a free and prosperous land. The animosity between the two races in the South is passing away, and they will soon be united in common interests and the love of a common flag, as are already those veterans who, thirty years ago, contended on the battlefield. At no time more than the present has the doctrine of the brotherhood of man been recognized. It is founded upon the teachings of the Savior, and embraces patriotism. Patriotism does not include merely affection for the territory of the United States, nor regard for its institutions farther than beneficial to the people. The patriotism inculcated was love for its domain, its laws, its people. The ranks of those who have gone before are annually recruited, and soon again the Grand Army will be reunited. By respect for the dead heroes and care for the maimed and helpless survivors, we demonstrate our fitness to enjoy the blessings of peace."

DR. HUMASON'S SPEECH.

Dr. Humason was next presented. He summarized the effects for righteousness and prosperity of the war, and concluded with an appeal that the veterans, whose sacrifices had borne such fruit, be not forgotten.

"No one foresaw the mighty proportions the war would assume," said Dr. Humason in his address. "when in 1861, Sumter heard the roar of hostile cannon and the sleeping North rubbed its eyes. Lincoln, the forseeing statesman, only called for three months' men, and in that time, it was fondly hoped that the war would terminate. The South did not know the strength and courage of the North, nor the North the temper of the South. Only after four bloody years, in which there were more than 2,000 battles and skirmishes, did God permit the sun of Appomattox to burst upon the darkness. In the years of conflict, there was the most desperate fighting by the most gigantic armies known in war's annals. God permitted it that, by the mighty display of resources and endurance in the saving of the Union from destruction within, that then was also earned a prestige that protects the nation from attacks without. The strength of a nation is in its men. Not by standing armies is the Union upheld, but by American ingenuity and power of mobilization.

"With, comparatively speaking, no standing army, our munitions disposed in Southern arsenals by traitors and our navy scattered to the fore quarters of the globe, it was believed that the Northern mudsills, engrossed in commerce and pursuit of wealth, would make no fight. But at the insult to the flag, more than 2,000,000 men rushed to the field and the world discovered the North loved the Union better than money or peace. With traitors in the North as well as in the South, stripped of arms like Saul's army, foreign powers threatening us, and with a ruined credit, what darkness came upon us after the first Bull's Run. What was to be done? Let the South go and dissolve the Union? The sainted Lincoln and the volunteer soldier heard the cry and answered in the words of the poet:

"'Dissolve the Union? Speak ye hills,
Ye everlasting mountains, cry!
Shriek out ye streams and running rills,
And ocean groan in agony.
Dead heroes leap from glory's sod,
And guard the manor of our God!'

"The call stirred the blood inherited from revolutionary sires. Our heroes gave not only their gold, but their lives. When treason struck at Columbia, the earth rocked under the tread of those who marched to her defense. In the Union ranks was gathered the best blood of America. The rank and file was made up of men who served not for money, glory and ambition. Following the example of noble sires they sacrificed all for their country. From the pulpit, the counting house, the stage, and all the pursuits of peace, they flocked to the standards; rich and poor, educated and uneducated, they shouldered the musket and formed in line of battle for the common defense. Thanks to the silent soldiers and their living comrades, the stars and stripes now mean something. We are now united, a prosperous and powerful people, our flag loved at home and respected abroad. The waving of the bloody shirt is not to be encouraged. Hatred and strife should be buried. Yet, while it should be conceded that in the Southern cause there fought honorable men, believing they were right; it should be emphasized that the South were in the wrong and the North in the right. No apologies are to be made for the silent warriors in blue. We are now, in this era of fellowship and peace, one country, but we should not forget those who died that the country might live.

"Our sacred dead and the old veterans still with us not only saved the Union, but they banished slavery from the land. As the Hebrew slaves were set free by Jonathan, so the slaves of the South, freed by our Jonathan—Lincoln—turned and aided in the struggle for liberty. Their services were glorious. Truly, the colored troops fought nobly, and proved themselves worthy of freedom. God forbid that we forget the boys in blue who kept 'marching on' in the face of all obstacles, that the Union might be saved. No tongue can describe the sufferings through which they went; the weary march, the cruel battle, the hospital, the prison pen, dying away from home and friends and thousands filling unnamed graves."

The speaker concluded with a stirring appeal to hold in grateful remembrance those whose sacrifice had made it possible for the nation to endure and the expression of the hope that the day might be observed with increasing interest as the years went by.

The exercises closed with the singing of "America" by the large audience, the glorious song rising like an anthem of love and praise of those in whose memory they were gathered together.

His Foot Amputated.

L. W. Meining, of this city, a short time ago had a large and particularly vicious bunion on his right foot, near the small toe. It was a persistent and painful annoyance, and so one day he cut it off with a razor. Inflammation set in, and two weeks ago he suffered the amputation of his little toe as a result. The relief it was thought the amputation would afford did not come. Instead there was blood poisoning, and Mr. Meining was advised amputation of the foot would be necessary. He wished to avoid this if possible, and went to St. Paul last Tuesday to secure further medical advice. The St. Paul doctors offered him little encouragement. On the contrary, he was informed the Duluth doctors had diagnosed his case correctly, and that the foot would have to come off. Wednesday evening Mr. Meining was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, and Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, at a final consultation of physicians, it was decided to take the foot off at once in order to save the limb. This was done, the foot being amputated at the ankle joint.

Found Not Guilty.

The trial of Mary A. Braithwaite, principal of the Bryant school, in the municipal court, on the charge of an assault upon Henry Grydahl, a pupil, was concluded yesterday afternoon, the jury returning a verdict of not guilty, after half an hour's deliberation. The case had consumed two days. The evidence was all in by noon, the time in the afternoon being taken up with arguments of counsel.

The wait for the verdict, was, as always, the most trying part of the ordeal for the defendant and she was visibly relieved when the result was announced.

SONGS OF DIXIE LAND.

The Colored Jubilee Singers entertained a large audience at Pilgrim Congregational church last night with a varied entertainment of plantation melodies, musical specialties and the ventriloquial work of professor Prime. The program was pleasing throughout and each member was applauded by the delighted audience. The quartet singing was especially good and the jubilee songs were rendered in inimitable style. Tonight they will give another entertainment at the Grace M. E. church in the West End.

"I love you."

"And I love you."

These are common place expressions, but their charm and beauty will never wear away. Uncounted millions have given them voice. Uncounted if not uncountable millions will speak them; but only a few have done so or will do so under just such circumstances as surrounded William McKenzie and Mercy Gale, as they stood in a vast assemblage of tearful people on a sunny afternoon in May, 1861.

William and Mercy were born on farms that joined, near Canton, Stark county, Ohio, the former in 1841 and the latter in 1843. As babies they mapped on the same bed when their parents visited each other, and as they were the first born of those parents they were, as a matter of course, the smartest, brightest, surest, best babies that ever came from heaven to gladden hearts.

They were playmates before they were schoolmates. When one was 6 and the other 4 they walked nearly half a mile to the unpainted, weather-beaten schoolhouse, and usually hand to hand. Mercy was the better scholar, which explains why they stayed in the same class. She helped him with his lessons, which explains why they remained in the same classes until they had mastered the branches taught in the district school. Their first real parting occurred when Mercy went to a boarding school for girls in Cleveland. She was as pretty, sweet tempered, lovable and impassionable girl of 15 as that farming community possessed. Young and old were very fond of her, but none loved her better than the awkward boy who could not remember when he did not admire or love her.

The two families had one of their semi-occasional visits the evening before the girl was to leave home, this time at the Gale residence.

As the moment of parting aproached the boy and girl whose lives had been so closely linked looked very serious, so much that their parents joked about it and their mammas comforted them with affectionate looks, cheery words, and soft, gentle pats on their rosy cheeks. The mammas knew what made the children so quiet, or thought they did, and sympathized with them. These mammas had grown up together and were not a bit averse to their children being the best of friends; indeed, quite the contrary.

"I'll be at home soon," said Will, when Mr. and Mrs. McKenzie took their leave.

Ten minutes later the young folks stood at the gate beneath the newly-leaved maples, through which May's soft moon, the loveliest moon of the year, gave them laughing approval. They had not dreamed how hard the final parting would be. They shook hands.

"Goodbye, Mercy."

"Goodbye, Will."

But they still stood looking at each other. A slight breeze stirred the green leaves above them and the May moon sorrowed over tears on the cheeks of these child lovers who didn't seem to know just what was the matter with them.

"But we must part."

"So we must."

And they did.

The awkward farmer boy had a lonesome time of it until fatly-filled envelopes bearing his address began to arrive from a Cleveland boarding school. Mercy was no happier than he until she saw her address, crookedly, crampedly, screwingly written, by the lad on the farm near Canton.

There is much that could be told about these young people, but nothing of moment that all who are or who have been lovers are not familiar with. Those who become lovers, and all should have that experience, will then know about how Mercy and her William passed their time from May, 1859, to May, 1861. They met every few months, during that time, but for only a brief period. It was during the latter part of May, 1861, that the boy, past 19, and the girl, past 17, experienced one of the saddest trials that lovers ever experience. But such trials are common, then, as they were for three years after that, or during the great war. Thousands of lovers had missgiving partings—partings that wrenched their tender hearts to the danger limit, when that heavy cloud hung over our blessed country.

In a letter Mercy received from her mother one Saturday evening in May, 1861, was this painful though not wholly unexpected piece of information: "They are raising a company in town. Will is trying to get his father and mother to consent to his enlisting. He is very earnest and I expect he will succeed. You know that Will is quite patriotic. I guess his captainey of the company of young men and boys, last fall, when the Lincoln campaign was going on, gave him a taste for military life. Prepare yourself to hear from him that he has enlisted."

The little girl grew white, fixed her eyes on the distant forests in the direction of her dear ones, and that one dearest of all, and pretty soon her heart was too full—it had to get relief. A copious tear-fall came to her aid and the skies partially cleared.

That night she prayed for strength to enable her to make the sacrifice she was sure would soon be demanded.

The following Monday two dispatches for Mercy Gale were delivered at the boarding-school. Teachers and students were curious, but their curiosity was satisfied, partially, when the young lady asked and was given permission to go home on the next train.

One of those dispatches was from Mercy's mother. It read:

Canton, Ohio, May 20, 1861.—William enlisted Saturday night. Company leaves Wednesday. Come on next train.

Mamma."

The other message was from the same place. Its reading caused a sweet face to fall into two soft hands. It was short, but confirmed the startling news. No wonder her eyes were red when she asked permission to go home.

"Come today if you can. I must go away this week. William McKenzie."

The young lover had been a soldier only forty-eight hours when he met Mercy at the station that evening, but he was already heave. He had never been more cheerful; was never fuller of smiles or readier to talk on all sorts of subjects. While he was as much troubled over the coming parting as the girl—his darling girl—he would smother his feelings to help her over the rough places just before them.

Tuesday evening the two families were together at the McKenzies. While left by themselves for a brief time the young lovers, no longer in doubt as to what was the matter with them, became engaged.

"I'm a man now, Mercy—must take a man's place in my country's service. You are a woman. We have been lovers from childhood. You have been my best help in the past two or three years. For the next year or two I shall need your help more than ever. Mercy, I want you—want you to be my wife when I come home from the war. Will you?

Now, wasn't that a sensible way, to propose?

Sense was met by sense. "I shall be glad to be your wife. I cannot tell when I did not love you."

That was all. The most important contract of their whole life was made in a most sensible, business-like way. Need I take time to tell how they passed the time between the closing of that contract and the departure of the train which was to take the first company from Stark county to the state rendezvous? Newly engaged couples do not need to be told about it. Those to be engaged will learn for themselves in due time. Incorrigibles of both sexes who studiously abstain from engaging themselves do not deserve to be told.

* * * * * * * * *

Wednesday morning was a memorable time in the history of Canton. People from all parts of the country drove to town to see the first company of young men start to the war. An hour before train time Capt. Fowler formed his men and marched through the main streets. Schools closed to let the children see the soldiers make their last parade. Every house was vacated. All who were not on the streets stood in front of their homes or places of business cheering the young men who had offered their lives to the country. Flags waved from many places and so did handkerchiefs. Mothers looked through tears at their sons. Wives tried to be brave, but failed. Fathers joined mothers in kissing their big, brown-faced boys. Lovers shook hands, embraced, kissed, wept and said good-bye. Everybody followed the boys to the station, and the farewells were said again and again.

There were tears enough shed in Canton that afternoon to sprinkle a block. Every city and village, North and South, witnessed similar scenes in that fateful time, and those who participated will recall them on this year's Memorial day, as they do on each Memorial day.

Am I forgetting Mercy and her soldier lover? Not at all. There were no tears in their eyes. They had planned to help each other bear the trying ordeal. They were to smile every time they saw each other. At the last moment they were to say the words that seemed most precious to them, shake hands and part with laughter on their lips, no matter how heavy the load on their hearts.

The train pulled in. The captain directed the men to get aboard. In that sea of sorrowful faces there were two that bore smiles. I have always thought that they were forced smiles.

"I must go now, Mercy."

"God be with you."

Then came the words they had decided upon the evening before.

"I love you."

"And I love you."

The soldier stepped upon the car, saluted, threw a kiss, and they saw each other for the last time until Lieut. McKenzie's regiment returned to Ohio on veteran furlough in 1864. The private had won and received all of the ranks from corporal to first lieutenant.

* * * * * * * * *

Less than half of the original company returned to Canton that dreary February evening in 1864. A great crowd met them at the station. The captain had gone home, leaving McKenzie in command. The bronzed and haggard soldiers were taken to the chief hall in the city where a banquet was tendered. All of the leading citizens were present. Among the young lady waiters was Mercy Gale. In the great rush at the station she had not been able to welcome her lover. They met in the hall. They were older than they were on that sorrowful May day nearly three years before. Will was no; as bashful as he was then. They ran at each other, into each other's arms. If the whole world had been looking they would have kissed each other, just as they did.

"I love you."

"And I love you."

Those were the first words they spoke.

Two weeks later there was a quiet wedding at the Gale home, and ten days later Lieut. McKenzie and his bride parted again, just as they did when he left for Columbus in 1861. I should have said before that the semi-weekly letters written by the couple all through the war ended with "I love you" and "And I love you." And I will add that at all of their partings, even if for only a few hours, these words were spoken.

When Sherman reached Atlanta McKenzie was a captain. He marched to the sea, then to Washington, and on May 22, 1865, just four years from the day he left home, he returned to father, mother and a pair of Mercies—his girl wife and their pink-cheeked girl baby. He had not waited to enjoy the great review. Who blames him?

The name of Capt. McKenzie had become known throughout the state. At Peach Tree Creek he had charged over a battery while in command of two companies, rushed into an infantry line of battle and captured two flags, bringing them off the field with the colonel of an Alabama regiment. His regimental, brigade, division and corps commanders joined in asking congress to vote him a medal. It was done. A week later the governor of Ohio sent him a commission as colonel of a new regiment. The next day he sent it back with thanks and explained that he would remain with the men he enlisted with.

Now comes what I think by far the most interesting part of this sketch.

On May 30, 1865, Capt. McKenzie, his wife and baby observed Memorial day at the Canton cemetery, and I think it was the first observance of the kind in connection with the graves of soldiers. The original captain of the company and eight or ten other men were buried there. They scattered flowers on each of the graves, some of the choicest blossoms falling from the tiny hand of baby Mercy. The next year most of the members of the company joined the captain and his wife in the beautiful ceremony.

In 1868, when Gen. Logan's famous order was issued directing the decoration of all soldiers' graves, the people of Canton, almost to a man and woman, were ready to obey, under the direction of Chief Marshal McKenzie. But each year since his return from the army McKenzie has claimed the privilege of sprinkling flowers on the grave of the old captain and comrades of Company B. He will do so this year, assisted by a sweet-faced but gray-haired little woman whom he still loves and who loves him as well as she did when she first said "And I love you." They will be accompanied by two sons, one a Cleveland lawyer and the other a Canton doctor, three daughters and four grandchildren, all of whom will place flowers on the graves of their father's and grandfather's comrades.

Ah, me! 1861 was not yesterday, but thirty-five years ago.

Frank Willford Discusses the Beauties to Be Seen at Washington.

Why Most of the Fine Houses Are Around the White House.

Mr. Towne's Standing in Congress---Rev. Talmage Has Grown Stagy.

Washington, D. C., May 26.—(Special correspondence of The Herald.)—My last letter to The Herald was written a little over a month ago, from Montreal, Canada. I remember that while writing it I sat huddled up close to a blazing fire and had an overcoat on too. Today, or rather this evening, in my room, in this nation's great capital, or in this great nation's capital, it is 91 degrees above zero (and it feels as though it might be 191) and I am writing this clad only in as few garments as the laws of this great nation will allow!

The weather is the only thing I dislike about Washington; the city is beautiful, so are its women, its men are brave and its buildings grand, but, oh, Lord, it's hot. Yet is it not to be compared with Baltimore, that lies only forty miles away. Baltimoreans claim that their city is always comfortable. It didn't see it that way. It lies right close to the bay, too, and here in Washington there is only the historic but narrow Potomac that can have any cooling influence upon it. Perhaps it is the monotony in Baltimore's appearance that makes it seem hotter. We, of the West, where there are rarely two houses alike in any city—particularly Duluth, that can boast of the most diversified architecture of any of them—have a hard time of it getting used to such places as Philadelphia and Baltimore. In the latter city you can stand at any street intersection and look in four directions, and I defy you to show me one break, in any of them, out of the regulation line of continuous three storied, red brick houses, very plain and with five white marble steps to the front door. Some few of the most progressive people, I suppose, have a brass hand rail superimposed upon and to help in the ascent of the five marble steps, but then that difference is compensated for by the fact that every house—without any exception—has a brass lamp in the parlor window and the brass lamp has a paper shade of exactly the same hue as the bricks of the exterior. But then the people are nice, even if old fashioned, and they have a most glorious park, a perfect beauty, Minneapolis' Lake Harriet is not in it, and it is as most as pleasing a drive around it as around our own boulevard.

Washington's street architecture is pleasing, and, of course, its public buildings are magnificent. Its stores and office buildings are overgrown village affairs, but then it is not a commercial city and there is no need, I suppose, of sixteen and twenty storied buildings for its offices, and most of the stores have simply added on modern plate glass fronts to very ancient and unprepossessing buildings and have let it go at that.

They have some beautiful homes, in fact, it is essentially a capital city, there where you find the government and its officers, some of whom are very wealthy men and have built sumptuous residences, and again where men of means have elected to live, either because they liked it or had interests that could be affected by legislation and wanted to be right on the ground. They, too, have built fine houses; others also having represented Western and other constituents and have had to live here for a time, have been fascinated by its charms and continue their residence here now that their terms have expired. Whatever reasons may exist for it, other than these, I know not, but Washington is justly celebrated for the magnificence of its homes, and there are so many of them, particularly in the vicinity of the treasury building and White House.

An old resident was explaining to me why it is that most of the fine homes are right around the White House in the northwestern part of the city. He said that in the early times, when the capitol was being built, they decided upon placing the president's mansion well away from the national state house to remove him from the noise and tumult they expected—and rightfully too—to reign there, I suppose. Then they planned for handsome streets and fine houses around the capitol, but a lot of speculators got hold of all that surrounding property and ran it up a good deal as we do in Duluth, with the result that no one would buy there, but went and built instead, up around the White House, it being naturally a sort of social center. Then the presidents, one after the other, desiring to keep their executive officers near them, built the various departments in their neighborhood, too, when, of course, more people settled around that district. Now, as a matter of fact, excepting for perhaps a block or so immediately around the capitol, its vicinity is really a poor part of town.

This same spirit of speculation is also rampant when there is a good show in town; a few fellows buy up all the seats early in the day, then run the prices up so that to secure a desirable seat you sometimes pay $4 and often more.

As a class though, the people of Washington are not speculators nor over zealous in the prosecution of business. The climate is responsible, of course, and people here go around in an easy, devil-may-care sort of a way highly characteristic of the South. There lacks that mad rush, bing-bang spirit one feels in the West, Chicago and Duluth particularly.

Every one has seen the capitol, and the monuments and the famous parks, I suppose, or at least read descriptions and seen pictures of them so that anything I would say here about them would be reiteration only. But every one has not seen the capitol on a beautiful moonlight night as I did a few days ago. It was grand, beyond the power of pen to describe or brush to depict; a dream, making one think of Solomon's palace, fairy tales, aye, even of heavenly palaces.

Another time I saw the Washington monument in a storm, a great thunder storm. There was a cloud, black as ink, looming up in the southwest, and there was that obelisk standing out against it, white as the driven snow, with its 500 and more feet of height bidding defiance to time and the elements! a monument to our father and to our nation's greatness! That same storm, (a series of three storms in twenty-four hours), was a great one. The wind howled, blowing a seventy-mile gale, hail stones pattered, trees were uprooted and signs played tag with one another around the street corners. It was followed by a day of gloom and rain and cold, making me think of a Duluth day—I wouldn't say that to anyone else though, but among ourselves it's all right, of course. These poor Southern fellows shivered and donned their heavy overcoats and blue noses, while I felt real good for the first time in many days. I wanted to work, to run and be jolly, when during regular Washington spring weather I generally want to sit quietly in the shade, sip iced lemonade and shed my outer garments.

The night of that storm also became memorable on account of the great fire in the commission house district, when nearly a whole block of buildings was swept away by that element, and worse still for it was attended by loss of life, three poor firemen being buried in the ruins, and later on two others died from the effects of wounds received in the vain attempt to save their comrades. Such a scene has not been witnessed here for many years, thank God. It seemed to me as if half of Washington was there, and it was heart rending to see the poor wives and parents of the brave fellows who were battling the fiend when the cry went up that the walls had fallen, entombing, as at first reported, forty firemen.

I visited the new congressional library with out fellow townsman and representative, Mr. Towne. It is a splendid building and you must not miss it when next you come here. There is nothing in Europe that surpasses it in purity of design, harmony of color nor splendor of ornament and material. It is a monument the whole nation may well be proud of, the largest library building on earth.

Writing Mr. Towne's name and about national pride suggests to me that it is well for you to know that you have every reason to be very, very proud of him too. His general demeanor; his super-brilliant speech in congress upon the money question, when he received such an ovation and applause as is rarely accorded to the accepted leaders and never heretofore to a new member; his ability and thorough grasp of affairs; his wide general knowledge of affairs exhibited in committees, where his opinions are generally deferred to, have made him a man of mark and secured for him a place among the nation's legislators that, while giving him name and fame, must also redound to the greater glory of and be of inestimable benefit to Duluth.

Like all sightseers I also visited the treasury building, went the rounds of the money department under the guidance of that distinguished "colored gentlemen" who is detailed for that duty by Uncle Sam, he who so glibly rattles off at a marvelous rate of speed all about the $170,000,000 of silver dollars in this vault, and the $150,000,000 in gold in the other one; how the destruction committee sees that about $350,000 of old paper money is destroyed in the macerator every day; shows you the expert ladies who count over the old bills, that are sent in for redemption, at ridiculously low salaries and enormously large responsibility; the stamping machine that affixes the red seal to the paper money that is sent over in large sheets from the government printing office and by that one act transforms a comparatively worthless piece of paper into bills worth from one to a thousand dollars each and, last but not least, lets you touch a bundle of United States bonds of ten thousand denomination that contains $15,000,000 or more. I also saw the general manager of the country's finances, the Hon. Carlisle, and the cashier, Mr. Morgan. Then I saw the nearly 2000 employes of the department drop out of the building at 4 o'clock. It is really wonderful how prompt they are, none of the four hundred or more clocks in the building seem to ever be slow; but then there is an inspector of clocks, a stately old gentleman whose duty it is to wind them up and regulate them. There is also an inspector of nearly everything else, a chief and a deputy chief to every division and several divisions to every branch of work. It seems to be everyone's business to refer you if you want anything, to some one in another division who in turn sends you to another, who wants a requisition from still another before he can authorize still another to see that you obtain what you want from still another! It is the story of "the maiden all forlorn who married the man all shaven and shorn," no end of red tape. I suppose there is need of it all, but it is awfully provoking to do business there particularly if you are in a hurry. I saw a letter, not long ago, from that most systematic of all the departments that besides the signature of the acting secretary, Mr. Wike, it had eleven initials upon it showing that it had passed through that many hands before finally being dropped into the mail sack.

It, however, is the most important department of them all and embraces the most sub-departments; there are the customs, internal revenue, treasury, immigration, navigation, lighthouse, life-saving, public buildings and a legion of others; no wonder poor Mr. Carlisle is thin and worn looking. Still one more division has been added lately, Chicago, who seems to get pretty nearly everything she goes after, has secured an enormous appropriation for her new postoffice and government building, and in addition has secured, by special legislation, that that building be erected by a separate architect, not of the regular government staff; she has her own architect, Henry Ives Cobb, who has built so many sky-scrapers in the Windy City, and our fellow-citizen, Mr. Fitzpatrick, as assistant architect in charge at Washington.

I called upon the latter gentleman, who complains about the heat, misses the boating in old Superior's icy waters, is pleased with his work and surroundings and says that although his body is in the service of his country his heart and his family are with us still. He is always glad to see anyone from Duluth at his office, No. 53, on the main floor, right near the White House entrance.

Mr. Towne, Mrs. Towne and Miss Towne, and Mr. Towne's secretary, Mr. Hays, Mr. Fitzpatrick and Capt. Torrey, who spends part of his time here at the Army and Navy club, are the only Duluthians I have seen here. A. L. Ordean's name was on the Arlington register one day, but he was only passing through. It seems rather strange to me to meet so few Zenithians. In New York, Boston or St. Louis and out on the coast one runs across a familiar face every day or so. In California I have met as many as five in one day. Perhaps it is that we have secured all the legislation we need and haven't the—time—to go visiting only.

Gen. Hancock's statue was unveiled a few days ago. There was a grand procession. All the soldiers, marines, regulars and militia were out, the bicycle corps, cavalry and all making quite a presentable appearance in form and in number. They acted as a guard of honor to the president. He looked well and delivered quite a speech, was cheered and was insulted by some rowdy or crank who ran out from the crowd, almost up to the carriage bawling "Hello, Grover!" to which the president replied, "Thank you, my friend," and politely raised his hat. My sympathies go out to any notable here or I suppose anywhere else. The way they, particularly the president and Mrs. Cleveland, are pestered and annoyed by the curious, gawping crowd must be enough to send a sensitive person to the insane asylum or to the desert. Presumably the people, the curious ones, think that they help to pay the president and therefor have some proprietary rights in him and his family and all his affairs and have no conscientious scruples about annoying him.

If there is anything I despise more than anything else it is a crowd, a morbid crowd, and I generally fight shy of any place where there is to be a mob, but last Sunday I unwittingly got into a jam that ruffled my temper and my clothes pretty thoroughly. Some time ago I met Rev. Dr. Sunderland, who invited me to go to his church, and hear the Rev. Talmage. I went last Sunday, presented his card and was shown to the pastor's pew. No one else there, so says I, to myself, "I'll be comfortable even if it is hot," forgetting that it was the president's church and never dreaming that I was in the adjoining pew to his; well, half past eleven came and the doors were thrown open to the mob. Did you ever see a drove of sheep making for a break in a fence? I never did, but can imagine now what it is like. I felt it! They packed that church like a box of sardines in less than a minute. It seemed, and my particular vicinity was the most tightly packed, it was like two boxes of sardines. Seven people jammed on top of me into that pew that was originally built for five, and others packed in the aisle and all just to see the president, who, by the way very sensibly stayed away. If it was simply curiosity it wouldn't be so bad, but there is vandalism attached. I am told that some woman, some Sundays ago, deliberately leaned over and cut a patch out of the cushion of his pew, to carry home as a trophy!

Perhaps it was the sweltering crowd that ruffled me so that I could not appreciate the sermon, but I liked Brother Talmage less than I did before, and I never went crazy over his efforts. Dramatic in the extreme always, he has become "stagy," and now resorts to the "business" of the cheap tragedian, grasps his throat, goes into a sort of trance, then stands all limp and worn out by the great climax he reached—regular good old third-or-fourth-class-by-poison scene. Brother Southworth would have enjoyed the sermon, I know. Unbelievers—Unitarians, I suppose, come under that head—were referred to as "yelping rat-terriers of infidelity," and the broad assertion made that "your pocketbook was safe in the presence of a heretic." Real nice, broad-guage, Christian-like sentiments!

Of course I have been to congress and have seen and heard the celebrities, admired the cear upon his throne and noticed how he counted quorums. If one wishes to preserve a deep respect for the lawmakers of his country he had better keep away from the capitol during sessions. He will have far more respect if he visits the building when it's empty. A few nights ago I was there, in the press gallery, where I could get a good view of every man-jack in the house and hear every word—when there was not too much of a bedlamic uproar, which may seem somewhat paradoxical, but is a fact, nevertheless. It was the regular house session for the consideration of special business and pension matters. Congress will soon adjourn; a vast amount of business yet remains undone; every moment of the reminingdays is precious. Still, this was about the order of proceeding: Curtain rises at 8. Speaker pro tem. (the czar was not there) raps the house to order, the clerk reads a bill, some pension matter, and someone moves that it be passed. The "gentleman from South Carolina" objects, and in order to block the bill moves "no quorum;" then after a storm of reproof he will allow (!) business to go on under certain restrictions that all claims for reinstatement upon the lists of dead soldiers who had been supposed to be deserters, but had been, upon investigation, proven not to have deserted, be placed at the foot of the calendar. This was objected to by a large built gentleman from the Dakotas, who said more, gesticulated more and wanted to run and evidently believed he ran things more, but who, in fact, accomplished less than anyone there. Then there was a pow-wow. Carolina was obdurate; Dakota insisted upon the rights of the soldier whose honor had been stained; several spread-eagle speeches reeking in blood and glory were made by Ohio and New York; friends of Carolina pleaded with him. Peace restored once more, and the speaker was assured that Carolina would yield if the other fellow would take back something he had said. The other fellow took it, then Carolina said he hadn't said it, and wouldn't yield one jot or tittle; he was accused of blocking legislation, and then they all voted by the "ayes" rising. Some horse-play occurred then, dignified statesmen pulling each other down or up, as the votes were wanted, others squatting on the floor so as not to be counted, and a regular village-school recess performance went on, everyone laughing and joking and making faces at each other. I say everyone, but it is not so. I counted seven out of something like 160 present who deported themselves as men of business would during the performance of business. Mr. Towne was of the seven; evidently realizing that he could not help the situation, he sat at his desk writing letters all during the buffoonery.

Well, they then voted that they be counted to see if a quorum was present. Simply counting noses does not do, but the clerk must read over the whole list of something like 400 names. Half way through Dakota stops him and votes something else. It is sat upon and the counting ordered to proceed, but it does not do to begin where it was left off, but must be gone all over again. When it's done, first one fellow wants some absent friend excused for his absence on account of sickness, then another and another, about seventy bob up one after the other. "Please, sir, excuse my confrere, Mr. Blank; he is sick this evening." Then perhaps a minute or so after Mr. Blank would innocently walk in, amidst a roar of laughter at the expense of the friend seeking the excuse. Dakota jumps up and harangues the house about the evil of absenting oneself from meeting, and tragically moves that those absent without permission be arrested and brought before the house. More votes and more play and the arrest ordered, although it is nearly 11 o'clock,

MEMPHIS

Wonderful Development of the Tennessee City In the Last Decade.

The Progressive Spirit of Its Women Has Done Much Good.

A Prime Factor In Influencing Every Order of Home Industry.

Memphis, Tenn., May 26.—(Special to The Herald).—From a Southern standpoint this city has been most unique in its development; has, in truth, made wonderful strides in the past ten years. It has many natural advantages, but has reached its present substantial basis in the face of many adverse circumstances. Severely devastated by the war, national panics and terrible pestilence of yellow fever seem to have made her its special mark. Memphis has fathomed the causes of the pestilence, and has removed them. New sewers and new water supplies have solved it. She has a magnificent system of sixty artesian wells, drawn from nature's reservoir, ranging from 350 to 500 feet in depth, clear as crystal, and inexhaustible in quantity. All praise is due their substantial citizen, Col. R. C. Graves, who discovered that artesian well water could be found in large enough quantities to supply a growing city like Memphis.

The effects of the war upon the people are no longer discernible, and the fact that there was not a single bank failure, and no large commercial ones during the late panic, shows that Memphis stands on the most substantial basis. The city holds a commanding position on Chickasaw Bluff, on the east side of Mississippi river, and far above the highest water mark ever known. Its transportation advantages are very superior, in direct communication with North, South, East and West, and occupies a more central position than any other city in the South or West. It is the great distributing point of the resources and commercial products of the surrounding states. It is a railroad center, with seventy odd trains arriving and departing daily. The river is open to navigation the whole year, and its traffic is quite an item to the commercial interests, and keeps up the competition so essential to trade, and holds its own against the railroads centering here.

THE MISSISSIPPI BRIDGE.

The great bridge that here spans the river is one of the results of the wonderful mechanical skill of the age. It is the only bridge across the Mississippi river south of St. Louis, and brings the Atlantic and Pacific slopes into an unbroken railway connection, and makes this city one of the great commercial center ports of this great continent. Her population now estimated at 100,000, having increased 91.99 per cent in ten years. Of course during the last three years this percentage hasn't been maintained. Several handsome parks on the outskirts of the city, and a fine driving park, owned by the Jockey club. But Memphis lacks open squares and parks in the centers of her populous districts, that the laboring classes might find recreation on their daily return from work. Court square, in the center of Main street is a pretty open space, with a statue of Andrew Jackson, and the many squirrels gambolling there in perfect unconcern of the passer-by, has rendered them quite famous.

The wealth of a city is often judged from its handsome public buildings, and no place of its size has more handsome churches, both in point of architecture and interior decoration; also many charitable institutions, among them the Leath Orphan asylum, St. Peter's Orphan asylum, St. Joseph's hospital, in charge of the sisters of St. Francis, and a city hospital. The Woman's Christian association also maintains the boarding home for friendless girls—all showing the charitable inclination and the public spirit of this people.

THE COSSITT LIBRARY.

The Cossitt library was established in 1893 by Frederick H. Cossitt, of New York, but formerly of Memphis. It cost $100,000, is in the renaissance style, of Lake Superior brownstone, and contains about 10,000 volumes. Mell Nunnally is the courteous librarian. The oldest library of which anything is known is said to have been founded in Memphis on the Nile, by the Egyptian ruler Osymandyas, of the twelfth dynasty, or about 4000 years ago, and contained works of an unknown antiquity, deemed sacred by the Egyptians, all of which perished in the devastations incident to the invasion of that country by Persia, the influence of which cannot be overestimated. There are other fine libraries here of the Bar and Law association, Hebrew circulating and Odd Fellows.

The Grand Opera house, Lyceum, Auditorium are among the many handsome club buildings. Among the latter is the Chickasaw club, owned by the celebrated Guards of that name, an organization of national reputation, of the stalwart youth and sinew of Memphis. It has carried off eleven first prizes in military contests, and ranks first also among the social bodies of the city. I had the honor of a luncheon in their grand salle a manger, and an inspection throughout their luxurious apartments. Not so with the Tennessee club, however. Though of first social position, it is a close corporation, and debars woman the privilege of passing beyond the dining hall. Why, I know not, but since the "Nineteenth Century club," a progressive woman's mighty organization adjoins the building, it has been whispered that they fear to give them an entering wedge lest they might yield to the power of their mightier minds, and let food of thought take the place of that of the inner man, and the library supplant that of the fascinating green tables.

CLEVER WOMEN.

Woman's influence in this city is in many ways most powerful. In fact, in no other Southern city has woman shown such an active, lively interest in municipal affairs, and has done so much towards putting the city on its onward rise to prosperity. "Patronize home manufactures," Mrs. S. E. Hunt, president; Mrs. Henry C. Myers, secretary, and Mrs. M. Gavin, treasurer, is an organization that has prospered from the first. It was purely the emanation of a woman's brain, and has been most effectual in encouraging home industries and enterprises. Last year, when a franchise of fifty years was to be given to the street railway company, these ladies contended for generous transfer privileges, and, after a hot contest, obtained them. They also work in active sympathy with the Young Men's Business league and Manufacturers' association.

The Nineteenth Century is the finest literary club for women in the South. Its assembly, committee and reading rooms are fitted out with elegance and taste. All of the leading periodicals are upon the reading tabls. The membership numbers over 400 of the most representative literary women of Memphis. With an income of $5000 a year they can afford to secure the ablest lecturers of the country.

Not less representative is the Woman's club, but as the membership is limited, the income is proportionately limited, but their work is most excellent and scholarly. The local council comprises a number of clubs and their lecture advantages are equal to those of the Nineteenth Century club. The most remarkable advantages in every line of progress are offered by these clubs, many through their proficiency being able to follow the professions of music, art, cookery and sewing.

The King's Daughters are active in charitable work. The Daughters of the American Revolution, numbering 150 members, have done much towards instilling the love of patriotism in the hearts of the rising generation, and in perpetuating the memory of the heroes of that time and in searching for and collecting genealogical and historical data that might otherwise escape the writers of future history.

The Authors' club, a select body of genial spirits, besides the old Thackeray, the Catholic club and many other literary clubs, show the higher order of intellect in this Southern center. Many public schools and a number of private schools and academies, among the latter the Clara Conway institute and the Higher school both afford fine advantages for the training of young ladies.

There are many miles of street railway in fine condition. The railroad corporations, street and steam, are required to pave those streets on which they have franchise to run, with pavement suitable to the conditions prevailing thereon, and are excellent in many localities.

"COTTON IS KING."

This ranks as the first inland cotton market of the world, and it handles more than three-quarters of a million of bales of cotton annually. The greater part of the cotton and cotton seed raised in Tennessee, Arkansas, and Mississippi and near by states comes to Memphis. The staple grown in the Mississipi valley above and below Memphis claims superiority over that raised in any other part of the cotton states.

Cotton oil is produced from pressed cotton seed, and is more or less refined to meet the requirements of the use for which it is intended. The commercial value of the seed is from $8 to $10 per ton. A great quantity of the cotton oil produced here is exported to Europe and returns hither in the shape of pure (?) olive oil. Over $1,000,000 capital is invested here in this line, and 1000 hands employed during the busy season of six months. The many cotton compresses and factories with their improved machinery form a very important part in the welfare of this cotton city, giving constant employment to male and female operatives. The cotton exchange has done more substantial benefit to Memphis than any other institution. The elegant structure stands at the corner of Madison and Second streets, and is very centrally located. Capital stock, $100,000.

This is also a first-class lumber market, as the 200 square miles around is considered one of the finest hardwood districts in the United States. In 1890 the firms and individuals comprising the lumber exchange handled 160,000,000 feet. Pork is handled also in enormous quantities, many Western packing houses being represented here.

Yearly advancements in every branch of commerce and industry, but at the present time very conservative movements until the financial adjustment of the country. The tenor of this city is for the gold standard, the counties of the state for free silver, and the progress here, as elsewhere, is greatly impeded, until the currency of the country is on a more substantial basis.

SUBURBS AND RESIDENCES.

The beautiful suburbs, with their handsome avenues of trees and the elegant private homes embowered in vines and roses, are distinguished features of this Southern city. I have only space, however, to mention the palatial residences of Napoleon Hill, The Woman's Christian association also maintains the boarding home for friendless girls—all showing the charitable inclination and the public spirit of this people.

IN THE LABOR FIELD

While, perhaps, those who claim that all the problems of social science that relate to labor, its relation with capital and its wage, may be solved by the one expedient of shortening the hours of toil, may be carried too far by their enthusiasm over a good thing, the fact does remain that shorter hours will make places for more workers and will insure the better performance of the allotted task, as well as a vast improvement in the mental and moral condition of the individual. And certainly, considered in a selfish light from the standpoint of the rest of society, the mental and moral betterment of those who labor is that much additional security against the blundering and, may-hap, bloody and brutal, working out of problems that must be worked out.

And so the outcome of the movement that is now on foot in Duluth, and in which the citizens will soon be asked to join, for a Saturday half holiday, will be viewed with interest. Friends of labor hope that the open letter on the subject, which is soon to be made public, will meet with a favorable response.

The coming election of officers of the Trades' assembly, to be held at the last meeting in June, is already a topic of gossip, and while no candidates have yet avowed themselves, it is said that the hopes of some are now in the sprouting period and await but the first balmy zephyrs of general approval to put forth buds. Several of the present incumbents have indicated that they feel they have worn their honors long enough.

The trouble in the Barbers' union is still unsettled. It is not such a dissension, however, threatens the vitality of the organization or that would at any time prevent its showing a solid front on questions affecting the wages and hours of its members. The dispute is over the question whether the employes have the right to dictate the prices to be charged by the shops, it being claimed on the one hand that they have and on the other hand that their concern is confined to the scale of wages paid. Meanwhile there will be no action taken by the assembly in regard to prices charged by shops, as the latter body will not take action so long as the local is not united on the subject.

The organization of the Cooks' union is progressing favorably, the committee on constitution and bylaws having about completed their work.

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES.

Typographical union No. 186, of Fargo, N. D., has sent out a circular to the printers, pressmen, stereotypers, bookbinders and newspaper writers of North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota and Manitoba, requesting them, whether delegates or not, to attend their third annual convention of the Tenth District Union of Allied Printing Trades, which convenes at that place on Tuesday, June 9. The objects of the convention, as stated in the circular, are: "To establish and maintain a true and perfect system in the organization of our craft throughout the Tenth district, and at all times take such action as may tend to promote that object; to defend our rights and advance our interests as workingmen; to build up an organization whereby all members of our trade in the Tenth district shall become interested in, and participate in the discussion of those practical problems upon the solution of which depend the welfare and prosperity as workers; to incite all honorable efforts for the attainment of better conditions of labor, and to inculcate in all a true understanding of the benefits and privileges to be derived from membership in the International Typographical union; to foster fellowship and shield from oppression the isolated and defenceless of our art; to encourage the principles of conciliation and arbitration in the settlement of differences between employers and employes." H. Lounsberry will attend this convention from the Duluth Typographical union.

BARBERS' CONVENTION.

Robert J. Coyne, president of the Journeymen Barbers' association, has issued the following:

The second semi-annual convention of the Journeymen Barbers' association of Minnesota, will convene at 2 o'clock on June 15, 1896, in the city of Minneapolis, for the transaction of such business as may be of interest to the barbers of the state. The election of delegates should take place during the month of May, but if any local union has failed to do this it can do so during the fore part of June. Every local union should be represented, and delegates to this convention should also serve as delegates to the convention of the Minnesota Federation of Labor. Each local union outside of the Twin Cities should send at least one delegate, as it is important for the advancement of the association that a general response should be made. The last meeting of this association attracted much attention throughout the country, apparently having voiced the sentiments of the members of our craft, and now for the coming convention let us make a still grander success. May we by our deliberations command the esteem of our fellow workmen. No trade or calling is attracting more attention today than ours for the wonderful strides that have been made for reform. The forming of local unions, the holding of state and national conventions have each gained favor with the general public, the advocating of better workmen, the abolition of the so-called barber schools, the better prices, the Sunday rest, and the license for competent barbers have all gained much for the elevation of the standard of the barbers of Minnesota. This and so many other questions that require united action upon the part of the journeymen barbers that you can readily see the necessity of being represented at the coming convention.

REMEDY FOR LABOR'S ILLS.

M. R. Grady, an officer of the Chicago Trade and Labor assembly and the Bricklayers' union, has original plans for the improvement of the condition of workingmen, and he tells them divertingly, insisting on the prerogative of the worker to have a voice in the matter most important to all. He says:

"What part will labor people play in the future of the republic to not only insure its perpetuity but to make everybody happy and contented? Are we everlastingly going to be divided or will there come a time when a united effort can be made to obtain the industrial freedom we so much desire?

"Just now we are passing through a crisis alarming to everyone who has leisure to reflect. We find that, notwithstanding the production of the country has increased in every direction, we still have hard times. We find that, notwithstanding the area of tillage has increased, the output of our mines has increased, the prices of vegetables and cereals of all kinds have decreased, yet we are in the throes of a monetary depression. Rents have come down and there was never a time when clothing was as cheap as now. It is many years since living was as cheap, and, judging by modern standards, it never was. With all this, the times are hard. Why is this so? Most of those who attempt to answer this question have used a mass of meaningless verbiage, but none has clearly explained. But we know that there is no necessity for hard times in this country.

"We look about us and we perceive the symbols of wealth on every hand. The reports inform us the wheat crop was all right last year, so was the corn crop and likewise the cotton crop, while the annual crop of fools, of which there is no report but tradition, did not fail. Our country is developing districts hitherto neglected, and their treasures of surface and subsurface productions are opened to the people. In the midst of all this, is it not paradoxical to see people suffering from financial depression and its attendant miseries in a land overflowing with abundance? To me it certainly is. The system of government under which it is possible and the system of finance and commerce which make it possible should be changed.

"For a good many years America has been shipping machines to China and Japan, especially the latter. Railroads have been built in those lands, our engineers and artisans have taught the subjects of the mikado and the empire the use of modern mechanics and the oriental intellect has absorbed progressiveness. Now they build their own railroads and make machines of their own, their universities graduate men of talent and ability in various lines. In this fact added disaster to the workmen of this country can be seen. Cotton, corn and other cereals grow there with little cultivation. In the near future Japan must become an important manufacturing nation, for it has every facility. Lead, copper, iron, silver and even gold mines are operated in that country. Its people, from their frugality and industry, are in a most advantageous condition for success. We cannot possibly compete with them. Therefore, it is our manifest duty to surround ourselves with safeguards while it is yet time. Herein lies the problem of the future. Conflict of this nature is inevitable.

POWER IN ORGANIZATION.

The labor organization is the only means by which the laboring people can become united upon a plan of procedure in their own behalf. It is all right, perhaps, to talk about uniting the different isms, but quite another thing to effectually join them together harmoniously, says a labor journal. We know absolutely that the unifying of reform forces has been going on for years, yet nothing has resulted to the laboring class from such attempts. On the other hand, from the very inception of the trades union movement the members have secured beneficial results. The different labor organizations in the United States today illustrate this. The trades union is practical. It is broad in its views upon all questions relating to the advancement of the laboring people. Its formation and organizations are for the bettering of the condition of the masses of the people.

It wrongs no one, but it guards with a watchful eye the interests of its members and protects them to the fullest extent of its power against the avariciousness and greed of the corporation or individual who endeavors to deprive the laborer of his rights. The grand results of trades unionism are too little known by the great mass of laboring people, who never take an interest, it seems, in that which would bring prosperity to them. Were the laboring people of the United States to thoroughly understand how easily they could arrange things to suit themselves were they united, what an easy matter it would be to avoid the disturbances which are ushered into existence by the action of an individual or a corporation in deliberately defrauding the employe of a just compensation for services rendered. The people are the power.

AUXILLIARIES SUCCESSFUL.

There are indications that the launching of the ladies' national auxillary to the Street Car Employes' association of Duluth was successfully accomplished at Saginaw during the past week, will prove a most important event in the history of trades unionism, says the Journal Press. More than two years ago Mrs. Belle Willard, of Saginaw, conceived the idea of organizing the wives, daughters, sisters and mothers of street car employes into an aid society. Once the step was taken it was astonishing how many avenues opened by which the spare moments of these women could be utilized in assisting their brothers, husbands, sons and fathers. They were able to care for the sick and save largely in nurse and hospital expenses. They found leisure to augurate entertainments, the profits of which went to worthy objects, and in a dozen or more different ways, valuable and elevating ways and means were employed. The matter was laid before the men's national organization, and the officers took charge of the new movement for the first year.

During that time similar auxiliaries were established at Detroit and Toledo, and all three were prosperous. President Mahon says lack of time alone has prevented the establishment of auxiliaries in many other places, that wherever he has explained the plan in the course of his travels about the country he has met with ready appreciation and hearty endorsement.

By the adoption of a constitution and the election of national officers at Saginaw last week the women have taken the management wholly in their own hands, and the work of organizing in other cities will now go forward without hindrance. Other unions are certain to have similar auxiliaries within a short time, the social feature alone being sufficient to recommend it, and there is little doubt that an important movement and invaluable annex to trades unionism has been entered upon.

HOW TO GET BETTER WAGES.

Hundreds of men are working in this city who are unorganized and they are working for wages established during the business depression of the past two years, says the Seattle Labor Gazette. They accepted these wages as an alternative to starvation. They have been the greatest sufferers from the hard times. The hardships they have undergone have been harder to bear than those of their employers. The latter could keep their capital out of employment and not suffer personal hardship. But workingmen had to accept anything they could get for their labor or go to the poorhouse. Things are picking up now, a fact undeniably established by the increased number of men employed in the two industries we have mentioned.

Workingmen having, as we have indicated, borne the brunt of the business depression, should share in the benefits of reviving industry. The only way they can do so is by receiving wages commensurate with the services they perform, and that, plainly speaking, means better wages. They will never get them if they wait for employers to take the initiative. Men who hire labor are not built that way. Their rule is to get as much labor as they can for as little money as possible. When times are hard and business slack they do not hesitate to ask labor to accept reduced pay "till times pick up." But when the picking up period comes around they do not voluntarily raise wages in a proper ratio with their increasing business. The moral is, organize.

NEED OF RECIPROCATION.

Do business men ever compute the amount of money they receive from the laboring men who toil in the shops and factories? asks the Voice of Labor. The patronage of this vast army of industrials is worth having, for every man, woman and child must have a living, and the wage-earners are not the ones to beg or steal. Take this immense army away, and there would be bankruptcy and ruin of thousands who are now enjoying a wholesale trade. There is need of a larger development of industries and a more liberal distribution of capital among the masses. No city can hope to thrive without a display of energy in all branches of industry, for there is no better means of judging of the prosperity of a city than the men who crowd the workshops.

CONVENTION OF MINERS.

The convention of the Western Federation of Miners now in session in Denver is one of the most important gatherings of organized labor to be held in the United States this year.

There are in this powerful organization 76,500 members in good standing, and they are men of such rugged independence and unwavering loyalty to union principles that their great organization stands almost without a peer in the field of organized labor, says an industrial paper. A labor organization is always what its members make it. The miners have had the good judgment to invest enough money in unionism to produce the best results.

Although young in years, the Western Federation of Miners is compact and powerful that is invincible. Its treasury contains $740,000 in cash and its defense fund is exactly $50,000. From the beginning this organization has been conducted upon business principles. It has recognized the important fact that a union is for the purpose of securing better conditions for its members, and it has set about doing this in a business-like manner. To learn how well it has succeeded it is only necessary to compare the eight hours and $3 a day, which thousands of miners are receiving, with the long hours and poor pay of unorganized or improperly organized labor in all parts of the country.

POLICY OF THE CIGARMAKERS.

The International Cigarmakers' union has decided on a vigorous policy in preventing non-union men from working in shops where union men are employed. Daniel Harris, one of the best known leaders in New York city, said that the cigars manufactured by a certain big firm had been successfully boycotted by union smokers for four years, and the international union had succeeded in unionizing the factory, after expending $50,000. The union was ready to expend $100,000 to bring another firm to terms, he declared.

"The income of the international union will amount to $1,000,000 the ensuing year," said Mr. Harris, "and we will be able to lick any boss in the United States who attempts to force our members to work for starvation wages and under bad conditions."

Hundreds of men are walking about idle at Coolgardie, West Australia, with bread 45 cents a loaf, meat 21 cents, potatoes 9 cents and onions 10 cents a pound.

John Bell, secretary of the Cigarmakers' International union, thinks the next convention of that union will endorse the project of establishing co-operative factories.

The Schuylkill, Pa., Coal Exchange has fixed the rate of wages to be paid the miners in that region for the last half of April and the first half of May at the $2.50 basis.

At Lowell, Mass., with the exception of the Lawrence Manufacturing company, which recently shut down, the cotton mills are running practicaly at their full capacity.

Maine's forests are being made into paper at the rate of about 75,000 tons of pulp and paper every year. Some 5000 men are employed in the pulp and paper industry and $13,000,000 capital is invested in it.

Switzerland proposes to have a state match monopoly, not for profit, but aiming at the suppression of the phosphorus match. It is dangerous to work with phosphorus and the disease resulting is as horrible as leprosy.

John Burns proposes to have a law passed by parliament making it compulsory for employers to give domestic servants "a character" on dismissal. Laws to that effect have long been in force in France and Germany.

The operatives of the twenty-six cotton mills of Alabama have formally demanded the abandonment of the projected cotton mill at the state convict farm which was to have been operated by female and youthful convicts.

The agent of the big Rome, Ga., cotton mills says coal costs there $1.75 to $1.85 a ton, against $4.50 to $4.75 a ton in Lowell; that wages are 25 per cent less, but that they will buy as much, owing to cheap rent, fuel and food.

A movement is under way in Indianapolis to close all dry goods and other general stores at noon on Saturdays, and meat markets, vegetable stores, etc., early in the evening. About half the proprietors are already pledged to the schedule.

The prison-made pedestal upon which it was intended to place the bronze bust of Gen. Grant in San Francisco is to be razed, in the guise of this condemned convict-cut base is to be a duplicate, but hewn by the hands of union labor.

The Austrian government recently instituted an inquiry into the conditions of female labor. In Vienna, it appears, it is no uncommon sight to see women acting as bricklayers' laborers, preparing mortar and moving heavy blocks of stone.

Toledo union, No. 48, of the International Cigarmakers' union, has begun a suit against John O. May of that city, to recover $2000 damages because it is alleged he used an imitation label on cigars of his manufacture. An injunction was allowed.

Labor Commissioner Fitzgerald, of California says that certain contractors in San Francisco owe over $75,000 back pay to laborers. He will introduce a bill in the coming legislature by which workingmen on public works will be protected in securing their wages.

The committee representing the Chicago Union Label league which has been visiting retail merchants in the interest of union-made gods reports that a number of retail hat and shoe merchants have promised to require the stamp of the union on their fall supplies.

The officers of the Journeymen Bakers' National union have decided to call in 25 per cent of the international strike fund now in the hands of local unions. This action was made necessary owing to a number of subordinate unions having drafted contracts for submission to employers some of which are liable to lead up to hard fighting.

Great destruction prevails among the coal miners of Northern Colorado, owing to the stoppage of work. The employes of one company hold time checks for $14,000, but cannot get a cent. In the town of Erie, the population of which is exclusively miners, the inhabitants have not averaged more than $5 to $10 per month since the beginning of winter.

TOUCHING CONSISTENCY.

Boston Courier: Prison visitor—Ah! Here is a cell that is so tidily kept that it reveals evidences of refinement. And that beautifully worked motto 'Home, Sweet Home,' on the farther wall—is it possible that is the handiwork of the occupant of this cell.

Warden—It is, sir.

Prison Visitor—Wonderful! And for what offense against the law can such a man be confined?

Warden—Just wife-beating; that's all.

PATRIOTS

Insurgents in the Island of Cuba Are a Heroic Band.

A Duluth Man Has a Brother On General Valdovia's Staff.

He Has Undergone Many Thrilling Experiences During His Career.

The truth about Cuba comes to the people of the United States so colored by the channels through which information flows that considerable filtering is necessary before the clear quill can be drawn off free of the rubbish that is injected into it by prejudice and interest. It almost seems as if the Spanish army must be composed of about an equal number of press agents and men who fight with guns and other weapons than writing materials.

Although even the Spanish correspondents no longer insist that the Cuban affair is a mere picnic, a pleasant outing for the soldiery of the mother country, still they will have it that the insurgent buglers have forgotten how to blow anything but the "retreat," and that the Cuban battalions are scurrying up and down the "troche" vainly looking for a knot hole through which to crawl. But those who know the real state of things, who know the resources of the insurgents, the character of the men in the field and the devotion of the people to the cause of free Cuba—all sorts and conditions of the people, from the humblest toiler on the plantations to the town citizens of substance—are looking for the rising of the sun of Cuban independence with increasing hope as the days go by. Before the resistless progress of a united people moving toward a destiny, the right to which the enlightened thought of the world has already conceded them and in the struggle for which the tendencies and impetus of years of present day civilization is confederated with them, the bulwarks of a badly decayed system must give way, and they are already bulging at the seams.

But the dispatch manufacturing contingent of royal army wearies not. It is turning out victories by the ream daily, and the opportunity to get a little information outside the patented bulletins of Mr. Weyler is to be eagerly grasped. There is in this city a gentleman by the name of Joseph Vega, who has a brother on Maceo's staff, and who is himself not unknown to the Cuban revolutionary party by reason of services rendered to the cause of Cuba libre. Mr. Vega is, also, closely related to Gen. Locaín Sanchez y Valdivia, who is entrusted with an important command in the insurgent army.

KNOWS ITS HISTORY.

Mr. Vega, by reason of his connections not only with the junta, but with those who are standing with arms in their hands under the lone star banner, is well qualified to express an opinion of the present status of affairs in the island, and being a native of Havana is able to speak with authority of the feelings of the people on the question of independence. And, to take up the latter matter first, Mr. Vega is authority for the statement that all classes, including the dwellers in the capital as well as in the remotest province, are intensely imbued with the desire of freedom. The experience of Mr. Vega's brother is a fair example of the spirit that animates the young men of Havana. Having met secretly several times by night and counseled together on how they could best serve their country, it was resolved to make their way to an insurgent rendezvous and offer their services. Departing with the understanding that each was to proceed independently of the others to Guira de Melena, a town some distance from Havana, from which they could proceed to the insurgent camp. Alone and unarmed, for to have carried arms would have drawn the attention of the authorities and landed them in the dismal dungeons of Moro castle at the outset, these young men, scarcely more than boys, stole away from comfortable homes to face not only death on the battle field, but the chance of a short shrift as roving spies, and the certainty of privation and sufferings. Having safely passed the first stage of their enterprise, they essayed to join the colors, but were captured not far from Guira de Melena and taken to the island of Pinos, where is maintained a convict colony. Here the young patriots were made to labor on the roads and at various occupations with the ordinary malefactors. The work was arduous and the task masters severe; the regimen being altogether calculated to crush out patriotic enthusiasm. But the young men were true Cubans, and with the example of others who had endured and triumphed in the cause of liberty before them, they never relaxed a vigilant watch for the opportunity of escape, enduring the hardship and the insolence of their keepers without a murmur in order to disarm suspicion.

During their captivity they managed to secure a pair of scissors and a razor, with which to do battle with the armies of Spain for their freedom. The chance that always waits on adroitness and courage came at last. Close observation disclosed the fact that at the posting of the reliefs of the guards about the building, a low one-story affair, in which the prisoners were confined at night, there was a very brief space when the entrance might, on a chance, be passed. After a tedious period of waiting for a favorable night, young Vega and a companion finally made their escape from the barrack and subsequently succeeded in embarking on a boat for Cuba, where, after much dodging of Spanish patrols and facing dangers that would have tried veterans, they joined Gen. Maceo some three months ago. Of such stuff and animated by such a purpose are the men who are enlisting under the insurgent flag. The poorer laborers on the plantations, most of whom are blacks, are equally devoted to the cause, which they serve in various ways and by whose aid messages between the various bodies of insurgent troops are transmitted with a celerity that is astonishing. For a people so united in a righteous cause, what is there but victory. Contrary to general belief, Mr. Vega says, the bulk of the insurgent army is not made up of negroes and mulattoes. Of the 1,600,000 population, there are but about 500,000 negroes and mulattoes, including old men, women and children. Of the generals in the field, nine are white and four are mulattoes.

THE TERRIBLE MACHETE.

The insurgents, according to Mr. Vega, are pretty well provided with rifles and ammunition, but their favorite and most terrible weapon is the machete. About two and a half feet long and weighing about three pounds, with a straight blade as sharp as a razor, the machete in the hand of a native is a veritable sword of Achilles. At the terrible cry of "Ael Machete," the knees of the Spanish soldiers knock together and they glance toward Madrid. The Cuban does not draw his machete at a distance from the foe and charge as is usual with a sabre. He waits and draws at close quarters, for as the double-edged machete leaps from its scabbard it is swung with an upward stroke calculated to cut the legs of an enemy between the knees and thighs. If the draw is made at a distance, this stroke is lost. If the leg wound is not given as the machete is raised, it is brought down in such a way as to strike the right side of the neck just under the ear, the aim being to sever the head from the shoulders, and that a well-wielded machete will perform that service for a foe the many headless trunks of Spain's sons that have been found on Cuban battle fields attest. If the neck blow fails, the weapon is carried in front of the body with a vicious swish at the antagonist's abdomen. It is rare when some one of the three blows does not render hors de combat an enemy of Cuba whenever the Cubans are able to get to close quarters, to do which it is their tactics to direct all their efforts. With the machete, the stock of a rifle has been known to be cut entirely through by a single blow. The incident occurred during the early part of the war, being witnessed by many on both sides. Gen. Campos secured the rifle and sent it to Madrid as a proof of what the machete is capable of. It seems as if it was bad policy to send that gun home to be observed by young men whom it might become necessary to invite to join the army and help thrash the men who wielded such weapons.

MACHETE WILL WIN.

"The machete will win the independence of Cuba," said Mr. Vega. As to the losses on both sides, Mr. Vega says that it is estimated that the machete and dynamite have made away with 20,000 Spaniards and that the Cubans have lost about 4000 men.

Mr. Vega says that the "troche," or barricade, so much exploited by Weyler as a means of hedging in the Cubans to their destruction is no more of a hindrance than a picket fence and the insurgents pass it at will. They are practically untrammeled in their movements. They have been at Tapaste, a village three and a half miles from Havana, and also at a point from which part of the water supply is taken, about five miles from the capital. They have, also, taken the town of Punta Vraba, distant sixteen miles from Havana.

The report that Gen. Gomez is suffering with consumption, Mr. Vega declares is false. He says that the general, who is called the "Washington of Cuba," has yet many years of useful ness to his country, and bases his assertion on personal observation, having had an opportunity of seeing and talking with him before he left New York the last time to go into the field. Gen. Weyler, who is of Irish descent, is detested by the Cubans on account of his cruelties. Although he and his friends proclaim him a humane man, Mr. Vega says that the Cubans have positive proof that noncombatants have been slaughtered by his orders. Campos is esteemed as an honorable and generous enemy. He is a Cuban himself, according to stories current in the island, although he claims to have been born in Spain, in the province of Catalonia.

Alluding to Senor Labra, senator from Havana university, whose utterances in favor of granting to Cuba autonomy in a manner compatible with the maintenance of imperial sovereignty as a means of ending the war, have been quoted as an expression of the Cuban point of view and as voicing the ultimate desire of the Cubans, Mr. Vega laughed the idea to scorn. He said that liberty, absolute independence, is the goal on which his people have fixed their eyes, and nothing less will satisfy them. This Labra, said he, is in Spain called an "advanced Republican," and his position as representative from Cuba is pointed to as giving weight to his declaration. In the first place, so far as his being representative of Cuba goes, it is only necessary to say that his election was carried at the point of the bayonet and may be called a grim joke. Votes were cast only in a few cities that are directly under the eye of the Spanish authorities. Madrid calls him an "advanced Republican." In truth, he is an autonomist, which means he is an imperialist. He is of Spanish birth, also. He has resided in Spain the greater part of his life and he is even a resident of Cuba but in name.

Do not be hoodwinked. Use no "just as good." Salvation Oil is what you want when in need of a good liniment.

A 19th CENTURY MIRACLE.

A Newspaper Man Relates a Marvellous Story.

An Interesting Chapter in His Own Life—Some, We Hope, May Profit by Reading Same.

From the Herald, Columbia, Tenn.

Maury County is one of the richest and biggest and best counties in Tennessee. It would be an exaggeration to say that any one man knew every other man in this county, but it may safely be said that few, if any, can come nearer to it than Mr. Joe M. Foster, whose home is at Carter's Creek, and who is now connected with the Herald. In the interest of the Herald he has visited nearly every home in the county. Upon "state" occasions—that is, the Herald's annual pic-nic reunion he is the "Master of Ceremonies." There are few men better known, few better liked, none more trusted, and what he says the Herald, unconditionally and unequivocally, will vouch for.

To see him now in perfect health and energy, one would not think that two and a half years ago he was a bed-ridden invalid, a physical wreck, whose family physician, loved ones at home and friends all thought was soon to be called hence. But such is the case, and not only he but his family and a hundred friends will testify to it.

It was a peculiar affliction he had, and his cure was marvellous, his recovery a nineteenth century miracle. And that others may enjoy the blessings of the wonderful medicine which beyond the peradventure of a doubt—under God's blessing—saving his life, Mr. Foster—not desiring publicity but with the hope of doing good—has consented to tell of his sickness and his cure.

It was in the fall of 1892 he was taken ill. He was a farmer then, and had spent the day exposed to the weather and working in the field, and for five hours was in the mud, in a stooping position. In a few days thereafter he had a peculiar feeling in his feet and hands; they became numb and felt as if asleep.

But, perhaps, it would be better to let Mr. Foster tell his own experience, and this is what he says:

"Following the numbness of my feet and hands, that numbness spread until my whole body was paralyzed. I had a dreadful constriction around my body, and as I grew worse this extended up, cutting off my breathing; it finally got within a few inches of my throat and it was with difficulty that I breathed at all. At irregular intervals I had lightning pains throughout my entire body and limbs, and for at least five months I was perfectly helpless, and a man servant was kept in my room day and night to turn me in bed and wait upon me.

"In the earlier part of my illness my feet felt as if I was walking bare-footed on a stiff carpet. Soon I could not walk at all in the dark, and could not even stand alone with my eyes shut. I rapidly grew worse, and soon my limbs refused to carry me. Finally I lost my sense of feeling or touch, and could not tell when my feet were against each other, but felt all the while as if they were being pulled apart.

"In the beginning I had called in my family physician, a very successful practitioner. He put me on a treatment, with instructions to keep very quiet. But I continued to grow worse, and in about six weeks he told me, candidly and honestly, that he had done his best, that he had also advised with some of Columbia's leading physicians, giving them my symptoms, but that he could do nothing for me and it was useless for him to try any further. He and the physicians with whom he advised pronounced my disease locomotor ataxia, and incurable.

"He told my friends they could try anything they wished, and then I began trying everything that was suggested. I tried different kinds of electricity—belt pads, shocking machines and electropoise, with numberless kinds of medicines, both internally and externally, but all to no effect, until, about April 1st, 1893, a cousin, Mr. A. N. Aiken, of Columbia (who is now clerk and Master of the Chancery Court of this county), recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

"I began using them as per directions for locomotor ataxia, and in about one week some of my friends thought I was better; but it was two weeks before the improvement was plain to all and satisfactory to myself. Then, however, I knew the pills were doing their grand and glorious work, and I kept taking them until I could hobble about on crutches.

"It was suggested to me then that nature would do the rest, and I left off the pills. In about ten days I saw that I was going down hill again; I promptly renewed the pills, and again I began to improve. A second time I tried to leave the battle to a good constitution, but found it still too weak so I commenced on the pills again and kept taking them until I was well.

"I was in my fifty-first year when I was taken sick. It is now about two years since I discarded stick and crutch and found my legs strong enough to carry me. I am enjoying splendid health, weigh more and look better than for years, and attribute my health and my recovery and life to the magic of Pink Pills for Pale People, under the blessing of God.

"I have recommended these pills to a number of people, and many I know have been cured by them. I wish in my heart that every person on earth who is suffering as I was could get them and would try them.

"To those who know me, I hope it is not necessary for me to add that I make this statement of my own free will, without money and without price. But if there are any who are inclined to doubt, I will refer them to Dr. J. H. Hill, J. M. Hunter, R. D. Lockridge, Joe Terwell, Anderson Nichols, S. B. and G. W. Nichols, all of Carter's Creek, Maury County, Tenn., or if they will call upon me I will give them the names of a hundred witnesses of as good men and women as the sun ever shone upon.

"Hoping some poor sufferer may read and believe and be raised from a bed of pain, I am

Very respectfully,
JOE M. FOSTER,
Care of the Herald, Columbia, Tennessee."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are prepared by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., of Schenectady, N. Y., a firm whose ability and reliability are unquestioned. Pink Pills are not looked upon as a patent medicine, but as a prescription, having been used as such for years in general practice, and their successful results in curing various afflictions made it imperative that they be prepared in quantities to meet the demand of the public, and place them in reach of all. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, and the tired feeling resulting from nervous prostration, all diseases resulting from vitiated humors in the blood such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities, and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork, or excesses of whatever nature.

Pink Pills are sold in boxes (never in loose form by the dozen or hundred, and the public are cautioned against numerous imitations sold in this shape) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company.

ASSESSMENT FOR Public Park.

Office of the Board of Public Works,
Duluth, Minn., May 22, 1896.

Notice is hereby given that the board of park commissioners of the city of Duluth has filed its report in the office of the board of public works of the city of Duluth, showing it has caused the parkway space between the curb and the sidewalk line on both sides of Superior street in the city of Duluth to be improved by the planting of shade trees at a cost of eighteen hundred and thirty ($1830) dollars; and that the board of public works of said city will meet at their office in the city hall in said city on Friday, the 5th day of June, A. D. 1896, at 10 o'clock a. m. to make an assessment for the amount of the special benefit beyond the general benefit to all real estate in the city derived from such improvement upon the real estate that may be found and determined to be specially benefited thereby. The highest amount in the aggregate of said special benefit to be so assessed has been determined by said board of public works to the sum of nine hundred fifteen ($915) dollars.

All lands in said city to which special benefits result from said improvement will be assessed in proportion, as near as may be, to the special benefits resulting thereto from said improvement. All persons interested in said proceedings shall have the right to be present and be heard at said time and place in relation to the making of said assessment.

ORDER FOR HEARING APPLICATION FOR APPOINTMENT OF ADMINISTRATOR.—

State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis —ss.

In Probate Court, Special Term, May 15th, 1896.

In the matter of the estate of Francois Roy, deceased:

On receiving and filing the petition of J. AMONG THE SPORTS.

Outside the preparations for the annual Memorial day road race, which have filled up the time pretty well, the week has been a dull one in local sports. For some of the local sports, however, referring to humanity and not to the abstract idea, it has not been a bit lively. His excellency the governor, who, as election approaches, is even more down upon the use of self-defense than ever, is responsible for the amusement which some of them have received. Last week six sports from Virginia experienced the governor's wrath at pugilism, and Monday they began to pay the penalty by spending various periods in the county jail, the principals for ninety days, the limit, and the seconds for forty-five days.

Monday night again the governor and Robert Benson tried to do the same trick for Jimmy Murphy and his entertainment, but the sheriff and the mayor, being more acquainted with the facts in the case than the governor, and more just than Mr. Benson, saw no reason for interfering, and the entertainment took place.

Nevertheless, the entertainment suffered somewhat from this attempt to hold it up, not only in attendance, but in warmth. It was still pleasing, however, and it gave Murphy's gymnasium a start. The go between Patterson and Murphy was handicapped by the overhanging shadow of the governor's message to the sheriff, but for points it was interesting still.

The weather has not been particularly conducive to outside sports for a month. The high school boys managed to squeeze in their field day between rain storms, but they did not get a good day. Still, it was better than it was last year, when there was a hideous compound of rain, snow and wind. The field day was a good one, however, aside from the weather conditions. The list of events was one calculated to give any amount of sport, and it did.

William Morrison won six firsts, one second, one third; Walter Lafans won three firsts, two seconds, two thirds. They were easily the winners, and Morrison received the gold medal and Lafans the silver medal.

The Superior field day, which was to have taken place June 6, and in which the Duluth winners were to take part, is off.

Today and tomorrow the Minneapolis Browns were dated to play Duluth at the West End grounds. The Browns are said to be a strong team. Their catcher is from the university team, one of their pitchers is from the Minneapolis league team and another from Mankato's last year's team, and several of their other players are from the Minneapolis league team or among country clubs. The lines are as follows:

Browns.	Duluth.
Joe Werrick..second base	Girard
Bert Walker ....catcher	Connors
L. Townsend...short stop	Fitch
John Hemstock..first base	J. Conrad
Reddy Nicol...third base	Fleming
Ted Corbett....center field	McCallum
John Patterson..right field	Neff
Fleschan .....pitchers	Hines

Early in the week the Duluth Spiders defeated the West Duluth Stars in a lively game by a score of 10 to 4. The winners are made up as follows: Fred di Marco, captain and short stop; Frank Burton, pitcher and second base; Ed Dahl, catcher; Oscar Dahl, pitcher and first base; Joe Miller, third base; John Bodgett, right field; John McLaughlin, center field; Hugh Brown, left field.

The first medal shoot of the Central Gun club took place on the Spirit Lake grounds this week. Being the first, the scores were not up to the average of the club members, but they will do better next time. The class medal shoot scores were as follows: Snell, 21; Bonehill, 20; Moork, 18; Warren, 17; Carver, 16; Sachem, Little, 14; West, 13; Williams, 12; Kenney, 9. This is out of twenty-five birds. Snell won the Class A medal and Warren the Class B medal.

Snell won the unknown angle medal by the same score as the class medal. The scores follow: Snell, 21; Bonehill, 20; Sachem, 16; Moork, 16; Carver, 14; West, 12; Kenney, 11. The scores of an extra event, ten birds at known angles, were as follows: Sachem, 9; Williams, 9; Bonehill, 8; Snell, 8; Warren, 8; Little, 8; Moork, 7; West, 6; Kenney, 5.

The club will have a practice shoot tomorrow afternoon, and the next medal shoot will be held on the afternoon of June 7.

It is doubtful at this writing whether Handspring will start in the Belmont stakes on Tuesday, June 2, says Black and Blue in the New York Mail and Express. His owner, Mr. Dwyer, believes that the royal son of Hanover has an excellent chance to defeat the handicap division on the following Thursday in the Brooklyn handicap, and so it is doubtful whether he will ask the colt to carry a penalty in the Belmont on Tuesday and give him a hard race against such lively colts as Hamilton II and Hastings. Trainer McCabe is confident that Handspring will be one of the starters in the Brooklyn handicap, and so it is not probable that he will be asked to run for the Belmont. Speaking about the Belmont, it is worth mentioning that of the Marcus Daly lot, the black colt, Hamilton II, son of Iroquois and Carlotta, has shown radical improvement of late in his work, and unless all signs fail, will be a colt of much merit this year. Hamilton II and his stable companion, Silver II, showed so well in their work last season, that Trainer Matt Byrnes was justified in believing that he had in them two stake horses of high quality. They proved to be disappointments, but the promise of their earlier work is being carried out and I should not be surprised to see the son of Iroquois run a great race in the Belmont.

All the indications are that the contest for the Brooklyn handicap will be in every way interesting from the flag-fall to finish, and, indeed, not in years, have we had so bright a promise of a great race among the champions of the turf. This turf event at Gravesend is scheduled for Thursday, June 4. Of the Blemton lot both Henry of Navarre and Keenan will be ready to carry the maroon silk. Trainer Rogers has the Western champion, Clifford, trained to the hour, and I do not recall when the son of Bramble looked so well; he has also his speed with him. The Metropolitan winner, Counter Tenor, and the Brooklyn handicap winner of last year, Hornpipe, will both be fit to run for the prize.

Lazzarone, the champion of the Erle stable, whose Suburban race last season will not be forgotten for many years, is now at Sheepshead Bay, with his stable companion, Nanki Pooh, and both are doing so well in their work that many clever people will support them for the big race. Sir Walter, of course, game and sturdy, will be a candidate. There is much speculation as to the condition of the Preakness horse, Belmar, who is as game as any thoroughbred in a race. Belmar is at his best estate just now, considering that the race is ten or eleven days away, and by the time he is called upon for this contest will be ready to the hour. It is hoped that Simms will ride him, which will be a great advantage to the horse, but if P. J. Dwyer should persist in his opinion that Handspring has a good chance of winning, Simms, of course, will have to find another jockey for Belmar.

In the eighth inning of the Cleveland-Pittsburg game at the latter place the other day Cleveland wanted a new ball. The old one was thrown down and fell in front of the Cleveland players' bench. Childs stepped on it and drove it down into the soft earth. Then two Cleveland men stood over it while Merritt looked for it. The reporters had seen the trick and told Merritt where the ball was. Then one of the Cleveland backed it out of the mud and threw it into the Cleveland players' bench. The umpire had seen the play and ordered the ball to be thrown out. After some hesitancy the Cleveland men threw it out. Tebeau had watched the whole play in silence, but when he saw it would not work he called out in an angry tone: "Throw that ball out. And don't ever let me catch any of you playing a trick like that again."

Manager Watkins of the Indianapolis team keeps his men right in hand. He does not believe in late nights and followed by early morning sorrow. One of his players who oversteps the limit that has been set pays for it, and dearly too. All his men are in bed by 11 o'clock and are up by 7 in the morning. Mr. Watkins sees to this himself, and anyone who transgresses has to give a mighty good account of himself to escape. Two cigars a day are allowed, one after supper and one after going to bed. The use of tobacco is tabooed during the day entirely, while intoxicating liquors are absolutely forbidden at all times and places. At the table a liberal regimen is allowed, but nothing that can be in any way injurious is allowed the players. Pastry is frowned on, and all precautions are taken to keep the men in the best condition.

"The funniest game of ball ever played in America took place on the New York polo grounds five years ago," says Digby Bell. "It was for the benefit of Carl Rankin, the comedian. Dixey was the pitcher, Dave Hopper, yours truly and Bill Hoey played on the bases. Francis Wilson was short, and Dick Golden, Lew Dockstader and Jimmy Powers were in the outfield. An advance agent named Clark was the backstop. Pete Daly was the umpire. Pete wore a Macbeth armor and a fur cap, with a pair of ear-muffs, and carried a pair of revolvers. Every time he called a strike he discharged a blank cartridge. He gave Hoey a base on balls and Billy made a dive for the first base, wiping up the grass with his Old Hoey facial goats. Whenever a run was made Pete went to third base and drew a glass of beer from a barrel on tap. As the score was 26 to 24, you can imagine Pete's condition at the end of the game. When Billy Hoey took the outfield for the first inning he walked clear to the corner of the polo grounds, or about six blocks from the home plate. 'Where are you going, Bill? Home?' yelled Daly. 'Nop; just down here to stop stray balls; Dixey is pitching,' said Bill. Daly sent a file of stage soldiers after Bill and ordered them to escort him to his normal position. Jimmy Powers was one of the hits of the game. He wore a Nadjy shirt, smoked a brier pipe, and every time he got a base he sprinkled the base line with the contents of a water pot and took a couple of reefs in his skirts. Billy Hoey made a three-base hit and refused to move off the bag till Pete Daly bought a bottle of wine, which Billy 'split' with the opposition pitcher."

INFANT PRODIGY.

A Japanese Poem---The Work of Ghosts.

I have no intention to try the reader's patience with a description of pictures, says a writer in the Atlantic Monthly. I mention my visit to the display only because of something I saw there more interesting than any picture. Near the main entrance was a specimen of Japanese writing, intended to be mounted on a kakkemono later on, and temporarily fixed upon a board about three feet long by eighteen inches wide—a Japanese poem. It was a wonder of calligraphy. Instead of the usual red stamp or seal with which the Japanese calligrapher marks his masterpieces, I saw the red imprint of a tiny, tiny hand—a living hand, which had been smeared with crimson printing ink and deftly pressed upon the paper. I could distinguish all those little finger marks of which Mr. Galton has taught us the characteristic importance.

That writing had been done in the presence of his imperial majesty by a child of 6 years or of 5, according to our Western method of computing age from date of birth. The prime minister, Marquis Ito, saw the miracle and adopted the little boy, whose present name is, therefore, Ito Medzul.

Even Japanese observers could scarcely believe the testimony of their own eyes. Few adult calligraphers could surpass that writing. Certainly no accidental artist, even after years of study, could repeat the feat performed by the brush of that child before the emperor. Of course, such a child can be born but once in a thousand years—to realize, or almost realize, the ancient Chinese legends of divinely inspired writers.

Still, it was not the beauty of the thing in itself which impressed me, but the weird, extraordinary, indubitable proof it afforded of an inherent memory so vivid as to be almost equal to the recollection of former births. Generations of dead calligraphers revived in the finger of that tiny hand. The thing was never the work of an individual child 5 years old, but beyond all question the work of ghosts—the countless ghosts that make the compound ancestral soul. It was proof visible and tangible of psychological and physiological wonders, justifying both the Shinto doctrine of ancestor worship and the Buddhist doctrine of pre-existence.

The first newspaper ever printed was a sheet published at Strasburg in 1609 by Johan Carolus. In a letter from Venice, dated Sept. 4, in the first number, Galileo's discovery of the telescope is announced. "The government has added 100 crowns to the pension of Master Galileo Galilei, of Florence, professor at Padua, because he has invented an instrument which enables one to see distant places as if they were quite near."

DIALOGUE IN THE NIGHT.

Eastern Argus: The man in the upper berth leaned over its edge and, jamming his frown firmly down on his brow, cried in a harsh, coarse voice that was audible above the rattle and rumble of the engine:

"Hi! you, down there. Are you rich?"

"Heh?" ejaculated the man in the lower berth, almost swallowing his Adam's apple. "Whazzer mazzer?"

"I say, are you rich?"

"What's that, sir! Rich? What do you mean by waking me up in the middle of the night to ask me such a question as that?"

"I want to know—that's why."

"Well, then, confound you, I am rich. Now I hope your curiosity is satisfied and you will let me go to sleep."

"Very rich?"

"Millionaire, confound you. Now shut up and—"

"Well, then, why in torment don't you charter a whole train to do your snoring in?"

THE BICYCLE WORLD.

The unwheeled individual of the city who wearies of the craze need not fly to vast wildernesses or boundless contiguity of shade in expectation of relieving the sight, for lo, the wheel is everywhere.

If the poet Gray had lived now he doubtless would not have had to say: "The weary plowman homeward wends his way." Of course, no one is authorized to say how he would have put it, but it would have been something like this:

The jocund plowman homeward wheels his way.

The city individual who goes to the country at this season will find the landscape alive with cyclists. In unexpected places and in unexpected ways these wheels are to be found and used.

A few days ago a reporter for the Chicago Chronicle was in a country town on business. Having transacted that business he sat in the doorway of the hotel waiting for the time when the omnibus would call for passengers for the train. The landlord was sociable, as such landlords are. The doorway of the house looked upon a white street on which the sunshine had fallen all day with more force than is usually the case at this season. Either side of the thoroughfare was lined with trees far advanced in a leafy way. The decline of the day had come and there was a sort of drowsiness in the air. The picture from the tavern door was a pretty one.

The landlord had asked his guest if he rode the wheel, and was informed that he did not. Then the landlord said he supposed that everybody in his town rode the wheel, and most of the population owned wheels. While he was telling the guest saw another sight which added to the rural aspect of the village. A cowbell tinkled in the lazy manner of all cowbells, and the animal on which the bell was collared wabbled down the street. She was of the Jeresey breed, and her sleek condition showed that she was well cared for. As the cow neared the corner a boy on a wheel was sighted several rods in the rear.

"Now, there is a sight you don't often see in Chicago," said the landlord.

His guest agreed, and added that the city ordinances did not permit cows to roam on the streets.

"I don't mean the cow, or at least, not altogether," said the landlord. "Do you see that boy on the wheel?"

The guest said that was not sight to a man in a city.

"But you don't seem to catch on," said the landlord. "You don't often see, perhaps never, a boy driving a cow home on a wheel."

That was so. The guest saw what the landlord was getting at.

"Every afternoon," continued the landlord, "that boy passes here on his way to the pastures beyond to hunt his cow and drive her home, and he always finds her, and he drives her by here about this time every afternoon. The cow understands it, so the boy tells me, and when she sees him coming on his wheel she turns her head homeward. Now, when you and I were boys we went to the pastures and bottoms barefooted—at least I did—and had to wade in the mud, knee deep, and get our legs and faces scratched with bramble, and ache from the effects all night. But now they are driving cows home on the wheels. The boy of today does not know his luck. Aside from that, however," continued the landlord, "it was this very sight, of this boy driving home his cow, in this way, that prompted me to learn to ride. I thought to myself if a cow can be taught to obey a command from a wheel, I ought to learn to ride. Not that I have any cows to hunt, but I think a man ought to know as much as a cow."

The guest told of this incident that night in the smoking room of a sleeping car.

"That's nothin'," said one of the listeners, who was a good deal of a traveler. "I know a farmer in Central Illinois who has a herd of fine cattle—I think several hundred. He has that herd watched as carefully as a shepherd watches his flock. He employs several farm hands, and every one of them must know how to ride a bicycle. Every morning, so I was told, the several employes mount their wheels and drive the herd of cattle to water and then to the grazing grounds, and all day long the wheelmen herd the cattle, and then drive them home in the evening. I went out to that farm one day just to see that sight. Before that I took a dislike to bicycles, and came very near having a scene in my house because I would not consent to my daughter's wish to buy her a wheel. When I saw the farm hands on wheels driving in that herd of cattle it presented the bicycle to me in a different light from what I had seen it. I saw in the wheel something that was practical. It lost in my estimation a good deal that had been objectionable."

Another man in the smoking room said he saw something on the banks of a Wisconsin lake a few days before that presented the wheel in a new light.

"I had gone out to the lake to do a little fishing," he said, "although the weather was a trifle cool. Well, when I got out to the best place, as I had been told, I saw something ahead of me which I had to look at twice before I could make sure that I was alive. There sat a man on a wheel. He wore some old clothes, but I swear to you he was sitting there casting out his line and drawing in fish. He had several good bites while I was there. His can of bait hung on the cross bar, and he seemed to be as completely at home in his fishing as he would if he had been sitting in the old-fashioned way. I said to myself: 'It's no use. There is no way of fishing as we used to. We must fish from wheels,' and as I had no wheel and couldn't have balanced myself on one if I had, I withdrew."

"Well, gentlemen," said a young man who had been listening and whose general make-up proclaimed him quite advanced and fresh, "I wonder what you would have thought if you had been out in Kansas with me last week. I was caught in town not far from Emporia over Sunday and had nothing to do but follow the crowd, most of which rode bicycles. They landed in a church. I landed with them. I saw the preacher go into the pulpit and I knew from the hang of his trousers and their crumpled appearance at the bottom that he was a wheelman, and the man whom I asked about it said my conjecture was right. The sermon was nothing out of the ordinary, but the last song the congregation worked off caught me, and then I understood the expression I had heard—'wheel crazy.' The first verse of the old hymn was lined out by the young preacher as follows:

"Am I a rider for the cross,
A scorcher for a lamb?

"The next line of the second verse almost made me fall off the bench:

"Must I be carried to the skies
On flowery beds of ease?
Not while I've got a wheel, old man,
I'll make the course with ease.

"The congregation fairly whooped it up on that verse and, after the preacher had announced that that was collection day for swelling the road fund between Emporia and the church and the hat was passed, I plunked in a gold two-and-a-half piece. I thought they deserved that much from my house. I wrote my wife right away to sell the horse and buggy and put the proceeds into a wheel. But she telegraphed back that she couldn't get a bid on the horse, and I am going on to trade off all I have for a wheel. When it comes to this that the bicycle business must have its own hymns in church I give in."

NEW AND SPEEDY UNICYCLE.

If his calculations are based on good judgment W. T. Kuhn, a young Brooklyn mechanic employed in a bicycle repair shop, is destined to revolutionize things in the world of wheels. For several months this young genius has been secretly working on a unicycle which, he claims, will show greater speed and maintain a balance with less exertion than is spent on the two-wheeled machines that are in use today. After considerable thought and experimenting he at last discovered what he claims will maintain a man's equilibrium on a unicycle, or single wheel. They are two hollow bulbs, containing a moving mechanism, which project fore and aft of the wheel beneath the saddle. What kind of mechanism the bulbs contain the inventor refuses to disclose, claiming that it is a simple idea and one that will astonish the cycle trade when it is made public. The tire is of the ordinary pneumatic order, made twice the usual weight, to make it twice as strong. The runing gear of the model is eighty inches, but can be made to suit the rider. The weight of the machine is twenty-three pounds. It is the patentee's belief that a man or woman can get greater speed out of one of his new machines than those in use, from the fact that there is less friction in a single wheel.

GROOMS RIDING BICYCLES.

The bicycle has brought a new personality into view in New York—the cycling groom is the envy of his employer. He is a feature of the wheeling panorama. One may see him almost any day in the park or on the Riverside drive, pedaling along in proud attendance upon some little son or daughter of millions. Sometimes he is a colored man, sometimes a trim, smug-faced and clean shaven servitor of the familiar type of English coachman or footman. His raiment is ever neat to nicety, his linen spotless, his beaver as shiny as much ironing can make it, his cockade bristling and his back as ramrodlish and his demeanor as haughty as they were in the old ante-bicycle days when his perch was on the seat of the rich man's brougham.

FOR CARRYING BUNDLES.

Numerous kinds of bundle-carrying attachments are appearing on the market every week. The newest of its kind consists of a pivoted wire frame. It can be folded to any desired size, and when in use is applied to the fork of the wheel directly under the handle bar. When not in use it is folded up, and in this form takes up comparatively little room. It is large enough to hold bundles and packages of ordinary size without hampering the rider of the wheel in the least.

TRICYCLE FOR INVALIDS.

Heretofore the bicycle has been a luxury that could only be afforded by individuals provided with money to spare. At present, however, inventors and manufacturers are improving the wheel in such a manner as to make it a boon for invalids. The latest invention of this kind was put on the market the other day. It is a tricycle on the two rear wheels of which a reclining chair for sick persons is supported. The saddle is supported by suitable crossbars, and the front wheel is operated and controlled by the rider in the usual manner. This tricycle is surprisingly light in its construction and can be propelled with great ease. Persons afflicted with illness, who are now wheeled about with considerable difficulty, will find great pleasure in this new tricycle. All that is required is an able bodied man to operate it. In many respects this tricycle takes the place of a carriage, which few can afford.

THE SCORCHER RESPONSIBLE.

Though two chancellors of the exchequer have in succession refused to impose a tax on bicycles, there is reason to believe that the English government is considering the introduction of some sort of licensing system. It is not for the sake of raising a revenue that bicycles must be licensed, but for the sake of protecting the pedestrian and the better behaved bicyclist, too, from the tyranny of the scorcher. The home office and the police have, in fact, begun to realize that the bicycle, which is an instrument of health and pleasure to so many thousands of men and women, is also a dangerous weapon in the hands either of the reckless and or the deliberate criminal. The licensing of bicycles would not entirely disable either pest of society, but it would impose considerable prudential restraints upon them. The actual scheme before the government seems to be a proposal that every bicycle should be numbered and its owner's name registered. A small fee would be paid for registration, and the profit would go into relief of local rates.

SEVEN-DAY TOUR OF GIRLS.

About the middle of next month three young women will start for a week's vacation on their wheels. They will travel without male escort, each of the tourists being a self-reliant American girl. One of them says in regard to the forthcoming trip:

"A great many girls and women who are expert bicyclists can only afford one week's holiday, and during these all too short seven days their aim is to get all the enjoyment and healthful amusement they can. Of course, the first and most essential thing to accomplish is to secure congenial companionship, for during the week spent on their wheels they must needs see and hear a good deal of each other. Then it is necessary for the girl who is going to live for a whole week on a wheel to know exactly what she must take with her and what she must leave behind. She must wear a sensible bicycle suit, which can stand an occasional wetting without looking the worse, and, instead of a shirt waist, it would be advisable to wear a sweater or dark India silk waist, which won't suffer much in the back and won't show dust in the wear.

"We are all agreed that bloomers would be absurd on such a trip as this. We shall all wear divided skirt suits, reaching to the top of our ordinary shoes, and leather leggings. This really brings the baggage down to underwear changes and the necessary toilet requisites, which can, with a little skill, be made into a neat, compact little parcel and strapped securely on in front of the handle bars. One of the new sun umbrellas, now used on bicycles, would be a great addition to the comfort of the girl on a wheeling tour intent, and also a great preservative of both complexion and temper, for it's awful hard for a woman to be sweet when she knows she looks like a boiled lobster. We are going out solely for pleasure, with no sacrilegious thoughts of record breaking or of covering ground anyhow, without glances to right or left, pervading they cover space. We leave all the scorching to the sun, and even that we shall avoid as much as possible.

"We propose to jog along very easily. One reason why there will be no men with us is that no man would be willing to take so slow a trip. We shall not ride more than thirty miles a day on the direct road. The total road distance to be covered is 186 miles. It is probable that we shall make short excursions out from the various towns where we stop. The expense of the trip will be—you will be amused when I tell you—$14 each for living expenses. Pretty cheap vacation—eh?"

SOME BICYCLE APHORISMS.

It is easier to climb a hill on asphalt than to ride over the little bumps of a rough stone pavement. It is the petty annoyances of life, and not the strain of great achievements that wear men out.

The old style bicycle began to disappear as soon as it was called the "ordinary." Universal acceptance is the precursor of oblivion.

The man who can ride in the gutter without hitting the curb could not ride as near the brink of a river bank without falling in. The realization of impending danger makes disaster almost inevitable.

The scorcher can boast of his records, but the slow rider enjoys the beauties of land and sky which the former never sees. Successful men sometimes waste their lives in amassing a fortune and neglect pleasures and opportunities that are within the reach of all.

The minister, the professor, the doctor when on their bicycles give the right-of-way to the driver of a beer wagon. We yield in daily affairs, not to our superiors, but to those who happen to have the power to harm us.

When the pneumatic tube is punctured we wish for the solid tire. The good old times had some advantage over these days of modern conveniences.

The slow bicycle wobbles; the swiftly-moving wheel does not swerve, but it is liable to accident. A small business is always insecure; a large one prospers by the very momentum of success till the crash comes.

There is a down grade after every hill, but the head wind cannot be trusted to change in one's favor. It is possible to overcome an ordinary obstacle so that further progress will be easier, but the man who goes contrary to popular prejudice can never be sure that the opposition will abate.

TEMPERANCE SOCIETIES ALERT.

Temperance societies in New York have hit upon the practical plan of establishing along the popular bicycle roads lounging rooms where soft drinks are to be served. Soda pop and lemonade at trifling cost are to be pitted against road-house beer. The wheelmen are said to be pleased with the outlook. The bicycle promises to do more than the gold cure for the cause of temperance. Newspaper and magazine writers have already begun to comment on the change in the habits of young men who are given to bicycling. Instead of wasting their idle hours in saloons or lounging about the boarding houses, the wheelmen have taken to the country roads. Intoxicants of all kinds are eschewed by enthusiastic wheelmen. A long ride in the sun is practically impossible if the system is heated with drink, and the discreet wheelmen will have none of it.

OIL ONCE IN 100 MILES.

To know how to oil a bicycle is necessary to a rider's comfort. After the wheel has been washed, begin at the middle hole in the axle of the front wheel, turn steel hand until the oil hole is exposed, and use from three to four drops of oil. Next the lower steering or head bearing should receive attention, and should be oiled frequently, two drops being used at a time. The oil hole to this part can be easily found, as it is directly in front. Then turn to the upper head bearing. The oil hole to this part, being an adjustable ring, is not always in the same place, but can be found on one side or the other. Two drops of oil are sufficient for lubrication. Axle bearings require about three drops of oil. Some wheels have a spring clip cover on the center tube, through which the oil can be applied, while others must be oiled at the inner end in the narrow crack, where the pedal revolves on its pin. The rear wheel bearing can be oiled through the hole in the middle of the axle, the same as was done with the front wheel, and takes about three drops of oil. A wheel should be oiled at least once in every 100 miles, and the pedals need about three drops in every 500 miles. The joints in the chain should be oiled about once a month and then wiped off.

SOME BICYCLE PROVERBS.

One man can set a beginner on a bicycle, but ten can't keep him there.
Too many bicycles spoil a walk.
The world's a cycle, and all society merely cyclists.

Never run over a magistrate; the pleasure is not worth the cost.
Where there's a way there's a wheel.
Mount in haste and the dust you'll taste.
Tyred horses never grow weary.
A novice and her bike are soon parted.
A stone goes before a fall.
Spare the pump and spoil the tire.

Breath Brought Back

A Curious Case of Weakened Heart-action.

A West Virginian Who Could Not Move Without Exhaustion Within Two Weeks Runs Half a Mile Without Effort.

Whitefield, W. Va., May 29.—(Special.)—The good people of our town are about to form an anti-tobacco-using club. The direct reason for this agitation is the remarkable cure of Col. D. R. Banks, who for a long time enjoyed the palm as the greatest stogie smoker in West Virginia.

The colonel said tonight: "Yes, I smoked over twenty years, and over two hundred stogies a week. Always smoked five at a time. I was always an active man, and thought I was thoroughly sound, but one day I had to make a run to catch a train, and in less than a hundred yards, I fell over apparently lifeless. My heart had stopped beating.

"'Tobacco-heart,' said the doctor who brought me back to life. Another attack was likely to be fatal, for most cases of death from 'heart-failure' are really cases of tobacco-heart. That set me figuring on a cure.

"Well, I am cured. Took two boxes of No-To-Bac and it cured me. Can run half a mile now without a long breath, or any oppression. I tell you it's great stuff," and the colonel dug his knuckles into the reporter's ribs and chuckled. "There are no flies on No-To-Bac. When you get old and worn-out, think you're no good, just use it now and then. It will waken forgotten sensations, and you can't sit still for feeling good."

The colonel's experience is that which hundreds of thousands of former tobacco users have enjoyed. No-To-Bac quickly, naturally and permanently stops tobacco-using, makes weak men strong and brings back vitality and vigor. Your own druggist sells it under absolute guarantee to cure or money refunded. Fashion Facts for the Fair....

The most attractive things in fashion this season are seen in the unique combination of color and materials, and in the varied accessories of dress. It is all very suggestive of extravagance, and yet innumerable sorts of economies in a smart appearance are brought about with unusual and fashionable results, because of the mixture of colors and materials used in one gown, says the Chicago Journal.

Any combination between gauze and inexpensive wool serge is permissible, and odd lengths can be utilized more successfully than ever, since all the latest Parisian models have bodices different from the skirts and sleeves. Fanciful fashions always favor economy in dress, and with white or colored silk or satin for the foundation waist a garment can be made very pretty with lace, net, ribbon or embroidered lawn for the outside, with the vest and epaulets of still another material, if desired, while the collar and belt of velvet, satin or fancy ribbon furnish another use for odds and ends.

The latest novelty in dress materials is a very ordinary hemp sacking woven, of course, with heavy threads and very open mesh. Some Paris dressmaker has introduced this, and, while it looks very innocent and cheap, the gowns are made very expensive with elegant silk and satin linings and outside decorations of embroidery. Insertions with colored ribbons underneath are used, and the whole effect is not at all suggestive of the low-priced sackcloth. Another material called "bure" is very popular, especially in brown; it resembles poplin and mohair, or something between them, which is a little like each one.

SHIMMER OF SILK.

The whole tendency in dress materials this season is to produce something transparent enough to necessitate a silk lining and display the shot effects to good advantage, but there is a new substitute for silk, called "suraline," which has a very pretty gloss and an industrious sort of a rustle for those who cannot afford the more expensive lining. Beige colored canvas over pale blue makes a charming dress with a plain skirt and a Louis XVI coat finished with a band of black satin around the bottom and two large pearl buttons at the back. The vest may be of chiffon, lace, or almost anything you choose, but silk handkerchiefs in subdued blue, green and red tints are very pretty for this purpose, with two pointed ends trimmed around with narrow lace falling below the wide belt of black satin. These wide belts of bias satin slightly draped around the figure are a distinct feature of the new gowns, and some of them are fastened directly in front with three stiff bows of the same satin.

Among the endless variety of gowns for summer wear are those of coarsely gained alpaca, and four or five rows of narrow braid trim some of the skirts. One costume in navy blue has a blouse waist and sleeves of checked silk and a fichu cape like the skirt with plaited frills around the edge.

WAISTS MULTIPLY.

Fancy waists show no sign of waning popularity; on the contrary, the variety increases and becomes more attractive all the time. One model of flowered silk has double frills of lace over the shoulders and white chiffon draped to the front and tied with a large bow, fastened with a gold buckle. Another buckle fastens the belt, which is of silk, and passes through and under the fullness of the bodice in front. Another example carried out in flowered silk has a vest and close sleeves of puffed ivory mousseline de soie and Valenciennes insertion, and the wide frills of silk over the shoulders are edged with lace.

A striped silk waist has bias ruffles of silk trimmed with narrow lace across the front and the one is cut wide enough to shirr into a tiny yoke and neckband, and forms a collar across the back.

Grass lawn and ecru, cream, and white is a leading material among the thin waists for wear in warm weather as well as for entire dresses, and the sheer qualities almost like chiffon are very desirable made over colored silk. Insertions of embroidered cream grass lawn, arranged to form a plaid on pure white over pale blue, form the daintiest kind of a bodice, with a pale blue ribbon collar and belt. The variety of patterns in grass lawn are beyond description, but the latest novelty is the chine effect, which is more attractive than all the others, pretty as they are with colored flowers and stripes traced with gold thread.

DIVERSITY IN SLEEVES.

The diversity in waists is exceeded only by the surprising possibilities for variety which the present revoluton in sleeves has brought forth. The large puffs, so becoming to most women and so comfortable for all, must go sooner or later; at least, so we are informed, and meanwhile we are to be consoled and diverted from the inevitable and final result by the medley of styles presented for our use. This gradual downfall of a favorite fashion is an ingenious device of the dress designers to boom their business, since change is the power which keeps them moving—to which everybody periodically and meekly submits. Their methods are subtile and very pleasing, but they are sure to produce the desired effect; and unless women rebel against the tight sleeve, as they did against the advent of crinoline, they will soon have to endure all its discomforts or be out of fashion.

The smaller sleeve means narrower skirts and the smaller hats to bring about a correct proportion of size, so the diminished sleeve will be responsible for various changes in our attire.

The small hat is a thing to be desired by every one, and will be hailed with delight by those who have had the irritating experience of trying to catch an occasional glimpse of the theater stage with two or three large hats ranged up in front; but the departure of the moderately full skirt is to be deplored, as it is the prettiest, most graceful skirt we have had for years.

One distinctive feature of the fashionable sleeve is the length; and if you would be strictly in the fashion you can have no medium between the very long and the elbow sleeve which leads the style for all thin gowns. Butterfly puffs, or drapery drawn through a knot at the top of a tight sleeve, is one of the prettiest of the newer styles, and then there are double puffs with a band between, lengthwise cuffs and puffs of all sizes and kinds. Double frills of lace surmounted by loops of satin ribbon make a pretty finish for the top of a close sleeve. All the tight sleeves which have appeared thus far have some sort of drapery or epaulet frills falling over the arms at the top to distract one's attention from the real thing underneath, but some of the models are very pretty, in spite of the future in sleeves which they anticipate.

STARTLING FOOTGEAR.

For the first time in many years it falls to the lot of the chronicler of styles to announce that there are pronounced novelties in shoes and stockings. Moreover, the sovereignty of black hosiery is seriously threatened, and there are many aspiring pretenders which may usurp its place. Perhaps the change is due to the slow-working influence of the tan shoe and stocking, which have familiarized the populace with feet and ankles not clad in solemn black. Perhaps the gaudy golf stocking is responsible for the innovation, or perhaps it is simply an out-and-out revolt. At any rate, stockings of divers hues and manifold designs are being made and are, moreover, being worn.

But the Scotch plaids and the Roman stripes are not the only signs that the days of plain black stockings are numbered. There is blue silk hosiery that will make glad the heart of the girl with a fondness for blue serge gowns. The blue stockings come in various shades from a dark electric to a navy. They are adorned with white silk dots over the instep and ankle and with white silk clocks. Their promise is limited to the low russet shoe, which, by the way, is unusually pretty this spring. Some of the blue stockings have their stripes of white running vertically at a distance of about a quarter of an inch apart. Others have horizontal lines separated by blue spaces of two or three inches.

Red silk stockings of the warm shade that used to rejoice the little girls of a couple of decades ago are making a sort of tentative appearance. Their brilliancy is toned down—or, perhaps, accentuated—by a mixture with black.

Black stockings make three bids for popularity in spite of their brilliant-hued rivals. They either start out somberly enough at the toe and remain unlightened to a little above the shoe top, there to bloom into lavender, pink, or blue; or they show insteps scattered with yellow, red, blue, or pink dots and blossoms; or they display such delicate designs in open work that they are irresistible. Their sphere of usefulness is confined to wear with low shoes of black patent leather or with black satin slippers.

Bronze leather is enjoying a revival in dress shoes and slippers. In Oxford ties for carriage and dress wear it is sometimes decorated with bronze beads and sometimes it is severely plain, except for brown satin lacings. The bronze slippers are among the prettiest possible things. They have tiny, stiff bows of the leather about an inch wide, spangled with bronze beads. Or they have quaint straps, bound with bronze ribbon and beaded. Or they have open-work toes, and these are regarded as the prettiest of all. A star-shaped perforation edged with bronze beads permits the stocking to be seen underneath.

Low shoes, whether russet or black, have not the finishing touch of elegance unless they are combined of leather and vesting. The tops are of the vesting, which exactly matches the leather in shade, but which boasts a pin dot of white. The effect is remarkably pretty.

ABOUT COIFFURES.

Bangs Are Coming Into Favor Again.

Some women will rejoice and others will regret to learn that the bang has come into vogue again. The Madonna part, the ascending pompadour and all other styles must give way to it, says our New York letter.

This new bang bears but little resemblance to the bang worn a few years ago. Instead of forming a bushy fringe, almost entirely covering the forehead, it leaves much of the forehead bare and is just an effective grouping of carelessly curled locks. That the curls simulate the shape of a heart adds only to its piquancy. To save the trouble of arranging one's own hair in this heart-shaped fashion, and also to protect it from the daily curling process, the cupid bang may be bought ready made for $5.

READY FOR HER OUTING.

There is another new bang in town besides the Cupid. It is called the Elsa, and consists merely of a fluffy mass of wavy curls. It has somewhat of a square effect, with two little curls exactly alike resting upon the forehead. As to its length, it is quite as short as the Cupid.

Of course, there are some women with Madonna-like faces who will still cling to the classic part. But if they attempt to keep pace with the fashions of the day they will soften the severe effect of the part by allowing a curl or two to stray over the forehead.

CURLS IN FAVOR.

That curls are in high favor at present is clearly shown in all the newest coiffures. Early in the winter the Marie Antoinette coiffure was first adopted by New York women. It showed one little curl and then two dangling from the coil at the back of the head. This novelty was looked upon with awe. Then the matinee girl and her bobbing curls became a subject for discussion. Now the newest coiffure, from the back, displays six or more curls.

These are round, fat, well-made curls, which have a springy movement and bob to perfection. Then there are careless little curls, not so perfectly formed, which shyly nestle among the coils of hair. Besides this there are aggressive, upstanding bits of curls appearing in places where you would never expect to find them.

The curls show to good advantage when the hair is twisted in a full figure eight. But they do not hesitate to dangle beneath a pert Psyche knot or to join themselves to the severe braided coiffure.

One of the newest coiffures of the season is the Grecian bow knot, with curly ends. It is exceedingly graceful and lends itself admirably to all shaped heads. To make the bow knot, divide the hair at the back into three strands, take two of the strands, twist them slightly, then double the same, and with the remaining strand tie it as you would a ribbon bow. Arrange the loops on top, pinning them carefully to the head, and the ends lower down with the curls nestling at the nape of the neck. Before arranging the bow knot coiffure, wet the ends of the hair slightly and twist them round a kid curler.

With the bow knot coiffure, as with all others just now, the hair is much waved at the sides and is drawn very loosely back, so that the waves show plainly their undulations. These side waves are held in place by the pompadour combs, which are long side combs, curved to fit the shape of the head. The pompadour combs are a great ornamentation to the coiffure. Some are made merely of tortoise shell, while others are costly affairs studded with gems. For blondes there are these long side combs in jet, and gold ones, set with topaz, are made to order for brunettes.

HIDING LONG EARS.

Should a young woman's ears be a trifle larger than she might wish, she may draw her hair at the sides partially over them and yet be in fashion. This quaint style is still the vogue, but is not used in the extreme way that it was a year or so ago, when some ultra-fashionable women covered their ears almost entirely.

Both in Paris and London great quantities of false hair are being used. One style for evening wear, too ungainly to become popular, shows a thick-braided strand of hair encircling the top of the head as a crown. Puffs are much worn, and broad effects are in evidence.

For evening affairs the aigrette is the hair ornament of the moment. Its airy lightness is much in its favor. Besides the black, white and dainty colored feather aigrettes there are exquisite ones, glistening with mock jewels. To be worn with dusky tresses is a pale yellow aigrette, powdered with bits of topaz. Others are in black, with a scattering of rhinestones, which look like dewdrops in the sun. But the aigrette is by no means the only ornament worn in the fashionable coiffures. There are combs and odd hairpins in plenty—so many, in fact, that there is danger of the up-to-date evening coiffure becoming a rival of the much talked of theater hat.

A SUMMER EVENING WRAP.

CANVAS IS POPULAR.

And Dressmakers Are Busily at Work.

The shops and dressmakers' rooms, as well, are now filled with sheer materials to be made over taffeta silk. High on the list come delicate fabrics showing the familiar crepon crinkle and dyed in richest colorings set in Persian or Dresden fashion, says Rosalind May in the Boston Transcript. When to such gorgeous lines the shimmer of silk below is added, one may imagine the effect. An illuminating element of great potency is also obtained by a corsage made up of elegant material that forms a contrast to the remainder of the dress that is of plain goods.

Canvas is very popular, especially striped varieties, the stripes being in satin or velvet, and with the sheen of taffeta silk below, quite effective gowns are the result. Plain black grenadine, made over flowered or changeable silk, is also quite handsome and the more stylish, because of that tone of black which is so perpetually noticeable and which owes its popularity to the need of an offset to the world of color that reigns supreme in dress.

Graduates' dresses are now preferably made in dotted Swiss, mull, organdie, lawn or taffeta silk, and varieties of silk showing stripes or figured designs on a gauze-like foundation are chosen where something dressy is desired, the majority of mothers, however, preferring something simple. Styles in making are suited entirely to the girl graduate, and are notable examples of the individuality which prevails in the midst of a general conformity. Taffeta silk underskirts are almost universal, however, since a leading idea of the day is that of thin goods placed over a silk foundation.

IMPORTERS STOCKED.

Importers having on hand a supply of India and China silks and not finding ready sale for them as dress materials, have sold to those engaged in the making of waists, which is now, indeed, a business, and in consequence the shops have been filled to repletion with independent waists of such goods. With thin linings throughout, which impart body and some stiffness as well, these waists have been offered at low prices, and therefore quickly purchased by large classes who are content to wear something moderately in style for morning expeditions and on general occasions. The sleeves of the useful garments just mentioned are made like those of wash goods, which this season are exclusively in bishop shape, full to the wrist. In sleeves generally there are three gradations: Those of washable goods in bishop style; those of tailor-made suits that, while full, are notably smaller, and those of dressy waists that retain with few exceptions a former exaggeration. It is also comforting to know that skirts of tailor-made dresses are often now much narrower than formerly, running not more than four or five yards at the bottom and with increased liberty in placing the fullness. Thus the dressmaker is at liberty to consult individual peculiarities and may literally cut her garment according to the cloth.

For bridal gowns, rich ivory satin still has the first position. Materials come and go, but there must be in this special fabric an innate adaptability to the bride, which causes its almost perpetual continuance. Brocade is used to some extent, but is little seen when compared with satin. In making, there is no rule, and trains may be either square or round. For trimming, chiffon is much used, and for quite youthful brides is preferred to lace, even where expense is not a consideration. Lace, nevertheless, must have the highest position, and is a most refined choice. Lace veils are richly attractive, but tulle has the perennial popularity that characterizes satin. Orange blossoms combined with lilies of the valley are much worn, but sometimes the latter are omitted and orange blossoms only are noticeable. June, the month of weddings, will soon be here, and most of the costumes noted are those made ready for such interesting occasions.

TRAVELING TEXTURES.

For traveling, mohair in black or grave colors is very popular, but etamine is much used, because equally practicable and without the shine that some persons find objectionable. Light mixed wools are also popular and, according to some authorities, are most desirable, for the reason that every spot of soil does not show, and also because they can endure any amount of crushing. The most popular way of making is a short jacket opening over a vest, and this gives opportunity for much that is tasteful in the way of contrast. The sailor hat, that should come first for journeys, since so simple, yet when rightly worn so coquettish, may constitute a pretty completion when trimmed by a band that harmonizes, as, for example, when a brunette wears a red band to match her red vest, or a blonde appears in a duplicate of blue. Those who comprehend the right use of colors in dress can readily appear in outfits suitable for hard service, yet retaining those feminine touches which must always pertain to a womanly woman. However practical, one should remember the saying of Holmes, "The woman who does not seek to please is a false note in the harmonies of nature."

In parasols, those covered with Persian or Dresden silk take the lead; but stylish yet inexpensive ones that are also much better adapted to morning in the city are of plain silk, hem stitched, or grass cloth, the latter presumably to be carried with grass-cloth dresses, but materials are so recklessly combined in gowns that accessories often follow suit. For driving or use in the country parasols finished with chiffon have driven out lace, that is hardly fashionable, although ladies who have handsome lace-covered parasols will not readily consent to relinquish them. White or black is the choice, though now and then one sees rich Persian colorings on a black chiffon-trimmed parasol, but this is exceptional. In questionable taste, expensive parasols for piazzas or shady strolls are more or less elaborately trimmed with flowers that in the most ornate are in profusion. This, doubtless, is in keeping with the flower-laden hats, but certainly in much less accordance with the suitabilities. Pretty and comparatively inexpensive parasols are covered by white brocade silk, usually of small pattern. These are very sweet and girlish-looking, and form a desirable change for somewhat older women who take part in the present rage for white. But the white outfits of today are so essentially girlish that matrons should adopt them carefully, and in a candid spirit consult the mirror.

Small empire fans in canvas, silk spangled tulle, kid or parchment are seen in great variety, while Japanese houses offer very pretty and widely differing specimens in paper, with bamboo sticks. Those in kid or parchment rank well, because of artistic paintings that, chiefly in Watteau styles, are most attractive. Nine inches is the regulation length. Handsome fans are attached to a slender gold chain worn around the neck, and thus is obviated the danger of losing them.

SOME JUNE MODES.

Cheery Colors and Ideal Summer Day Toilets.

In choosing correct costumes for June more difficulty is experienced, perhaps, than with those of any other warm month. Though only the beginning of summer June often boasts some of the hottest days of the season, along with a chilly one here and there, says Nina Fitch in the Indianapolis Journal. This calls for variety in weight and coloring, and since suggestion is needed to fix the faults and virtues of the new modes on the mind, one often finds after the purchase has been made that she has got the wrong thing.

In the current fashions are some smart hints for June. The costumes have all been designed at the best places for out-of-town resorts and embrace collectively the possibilities of varying June temperature. They are also suited to simple morning and dressy afternoon uses, and on the right type will, in each instance, be found delightful.

Take first the frock with the upper half of the skirt, bodice and sleeves laid in crosswise tuck. This is made of cherry-red linen batiste—just the shade of the delicious pale little cherries you used to steal in the orchard when you were a little girl—over white taffeta silk.

This softens the red in places like a bloom of frost, a vest and neck ruche of white silk muslin giving an elegant finish.

ELEGANT DETAILS.

The hat is a sailor shape of black Panama, trimmed with a white muslin quilling and two long, black wings. The parasol may be either white taffeta, under the white mousseline, or else be of the same cherry-red linen as the gown. As to shoes for this toilet, there are two sorts to select from. One of the fads of the season is to have the shoes made of the same material as the costume—that is, with the unfigured linens and ducks—so over a stout white lining the little shoes for this toilet could be of the same red linen. Otherwise black patent leather pumps would be in excellent keeping, and it may be agreeable to know here that these trim little affairs are to be more worn than ever.

But a moment more with this cherry frock, which, of course, is something very dress-up, indeed. It stands to reason that none but the most knowing fingers could ever accomplish that wonderful tucking of a gored skirt.

"I shall never do another in just the same way," said the great dressmaker, who was showing off the creation, "I have found out that I can get the same effect with bias folds laid on a gored foundation." So, if you think this costume a good model for your type, take the hint. Only remember that to wear these pale sparkling reds, you can't have red cheeks as well and a figure like a pillow tied in the middle. They are only suited to slight lines and clear, colorless complexions.

ROUGH TURKISH GOODS.

A rough wash stuff in white and ecru linen shades, that imitates Turkish toweling, is a new material for useful morning frocks for both the small and big fry. It is, indeed, called Turkish toweling, and, though it is commonly used alone, the white is sometimes combined effectively with colored duck.

In any of the ecru shades, as well as the white, this serviceable bath robe texture will also be found admirably suited to yachting purposes. Any of the duck and linen suit models may be used for it, and it has the added virtues of washing easily and not needing to be ironed.

TWO CATCHY DRESSES.

These are of the blue sash variety, dear to the men, and if they are not calculated to do deadly damage some hot June day, then the foresight of the prophet goes for naught.

A delicate Indian dimity, in a weave such as fairies spin, and patterned with pale lilac green leaves between narrow pink stripes, is the material of the morning frock.

The round, full bodice is simply gathered and finished at the waist, throat and sleeve bottoms with white taffeta ribbons striped with pink and green. The skirt is plain, but on the bodice a highly ornamental collar is made of thin apple-green lawn, edged with footing in a delicate yellow. The fronts of the collar are tacked down to form Figaro effects at the sides of the body. This jacket look will be found extremely becoming to very slight figures.

A new variety of white embroidered muslin is the texture of the last gown. This charming material imitates the old tambour-worked muslins of our great-grandmothers' days, producing faithfully the same fragile vines and sprays done in simple back-stitch. The new embroidery is, of course, machine made, but a delicate yellowing of some of the muslins gives a mellow suggestion of age.

The gown shown is in pure white over maize yellow silk. The bodice lining is cut low in the neck and is made without sleeves. All the insertions of the bias side are of real Valenciennes lace and white taffeta ribbon, in a belt, stock and bows, finishes with simple elegance the bodice.

With all this summer finery, of course, correct parasols are no unimportant detail. For the thin dressy frocks there are parasols that are almost like bouquets with their masses of flowers and flounces of chiffon. But china handles finish the smartest of them all; and now the very thing with these is to have the hand rest a bird or animal head, that of a black cat or a pug dog, or a poll parrot or a friendly-looking monkey. A nice old barnyard rooster with a shrill whistle hidden in his red comb was the unique design of an expensive imported handle.

WHEELWOMEN'S HATS.

Hat and Suit to Match is a Fad.

The summer's girl's experience in selecting her best straw hat is as nothing compared with the trials of the bicycle girl when deciding the momentous question of what she shall wear on the wheel, says the New York Journal.

Now that all girls are wheeling, the hats which they have to choose from are many and varied. There are hats to match their costumes, and hats in striking contrast to it. Hats designed upon hygienic principles alone and hats made solely for the inspection of made solely to look picturesque. These and many more are brought forth for the inspection of the bicycle girl, and each and every one is declared to be the best possible hat she can buy.

The most novel cycling hat in town is made of lightweight felt or straw in the alpine shape. It is trimmed with not only the conventional band of ribbon, but quills and a miniature bicycle wheel, with a rubber tire and most natural looking spokes. In Yale blue felt stitched in white and trimmed with a white ribbon band, a white quill and a bit of a wheel, it is considered quite a thing of beauty. And it's an inexpensive little hat in the bargain, costing but $1.39.

There are many variations in the alpine shape this year. Some of the hats have the brim more closely rolled up at the side, while others are just the opposite, giving a broad effect. One of the new alpine hats shows the crown squarer than usual and the brim rolled up rather tightly at both sides. It is made almost entirely in cream white straw, and is trimmed with merely a narrow band of black velvet ribbon.

It is quite a fad with the bicycle girl at present to have her hat made of the same material as her suit. With the new crash and duck suits alpine hats are sold to match. The best looking are bound with ribbon and trimmed with a ribbon band. Frequently the college colors are used for the band. Other girls who for reasons of their own are not partial to any special college have their hats trimmed with a ribbon which matches the colored rim of their wheel.

TAM O' SHANTERS.

When the alpine shape is unbecoming, then the fair cyclists wear a hat with a Tam o' Shanter crown and have that crown to match their new summer costume. There are very jaunty little hats, with dark blue or brown straw rims slightly rolling and Tam crowns, in tan color crash. These hats have a quill or two in front and also a bow by way of decoration.

Young women with a fondness for things Scotch are wearing genuine Highland Tam o' Shanters in the gay Scotch plaids. They are made either of light-weight wool or of silk. A new idea this season is to combine a silk Tam crown with a straw or cloth brim, or to have a Tam silk crown and a cloth peak.

Cycling caps, made entirely of waterproof silk are a novelty recommended for wear during a sudden shower. They are small enough to be easily carried in the pocket.

Perhaps the most stylish bicycle hat in town is a variation of the alpine shape made in two different colored straws. One particularly pretty model has the broad rolling rim in dark blue straw and the crown in cream color. Rosettes of straw in dark blue and cream mixed, with five odd little wings, form the trimming, which is arranged effectively at the left side. Bands of straw braid also trim the crown. This hat may be bought in a variety of colors and is as practical as it is pretty. The sailor is another hat high in favor with the bicycle girl.

It will now be possible for young women to a-wheeling go without displaying their feet and ankles. Dainty feet and ankles flashing in and out of skirts has proved an irresistible attraction for many that in the future will be denied if the cherry screen shall come into popular use. It is named after Theron R. Cherry, of Buckhannon, W. Va., the inventor. Many modest young women have refrained from riding because the skirts have to be short, and they object to exposing their lower limbs. The screens look half like an umbrella. They are attached to the front or head of a lady's bicycle. They can be folded up against it or unfolded and extended past the pedals, perfectly protecting the feet and ankles from view when mounting or riding. They also act as a wind guard and prevent the skirts from being blown about the limbs.

FASHION NOTES.

Little Chit Chat of the Dressy People.

New vellings show medium large chenille dots or open circles.

A narrow, red leather belt with coin buckle is considered very chic.

A number of imported straw hats are trimmed with little fur heads.

Strings of tulle are old-fashioned ideas revived in this season's millinery.

The English walking hat and the round turban in rough straw are fashionably worn with traveling and walking suits.

The newest French corsets of tinted or white satin brocade have petticoats to match.

Bridesmaids' gowns of figured taffeta are being trimmed with narrow black velvet ribbon.

The newest organdies are barred with satin and brocaded with exquisite Marie Antoinette designs.

The newest alpacas, woven with coarse twills and covered with chine designs, look almost as elegant as silk.

In dress goods there is a new poplin, with alternate thick and transparent ribs, which make a charming effect.

Very rich and elegant satin brocades are used for elegant Louis coats with soft lace vests, to be worn with skirts of black satin, moire, or peau de sole.

A bicycle hat which is popular in Philadelphia is a navy blue alpine.

Linen and jet combination passementeries are in great vogue.

Wear a soft cap if you intend to take a long railway journey.

The lizard skin satchel is part of the paraphernalia of the summer girl.

Last winter's ball gowns make lovely linings for this year's organdies.

Feathers worn in Alsatian bow style are considered a chic form of hat trimming.

Don't trim your yachting gown with gold braid if you expect to look well at sea.

The woman who knows her color to be pale blue is not great enough actress to appear pleased when she is presented with a handsome pink opera wrap by a friend returning from Europe.

HE WHEELED AHEAD.

Recently several drummers happened to meet on a train en route to Indianapolis, and they began, as usual, to tell of their business, says the Indianapolis Journal. It happened that these were some bicycle salesmen among them.

"I struck a great streak or luck last week," said one of them. "I sold three orders, and it amounted to 900 wheels."

Being the first man to boast of his business, he was easily outdone by the next, and the third saw the others and went some better. He sold one firm 1000 wheels and two other orders amounted to 800.

"You people are not in it," said a small man who had not taken part in the conversation. "I sold one firm 9000 wheels to be given away! What wheel do you sell?" chimed in the other three in chorus.

"The 9000 wheels I sold were contained in 1000 Waterbury watches, which a clothing store is going to give away," said the small man, handing each of the three men nine wheels for their own use, and accepting their offer to get off at the next stop and "have something."

HE DIDN'T BELIEVE IT.

Washington Star:—"Stranger," he said to the traveler who had stopped at his unpretentious home for a night's lodging, "hev ye ever hearn tell ez how ef ye see a red headed girl ye're boun' ter see a white hoss?"

"Of course. That's an old idea."

"I hearn it some thme ago myself."

"It has some basis of fact, too. You see, the case simply is that there are more white horses in existence than there are red-haired girls. So their appearance at the same time is a more than likely coincidence."

"Well, sir," replied the householder, in a tone that defied controversy, "you kin call it a cerincidence, er what ye please. I call it a durn lie. See that gal over there?"

"Yes."

"Her hair's red, ain't it?"

"It's—it's quite like auburn."

"It's red, that's a dead sure thing, an' I ain't ashamed of it. She's my wife. The day before I married her I had one of the purtiest white hosses ye ever laid yer eyes onto. Hoss thief come along while the preacher was a-pronouncin' the ceremony. I've got the red-headed girl, but I ain't seen no white hoss sence. An' what's more, I don't expect ter see none."

FOR A LITTLE BOY.

The Gossiper.

Are we really so disobedient and headstrong? She said so, and she has just come back from her annual trip across the briny, with roses on her cheek, laughter in her voice and diamonds in her eyes (and much lovelier are they there than if they were in her ears). "Oh!" she sighed. "Those English and French physicians, who have for patients royal dames and wealthy mondaines in London and Paris, do wonderful things. When an American doctor says to a woman, 'Now you rest, keep quiet, don't see anybody, be calm,' she laughs and says, 'Why certainly, doctor, I do that all the time. I am keeping very quiet.'

"Then the doctor says, 'Remain at home today, drive in your carriage this afternoon, but by an unfrequented road.'

"'Impossible,' exclaims my lady, 'impossible. Why, doctor, this afternoon I join the coaching parade, and tonight we dine at Larchmont and come home for a dance at X's. Tomorrow I will rest.'

"That means that she has not looked at her social program for the next day. When she does glance at it she will see that there is something that she absolutely must do.

"Let the London doctor advise the duchess of Marlborough to go to Carlsbad for perfect quiet, and she will go. She will leave her presentation gown lying on the floor and throw her coronet across the room. Her physician has said Carlsbad. The same with a Parisian or German woman, but the Americans are the irrepressibles."

And all the feverish unrest means premature old age. It is now no unusual sight to see a young face framed in gray hair or dark hair thickly streaked with gray. A great deal of this premature grayness is due to overwrought brains. Sometimes, however, it may be caused by keeping the hair too dry. Upon the appearance of the first gray hair a little pomade should be applied, perhaps once a week. After washing the hair an emollient should always be applied to the scalp to prevent the too great dryness of the hair as well as to promote its growth. The use of a perfumed wash will give the hair a faint, pleasant odor, which is most soothing to the senses. Swinbourne speaks of "hair smelling of the South."

The crowd was transfixed.

"And now," announced the lecturer, "this wonderful woman will close her thrilling entertainment by entering a den of mice who haven't tasted food for a week, feed them with raw meat and make them do tricks."

Not one of the multitude could move, and not an eye was taken from the intrepid performer until the heart-sickening spectacle was at an end.

Fresh from her sea trip, Yvette Guilbert arrived in England the other day. She said of America: "About my voyage? Well, jecais—I was sick, and I have now all my inside new. I went to New York, to Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago, and I think I like Boston best. In the train we take for Chicago I ask my black man for a bottle of claret for lunch, and I had it. But when I ask for a bottle of claret for dinner he says 'No; in the province of Ohio you can't have claret two times a day, or I will have to go to prison.' I said, 'Very well, then, go to prison, but get me the claret first;' and after much ceremony I get it."

Who shall ever again have the audacity to say that gentle woman was made only to cook, wash, bring up the children and sally forth to market, there to buy things for the amelioration of the hungry condition of man?

Mrs. Luella Wilcox St. Clair, president of Christian college, Columbia, Mo., recently requested all the members of the class which will graduate this year to state briefly in writing their principal purpose in life. A number of interesting answers resulted. Ten of the girls replied that it was their principal desire to obtain further education, especially in art and music. Three prefer public life at home, that they may be a comfort to their parents in their declining years. One desires to be a missionary. One prefers a career as a physician, and the highest ambition of another young lady is to be a hospital nurse. Three girls stated that it was their wish to travel as much as possible. Only one admitted that marriage was her principal purpose in life. Several of the replies were written in poetry.

The conduct of a woman on shipboard is a subject impossible to predict. But it is easier to foresee that she will go aboard for her annual trip to the London Mecca of the fashionables with at least the determination to be charmed during every hour of the voyage when she is visible. Hence she trips up the gangplank in all the glory of picture hat and fluttering ribbons; but when the plank is drawn she goes below, to bob up serenely in a long minute with her curls tucked away under a jaunty cap and a plain, close skirt—I have seen some lovely ones in mixed greens, varying from light threads to almost black—and with a trim-waisted jacket. What agonies one must suffer in tight corset and tight high collar on shipboard those who've tried it know; but "to be beautiful one must suffer," as the French philosophers say, and there is nothing to add.

The marchioness of Li Hung Chang is the richest woman in the Flowery Kingdom. Among her other possessions she has the exclusive rights of fifty methods of dressing the hair. Twice a day this luxurious little lady bathes in oil of orange and acacia blooms, and 1000 attendants are constantly at her service. In her wardrobe are 2000 coats and 1200 "trouserettes," which seems a very ample supply in view of the fact that the marchioness can walk but a few feet at a time. It is interesting to note that she never fails to keep a detailed account of the vast expenditures of her household.

If you write down a resolution to never say an unkind word again to anybody, write it with a gold pencil. The material of which a pencil is made and the thought which prompted the words form an electric (or is it magnetic? or hypnotis?) current which insures security from frivolous outside influences! That may sound curious, but it is the basis of the up-to-date girl's new fad—fancy pencils.

The up-to-date girl these days never thinks of using a common, ordinary pencil. Before she approves of one it must be slipped within a silver or gold holder. When the holders first appeared they were made of silver, with a rubber at the end. Now they can be bought of gold, with a jewel in place of the rubber.

However, the newest holders are in silver, decorated with an enameled flag in the college colors.

The pencil holder designed for young women devoted to Harvard has a crimson enamel flag bearing the letter H in white as its decoration. The Yale pencil holder has its flag in the college colors, blue and white, and for Princeton the blue and orange flag is seen.

Giving the height of the Venetian Venus, 5 feet 5 inches, as the accepted perfect stature for a woman, here is how you may know whether you are a perfect specimen of your own sex by applying other rules laid down by authorities:

For a woman of 5 feet 5 inches 138 pounds is the proper weight, and if she be well formed, she can stand another ten pounds without greatly showing it. When her arms are extended she should measure from tip of middle finger to tip of middle finger just 5 feet 5 inches, exactly her own height. The length of her hand should be just a tenth of that, and her foot just a seventh.

The distance from the elbow to the middle finger should be the same as the distance from the elbow to the middle of the chest. From the top of the head to the chin should be just the length of the foot, and there should be the same distance between the chin and the armpits. A woman of this height should measure 24 inches about the waist and 34 inches about the bust, if measured from under the arms, and 43 if over them. The upper arm should measure 13 inches, and the wrist six. The calf of the leg should measure 14½ inches and the thigh 25 and the ankle 8 inches.

The necessity of using some emollient for the hair from time to time, is an established fact. Many people foolishly neglect to do this because they object to have their heads at all greasy, but nevertheless it is better for the hair that some nourishment should be used, especially after it has been washed. If rubbed into the skin, and only a small quantity used, there will be really no disagreeableness; it is when it is put on superficially, and the hair itself plastered down, that the nastiness of it arises. A very pleasant rosemary pomade may be made by taking half a pound of fresh lard and two large handfuls of flowers of rosemary. These two things must be well boiled down in a saucepan until reduced to about half the quantity, then it must be strained off carefully so as to remove any gritty pieces that there might be left behind in the lard, and put away in a small jar. Just a very little of this used to the roots every week will keep the hair in good condition. It is always an important thing to prevent the hair from becoming too dry, as when this arises there is always a tendency for the premature appearance of gray hairs.

Fancy, masculine rosebuds! The most complete and successful effort in behalf of leap year yet given is a debut tea in honor of a number of masculine buds. The young men, it is true, had glory thrust upon them, but they rose to the necessities of the occasion nobly, as true men are sure to do. The decorations of the rooms were in pink and each bud wore a La France bud. They served tea and chocolate with astonishing aptness, and altogether put the girls to the blush by their ability to perform these immense tasks. It is further told that they made such ideal hosts that not one guest was overlooked.

THE NATIONAL GUARD.

Company C is going to the Paris exposition in 1900. There is no "if we can" about it, but an out and out "we will." The company intends, between now and the year 1900, four years away, to raise enough money to carry them there, keep them while there, and to bring them back when they get ready. They are paying especial attention to the latter part of it, as they have no desire to spend their latter days in the home of Johnny Crapaud.

The plan is to spend a month in camp at Duluth, then to attend the regular annual encampment at Lake City, and then, some time in June, to start out for Paris. It has not yet been decided whether to go by boat to Buffalo, or from St. Paul all-rail to New York. In Paris some suitable place will be found to encamp, and there the company will make its headquarters. It will carry along tents and two cooks, so living expenses will be reduced to a minimum. Frequent excursions will be made to other parts of the city, and perhaps outside, always with due regard and respect for the Paris police system.

The entire trip is expected to occupy about four months, and the company is figuring on an expense of $10,000. This will be high, but for fear of unexpected contingencies they will try to raise that amount, though they figure that the trip can be made for less. The estimate includes $800 from Duluth to New York, $20 each from New York to Havre, and $800 from Havre to Paris and return. This estimate is high, and it will be scaled down.

The money—to be sure, that is a consideration. That is to be raised during the four years in all manners. To begin with, a bicycle is being raffled. Entertainments will be given, and when times loosen up a monthly due of $1 will be imposed on each man.

The finance committee is composed of Capt. Emil Resche, Lieut. A. M. Barsness, Sergt. A. Coons, Corporal A. L. Konkle, Corporal O. W. Nelson, Private John Olson.

Company G boasts a quartet, a banjo and mandolin club and a baseball club. With these features this very accomplished company should cut quite a figure at camp.

Talking about camp, it begins to look as though this year's camp was to be described only in adjectives of the superlative degree. The Duluth battalion will probably be out in force.

and at the least calculation it would take several weeks to find where some of the honorable gentlemen were. Then everything is all turned upside down again, votes to consider and reconsider are taken, and finally the house adjourns by limitation, for it is 11. Three hours of valuable time, much gas, natural and artificial, wasted; a doctor's bill incurred to patch up the roll-calling clerk's voice; a gavel worn out, and not one blessed bit of business done!

It was simply disgusting; might have been amusing if such serious matters were not pending; but even if there were nothing of moment to do, it seems too bad that a room hallowed by such memories should be turned into such a Punch-and-Judy show place for the display of such tomfoolery as I saw there the other night.

But what is the use of my working myself up into a righteous-indignation mood? I am no reformer, but just a plain, everyday scribe, and only an occasional one at that.

GOSSIP OF ★ ★ THE STAGE.

Virginia Aragon, "The Queen of the Lofty Wire," performs fifty fee: above the heads of her audience. But she practices on a slender strand stretched a foot above the stage. One morning at rehearsal she slipped and scraped the cuticle from her shapely shin. This sent the hot Spanish blood flaming to her cheeks, while her big black eyes snapped wickedly. "Caramba!" she cried. "What a life! Here am I, toiling by night and by day, and risking my neck. And for what? Money? Bah! Since I have been 9 years of age I have slaved and not one penny for myself. My clothes, my living, sometimes a piece of jewelry, yes, but not yet my own mistress. In September I will be what you call of age—yes, I will be 21—then what I earn after that is my own. There are nine of us children, all performers, with all big salaries, and we buy for my parents a beautiful home in the mountains, two days' journey from Madrid. We are Andalusians. My father is yet a handsome man. When young he was beautiful, like Sandow. One year more, with the money all my own—that is enough. Then I will marry and no more risk my life." That is the prelude. The very next Saturday night the Queen of the Lofty Wire e.. .. .. ..ose rebellious sentiments to report she went wheeling in Central park with Frank Marlo, the young gymnast—Marlo, of Marlo and Dunham. He and she had been acquainted for a long time, but it was not until this particular Sunday that they found they were very, very much in love with each other. So then and there they plighted their troth, and then, wheeling swiftly back to Mamma Aragon, they besough, the maternal blessing. Senora Aragon stormed and scolded and cabled to Barcelona. But her protests were useless and finally she relented.

Robert Downing announces that he will try a new historical play, "Putnam," next season. It is not a tragedy and is altogether less somber than Downing plays are accustomed to be.

The following scoffing remarks are extracted from the New York World's heartless comment upon "The Sunshine of Paradise Alley" as she is staged by Den Thompson and George Ryer, authors of "The Old Homestead:" The play tells the story of Miss Sunshine McNally, who is a combination of a home for lost dogs, the Door of Hope and a free arnica dispensary. The idea is to show how one gentle-faced soul, with sky-blue eyes and a never-failing supply of texts and platitudes, converted the drunkards, washed the babies, patched little Willy's "pants" free of all compensation, and instituted an era of reform in Paradise alley. In the first act, showing an East river dock, Miss Sunshine comes in and has an ethical debate with a huckster who insists on his right to hit a mule with a shovel, the implement and the animal both being his. It seems that Sunshine sent an anonymous postal card to the Bergh society telling on him, and there was a row about it. "Curse you!" howls the huckster, "into the East river you go for thwarting me." But the absent-minded huckster had not noticed that there were nine policemen and fifty or sixty hard-looking cases encamped on the dock waiting for just such a snap. They hurl themselves upon the thwarted huckster and take Sunshine away from him. Naturally he curses for all there is in him. Then they arrange to hurl him into the seething fluid. Sunshine intercedes, telling the vigilance committee that the man has a wife and children, several of them just recovering from the mumps. Consequently he is spared. Everyone else now leaves the stage and Sunshine hides behind a cotton bale to grab off the suicides as they come down to make their final plunge. A millionaire's daughter, who was not quite ten years old, is the most prominent of the would-be self-slaughterers. Sunshine, however, is laying for her. She pops into the briny after the millionaire's daughter, and everyone gets up and dresses and comes back to the dock to see the thing out. Sunshine appears foregoing the suicide out of the drink (that's East Side talk). The millionaire's daughter gets in the line of the limelight's fire and promises every inhabitant a turkey at Christmas. Then the curtain goes down. The next act finds Sunshine recovering from a bad cold in the head as a result of the dive. People come in and offer her salvage on the millionaire's daughter, but her mother gives them a cup of tea and declines. Then Sunshine's office hours come around and the out patients, mentally and physically sick, troop in for treatment, to sign the pledge, etc. The great realistic wife-beating scene occurs in act three. The huckster's wife won't let him pawn the clock for fermented drink, and he begins to wallop her. Policemen are about to drag him off for treatment. Every one asks that he be spared. Bluecoat declines to weaken. Then little Jimmy offers the cop a penny (the savings of a life-time) to let up on him. The hardened preserver of the peace, reminded of the old ante-Lexow times, bursts into grief and every one else blubbers convulsively. In the last act every one goes on a chowder to Bronx park. Paradise alley has reformed, and the curtain comes down to the accompaniment of corny book maxims and simple household remedies.

It is related that a New York manager put an applicant through his paces, and then remarked: "You have a good stage presence and a fair voice, but I'm afraid you won't suit, all the same. You lack magnetism."

"Oh, well, in that case you had better engage me at once," responded the would-be actor airily. "I'll buy an electric belt."

Lillian Russell was riding her $1000 golden wheel last week when a plain every-day scorcher ran into her and hurled her into a sand heap. The scorcher went head-over-heels also, but got to his wheel and away before Miss Russell could identify him. The prima donna's statuesque ankle was hurt and that night when she put on Hessian boots with French heels, in "The Little Duke" the ankle let go and she fell upon the stage. Then she wore lower heels.

Harrison Grey Fiske, editor of the Dramatic Mirror, is dangerously ill of intermittent fever.

A quarrel over salary has caused Henry E. Dixey to leave the cast of "Thoroughbred." Thomas Q. Seabrooke will succeed him.

Nethersole, the dramatic Carmen, and Calve, the operatic Carmen, went to Europe on the same steamer, the St. Paul. They were very sweet to each other until the steamer reached mid-ocean. Then a kind friend informed the English actress that Calve had seen her performance in Chicago. "Ah!" said Miss Nethersole, expectantly, "what did she think of my impersonation?" "Well," was the answer, "she said it had its fine points." From that moment the mercury in the thermometer took a heavy drop.

"Monsieur de Paris" is the flippant and popular sobriquet for the official executioner of the French and it is the title of a play recently played in London. Though the play lacked vitality, it seems to have been strongly imagined and not without merit. The theme was the love between the executioner's lovely daughter and her sweetheart, who was unaware of her father's gruesome business. When the revelation came and the lover shrank from her the girl rose in bitterness and cursed him. The era of the play is in the olden time. Violet Vanbrough played the daughter and a critic wrote of her thus: "In the earlier scenes she was charming in her gaiety, and very clever in suggesting her character as a pariah; moreover, she displayed a very pretty passion of love. I feel that no one on our stage could have looked so picturesque as the queerly named Jacinta, and very few have played so well, until the cursing began—then, to be frank, she lacked weight of metal. The scene demanded 80-ton gun action, and she is not quite of the caliber."

The lyrical "hit" of De Wolf Hopper's new opera, "El Capitan," is "The Topical Tune of Zanzibar." Everybody is whistling or humming it. The words, as well as the jingling melody, are by John Philip Sousa. Here they are:

Under the window he softly crept,
While father and mother and Towser slept;
Then plunking a tune on his light guitar,
He warbled a ballad of Zanzibar.
From out her chamber emerged the maid,
Begging the name of the tune he played;
Said he, as he plunked his light guitar,
"Tis a typical tune of Zanzibar.

Yours for ay the maiden cried,
I'm ready to marry, to be your bride.
Only plunk again on your light guitar
The typical tune of Zanzibar.
Looking with love on his bride to be,
He tuned the strings in another key,
Then plunked once more on his light guitar
The typical tune of Zanzibar.

Quickly she leaped from the casement high
Into his arms and ready to fly.
But Towser had heard the light guitar
And the typical tune of Zanzibar.
They buried them down by the ocean spray,
Where oft at night, so the neighbors say,
Is heard the plunk of a light guitar
And the typical tune of Zanzibar.

The indecent "living pictures" seem to have had their day. In New York last week a French woman, called Suzanne Duvernois, posed in the semblance of utterly undraped statuary and pictures. She had been advertised, in advance, as a "celebrated Parisian model," and unusual attempts were made to arouse interest in her, but the audiences looked upon her with disregard; her poses brought scarcely a patter of applause.

"Marvelous! Marvelous!"
"I can hardly believe my eyes!"
"That can't be the same man! Impossible!"
"It's actually uncanny! Sort of gives me the creeps."

Such is the reception of Fregoli in Hammerstein's Music hall each night, and half the audience is composed of those who have seen him the night before, says the New York Journal. If there is one word in the English tongue that defines his performance more forcibly than any other it is "wonderful."

Now, entirely aside from his remarkable ability, Fregoli is a relief. The variety hall public is jaded and blase. One performance is, as a rule, exactly like another, and usually a trifle worse. The Sisters Flopsy Wopsy in their song and dance, the Brothers McGill or McSwill, who perform what they call "sketches;" the people who dive into tanks, the performing dogs and the acrobats seem to have been playing the same old tune since time out of mind. And now, like a cool breeze upon a burning forehead, a glass of sparkling water down a parched throat, comes Fregoli. So, hail to Fregoli.

Fregoli's performance lasts an hour. For that hour you are in a state of utter bewilderment. You see a man doing something that you never saw or dreamt of before—a sensation that is always startling to the mind—and you see him doing it so well that you almost lose your breath.

A young man, of slight figure, who looks as if he might be anywhere from 25 to 35 years old, big brown eyes, smooth, shaven and extremely plain in appearance—that's Fregoli. The program says he impersonates so and so many characters. And so he does, changing from character to character so completely and so quickly that the audience can scarcely realize that he is the whole cast himself.

A word as to his methods. In the first place, every change, every motion, every transformation is the result of long, long study and practice. A dozen carefully trained assistants stand at the entrances to help him off with one costume and on with another. Often, as he walks slowly off the stage, you catch a glimpse of his leg or his arm shooting out with wonderful activity. As he takes off his hat to make his last bow in one role, the hat is torn from his grasp by one assistant, while another replaces it with a fan, a third having already jammed a curly wig over his head.

In a letter to the Journal thanking the American people for their hearty welcome of him, Fregoli gives this bit of information:

"I came here from Madrid. I write all my sketches, and am the author of the opera 'Dorothea,' which I sing, introducing fifteen characters. I carry a force of dressers, a musical director, a mechanical wardrobe, and baggage men, etc., twelve in number, not including my wife, who assists me in the designs of my rapid changing costumes, which are unlike any others made. My baggage consists of sixty-five theater trunks, twenty-six hotel trunks and sixty-five sets of scenery, all of which weigh five and one-half tons, and cause me great trouble at certain houses. I have 200 wigs and appear in more than that number of characters. I hope that these details about myself do not weary you."

A WOMAN'S STORY.

It Should Be of Interest to Every Thinking Woman.

Women who reason well know that no male physician can understandingly treat the complaint known as "female diseases," for no man ever experienced them.

This, Lydia E. Pinkham taught them twenty years ago, when she discovered in her Vegetable Compound the only successful cure for all those ailments peculiar to the sex. Many women have a fatal faith in their physician, and not till they can suffer no longer, will they think and act for themselves.

The following testimony is straight to the point, and represents the experience of hundreds of thousands of now grateful women: "For six years I was a great sufferer from those internal weaknesses so prevalent among our sex. After having received treatment from four physicians of our city, and finding no relief whatever, I concluded to try Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has proved a boon to me. It can truly be called a "Saviour of Women."—MRS. B. A. PERHAM, Waynesboro, Pa.

ELEPHANTS THAT THINK.

Three Herds of Marvelously Educated Pachyderms.

Three herds of elephants—three herds of marvelously-educated pachyderms performing in three separate rings—this is the startling novelty offered in the trained animal display of Ringling Bros.' world's greatest shows, which exhibit at Duluth, Monday, June 8. These wondrously trained animals are a complete exhibition in themselves. They comprise three distinct schools—a troupe of dancing elephants, a troupe of ponderous pyramid-forming pachyderms, and the only troupe of performing baby elephants in the world. At the word of command they go through the most difficult military marches and maneuvers, tread the intricate mazes of the waltz and stately quadrille, and form the most artistic groupings, pyramids and tableaux. The work of the baby elephants is particularly adapted to arouse the enthusiasm of the younger element in the audience. They do everything but talk, and in view of their almost incredibly human-like performance, it would seem as though even that was not an impossibility. These little animal actors give a complete play. One sits at table, ordering his dinner and disposing of it with the dainty fastidiousness of an epicure, not forgetting the final glass of wine, the finger bowl and the napkin; another acts as host, and others hurry to and fro in the role of waiters, never failing to linger in the vicinity of the guest and mutely appeal for the customary tip. This wonderful display of trained animal intelligence is a rare feast for the little ones and evokes unbounded enthusiasm.

Another feature that never fails to delight the children is Mons. Natalie's trained pig circus. This is, indeed, a wonderful exhibition. There are big pigs and little pigs, and pigs that are neither big nor little, but funny to look at, whether they are following their trainer around the ring or going through their ludicrous performance. One of these pigs is a famous climber. Think of a step ladder, forty feet high, and so nearly perpendicular that any ordinary man would become dizzy climbing it. Well, this wonderful pig climbs just such a ladder, and climbs it quickly and invariably without urging or mishap. The furore this remarkable exhibition always creates is not confined to the children by any means. It is something to be discussed and talked at for many days after the show has gone.

There are many other trained animal acts—some that are quite as remarkable in their way as those that have been mentioned—but, of course, the educated animals are only one little part of the show. There is the marvelous Nelson family, the greatest acrobats in the world; male and female riders from all parts of the world, celebrated acrobats, aerialists, gymnasts and contortionists from the famous circuses of Europe, a grand spectacular reproduction of the famed classic festival of Olympus, a revival of the thrilling races of the Roman hippodrome, and the most complete menagerie of rare wild beasts ever seen in any zoological collection in the world. Circus day in this city will be inaugurated with a magnificent parade, in which the immense processional resources of the show will be displayed in all their magnificent splendor free upon the public thoroughfares.

Science and Invention.

The investigation of the Keely motor by Professor La Salle-Scott, recently sent from London to study its possibilities, has, it is reported, developed the fact that Keely has discovered a force hitherto unknown, says the Age of Steel. The most thorough and delicate of tests have been applied, and so far are in favor of the conclusion that the effects produced are not due to magnetism, electric currents or any concealed source of mechanical power. The term "dynamo" is said to be misleading, and the famous English scientist has suggested the word "vibrodyne" as most suitable to the character of the apparatus. According to the press report quoted, the professor is of the opinion that the new force is capable of eventual economic use under certain conditions. As the investigation in progress has yet its final decision to render, it is idle to guess in a premature fashion of what may or may not be the outcome. It will be the practical value of the alleged new force that will determine its status as a discovery.

The Keely motor has for some years been a subject of interest and speculation. It has had the charm of a mystery. Its possibilities have been forecast and it has also been denounced as a fake and a pretension. It will be the solving of a very wearying problem when something definite is given to the outside world as to what it is or may be, or what it is not.

F. Casey, of Harrisonville, Ohio, has sent the following description of his method of finding the length of a belt required: Add the diameters of the two pulleys together, divide the result by two and multiply the quotient by three and one-seventh; add the product to twice the distance between the centers of shafts and you have the length required.

The army fortifications board has made an inspection of the range finder and relocator invented by Lieut. Rafferty. Lieut. Rafferty's invention in appearance is like a dial, with hands similar to an old-fashioned telegraph signal instrument. It obviates shooting at random, and the enormous expenditure of costly ammunition will be averted. The importance of this is appreciated when one realizes that the cost of a single round fired from a modern gun is from $500 to $2500. Every shot can now be driven where it will do the most good, or harm. Two shots fired with the Rafferty range finder at a target over three miles distant proved a success. The first shot struck the water only fifteen yards distant, while the second shot hit the barrel, destroying it. There was also used another of Lieut. Rafferty's inventions for correcting atmospheric errors, which greatly assisted in the long-distance firing.

A new reason why the new woman must discard one of the most characteristically feminine articles of her attire of fall short of her role, has turned up at the girls' high school at Oakland, Cal. She must either abandon corsets or one of the most promising professions, that embracing electricity in all its branches. Five hundred Oakland co-eds are seriously disturbed over the situation, but the issue is severely plain. One o rthe other must be abandoned, the governors of the school say.

An electrical department was added to the school some time ago, and a course of electricity established. The poor professor in charge has had a dreadful time. During the lessons the delicate instruments have played all sorts of tricks, and all his experiments have been of doubtful success. Every once in a while a girl would step up to tell what she had learned about volts, ohms and amperes, and immediately the galvanometers would gyrate wildly and the needles on the various dials would wobble, and all the laws of Volta and Ohm and Faraday would go to smash, and the findings of Edison and Tesla would become strangely lost. Then the professor knew the student beside him had on a high grade corset with ribs of finest steel. The instruments were affected by the presence of some students, because they wore health waists of some sort and were braced with whalebone or some substitute for steel.

Finally Professor Meads was obliged to issue a rule barring corseted girls from the electrical department, and the governor endorsed this rule. It might seem to be a rule difficult to enforce and delicate to handle. But Professor Meads finds it easy. In entering the electrical department the girls have to pass one of the professor's sensitive galvanometers. The professor stands unobtrusively beside it. The impertinent "jigger" works like a charm, and there is no way in which the girls can beat the game. On the near approach of a girl wearing steel-ribbed corsets the needle gyrates frantically, and the girl is respectfully but firmly reminded of the rule, and expostulations are useless.

A dry dock will be built at the Erie basin in the New York harbor by the recently incorporated International Dry Dock and Construction company, of New York, large enough to admit the largest ocean vessel. The dock will be constructed on a new design, and will be a decided improvement on the structures now in use. The cost of the new dock will be about $300,000, and it is expected that it will be completed within nine months. It is designed and planned so that at any time it can be extended so as to dock the largest ship afloat or it can be disconnected at the sections so as to be used for one or more vessels. It will be the largest and best floating dry dock in the world.

The Electrical Potential, a club of Boston electricians, held its annual meeting a few evening since and listened to a lecture on the X rays by Professor Elihu Thomson, who performed several experiments in the new photography and illustrated what had been done by others by means of stereopticon views. In the course of his remarks Professor Thomson said he did not believe the new ray was a sound wave, neither did he believe that it had any curative effect on diseases. He ridiculed the idea that it would ever be possible to photograph the brain by this process.

On the other hand, George Newcomb, of Salem, who has been diligently studying the cathode rays of late, has made a number of interesting experiments showing that the waves evolved are not of light, but rather of sound or heat. He says he and a friend, who hit upon the same idea about the same time, took a piece of steel four feet long, five-eighths of an inch wide and one-tenth of an inch thick, and with their device succeeded in burning the fingers of the person who touched the piece of steel. If a person took hold of the extreme end of the bar and felt a tingling in the fingers he would be immediately relieved if another person took hold of the bar anywhere in the middle, indicating that interuption of the sound waves took up the heat and left the balance of the bar cold. They took another piece of steel, fourteen inches in length and about the same thickness of the first piece, and to one end of it attached their mechanism. The other end they touched to a pine board and instantly the pine began to smolder and soon to burn. The steel showed no sign of having been heated.

The British steamship County of York, Capt. Maddrell, with 3000 tons of Egyptian sugar, the first cargo of the kind that was ever landed at Philadelphia, arrived March 2, from Alexandria, Egypt, after a passage of thirty-two days. This cargo, which comes in bags, is one of the highest grade. For years vast quantities of it have been imported to the United Kingdom and continent. Its coming to Philadelphia is due to the anticipated scarcity of the Cuban crop. The Egyptian sugar is grown and manufactured under the supervision of the khedive, from whom this cargo was purchased by the trust. By reason of the insurrection in Cuba, and the burning of a number of the most productive plantations, only about half a crop has been raised, and the grinding, which has heretofore began in the middle of December, has just been started. In all there are only four plantations that will be able to do any grinding this season, many of them having had their machinery ruined in the course of the war. This cargo will be followed by several others from Alexandria. The County of York sailed from Philadelphia in November for Greece with a cargo of case oil, and after discharging at the ancient port of Patras, was chartered to go to Alexandria and load for Philadelphia.

In the Scientific American supplement of May 23, H. S. Maxim, the inventor of the Maxim quick-firing gun, describes a magazine or revolver gun for which a patent was issued to James Puckle, in England, in 1718, by King George. The gun is mounted on a tripod, in a manner substantially similar to one pattern of the modern Gatling gun, and has a single barrel, provided with a revolving chamber, carrying from five to nine shots. The piece has a very modern appearance, but the method of firing was very crude, on account of the lack of modern percussion caps. A portion of the original description, filed by the inventor, is as follows:

A DEFENSE.
Defending King George, your country and lawes,
Is defending yourself and Protestant cause.

A portable gun or machine called a defense. For bridges, breaches, lines and passes, ships, boats, houses and other places: 1. The barrel of the gun; 2. The sett of chambers charg'd put on ready for firing; 3. The screw upon which every sett of chambers play off and on; 4. A set of chambers ready charg'd to be slipped on when the first sett are pull'd off to be recharged; 5. The crane to rise, fall and turn the gun around; 6. The curb to level and fix the same; 7. The screw to rise and fall it; 8. The screw to take out the crane when the gun with the trepeid is to be folded up; 9. The trepeid whereon it plays; 10. The chain to prevent the trepeids extending too far out; 11. The hooks to fix the trepeid, and unhook when the same is folded up in order to be carried with the gun upon a man's shoulder; 12. The tube wherein the pivot of the crane turns; 13. A charge of 20 square bullets; 14. A single bullet; 15. The front of the chambers of a gun for a boat; 16. The plate of the chambers for the gun for a ship shooting square bullets against Turks; 17. For round bullets against Christians; 18. A single chamber; 19. A single round chamber; 20. A single bullet for a boat; 21. The mould for casting single bullets.

"It will be observed," says Mr. Maxim, "that the inventor proposes to use round bullets against Christians, presumably Catholics, and square ones against Turks. Had his majesty, King George, been at war with any heathen nation at the time, it may be presumed that he would have recommended a bullet to be used against them still more angular than square, recommended for Turks, while he might have recommended the employment of soft bullets made of cork or wood against his own erring co-religionists, the Protestants." This old patent is extremely interesting as showing how far in advance of his time an inventor may be. This invention was permitted to find an early grave through its short-sightedness, or possibly the superstition, of the inventor's countrymen. The same principal was revived by Col. Colt in his revolver more than 100 years later, and Colt made a fortune from it.

Professor Alexander Graham Bell, of telephone fame, has highly endorsed the experiments of Professor Langley, secretary of the Smithsonian institute, in his efforts to perfect a means of mechanical flight. Professor Bell speaks so enthusiastically of the merits of the Langley machine that he gives one the impression that he considers that Professor Langley has successfully solved the problem of navigating the air. There are great names connected with modern experiments in airship construction. Will the first success belong to Langley, to Maxim, or to some genius at present to fortune and to fame unknown.

The scientists have finally concluded that the ordinary cow doesn't know how to make milk as it should be made, and laboratories have been established in which the chemist separates the ingredients, which thoughtless "bossy" has mixed together without rhyme or reason, and remixes them in varying proportions to suit the digestive organs of either blue-eyed or brown-eyed babies. One might argue that the lacteal offerings of a blond cush-ush would be grateful to a flaxen-haired damsel, and that of a dark one to the raven-tressed joy of the household, or, if the rule is by opposites, that the bottles might be exchanged; but no, the medical Solomons say that no dependence can be placed upon such rules, and they, therefore, proceed to manufacture "modified milk." After the fatty substances, proteids, casin, sugar, fibrin and other component parts of the milk are scientifically separated, they are placed in different receptacles and remixed according to prescription. Ulysses Achilles Von Biberstein wants an unnatural proportion of fibrin in his milk and Ulysses Achilles gets it. While little Miss Gracie Van Cortlandt, in training for future five-pound boxes of Huylers, coaxes the big-hearted doctor into believing that she requires more sugar. Great is science, and happy, indeed, the latest arrivals in the realm of infancy.

At least two patents issued last week for exceedingly simple devices will probably be worth fortunes to the inventors. One is for a toy. Everyone remembers the "beeper" rattle with which the small boy made his neighborhood a pandemonium, and which was also, at one time, used to give expression to enthusiasm in political celebrations. The new toy is an improvement on the locust, but is much like it in appearance. The improvement consists in providing a ribbon of detonating caps, which ribbon is fed under a reciprocating hammer, and the caps successively exploded. The feeding and exploding mechanism is actuated by the whirling of the locust, and it is needless to add that the caps, which can be supplied in any desired strength, can be exploded as rapidly as the cartridges in a Maxim quick-firing gun. It is fair to estimate that these toys can be manufactured for 5 cents each, and sold for 15 or 25 cents. The small boy may safely be trusted to contribute generously to the inventor.

Another simple and valuable invention is a drinking cup for invalids, designed particularly for patients who are obliged to remain in a recumbent position. Nearly everyone has at one time or other experienced the inconvenience of drinking from an ordinary cup or glass under such circumstances, when, moreover, the hand is nervous and weak, and the difficulty of preventing a spill. An invalid's cup or glass has now been patented, having a breast formed at an angle to the cup-body, and a drinking lip upon the same angle as the body of the cup, thus making it possible to drink while the head rests on the pillow, and practically impossible to spill the liquid without design.

MISSING

One Hundred and Twenty Names of Probable Cyclone Victims.

Have Not Been Seen Since Wednesday's Visitation at St. Louis.

Many Names of People Appear From Outside Cities and Towns.

St. Louis, June 1.—The list of persons missing since the terrible tornado of last Wednesday is appalling. At present the police have about 120 names which are given in the following list:

Charles and Eddie Appel, 8 and 6 years, Louis Arnicka, John Brouthers, Henry Reichenbacher, C. M. Brown, Carl Brandenberger, John Conelly, Springfield, Ill., Alphonse Cooning, Barlington, Ky., William Crooks, Mammie Conrad, Charles Coles, William Cook, Joseph Dorsey, Joseph Detzer, Mrs. Florence Davis, Stephen Davidson, Philip Damat, Jean Decker, F. P. Goodline, Adolph Goodline, Walter Gruenwald, Maggie Hickey, Jacob Harris, Isbel Thorne, Charles Huss, George Hesse, Joseph Heeman, George Howard, Minneapolis, Minn., Albert Hardy, Logansport, Ind., E. T. Jean, B. Jacobs, J. W. Johnson, Samuel Jones, Birdie Jacobs, Jeremiah Ray, recently from Belleville, Ill., —— Fenks, Mary Kolfer, Lizzie Kolm, Charles Keifer, E. P. Kelly, Chicago, Gerhard Knoll, Sadie Knipp, Jas. Klein, Chas. Arthony Lambkin, came from Cincinnati on the day of the storm.

C. McCarthy, Jas. McLellan, Webster Grove, Jessie McCarthy, Memphis, Tenn., G. Meyer, Hamburg, Ill., Joseph McLaughlin, George Moser, Dora Myers, from Chicago, A. J. Niesinger, Indianapolis, Ind., John O'Leary, William O'Meara, James O'Reilly, M. Parker, Mills Pauley, Andrew P. Probasco, Mary Ridley, Alton, Ill., John Rose, John Raack, Ida Richards, Charles W. Rutledge, John Scott, R. Setner, Peoria, Ill., James L. Simmons, James H. Smith, Charles A. Schoff, K. Schulter, John Smith, Lena Sanger, James Sturgeon, Charles Stein, August F. Schmitt, M. D. Strudel, S. W. Thompson, Mollie Thuruss, Mrs. M. Terrance, F. H. Woodell, William Lind, Max Weis, William Ward, Louisville, Ky., Bertie Wetzel, Olga Wepenfritz, Mary Wagner, George Watkins, St. Paul, Minn., Robert Wilson, Oscar Whetzl, John Wullinger, Tim Woods, John Young, George Zeigler, Frank and Rose Zalljagak.

Lizzie Tex, colored, thought to be under the ruins at 2728 Russell avenue, chambermaid of the steamer J. J. O'Dill; eleven persons, names unknown, supposed to have been drowned on the steamer Libbie Conger; carpenter, of the steamer Vicksburg; four school girls, supposed to be in the ruins of the Zoulard market.

Last week it was thought that fifty or sixty patients were in the ruins of the city hospital which was demolished by the tornado. Today every man, woman and child who was in the institution either as help, nurse, doctor, or patient has been accounted for. Michael Dunn was the only one killed outright.

At St. John's hospital, at Twenty-third and Tonis street, the patients were all doing fairly well except Anton Gregory, of Second and Victor streets, who had not yet recovered consciousness.

At the Alexian Brothers' hospital two patients have died and three have been discharged. The doctors at the different institutions expect very few additional deaths now among their patients.

This morning there were eleven bodies of tornado victims in the morgue. They were Cora and Ethel Claypool, Mrs. Cahill, Mary Talbott, William Anderson, Chares Alcornero, an unknown white man supposed to be Adolph Gutman, William Plank, and three children from the Bethesda home.

Of this number three were removed by relatives later in the day. They were the Claypools and Mrs. Cahill. The others will be interred in the potter's field this afternoon.

The work of clearing up the debris and repairing the damage left by Wednesday's storm continues with unabated vigor, despite the drizzling rain that has been falling all morning, making it uncomfortable for workers and victims alike. All day yesterday teams that had been donated to the use of the storm sufferers helped many to move from their dismantled homes to places of security and shelter, and this good work still goes on without cessation. Great numbers of people are receiving aid at the different relief depots in the way of food, clothing and household necessities that have been donated by the citizens of St. Louis.

The best news of today was that occupants of the demolished city hospital, forty or fifty of whom were reported still under the ruins, are accounted for. A list of 120 persons missing in St. Louis since the storm is in the hands of the police. Many among them are people from outside St. Louis, who were visiting here or who had business in town. A search is being carried on for all these among the ruins of wrecked buildings. Many thousands of people from the surrounding country who came to St. Louis yesterday to see a great city partially destroyed have left for their homes, but hundreds still remain.

In East St. Louis, where it is related that at least 100,000 people visited the ruins, there was a terrible crush at the depot Sunday night when they started to return home. The trains were inadequate to accommodate the multitude, and many had to remain there overnight. In East St. Louis the work of relieving the many homeless and destitute persons is being carried on rapidly and everywhere buildings are receiving repairs and debris being removed. The first estimate of $2,000,000 loss has dwindled down to less than $500,000, and the chances are that these figures will be reduced materially. Five persons were certainly drowned and probably others.

TO ASK FOR AID.

St. Louis Mass Meeting May Make an Appeal.

St. Louis, June 1.—A mass meeting of citizens has been called for Tuesday afternoon to consider the advisability of appealing for outside aid for the relief of storm sufferers. The call is signed by a number of prominent Germans, South Broadway merchants and citizens of the devastated portions of South St. Louis.

The call states that the loss of property is greater than was at first supposed, it being estimated at $20,000,000. For this reason, the call continues, assistance is sorely needed and the generous offers of numerous cities of this and foreign countries should not be declined.

NERVOUS NOW.

A Storm Frightens the St. Louis Sufferers.

St. Louis, June 1.—At an early hour this morning the two stricken cities, St. Louis and East St. Louis received a thorough scare. A storm came up from the southwest accompanied by low rumbling thunder and almost continuous flashes of lightning. Then a few minutes later, big black clouds appeared on the northern horizon and rolled up until they covered the city.

There was a strong wind, though nothing at all approaching a hurricane or tornado. The storm lasted for an hour and then became a slow drizzling rain. No damage resulted.

CHOLERA RIOTS.

Serious Riots Occur at a Cairo Mosque.

Cairo, June 1.—Serious disturbances have taken place at the Moslem university mosque. Some sanitary officers attempted to visit the school where a case of cholera had been reported. The students opposed the entrance of the officials and the governor of Cairo and other government officers were summoned. The students stoned the place. The disturbances were finally quelled.

POLICE USED FIREARMS.

London, June 1.—A special dispatch from Cairo says that during the disturbance at the Moslem university mosque there, the police were compelled to fire on the students and that 200 arrests were made.

HAMMOND PAROLED.

Delayed Pretoria Dispatch Brings Good News.

Paris, June 1.—A dispatch to the Temps, apparently old, from Pretoria, says that John Hays Hammond has been paroled and has gone to Johannesburg where his wife is ill.

ELECTION IN PORTLAND.

Police and Sheriffs Called to Preserve Peace.

Portland, Ore., June 1.—The weather today throughout the state is fine and an unusually heavy vote has been polled. The greatest interest is centered in the election of the congressman in the Second district where H. H. Northrup, Republican, is running as an independent candidate on a gold standard platform. The regular Republican, Democratic and Populist nominees are all well known adherents of the free coinage of silver. In this city very bitter feeling has been engendered by a split in the Republican party, and soon after the opening of the polls several fights occurred. Corps of special police and deputy sheriffs have been sworn in, the police being arrayed on the side of the Mitchell Republican ticket, while the deputy sheriffs are working in the interest of the regular Republican ticket.

THE GREEN BAY ROAD.

Milwaukee, June 1.—Judge Seaman today overruled the objections of William S. Mowry, representing the original first mortgage bond holders of the Green Bay Winona & St. Peter railroad, to the sale of the property which took place recently at Green Bay, and confirmed the report of Special Master Hoyt. Mr. Hoyt received $3500. The court also ruled that the master pay $165,000 of the purchase price, less 35 per cent, into court, to protect the interests of Mr. Mowry in case he secures a favorable decision from the court of appeals.

RULE NOT ENFORCED.

Milwaukee, June 1.—Owing to the attitude assumed in the matter by the Western Passenger association, the Wisconsin Central Railroad company did not today inaugurate its rule of free transportation for all bicycles, baby carriages, etc., offered as baggage by passengers holding tickets over its lines. The original intention was to put the rule into effect June 1. It is not now known just when the matter will be disposed of.

A PRISONER DISCHARGED.

London, June 1.—At the Bow street police court today Cuthbert Cooper, who was recently arrested at Sheffield charged with embezzling funds belonging to the Prudential Insurance company, of Erie, Pa., was discharged by the chief magistrate, Sir John Bridge, the latter holding that no jury would convict the prisoner on the evidence produced.

NOMINATED BY THE PRESIDENT.

Washington, June 1.—The president sent the following nominations to the senate today: State—Abram Serven, of New York, to be chief examiner of the civil service commission. Justice—William B. Childers, of New Mexico, to be attorney of the United States for the territory of New Mexico.

FLOATERS AT MEMPHIS.

Memphis, Tenn., June 1.—This morning the bodies of a woman and a child were found floating opposite the city. There was nothing by which they could be identified. They are supposed to be the victims from the ferry boat Katharine at Cairo, or the St. Louis tornado.

A STAIRCASE COLLAPSES.

London, June 1.—Special dispatches from Antwerp say that a staircase collapsed last evening at the close of the performance of Lockghart's American circus, injuring twenty people. All of the injured will recover.

A FIGHT

Vigorous Contest Over the River and Harbor Bill Is Expected.

Dockery, of Missouri, Will Defend the Action of the President.

Catchings and Towne Will Reply on Behalf of the Committee.

Washington, June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is known today that there will be a vigorous fight on the floor of the house when the river and harbor bill is taken up with the intention of passing it over President Cleveland's veto. It is still believed, however, that the bill will pass, notwithstanding President Cleveland's views will be determinedly supported by some of his friends in the house. Representative Dockery, of Missouri, will lead the fight against the passage of the bill and will give a detailed statement of appropriations for projects the president regarded as unjust and in fact not worthy of the full support of the government.

Representative Catchings, of Mississippi, will reply to Dockery's speech in behalf of the river and harbors committee. Representative Towne, of Minnesota, has been asked and has consented to deliver a speech in favor of the passage of the bill over the president's veto. Representatives Fletcher and Towne called on Dockery today and discovered that he would not attack any of the appropriations for Minnesota, and the Wisconsin members do not anticipate that the appropriations in the bill for that state will be mentioned by the president's Missouri supporter.

Washington, June 1.—The house committee on rivers and harbors today decided to recommend to the house the passage of the river and harbor bill over the president's veto. There was no difference of opinion between the Democrats and Republicans. The only point of discussion was whether the report should be in the nature of a reply to President Cleveland's objections to the bill and the contract system, and an affirmative conclusion was reached.

There was an attempt in the committee to have the bill brought up in the house today, but the assurance given by Representative Herman that the bill would be called up Tuesday prevented such action. It was decided to ask the committee on rules to allow a day or two to debate the veto. Only half an hour's debate was had on the passage of the bill in the house.

CUBA'S WARFARE.

Several Small Skirmishes Reported By Weyler.

Havana, June 1.—A force of insurgents under Albert O. Roderiguez, coming from the plantation Neuvo, three miles from Guirra, where are concentrated numerous bands of insurgents, has succeeded in entering the village of Purtade La Guirra, situated near the military line, where they burned forty houses and sixty huts. The village of Justinia was also burned. It is stated that the insurgents prohibited the circulation of daily newspapers in the districts they control, threatening to punish with death any person infringing this order. The insurgents under Zayas, in their march westward, have, according to official reports, become demoralized, and have been unable to collect additional bands in consequence of the defeat sustained by them at Metina, where they are reported to have lost eighty-four killed.

The insurgents, under Bienvinido Sachez and Morejon, have burned 2000 tons of cane on the plantation of San Jose. A Spanish force near Jagury La Grande captured an insurgent named Felciano Hernandez. In trying to escape the prisoner was shot and killed. The insurgents wrecked a relief train by throwing a bomb at it from behind a house. The missile exploded beneath the engine and killed the engineer and wounded six mechanics.

A dispatch from Sancti Spiritus says that fifteen persons, including seven musicians, belonging to a battalion of local volunteers, has joined the insurgents. An insurgent force has surprised the local guerrillas of Cardena resulting in five of the latter being killed. Abecto, an important insurgent leader, who was second in command with the insurgent force at Managua, this province, assumed supreme command on the surrender of Chiste to the Spanish authorities.

A BREWERY BURNED.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 1.—Fire at an early hour this morning partly destroyed D. Lutz & Son's brewery on Spring Garden avenue, Allegheny. Loss, $50,000, fully insured. The origin of the fire is a mystery. The brewery will be rebuilt at once.

STRIKERS WERE BEATEN.

Lafayette, Col., June 1.—The strike at the Northern Colorado mines, ordered a week ago by the Western Federation of Miners, ended today and the men returned to work without having gained a settlement of their grievances.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING.

Lawrence, Kan., June 1.—In a storm last night a man named Wynne and his son, of Edwardsville, who were visiting near Tonganoxie, were struck by lightning and instantly killed.

THE TREASURY STATEMENT.

Washington, June 1.—Today's statement of the condition of the treasury shows: Available cash balance, $267,193,210; gold reserve, $108,345,233.

CLARKSON IMPROVING.

New York, June 1.—James S. Clarkson, of Iowa, whose illness was reported to have taken a dangerous turn, is reported today to be much improved.

TWO CONVENTIONS.

County Committee Against a "Bunched" Convention.

The Republican county committee decided against the "bunched" convention this afternoon and will issue a call for a convention to elect forty-three delegates to the state convention at St. Paul on July 1 and fifty-eight delegates to the congressional convention at St. Cloud on July 16. The convention to nominate county officers and delegates to the legislative and judicial conventions will be held later. The representation decided upon was the same as for the last county convention, one delegate in each precinct for every 100 votes or fraction thereof cast for Governor Nelson in 1894. The county convention will be held on June 25 and the primaries on the evening of June 23. The hours for the primaries in the city will be from 7 to 9 o'clock and in the country from 5 to 7 o'clock.

The session of the committee was anything but tame; in fact, the air fairly sizzled for a time. There were fourteen present, and they proved to be equally divided. A resolution was introduced providing for holding a convention to elect state and congressional delegates.

Messrs. Christensen, Fisher, Tromblay and others wanted a "bunched" convention, and presented an amendment to that effect.

The amendment was lost, the vote being 7 to 7. The question then came up on the original motion, and Chairman Getty called the resolution carried.

Then there was a roar. An appeal from the chair was called for but was not accorded, and a motion to adjourn was carried with a rush.

DULUTH & WINNIPEG.

Sir William Van Horne is in St. Paul Today.

St. Paul, June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sir William Van Horne, president of the Canadian Pacific railway, and Vice President O'Shaughnessy, arrived here this morning from Montreal. It is understood that their visit is in connection with the litigation over the Duluth & Winnipeg road, and that they will endeavor to arrange matters so that the foreclosure sale will be held at an early date. This would probably result in the road's extension this year.

CANADIAN POLITICS.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell Talks About Them.

London, June 1.—The St. James Gazette this afternoon publishes a long interview with Sir Mackenzie Bowell, the Canadian premier, on the Pacific cable conference and Canadian politics. He is quoted as having no doubt the Conservatives will be successful in the elections, unless the school question takes a stronger hold on the people than the premier thinks it will.

Sir Bowell is also quoted as saying that the Liberals were willing to accept reciprocity with the United States coupled with discrimination against England; but that the Conservatives refused to accept the proposition.

PARLIAMENT AGAIN.

English Legislators Re-Assembled This Morning.

London, June 1.—Parliament reassembled today after the Whitsuntide recess. In the house of commons George F. Curzon, replying to John Morley, denied the existence of any correspondence with Germany on the subject of the Soudan. He added that the correspondence with Laly in this connection was of a military character and could not be laid upon the table.

MOSCOW'S HORROR.

Burial of the Victims Proceeded All Night.

Moscow, June 1.—The burial of victims on the Kehodijnskoje plain progressed all night long and is still being proceeded with amid scenes of poignant grief. Only mourners are admitted to the cemetery.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Market Opened Very Strong and High.

New York, June 1.—The stock market opened strong and higher with trading moderate in volume. The railway stocks scored fractional gains for the internationals, being helped by general advance in London quotations. Sugar had eased off slightly by 11 o'clock on the announcement of ¼ per cent reduction in refined grades of the product. The general market, however, continued to tend upwards with the grangers most in request and the temper of speculation uninfluenced by the engagement of $500,000 gold for shipment to Germany tomorrow.

Speculation during the second hour was practically featureless. Prices were well held until just before midday, when there were some concessions on realizing, chiefly in the grangers. The sales to noon were 49,800 shares.

CENTURY

Tennessee Celebrates Her Arrival at a Century Mile Post.

Weather Is Not Auspicious and Decorations Were Badly Drenched.

But Enthusiasm Was Not Washed Out--Great Crowd Present.

Nashville, Tenn., June 1.—The anniversary day to which Tennesseans have long looked for with such emotions of pride and with such delightful anticipations dawned gloomily. The sky was overhung with clouds which lingered after the rains of the day before and as the day advanced the rain once more began to fall. The city's gay decorations were drenched and the prospect for the splendid and elaborate parade was disappointing.

However, the booming of cannon giving what intended to be the sunrise salute of sixteen guns, thrilled the assembled multitudes and despite the clouded skies and the showers of rain, the streets were alive with hurrying couriers and cavaleades of marshals and aides who were busy preparing for the parade. The great procession was to start at 9:30 o'clock, but as forbidding was the weather the committee decided to postpone the parade through the city and out to the exposition grounds until 11:30. The trains since Saturday have been bringing crowds of people into the city and many thousands of strangers are here to enjoy the demonstrations in honor of the hundredth anniversary of the state's organization.

The driving rain, with all of its depressing effects, could not dampen the fervor of the centennial occasion. While the rain poured down and there was no apparent prospect of favorable weather, the order was issued to march at 12 o'clock, rain or no rain. As soon as the announcement was made cheers were heard and were taken up on the streets. Gen. Thurman, at the appointed time, set the parade in motion. First were the bicycle brigades, headed by eight mounted policemen; then came the chief marshal and staff, with an honorary staff of 100 men, composed of the leading citizens of the state; then the military organizations, federal and state, next the state and federal officials and distinguished guests, followed by the State Historical society and exposition committees.

The second division consisted of the chamber of commerce, Colonial Dames, Daughters of the Revolution, Hermitage association, Daughters of the Confederacy, Christian Temperance union, and various civic orders.

The third division was composed of ex-Confederate veterans, the Travelers Protective association, Knights of Pythias, Hoo-Hoos, and various other orders in uniform.

The fourth division contained citizens in carriages, numerous labor organizations and Centennial guards. The Fifth division was the colored division, which was very large, and included many negro organizations in uniform, benevolent and social societies and workingmen.

Notwithstanding the weather, the parade was one of the largest and most enthusiastic ever witnessed in the history of the state.

The leading event of tomorrow will be a sham battle by the military between 4 and 6 p. m. That the poetic features of the occasion may be of a high order a prize of $100 has been offered for the best poem on Tennessee. The exposition grounds comprise a park of 200 acres lying two miles west of the city hall. Nearly $100,000 has already been expended to put the grounds in condition for the inaugural work.

Among the most interesting buildings will be the Woman's building, which will be 160 by 110 feet. The Hermitage, twelve miles from Nashville, the home of Andrew Jackson when he was president of the United States, will be easily recognized by those who are familiar with it, in the design of this edifice. But the artist-architect, Mrs. Sarah Ward Conley, has idealized the Hermitage by adding to its colonial style suggestions of the Greek school of architecture, and produced a strikingly beautiful effect. The central part of the interior will be a large rotunda, with a grand staircase leading up, right and left, at the rear. The exterior will be done in white staff, and the interior, which will be very costly, will be executed in hard wood and Tennessee marbles.

The agricultural building will be a beautiful structure worthy to contain the products of that oldest and greatest of all employments. The structure wherein will be displayed the products of the field will be considered by many people the most beautiful feature of the exposition. The building is in the Renaissance style of architecture. The dimensions are 300 by 200 feet, and the central dome, the feature of the design, rises to a height of 100 feet, while six minor domes balance and lend charm to the whole. The four entrances lead under triumphant arches, embellished with carving and surmounted by statuary. The location of the building on the grounds is such that its classical lines and fine proportions will be seen to splendid advantage from all directions.

PRINCESS ANGELINE.

A Pioneer Figure Dies in Seattle Today.

Seattle, Wash., June 1.—In the death of Princess Angeline, Seattle loses one of the most picturesque figures of pioneer days. She was the daughter of old Chief Seattle, after whom the town was named, and on account of the friendship of her powerful father for the whites during the famous battle of Seattle in 1856, Angeline, in her declining years has been looked after by the old settlers.

She was 70 years old. She had suffered greatly for the last few weeks, but fought like a tiger when an effort was made to force her in a hospital, and where her life undoubtedly could have been prolonged. She is almost the last of the Duwamish tribe.

THEOSOPHICAL TOUR.

Large Party to Leave For Europe Soon.

New York, June 1.—The Theosophical society of America has resolved to undertake a propagandist tour of the world. With this object in view a party will sail June 13 on the steamship City of Paris. It will consist of Ernest Temple Hargrove, visible head of the cult; Mrs. Katherine A. Tingley, head of the esoteric section, sometimes referred to as the "adept." Claude Falls Wright, president of the Argan Theosophical society; Mrs. Wright; H. T. Patterson, president of the Brooklyn branch; Mrs. Archibald Keightly and others.

The Theosophists will visit various points in England, Ireland, France, Germany, Italy, Austria, Egypt, Ceylon, where it is said the most powerful of all the Mahatmas has his home; India, Australia, New Zealand, Java, Sumatra, Phillipine Islands, China and Japan, and in February will leave Yokohama on their return to San Francisco.

"This is not to be a pleasure trip by any means," said President Hargrove. "It is undertaken to spread a knowledge of theosophy, its fundamental teachings to the brotherhood of man, and to carry a message of unity from nation to nation. We look for disturbances among the European powers ere long, and any effort toward a common sense of brotherhood must do good."

BASEBALL AT TOWER.

The Home Team Lost to the Elyites.

Tower, Minn., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tower celebrated the opening of its new ball park yesterday by loosing to Ely in the first game of the Iron Range league. The feature of the game was the pitching of Dooley for Tower in the last five innings. Ely had the game well in hand until the last inning, when she went to pieces. The score:

	R.	H.	E.
Ely.. ....1 2 0 6 0 0 1 0 0—11	8	10
Tower ....0 0 1 0 0 0 0 1 0 7—9	11	11

Batteries—Lynn, Lynch and Sullivan; Heenan, Kramer, Dooley and McQuade.

Tower defeated Ely in the gun shoot, getting 169 birds to their opponents' 141 out of a possible 225, nine men on each side.

QUEEN'S FINAL LEVEE.

London, June 1.—The prince of Wales on behalf of the queen, held the final levee of the season this afternoon at St. James palace. The function was a brilliant one and there was the usual state procession from Marlborough house to the palace. United States Ambassador Bayard, most of the other ambassadors and ministers and the marquis of Salisbury and the cabinet attended.

Eczema is a frightful affliction, but like all other skin diseases it can be permanently cured by applications of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. It never fails to cure piles. S. F. Boyce.

ROASTED

Horrible Accident in a Shamokin Colliery Caused By Gas.

Five Miners Badly Burned in an Explosion and May Die.

Two Are Fatally Injured and the Others Are Badly Hurt.

Shamokin, Pa., June 1.—Five miners were horribly roasted by an explosion of gas at the Beckridge colliery today. Two of them are dying from their injuries and there is but slight hope of the recovery of the others. The victims are:

George Faust, frightfully burned about his entire body; cannot recover.

Samuel Faust, a brother of the first, burned about hands, face and body; recovery doubtful.

Thomas Thompson, burned from head to foot; will die.

Daniel Schmeltz, burned about head, face and upper part of body; may recover.

John Specht, burned about head, face and body; may recover.

Seven other workmen who were within twenty-five yards of the injured men, escaped without injury. The men were employed in No. 9 vein, which was known to be full of gas. They proceeded cautiously and were using safety lamps, while brushing the gas from the chamber. Suddenly there was a loud explosion and the five men were hurled into the floor surrounded by flames.

Had it not been for the proximity of their fellow workmen, the men would have all been killed. They were carried to a place of safety before the deadly after-damp had had time to accumulate.

The mine is owned and operated by the Reading Coal and Iron company and is located about four miles from this place.

QUAY ADMITS IT.

McKinley Will Be Nominated on First Ballot.

New York, June 1.—A special to the Herald from Washington says: Senator Quay concedes the nomination of McKinley on the first ballot at the St. Louis convention, and gave out figures last night to back up his opinion. This is the first time the Pennsylvania leader has publicly admitted the certainty of the nomination of McKinley.

According to Mr. Quay's list, McKinley will receive 479 votes on the first ballot or nineteen more than are necessary to assure his nomination.

OREGON'S ELECTION.

A Very Much Mixed Up Affair in Progress.

Portland, Ore., June 1.—The Oregon state election which is being held today will have significance and interest as being the first gun of the presidential campaign. It will, however, be impossible for politicians in other states to get much satisfaction from the result, because of the demoralized condition of the three parties. Ever since the fighting and shooting at the April primaries in this city this campaign has been intensely exciting, and never before was there an election which caused more anxiety than the one which will take place today.

Two congressmen are to be elected, one for each district, together with a supreme judge and city, county and legislative officers throughout the state. In nearly every county and city there are three tickets in the field—Republican, Democratic and Populist, and in some cases there are independent tickets and two Republican tickets.

St. Louis, Mo., June 1.—Col. G. A. In July, 1895, having reached the retiring age, he was retired with the rank of lieutenant colonel.

HAZERS EXPELLED.

Brutal Pranks of a Lot of College Men.

New York, June 1.—A special to the Herald from Eaton, Pa., says: Four students have been suspended from Lafayette college for hazing, and others are to go. The suspended men are W. S. Aln, Williamsport, Pa.; James McFarren, Sayre, Pa.; L. Smith, Columbus, Ohio, and James Carter, Philadelphia. Investigations have been carried on for three or four days by President Wardield, with the result that it was told on the campus that the four sophomores had received notice to go home. These men are all cast for prominent parts in the sophomore play to be given at commencement, and the performance is to be abandoned. They have been rehearsing for months.

The college authorities are very strict about hazing, and the fact that they have been dotled has caused much surprise. One freshman was badly frightened by discharges of fireworks. It is said another was initiated into a new fraternity and that he was branded by cigars as part of the ceremony. Another story is that of a freshman who was made to exercise considerable, put through track athletic training and then rubbed down with sand. It is said some higher class men are involved.

The Residents Near Smithville Want Some Police Protection.

Tramps Are Very Thick in That Vicinity and Are Daring.

E. H. Stevenson's Adventure With Two of Them Several Days Ago.

The residents of Smithville are preparing a petition to be presented to the city council asking for the extension of the police alarm system to that place. The telephone company already has a line of poles to Smithville and as the city has the right to string a wire upon the poles it would not be a heavy expense to extend the system which is now in use as far as the woolen mill. The people in that vicinity are continually troubled with tramps and sneak thieves. Last summer a mounted policeman was kept in that district, but even this protection has been discontinued.

Last Friday night as E. H. Stevenson, of the firm of Stevenson & Co., was returning home he discovered a thief on a ladder attempting to break into his home. He chased the robber down towards the railway track and attempted to catch him. After a short run, however, he was overtaken by a partner of the man he was after whom he had not seen and who rushed upon him, knocked him down and kicked him. A short time ago this firm lost some feed, which was stolen out of a barn near their place of business and there is no naming the number of chickens that have disappeared in the dead of night through these sneak thieves. There are about seventy-five people at Spirit Lake and Smithville, and they dare not leave their homes alone for fear of depredations by tramps, who appear to make this place a rendezvous for general supplies. They are pretty well aroused over the matter and the council will be petitioned to extend the alarm system and put in a couple of police boxes in order that an alarm may be sent in to the West Duluth department in case of necessity.

DECLINED

Wheat Went Down Rapidly Today, Closing Two Cents Below Saturday.

The Market Was Flooded With Selling Orders Nearly All Day.

There Was a Slight Advance Early, Due to Bullish Reports.

Wheat dropped 2c on the Duluth board today. A healthy tone prevailed at the opening and prices showed an advance of about ¼c. Cables were steady, reflecting no change in price since Friday, and the world's shipments gave promise of being considerably less than the previous week, the Argentine shipments being the smallest so far on the crop. The early strength was ephemeral, however. The market was soon flooded with selling orders, under which prices declined rapidly. Estimates of an enormous crop this year had considerable to do with the break. Late cables came higher and exercised a steadying influence, but the flood of wheat was too great and the prices steadily declined.

July opened ¼c higher at 70¾c, but quickly declined and kept going downward until it touched 69¾c, the last sale being made at that figure which was 2¼c under Saturday's closing price. There was no trading in September but it lost the spread of ¼c, closing even with July. Shippers bought 125,000 bus of cash stuff at the July price and the mills took 80,000 bus at ¼c over July. The close was 2c lower all round than Saturday, except for July which closed 2¼c lower. Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 75c asked; July, 68¾c. No. 1 northern, cash, 66¾c asked; June, 67¾c; July, 67c asked; September, 5c asked. No. 2 northern, cash, 64@64¾c. No. 3, 52½@53½c. Rejected, 49½@53¾c. To arrive—No. 1 hard, 68c asked; No. 1 northern, 66¾c. Rye, 22@23c. Flax, 80c.

Car inspection—Wheat, 159; corn, 1; oats, 25; rye, 18; barley, 14; flax, 6. Receipts—Wheat, 56,561 bus; oats, 28,301 bus; rye, 10,954 bus; barley, 12,326 bus; flax, 1668 bus. Shipments—Wheat, 20,338 bus; barley, 50,699 bus.

GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 307 Board of Trade, Chicago, June 1.—There was enough bull news to cause an advance in wheat, but after a temporary spasm of firmness at the opening, it was apparent that the market could not stand up under the pressure of the flood of wheat which Northwestern and local elevator companies poured upon it. The world's shipments were 2,000,000 bus less than last week. Argentine shipments decreased largely, while the amount afloat and the English visible showed good decreases, yet foreigners were selling short; the far options in this market, and with harvesting in the Southwest and fine weather general, the local traders who attempted to arrest the decline were able to produce only monetary reactions, and each succeeding dip was a little deeper, up to a weak close. Traders are demoralized, shorts well covered and the outside trade not seeing sufficient inducement to buy it, are afraid to sell it short at present prices, though indications begin to point to 50c wheat being a possibility in the near future.

Corn and oats demoralized by the large receipts, and declined easily on moderate selling.

Provisions depressed by, the excessive run of hogs and ruled weak, with shorts the only buyers.

Puts, July wheat, 55¼-¾c.
Calls, July wheat, 56¾-¼c.

IS ALL COMPLETED.

Steel Pipe For the Water Main is Ready.

N. F. Hugo returned yesterday from Racine, Wis., where he has been since the early part of February, superintending the construction of the riveted steel intake pipe for the new water plant. The 1500 feet of ¾-inch pipe is all completed, together with all the fittings, and will be shipped this week, Mr. Hugo says. The flexible joints, made of cast iron, were manufactured at South Milwaukee at the works of the Bucyrus Steam Dredge and Shovel company. This firm makes the strongest cast iron in the country, as the result of years of experimenting to secure a product that will stand the wear and tear to which dredge shovels are subjected. A piece an inch square and 12 inches long stood a pressure of 3345 pounds before breaking.

Mr. Hugo says that all of the Racine industries are in full blast and that the wages of labor are $1.30 per day against $1.50 during good times. Of the population, 85 per cent own their homes. The merchants are doing a fair business, although cheap excursion rates to Milwaukee, made by the Goodrich line, is affecting them somewhat.

Mr. Hugo expressed the hope that the seven miles of force main pipe would be constructed in Duluth. In speaking of the project to make the pipe here, he expressed pleasure at the progress made, and said he fully expected to see work commenced in thirty days should the contract for the pipe be secured. Chicago capital is interested and will be forthcoming at once.

"It will cost about $100,000 to put one of the existing plants in shape for the work," said he. "There would have to be put in an electric crane, besides hydraulic machinery for riveting. The machinery will have to be right up to date to carry on the work successfully, and it will be.

"There will be an ample market for the output. The Dakotas and Nebraska are extending the work of irrigation. All that territory is tributary to us, as we can give better freight rates from here than that region than can be secured on shipments from Chicago."

THE PEOPLE'S FOOD.

One of the features of the current number of the Review of Reviews is an article reviewing Professor W. O. Atwater's investigations as to the nourishing qualities of various foods. Dr. Atwater is professor of chemistry in the Wesleyan university at Middletown, in Connecticut, and his investigation of the laws of nutrition and the economy of the food of man have attracted widespread attention. The fact that they take hold upon the most practical interests of the daily life of the people gives them a particular interest to every person, because, as Edward Atkinson tersely puts it, "half the struggle of life is a struggle for food." The power of a man to work depends upon his nutrition. It is the subject of the investigations pursued by Professor Atwater and others to find what kind of nutriment people actually eat, and, by comparison of their actual food consumption with physiological standards, to learn how their diet might be improved. One thing which the investigations have brought out is that we make a four-fold mistake in our food economy. The mistakes are thus summarized in the Review:

1. We purchase needlessly expensive kinds of food. We use the costlier kinds of meat, fish, vegetables, and the like, when the less expensive ones are just as nutritious, and, when rightly cooked, are just as palatable. Many do this under the impression that there is some peculiar virtue in the dear food materials, and that economy in their diet is somehow detrimental to their dignity or their welfare. And, unfortunately, those who are most extravagant in this respect are often the ones who can least afford it.

2. Our diet is apt to be one-sided. It often does not contain the different nutritive ingredients in the proper proportions. We consume relatively too much of the fuel ingredients of food—those which are burned in the body and yield heat and muscular power. Such are the fats of meat and butter, the starch which makes up the larger part of the nutritive material of flour, potatoes and sugar, of which such enormous quantities are eaten in the United States. Conversely, we have relatively too little of the protein or flesh-forming substances, like the lean of meat and fish and the gluten of wheat, which makes muscle and sinew, and which are the basis of blood, bone and brain.

3. We use excessive quantities of food. This is true not only of the well-to-do, but of many people in moderate circumstances also. Part of the excess which is bought is thrown away in the wastes of the kitchen and the table, so that the injury to health from overeating, great as it may be, is doubtless much less than if all the food we buy were actually eaten. Probably the worst sufferers from this evil are the well-to-do people of sedentary occupations—brain workrs as distinguished from hand workers. Not everybody eats too much, indeed, there are some who do not eat enough for healthful nourishment. But there are those, and their name is legion, with whom the eating habit is as vicious in its effect on health as the drinking habit, which is universally deplored.

4. And finally, we are guilty of serious errors in our cooking. We waste a great deal of fuel in the preparation of our food and even then a great deal of the food is very badly cooked. A reform in the methods of cooking is one of the economic demands of our time.

It is the great object of investigators like Dr. Atwater to point out the way for correcting the four-fold mistake, to show that food is not nutritive because it is expensive or because of the quantity used. Thus in buying at ordinary market rates, we get as much material to build up our bodies, repair their waste and give us strength for work, in 5 cents' worth of flour or beans or codfish, as 50 cents or a dollar will pay for in tenderloin, salmon or lobsters. The maxim that "the best is the cheapest" does not apply to food, in the sense of that which is sold at the highest price, is rarely the most economical for the people in health. The results of Professor Atwater's researches cannot fail to be of very great benefit to the human race.

CLOUGH FALSEHOODS.

The Clough boomers on Saturday were spreading the report around Duluth that Mr. Lee had withdrawn from the gubernatorial race. They are probably retailing the same story elsewhere. Of course there is not a word of truth in it. Mr. Lee is in the fight to stay to the finish, and unless all the usual signs are astray he will come under the wire ahead. The utter hopelessness of Mr. Clough's candidacy is shown by the character of the campaign that he and his friends are conducting. The sole strength that he possesses is in the Merriam-Bixby machine and the state patronage, and both influences are being worked to their full limit. Instructions have been given to claim everything in sight for Clough and thus, if possible, work up a sentiment that he has great popularity and strength, to spread reports that the other candidates—and especially Mr. Lee, who is the most formidable opponent of the machine—are about to retire. It is possible that they believe this style of campaign will win—and then, what other sort of a campaign is it possible to make in behalf of Dave Clough?

In an interview at St. Paul on Friday Mr. Lee said he considered his chances for an election as good as any of the candidates mentioned. "It is absurd," Mr. Lee said, "to assert that a candidate will be nominated on the first ballot. The race will be a hot one and the best man will win. All the candidates will have friends among the delegates, and I feel from the canvass I have made that I will have as many friends in the delegations as any one. I have met with more than ordinary encouragement in my canvass, and have been promised sufficient support now to secure my nomination. Of course, I do not deem it possible that I can hold all the men who have made me promises, nor do I feel sure that I can secure the election of all my delegates, but I still have the chance, which seems very good this year, that the vote will be so close on the first ballot that the candidate who can rally the most delegates to his side in the second ballot will stand a good chance of winning out. The country should have the governor this time, and, with so many candidates in the field, no one candidate has a cinch on the nomination."

Mr. Lee is not given to blow and bluster, and in this respect his campaign differs from that of Governor Clough. But when the state convention meets it will be found that Mr. Lee will have far more votes than Mr. Clough can get.

INTERNATIONAL ARBITRATION.

The following resolution was adopted last Thursday by the Presbyterian general assembly, in session at Saratoga, N. Y. It was written by Elder S. R. Payne, of Duluth, and by him reported to the assembly as chairman of a subcommittee on bills and overtures:

"1. That this assembly notes with emphatic approval the growing sentiment in favor of the settlement of controversies between nations by peaceful means of the friendly mediation of neutral powers or by international arbitration, in all cases where either of these methods is practicable and where the ordinary course of diplomatic negotiation shall fail to secure such settlement.

"2. That, as it seems most probable that such a policy of peace could, under present conditions, be best and soonest inaugurated by the governments of the United States of America and the Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, this assembly would most earnestly and prayerfully urge upon the minds and hearts and consciences of all men in high places of influence and authority within the jurisdictions of the governments mentioned, the importance of earnest and united action toward the establishment of some international tribunal (or series of tribunals suitable for such purposes) where all such cases between said governments may be finally adjudicated and terminated. We believe that the results of such a tribunal would speedily justify and in due time secure the gradual adoption of like methods throughout the civilized world, thus bringing in a perpetual reign of peace among the nations of the earth."

This resolution undoubtedly expresses the sentiments of a great majority of the people of this country, and among the other civilized nations, especially in England, there is a growing feeling in favor of the settlement of international disputes by arbitration. For years we have been told that the European nations were on the brink of a great war, which would involve nearly all the great governments in the world, but the alarmists have been disappointed so far, mainly because of the change in sentiment among the rulers as well as the masses of the people. War is regarded as something to be avoided, and an effort is made to settle all disputes through diplomatic channels. This resolution adopted by the Presbyterian churches well voices the feelings of the people of this country.

The Democratic county conventions held throughout Kentucky on Saturday proved to be the Waterloo of Secretary Carlisle. The state was swept by a tidal wave of silver. The triumph of Senator Blackburn and Gen. P. Wat Hardin is complete and overwhelming. Even Secretary Carlisle's own district repudiated him. It is probable that Senator Blackburn will be given the senatorial endorsement that Mr. Carlisle wanted.

The News Tribune supports the idea of a "bunched" convention for the reason, it asserts, that "it is plainly apparent that the holding of two conventions would be an unnecessary inconvenience and tax on time." This is not the true reason, however. The Clough men are afraid to permit a straight fight on the governorship alone. They do not propose that the people shall make their wishes known.

At the start of the last senatorial campaign, the News Tribune vigorously supported Mr. Washburn for re-election, until it appeared probable that Knute Nelson might be chosen and Dave Clough become governor. Then it deserted Mr. Washburn and has never lost a chance since then to take a crack at him.

The Pioneer Press says that Michael Doran, of St. Paul, T. T. Hudson, of Duluth, O. M. Hall, of Red Wing, and P. B. Winston, of Minneapolis, will probably be the delegates-at-large from Minnesota to the Democratic national convention.

The Minneapolis Tribune should invest in a late map of the Minnesota iron ranges. Then it probably would not say that the Lone Jack, Norman and Franklin mines are at "Olivia," or that the Fayal mine is at "Everett."

The statement in the Minneapolis Times that the Sixth district delegates to St. Louis will vote for Tams Bixby for national committeeman is incorrect. They are ready to vote for Mr. Evans again, if he is a candidate.

The first convention in the state will be that of Mille Lacs county on June 13, and the second will be the Morrison county convention on June 18. Mille Lacs will be for Clough, while Morrison will be for Lee.

Did the News Tribune receive word by telegraph that a Duluth man saw Mr. Lee in Minneapolis Sunday afternoon with ex-Senator Washburn, or is it a "fake," as usual?

It is now thought probable that congress will adjourn next Monday; if so, it will have been the shortest first session of congress since 1871-2.

The News Tribune refers several times to "Mr. Pen Gilly," of Ely. Capt. John will not recognize himself by this appellation.

The free silver Democrats are sweeping all before them in Ohio. Even Hamilton county has elected silver delegates.

SHOULD NOT BE AFRAID.

Brainerd Dispatch: The Duluth Herald asks that Congressman Towne define himself upon the gubernatorial question, and demands that he come out either for Lee or Clough. It goes without saying that Mr. Towne would rather not enter the controversy inasmuch as the state convention is held fifteen days before the congressional, but his own people demand this from him, and he should not be afraid to express himself. It is conceded that the Sixth district is Mr. Lee's hallwick, and as Mr. Towne's votes all come from the Sixth, he ought not to fear the result of a Lee combination.

HASN'T HEARD OF IT.

The Mesaba Range. It may be incidentally mentioned that the Duluth News Tribune hasn't yet learned anything about the opinion of the attorney general as to the constitutionality of the mining tax law—or, if it has, the Range has not noticed anything it has said about the matter.

MR. TOWNE'S CHANCES.

Sauk Center Herald: There is a vast amount of speculation relative to Hon. Charles A. Towne, and his chances for renomination and re-election as member of congress, in this district, all of it purely imaginative and most of it wholly unwarranted. It may be laid down as indisputable that up to date, Mr. Towne is a Republican, and so far has not conveyed himself outside the Republican party, any more than has Senator Wolcott of Colorado. Mr. Wolcott has publicly declared that he is emphatically a Republican first and a free silver advocate afterward; that the St. Louis platform will be his platform. Such a declaration by Mr. Towne, and there is no reason why he cannot with all consistency occupy the same grounds, would settle the question definitely in his favor. He would be renominated and re-elected without serious opposition.

BIXBY'S SOLITARY VIEW.

Stillwater Messenger: The worry over the gubernatorial candidacy goes on. Mr. Eastman (St. Cloud Journal-Press) says William Lee will get there, and Tams Bixby, of the Red Wing Republican, thinks that Clough will be re-elected, but he seems to be almost alone in this opinion. Eastman insists that Lee will get the solid support of the Sixth congressional district. Clough, it is stated, cannot capture Hennepin county and will not get the solid vote of the delegates from the Fifth district. Van Sant and Gibbs divide up the First district and what else the captain is sure of nobody knows up to date.

SHOULD BE SOLID FOR LEE.

Virginia Enterprise: The Duluth Herald pertinently asks if it is not about time that Mr. Towne broke the silence and let the Republicans of St. Louis county, who have made him politically, know where he stands on the governorship. There is but one place for Mr. Towne to stand and that is alongside the balance of the Republicans of the county, forming a solid phalanx for the candidacy of the Hon. William E. Lee.

THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Trouble is imminent out in the town of Turtle River, and it has been brewing for several days. Two weeks ago the constant rains caused the river to overflow several of the farms, and the owners decided to dam up one of the branches of the river and divert it from its natural course. This was done with the result that a large number of other farms were overflowed, said to be about 5000 acres in all. The owners of the overflowed lands reported the matter to State's Attorney Hamilton, and that gentleman warned them about erecting dams and advised the immediate destruction of the one already built. Nothing was done, however, and Friday warrants were sworn out for Archie Middleton, John Ferguson, James Middleton and Roley Middleton, charging them with willfully and wrongfully injuring the property of others by diverting the water of Turtle river from its natural course. The warrants were sworn out by Judge McLaughlin on a complaint filed by Carl G. Iverson, one of the farmers damaged by the dam. It is claimed in this connection that thefour men named have stood guard over the dam with guns and have allowed no one to get near enough to attempt to let the confined water out. The matter has caused a large amount of hard feeling among the residents and the trial promises to be an interesting one. The sheriff has left for that country and the men will be given a hearing before Judge McLaughlin early this week.

The 12-year-old son of John A. Murray was drowned Saturday afternoon in the English coulie, two miles from Grand Forks. It is supposed that he was bathing in the coulie back of the school house during the noon hour, as was the custom of the scholars. At that point the water is backed up from the river and is probably twenty feet deep. The boy's father is a foreman of the Twamley farm. Up to a late hour this afternoon the body of the boy had not been recovered, although a diligent search had been kept up since the drowning.

Mayor R. E. Fleming, of Fargo, as inspector general of North and South Dakota Scottish Rite Masons, Saturday afternoon wired Martin Collins, inspector general of St. Louis, authorizing him to draw on him for $100 to relieve any distress in either St. Louis or East St. Louis. Masons here had an experience in the great Fargo fire, and appreciate the urgency of immediate relief.

The state veterinary surgeon at Cando was called to examine sick horses in the southern part of this county. He pronounced them affected with glanders and ordered twenty-eight of them shot. Beatty Bros. lost eighteen head. All the horses belong to well-to-do farmers.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

The Sisseton agency presented a festive scene last week, the occasion being another Indian payment. While not as large as other payments, the amount being $88,000, or about $34.50 per capita, yet the attractions are just as inviting as at former times. The event means a great deal to the white people, many of whom have been carrying the Indians on credit since last summer, otherwise the poor redskins would have suffered severely. The Indians' likes have been studied by the white man and the latter knows pretty well how to please him at payment time. Eating houses have been provided, temporary stores and booths containing everything pleasing to the eyes have been constructed and obliging clerks stand ready to attend to their wants, the same as if they were millionaires. For a few days the Indian is a man among men. He has a goodly number of the almighty dollars. A cyclone in McPherson county struck the farm of Philip Miller and completely demolished everything in the shape of buildings and farm machinery that was in its path. The family escaped by going into a cellar.

In the case of Editor Rogers, of Britton, charged by the editor of the Sentinel, A. Sherin, with opening a letter and appropriating its contents which did not belong to him, the defendant was discharged by the commissioner.

The United States land office at Aberdeen did the following business in May: Homestead filings, 19, embracing 2991 acres; homestead proofs, 27, embracing 3628 acres; timber culture proofs, 20, embracing 1281 acres.

The trustees of the state normal school at Madison, have selected only President Beadle and Professors Goff, Dempster and Miss Collins of the present faculty. The five other places will be filled by new appointments at a later meeting.

RAMSEY FOR CLAPP.

Brookmiride Telegram: It looks now as though M. D. Clapp will carry Ramsey county. Nearly everything in this part of the state is solid for him and it need surprise no one if he should be our next governor.

ANYONE BUT CLOUGH.

Fergus Falls Journal: De-facto Governor Bixby apears to find it difficult to keep the newspapers for his home county, Goodhue, in line for Clough. With the exception of Bixby's own paper, the Republican, they are all for anyone to beat Clough.

IF YOU KNEW.

You say I'm making game of you,
That goes for granted, nothing said;
Ah! if you knew, if you but knew,
How I listened for your tread,
Had you but seen me flush and start,
To feel that you were drawing nigh,
Or felt the sinking of my heart,
When footsteps, not your own, went by.

If you knew that my thoughts each day,
Defied the mandates of my will,
And from its guidance stole away,
To cluster fondly round you still;
That in my sleep, you hold the key
That opens to my sweetest dreams;
That you were oftener with me,
Than all their angel band, it seems.

Would you be glad if you had read
My letter wrong? My feeling you
Was in the sharp things I had said;
And not the sweet ones; if you knew?
Would you be surer to forget,
In knowing I was fond and true?
Or would you be more cruel yet,
Or kinder, gentler, if you knew?

The unattained is always rare,
The gained, not always. Does it pay
For what it costs, than with no care,
We trifle human trust away?
Yet since I cannot tell unless
The years should prove your heart untrue,
Just what I meant, you can but guess,
If I could know if you but knew.

BARON HIRSCH'S SON.

A lady at present occupying a prominent position at the Russian court was, when a girl of 14, invited to spend the day with poor young Lucien Hirsch, who was then living at the Chateau de Beauregard, near Versailles, with his father, the late Baron Hirsch, and his mother, says the San Francisco Report. Having feasted on all the delicacies which the baron's generosity had lavished on his young guest, she went out with Lucien to play croquet. Pausing on the terrace, she condescended to admire the view and the grounds, and her young companion asked, "If it were yours, mademoiselle, what would you do with it?" "First of all, I should turn you all out," answered the enfant terrible, probably actuated by the Russian aristocrat's aversion to Jews, and for the moment practising candor at the expense of good manners. She remembers Lucien Hirsch now as a charming and amiable youth and the late baron as the incarnation of generosity.

Detroit Free Press: A cynical humor had caught the professor when his youngest son inquired:

"He couldn't get birds and other animals to talk now, could he?"

"No, my boy. The only thing outside of the human race that talks now is money. And it is generally too busy looking after its own affairs to give much good advice."

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE.—Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Mary Sargent, (a widow), mortgagor, to Agnes Callender, mortgagee, dated June first (1st), 1893, and duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on June twentieth (20th), 1895, at 4:10 o'clock p. m., in Book one hundred two (102) of mortgages, on pages three hundred twenty-eight (328), three hundred twenty-nine (329) and three hundred thirty (330); such default consisting in the non-payment of the semi-annual installment of interest upon the debt secured by said mortgage, which became due on January first (1st), 1896, amounting to the sum of four hundred seventy-two and 50-100 dollars, no part of which has ever been paid; and also in the non-payment of the sum of forty-five and 18-100 dollars, heretofore paid by said mortgagee for insurances premiums upon the premises covered by said mortgage, in accordance with the provisions thereof; by reason of which defaults said mortgagee has, after said defaults had continued for more than ten days, elected to exercise the option to her given by the terms of said mortgage and of the note secured thereby, by declaring, and she does hereby declare, the whole principal sum secured by said note and mortgage, with all accrued interest thereon, and exchange, and said insurance premiums paid, to be now due and payable.

A TERRIFIC HEADER.

John Jones Thrown From a Runaway Bicycle.

John Jones, residing at 2415 West Third street, and employed by the Marshall-Wells Hardware company, lost control of his bicycle last evening while descending Eighth avenue west, and after a fearful run of five blocks was thrown from his wheel at Third street, being rendered unconscious by the fall, but escaping with injuries which, though painful, are not serious.

Jones and a companion, Edward McLaughlin, were returning from a trip to Pike lake and essayed to descend Eighth avenue west to Sixth street, at which they intended to turn. When the latter thoroughfare was reached, however, Jones found himself unable to control his machine, his feet left the pedals and the wheel shot forward down the hill. He made a desperate attempt to turn at Fifth street, but his effort was unavailing, and in a few seconds he struck the upper side of the Third street crossing and was thrown fully fifty feet, striking on his shoulder and the side of his head. He was picked up and taken to Dr. Bowman's hospital, where his injuries were dressed. Had Jones passed Third street, he would have struck a pile of rocks a short distance beyond and would undoubtedly have received fatal injuries.

McLaughlin when he found his wheel getting away from him turned it and jumped off. He escaped with nothing more serious than a roll in the dust and gravel.

REV. GARY THREATENED.

Receives Another Letter Signed By the Whitecaps.

Rev. Olin J. Gary, pastor of the First M. E. church of Virginia, who was instrumental in getting the governor to order the recent prize fight stopped, has been threatened by White Caps. He was several months ago the recipient of a warning letter signed by the White Caps warning him to be careful about meddling with the affairs of others. At the time the gentleman was somewhat annoyed, but by others it was looked upon as a practical joke. There may now be some cause for changing such opinion. Mr. Gary receiving a second epistle on Saturday evening last, as follows:

"Mr. Gary: Sunday night at 8:15 P. M. the Whitecaps will tak posesion of your church for stoping the fight on last Friday night. Better mak yourself skarce & clos up early.

A STABBING AFFRAY.

Alexander Kulain Stabbed During a Quarrel.

Two Finlanders, Alexander Kulain and Herman Helmick, became involved in a brawl Saturday evening, during which Kulain was stabbed in the forehead by Helmick, a deep cut nearly four inches long being inflicted. The wound, which extends to the bone, while painful, is not dangerous.

The affray occurred at Mike Laite's saloon, 336 Lake avenue south, about 9 o'clock. Kulain, in company with a friend, Miacael Kettula, were drinking at the bar, when the former became engaged in a dispute with a stranger, in which Helmick after a time took part. The latter called Kulain a name, whereupon Kulain turned away, telling Helmick he did not care to talk with him. At this Helmick drew a knife and made two vicious stabs at Kulain, the second one inflicting the wound in the forehead. Helmick ran out of the saloon, pursued by Kettula and Officer Irving, who joined in the chase, and who effected the fugitive's capture. At the station the prisoner gave his place of residence as Twenty-fourth avenue east and Park street. Kulain's wound was sewed up at the station, after which he was taken to his boarding place, 323 St. Croix avenue.

Two Boys Drowned.

Ed and Ben Postal, two boys aged 16 and 18 years, were drowned in the Cloquec river about twenty miles north of Duluth Saturday afternoon. The two boys and a Duluth lad named Newton had been hunting and fishing, and on Saturday were going down the river in an old punt. While going down a rapids the punt struck a rock and overturned. Newton scrambled to shore and Ben was part way there when he heard Ed scream. He was caught in a hole and Ben immediately went to his rescue, with the result that both were drowned. Newton immediately gave the alarm, and the father of the boys and several men began a search for the bodies. They were unsuccessful and came to Duluth yesterday and secured grappling irons. They returned and continued the search. The Postals lived in Duluth a few years ago.

IF YOU WILL USE A LITTLE REASONING

And not be influenced by the claim that catarrh is a blood disease, you can easily prove that catarrh is climatic. Have you not the severest catarrhal attacks during winter and spring, and have you but little evidence of catarrh during the summer? Yes. Well, this proves it is a climatic disorder, inflaming the membrane of the nasal passages. It is a waste of time and money to invest in blood remedies. The proper treatment is a local application, and the most prompt to cure is that popular remedy, Ely's Cream Balm.

ANNIVERSARY OF GRIEF.

Johnstown People Remember Their Fatal Visitation.

Johnstown, Pa., June 1.—The people of Johnstown observed a second memorial day in honor of the departed ones who lost their lives in the great flood which occurred just seven years ago on Friday, May 31, 1889. Over 300 souls perished that day. Thousands of people accompanied by bands, visited the cemeteries. The scene at the plot of the unknown at Grand View cemetery, where over 500 lie buried, was singularly pathetic.

According to the annual customs, services were held and each of the graves were decked with flowers. In all the churches appropriate sermons were preached and the anniversary of that fatal day was generally observed.

THE RACE

Result of the Annual Memorial Day Ten-Mile Road Contest.

McCleary, of St. Paul, Broke the State Record For That Distance.

Duluth Baseball Team Gave Stillwater's Nine an Awful Drubbing.

A more beautiful day for the road race than Saturday could not have been imagined, and a better and more interesting race could not have been provided. There were some unfortunate features, it is true, notably the condition of the road, which punctured so many tires, and the persistent hoggishness of some of the crowd who came near spoiling the finish by crowding upon the track.

The course from Fifth avenue east, the start, to well out into the East End, was lined on both sides with an immense crowd long before 3:30 o'clock, when the limit men started, and the crowd kept growing up to the finish. Precisely at 3:30 the limit men were let loose and away they went, followed at intervals by the other men, down to the scratch men from St. Paul and Minneapolis, who started off in a bunch.

Exactly twenty-nine minutes and fifteen seconds after the first men started, John Locking, of Duluth, returned, having made the course in that time and won first place, and the Syracuse wheel donated by R. C. Kruschke and the Pease-Roach Hardware company, of Superior. Fifty-seven seconds later little Richard Close, aged 15, came over the tape with second place, and he got $30 worth of bicycle goods. Next came Fred Johnson, then G. E. Booth, then Edward McLaughlin, H. Schmidt and J. R. Zweifel, all of Duluth, prize winners in the order named, receiving cycle supplies to the value of $23, $21, $18, 15 and $12 respectively.

Close and McLaughlin, who won second and fifth places, are both Herald carriers.

After awhile came the scratch men, from whom good time was expected. Robert H. McCleary came in first in 26:07, cutting 1:25 from the state ten-mile road record. Close upon his hind wheel came W. R. Murphy, but as he had a minute and a half start he did not come in for a time prize. August C. Mertens had been with McCleary up to a short distnce from the finish, when his rear tire punctured. Someone gave him another wheel and he finished with second time in 26:25. D. R. Burnett, of South Superior, a two-minute man, took third time in 27:24. R. Smith, of West Superior, 27:26; J. P. Burnett, Superior, 27:26½; J. Boyum, Minneapolis, 27:26½. All made the course in less than last year's record.

Tom Bird, of St. Paul, and John Lindberg, of Minneapolis, were both doing well, but their tires were punctured and Bird did not finish. A. N. Neal, of Duluth, and Munro, of Superior, fell and did not finish. W. G. Close and H. Howell collided near the finish. S. A. Pickett ran into the crowd which filled the track and fell.

Following is the record of the race. Charles Benson should have started with a lead of 5:45, but he did not start until about thirty seconds before the scratch men, so his actual time is 28:40:

In the evening there was a bicycle parade with about 150 wheels in line, including a dozen women and about thirty members of the Superior club. In the evening there was a very enjoyable banquet at the St. Louis.

RODE A VIKING.

"The Viking" is a winner, and those who were fortunate enough to see the road race on Saturday, were convinced of the fact, when John Locking won the race so easily in 29 minutes 15 seconds. He says: "I never could have done so well had I not ridden a Viking, the smoothest, easiest running wheel made." In a field of forty-two, there were three Viking wheels entered, and they finished in first, fifth and sixth place, a pretty good record, and very satisfactory to the agents.

VERY POOR BALL.

Stillwater Terribly Beaten By the Duluth Team.

There were a couple of alleged baseball games at the West End park Saturday and Sunday, in which the Duluth boys pretended to play with a nine from Stillwater, the place where the bad boys go when they grow up. Duluth won both games, Saturday by a score of 17 to 6 and Sunday by a score of 29 to 9. The scores themselves tell the awful story to a sufficient length. The amount of it was that Stillwater could not play ball a little bit, and the number of scores that they were allowed to get shows that Duluth did not play any too well herself, though such a game is, of course, demoralizing, anyway. Saturday's game by innings follows:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Stillwater	5	0	0	0	1	2	0	0	0	—6
Duluth	5	8	0	4	0	0	0	0	x	—17

Yesterday's game was as follows:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Duluth	0	0	6	7	6	0	3	7	x	—29
Stillwater	0	4	0	0	1	4	0	0	0	—9

If the management of the West End ball park desires to continue to draw crowds to its games it will have to put up better entertainment than that. It looks a good deal like a fraud, too, to conspire with the morning paper to print a doctored score so as to induce people to go out to see a game like the one yesterday. The score Saturday was 17 to 6, and it appeared in the morning paper 14 to 7.

Next Saturday and Sunday, however, there will be games between Marquette and Duluth, and these should be much better, as Marquette has a good nine. The Mankato nine will play here June 9, 10 and 11, and the Chippewa Falls nine June 13 and 14. These games should all be good ones.

WORSE THAN USELESS.

Do Not Use Cathartics For Indigestion.

The commonly used remedies are worse than useless, as they do not remove the cause. Cathartics are injurious, for although they move the bowels for a time, their action weakens the digestion and thus increases the difficulty they are intended to cure.

Persons using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will not be disappointed as their use not only properly digests the food, but gives proper assimilation and cures constipation by producing the proper quantity of bile.

The fact that they are used so largely by physicians is a great point in their favor, and many physicians treat their cases of indigestion almost entirely by these tablets or the same ingredients. The only difference being that when dyspeptics apply to a physician for them he charges you two or three prices for them besides his advice. Whereas if you go to your druggist he will sell you Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets for only 50 cents per box.

They may also be had by mail by enclosing price to the F. A. Stuart company, chemists, Marshall, Mich.

An Acknowledgment.

The children of the home will be happier this summer by reason of the tastefully arranged flower beds, a quantity of clean sand in which to sport, and a capacious hammock and posts in the yard, the very thoughtful gift of Joseph M. Geist; also a newly papered play room, the kind donation of John H. LaVaque. In behalf of the society, the matron returns most cordial recognition to these gentlemen for their very kind remembrance of those whose childhood will know so little of the sunshine of life, and with special appreciation of philanthrophy extended in times of business depression.

Do not be hoodwinked. Use no "just as good." Salvation Oil is what you want when in need of a good liniment.

Races on the Water.

A striking marine sporting novelty will be in evidence here on Tuesday, June 9. It will be nothing more or less than a string of bicycle races away out on Lake Superior. The big passenger whaleback Christopher Columbus will give this interesting feature during the state firemen's excursion and some nice cash prizes are offered to the winners of the various events. The track will be about eight laps to the mile and the course will be around the roomy main deck where there is not the slightest element of danger. The big boat leaves Duluth for her Chicago and Milwaukee season's run, June 11.

GOES TO THE SELLERS.

J. F. Armstrong, who recently resigned his position with the Minnesota Iron company as manager of the Canton at Biwabik, has accepted the managership of the Sellers mine at Hibbing, succeeding C. H. Munger, says the Virginian. It was rumored that Mr. Armstrong would accept a flattering offer from the Cleveland-Cliffs company at Ishpeming, but such is not the case. Mr. Armstrong will enter upon his duties at once.

Fire at the Windsor.

Fire was discovered in the Windsor hotel last evening and alarmed the boarders to a considerable extent. The blaze was discovered by M. L. Kinnon, of Detroit, Mich., about 10:45 o'clock. He smelled smoke, just after getting into bed and when the quantity increased concluded to investigate. He soon traced it to a door at the end of the corridor and gave the alarm. The clerk alarmed all the guests and then proceeded with the assistance of Mike Dormady to fight the fire. A pile of curtains and wall paper in one of the rooms was found to be ablaze. The flames were quickly extinguished with a few buckets of water and a blanket which smothered much of the fire. An alarm was turned in, but the services of the department were not needed. Proprietor Dormady believes the fire to have been of incendiary origin.

FIRST UMBRELLA.

Jonas Hanway, Distinguished Englishman, Carried it.

The first man with the courage to carry an umbrella in London was Jonas Hanway, who died there in 1786, and was honored with a monument in Westminster abbey, says the Pittsburg Times. The monument was not for his courage in carrying an umbrella, but for his philanthropy, he being the founder of the Marine, Education and Magdalen societies and the author of seventy pamphlets in which he recommended as many benevolent schemes. He started out with his umbrella about the year 1750, and a year after he died an Englishman advertised "a great assortment of much approved umbrellas." So that Jonas' last philanthropic enterprise was firmly established in England in 1787. Whenever you see a picture of a Quaker you see a man pictured with an umbrella in his hand. The Quakers took up the umbrella, and those who came after Jonas some time brought umbrellas with them. Philadelphia was the first seat of umbrella manufacture in this country, and it is the chief seat of it now. It is said in the books to have been brought there about the year 1800, but from other authority we learn that the firm of Wright & Fenner was making umbrellas there as early as 1796. That is a small matter. The great matter is that the umbrella is a Quaker institution.

When did the umbrella find its way across the mountains? In 1808 a man named Mills went and wrote certain things about us in a book. In that he makes pathetic mention of the skimming of his heels on the hard walk, and of dodging sundry drenchings he got on the way. He came from Philadelphia, and it is not likely that the umbrella was in very general use then, or he would not have made such a journey in tempestuous weather without one. Probably at that time one had not been seen more than a day's journey west of Philadelphia, or within the Quaker range. We think the umbrella was naturalized in this town about 1818, which, if we mistake not, was the year the national pike was opened. People came often in stages from Philadelphia that year, and we think we have seen pictures of them—grave, respectable with thick neckties, stiff hats and coat collars reaching nearly to the tops of their heads—sitting on the roofs of the stages, holding umbrellas.

VIOLET'S WISH GRATIFIED.

She was a very "new" woman—only 4 and posed for "the altogether" even more innocently and unblushingly than Trilby, says the Philadelphia Times.

One morning, her soft arms upon the sill of a broad north window, her chin upon her hand, gazing up into the sky like a Raphael cherub, a free little birdling flew past, and up into the blueness and vastness overhead.

"Oh, I wis," she cried enviously, "I wis I had wings, I'd fly way, way, way up dere an' s'prise God!"

"Keep still, Violet," said the artist, absorbed in her work. So Violet kept pretty still—for a cherub—and gazed silently out of the big window all the long afternoon, until her father, who was a "new" man and let her earn his daily bear, called and took her home.

The next day and the next, and still the next, she did not come to pass, and the artist fumed and fretted very grievously.

At last the passive father lounged in again and said regretfully:

"Violet died very suddint; the doctor says she took a chill some way. I hope it ain't put you out any?" then tentatively, "her sister Rosy's most as big as her; if she is some younger."

"Poor little Violet," said the artist; "I'm awfully shocked and sorry, don't you know. If Rosy is the same coloring bring her tomorrow, punctually at 8, please."

"Sure," said the bereaved one.

RESEMBLED HER MOTHER.

The tired business man had pushed his feet into his slippers, filled his pipe and dropped into an easy chair before the library fireplace, says the Portland Telegram. For weeks he had struggled against the pressure brought to bear on him by unscrupulous competitors anxious to crush him out. His every cent was in the business, and more money was needed. "Perhaps," he thought, "a mortgage on the place—"

A footstep sounded in the hall, and with a timid knock at the door, his daughter entered. She glided to his side and seated herself upon the arm of his chair.

"Father," she said.

"Yes, dear."

"You say you cannot buy me a bicycle just at present? That you cannot spare the money now?"

"Yes, dear." He spoke sadly. He had discussed the matter with her that morning.

"But, father, the paper says that wheels may be much lower next year, and so long as you are going to save so much on my next year's wheel, don't you think that you can afford to get me one now?"

He looked up at her thoughtfully.

"Child," he said, "now and then you remind me strongly of your sainted mother."

CLEARED FOR DULUTH.

Today there cleared from Norfolk, Va., the whaleback steamer J. L. Colby and the barge 110, loaded with soft coal, for Duluth. They will be joined at the port of New York by the powerful and famous ocean tug Storm King, with the whaleback barges 201 and 202 in tow, loaded with hard coal, and also cleared for Duluth. The fleet will then be reformed, the Storm King leading, the Colby following, and the barges in the rear; 110, 201 and 202. It will take this rather odd string of vessels ten days to reach Montreal, the Storm King dropping out at Quebec. At Montreal the steamer and three barges will discharge cargo and will be cut in two in order that they may pass through the canal and reach the great lakes. They are due in Duluth about June 30. These are the first clearances from Norfolk or New York for Duluth, and as such are worthy of note.

Two children ill with diphtheria, one of whom will die, six more children who are liable to come down any moment with the disease, and nothing in the house to eat, is the sad story of a family in the family of H. Credin, residing at 918 West Michigan street. Although the two children afflicted with the disease have been sick for a fortnight, it was only this morning that a physician was sent for. Dr. Braden being summoned. He found one of the patients, a girl aged about 12, at the point of death and beyond rescue. The condition of the other child, while not so precarious, was sufficiently alarming, and there were six other children who have been cooped up in the plague-stricken house, and some of whom will undoubtedly be attacked. The family is absolutely destitute and fit subjects for county care. The health department was notified and will take charge of the cases.

A Notable Christening.

A most memorable affair was the christening according to the Hebrew custom of the 7-days'-old son of W. M. Abrahamson at the residence, 4 Piedmont terrace, yesterday afternoon. Rev. Mr. Appelman officiated at the ceremony, and Miss Lillian Abrahamson and Moses Cook acted in the capacity of godparents. Nathaniel Oscar Abrahamson was the name bestowed on the little one.

The ceremony concluded, there followed an elaborate banquet, garnished with speech-making and merriment. The good wishes and loving hopes for the newcomer were expressed on behalf of the assembled friends by Mayor Truelsen, I. Silberstein and I. Freimuth and A. Goldman, of Minneapolis. The banquet room was darkened for the occasion and illuminated with electric lights, which added to the effectiveness of the table decorations. Miss Lillian Abrahamson presided as mistress of the feast.

There were present the following guests: Rev. Appelman, Mayor Truelsen, C. E. Richardson, Dr. D. D. Murray, Dr. Mattocks, of Faribault; B. Silberstein, B. Heller, I. Freimuth, N. L. Sumnerfield, M. Edelman, A. Goldman, of Minneapolis; L. Zien, of New Hampshire; Lawa; H. Yosowitz, M. Cook, E. Sattler, George Hargraves, S. Rachlan, S. Goldberg, George Howes, Nathan Cohen, Mr. and Mrs. J. Zien, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Cohen, Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Oswald, M. and Mrs. S. L. Levin, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Sattler, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Levin, Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Levy, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sattler, Mr. and Mrs. S. Levy and Mrs. A. Mark, of Princeton, Minn. Last and most notable of the guests were two great-grandmothers of the newly-christened babe, Mrs. Amelia Cook and Mrs. Libbie Samuels.

EXERCISE A NECESSITY.

Beyond the age of 40—at a period when so many are physically lazy—the superior value of exercise is apparent, but ordinarily this is just the time when the hygiene of athletics is neglected, aptly observes the Rev. E. S. Root. There is no reason why a punching bag, rowing machine, pulley weights and other apparatus should be relegated to college boys and clerks. But, having done a good deal of work in his time, it is almost impossible to persuade a business or professional man turning 40 to give any sort of attention to physical culture if such training has been previously neglected. It is an inexorable physiological law that we can only retain our bodily or mental powers by properly using them. Exercise is not a matter of choice, but of necessity.

Soldiers' Widows Who Remarry Cannot, He Says, Receive Any Pension.

Washington, June 1.—The president today returned to congress three private pension bills with his veto in each case. In the case of two of the bills granting pensions to Mrs. Amanda Woodcock and Jonathan Scott, both originating in the house, he points out that owing to careless description in the bills, the pensions could not be paid under their terms. In the other, a senate bill granting a pension to Helen M. Jacob, the president forcibly sets out his objection to allowing pensions to the widows of soldiers who remarry. The veto reads as follows:

"To the senate: I herewith return, without approval, senate bill numbered 145 entitled, 'an act granting a pension to Helen M. Jacob.' The purpose of this bill is to grant a pension of $12 per month to Helen M. Jacob,' of Rochester, Ind., widow of Benjamin Oden West. It appears from the records of the war department that Benjamin Oden West served in the Mexican war from January to November in the year 1847. The beneficiary named in this bill was married to him in 1850, and he died in 1856. She was pensioned as his widow and received such pension from the date of her husband's death until April 17, 1861. On that day she was married to William Jacob, whereupon her pension ceased, but two minor children were awarded pensions and continued in the receipt of the same until January, 1873, when the youngest child became sixteen years of age.

"The entire absence of any fixed or reasonable principle or rule regulating private pension legislation at this time suggests the danger of its near approach in many cases to caprice and favoritism. Though I have, in a number of instances, deferred to the judgment of congress and refrained from interposing objections to bills of this character which seemed to me to be of doubtful merit, I am unwilling to follow such a wide departure from a palpably just pension theory and assent to the establishment of such an unfortunate precedent as this bill involves.

"There is no duty or obligation due from the government a soldier's widow, except it be worked out through the deceased soldier. She is pensioned only because he served his country and because through his death she, as his wife, has lost his support. In other words she becomes a beneficiary of the government because she is a soldier's widow. When she marries again, and thus displaces the memory of her soldier husband and surrenders all that belongs to soldier widowhood, she certainly ought not on the death of her second husband be allowed to claim that she is again the soldier's widow. Grover Cleveland."

NOVELTY

New Way of Getting Rid of Enemies or Objectionable People.

Anna Kingsford's Strange Way of Disposing of Her Subjects.

A Nice Fad in Criminology---Something Beyond Pale of Law.

Much interest is manifested in London, and in fact all over the world, by psychological sharps in the newest kind of murder. This is the killing of the victim by will power. It is a nice, easy, safe and refined way of doing away with an enemy, and it is certain to appeal at a glance to any murderously inclined person of culture. Most people are inclined to regard the statement that murders are committed in this way as absurd, says the Topeka State Journal. Of course it does seem preposterous that by the mere exercise of a strong will power one person can accomplish the destruction of another, even if the latter be several hundred miles away. But preposterous or not, the psychic sharps who have delved into the subject claim to have unearthed numerous cases where death was brought about by willing. Skeptics dispose of these cases as being merely coincidences. This may be but they are certainly very strange. One peculiarity of these cases is that the killers glory in their work, and point to it with pride. It would add an interesting chapter to these investigations if the law should get after one of these self-confessed thought murderers and try to convict him of crimes. It would open up many vast fields in criminal law, and would demand a reconstruction of the criminal statutes of every nation on the globe.

Some of the psychic experts believe that it is possible to kill by willing, and attribute the power to a species of hypnotism. Long ago hypnotism became an established fact, but its operations are limited to people who are peculiarly susceptible to its power. Men and women of strong and masterful intellectuality are unaffected by the doings of the hypnotist. But the victims of the alleged killers by willing have been men foremost in the ranks of science.

THE FIRST KILLER.

The late Anna Kingsford was one of the first to come out and acknowledge herself as a killer by willing, and Edward Maitland, who recently brought out a book about her, describes these killings with voluminous detail. Mrs. Kingsford was a strange woman in many ways. She was an accomplished physician, and the wife of an English clergyman. They agreed to part, and for her to live in "intellectual companionship" with Mr. Maitland.

While pursuing her medical studies in Paris she started a war against the vivisectionists. She willed the death of Prof. Claude Bernard, and he died. Then she willed the death of Paul Bert, another noted scientist, and he died. Her next selected victim was Louis Pasteur, who became ill but recovered, and this so worked upon Mrs. Kingsford that she died herself. A year later Professor Pasteur died.

The newest case developed by the investigators is given in the words of the willer. They seemed rather extravagant, but as they have merited the attention of scientists, they may be worth the reading. The willer is a woman, and her statement is as follows:

HER FIRST CASE.

"The first case of using 'will-power' myself which I can remember was when I was quite a child. I had a collecting card for my own Sunday school 'Christmas offering,' also collecting card for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. I went about the city into all the public offices, warehouses, factories, shops, etc., collecting donations of subscriptions for those and other charitable objects. I was highly successful, and met with universal and characteristic Irish good humor, kindness and politeness.

"One day I called upon one of the owners of a great sawmill in Dublin. He turned on me in a savage manner and used most insulting language, and acted in a most uncalled for way, and said, with a sneer, that 'females' (I was but a child, one of a class in a Sunday school) should be put a stop to being allowed to go about collecting money in public buildings, etc., and that he would not allow or encourage it in his place, and would give to no charity where females were collectors.

"I felt such a rush of furious indignation in my very soul that I there and then decided that I would humble that brute and bring him down financially by some awful wholesale means. As I thought the shortest way was by fire, I concentrated my 'will' on the establishment, and 'willed' it to be burnt down. I kept on 'willing' for a few weeks, and after that I took it more easy, and finally, at the end of six months or so, I ceased to think of it at all, except when at or near the North Wall, and then being reminded of the affair, there went out more force of 'will,' and at last. I think a year after, the biggest fire ever remembered in Dublin for fifty years before was the sawmills and timber yards. I really cannot now remember exactly, but I think the damage was only a trifle under £100,000, and only partly insured. The splendid new machinery was twisted about like wire.

GLADSTONE'S RETIREMENT.

"I have done no end of things all my life by 'willing.' There is a heap of work that wants to be done in clearing away hypocrites, frauds, tyrants and others who are narrow minded humbugs, and are, therefore, anti-millenarian, and it only needs national, universal or very general force of 'willing' and a 'pull all together' to remove such from positions of power or authority. I 'willed' Gladstone to retire, and if he did not do so, to die; he was doing more harm than was realized or seen by the woodenheads. Ireland has not got, and will not get, home rule, because there are a lot of persons in and out of Ireland whose 'will power' is, and has for long been, concentrated on killing home rule. The people who are using 'will power,' and understand how to work it, are comparatively a very small body of individuals. They are not belonging to the class called agitators, nor to the uneducated class; but, although a small body they have been and will stick together in using 'will power,' and they have succeeded, and are, therefore, more powerful than the larger body of people who use no means (except agitation, arguing and threatening.

"I do not keep lists of persons I have killed nor of things I have done by 'willing.' I am too busy to read the daily papers, therefore, I just as often do not hear of the death of persons I have 'willed' dead until weeks or even years, after; and the same with changes I have 'willed' in social, political or public matters. I do quite as much by telepathy as by 'will power.'

"You want to know the names of some persons I have killed. Well, I do not like the word 'killed.' I call it 'removed,' because I do not want to kill them if they will step aside, cease to do evil and get out of the way. I tried to remove W. H. Smith, M. P., Lord Randolph Churchill and others who were hindering certain reforms or doing other evils, but as I failed to remove them by other means, I had to 'will' them to death. I 'willed' death to Pasteur. I only 'willed' once and then thought no more about it, but as it was about two years before he died, and as he was an old man, I cannot say for certain that it was the 'will power' caused it. I was once an admirer of Mr. Davitt, but after his action re Parnell I 'willed' him certain things in return, and he got them, one after another. As one person cannot use more than a certain amount of vitality in a given time with safety to themselves, and 'will power' or force is vitality, I, of course, have been obliged to neglect removing many who need to be removed. The archbishop of Canterbury is one of them."

HIS NEIGHBOR A VICTIM.

Another case is the confession of a man who had a dispute with a neighboring land owner. The latter, from all accounts, was an all-round scamp who plotted evil against his neighbor. The "willer" said that he feared for his life, and after submitting to innumerable annoyances began to "will" the death of his enemy. Soon after, according to the statement, the man was stricken with a quick fever, which, notwithstanding the best medical skill that money could hire, caused his death.

The "willer" attended the funeral and returned home in a carriage with one of the members of the family of the deceased, and said: "Thank God that —— is dead. He was the scamp of scamps, and no one knows what evil he was planning for you and your family."

Continuing the statement says: "His father-in-law was a very respectable man, a man of character and position, and he told me he was thankful his son-in-law was dead. The people everywhere rejoiced.

"But was my conduct not justifiable? I cannot tell. I am sure my family, so little fitted to cope with the human elements of that country, were doomed to disaster, nay, to ruin, by that wretch if death had not interposed. I began the same thing with another once, persuading myself that I was justified. I saw him in six weeks after I began my deadly work; he was shriveling up; he trembled like an aspen leaf. I was touched. I could not bear it. I withdrew. I had to withdraw, notwithstanding the injury he had done to me. The man at once began to recover strength; it was as if the pavement slab had been taken off a flower bed. He was in his usual health in a month.

"Of course, each of these cases would be pronounced a coincidence by some people; but if the whole world of skepticism preached that doctrine to me I should not believe it. I know better. But I will only now say that there is no law or principle, or whatever else you like to call it, in the infinite universe, more absolutely true than the one I am speaking of. Anna Kingsford's cases were no coincidences. I very much doubt whether she was not justified. But I have less doubt about her than about myself, especially in the first instance I have named. It took me, however, much less time than it seemed to take her to accomplish the work. Madame Blavatsky speaks of the exercise of this power as 'a weed which it will take seven and seven times seven of us to extirpate.'

"The simile I don't think is very good. A man is only accountable for the results of what he sows. We, none of us, sow the seeds of weeds if we know it. They sow themselves. But if this is a weed, it found suitable soil in my nature before I knew it; and some mysterious voice told me to look if it was there. I found it."

REVENUE EXPENSES.

Curious Features About Uncle Sam's Collection Business.

Statistical tables are not supposed to provoke mirth, but the business man who can read the latest annual report of J. J. Crowley, supervising special agent of the United States treasury, without laughing aloud or smiling to himself must be something more than human, says the New York Journal. What business man would pay a collecting agent $150 to collect $1? What business man would run a branch store year after year at the loss of thousands of dollars? The United States treasury does all these things and more, for it often spends $1000 to collect $1, it maintains branch offices that never have and never will pay the cost of running, and what is more, it hires agents to maintain offices from which it never receives a single penny.

In order to properly appreciate the fun in Agent Crowley's tables, it is necessary to know that the average cost of collecting $153,092,518 during the fiscal year 1895 was 4.23 cents per $1 collected. Now at Sitka, the only port in Alaska, it cost $20,910 to collect $12,827, the cost to the government being $1.63 per dollar collected. At Annapolis, Md., not a vessel entered or cleared, nor was there any entry of foreign merchandise, but 204 documents were issued to vessels and $28.45 was collected at a cost of $956.25, or $33.61 per dollar collected. At Burlington, N. J., $4 was collected at an expense of $154, an average of $38.50.

While passing to the next place of higher cost, it would be well to stop for a moment at Great Egg Harbor, N. J., and congratulate the two United States officials who, during the past year, managed to collect $161.50 at a cost of only $826.80, the rate of expenditure to receipts being only as 5⅛ to 1. The statistics of Teche (Brashear), La., are most bewildering. Three foreign vessels entered and seven cleared; 257 coastwise vessels entered and 246 cleared; there were six entries of merchandise and 205 documents issued to vessels. Yet the receipts of the office amounted to only $23.07, and to collect this three officers, at an expense of $3479.80, were required, making the average cost of collecting a dollar not less than $150.84. At Natchez, Miss., two men were paid $500 to issue four documents to vessels and to collect $1.10. This made the average cost $454.54 per dollar collected.

Another curious fact shown by Agent Crowley's table is that there are a considerable number of ports of entry at which not a cent is collected. Thus, at Beaufort, N. C., two officials were paid $1852.60 to issue 179 documents to vessels. But as no vessels entered or cleared at that port, as there were neither exports nor imports, it is difficult to understand the nature of the business. At Kennebunk, Me., although no vessel entered or cleared during 1895, three men were paid $593 to issue seventeen documents, which is at the rate of $34.89 per dollar. At York, Me., no vessel entered or cleared, no documents were issued to vessels, there were neither exports nor receipts. Yet a deputy collector was employed at a salary of $350 to hold down the office chair.

HONDURAS

Where the Patient Mule Is the Great Transporting Agent.

Slow Traveling in a Land That Is Full of Beauty.

A Limited Bill of Fare Which is Set Before Tourists.

Puerto Cortez, that enterprising and historical Spanish settlement, presented, on the morning of our arrival, a very animated appearance, says a newsy correspondent of the Chicago Record. Indeed, it seemed to us that its population of 2500 had assembled en masse to welcome the arrival of the Breakwater and to speculate on the possibilities for "fleecing" those who, like us, might have to seek board and lodging among them before traveling into the interior; for it is a part of the native Central American's religion to impose upon the stranger within his gates by charging at least double the usual prices for provisions, wearing apparel or any other necessity whatsoever.

The custom-house officials were very polite and checked our baggage without any undue demonstration of authority or marked inquisitiveness into the nature of its contents. In this and other matters we received valuable assistance from Mr. Alger, the American consular agent, who was a passenger on the steamer with us, and who is also the chief member of the firm of Clark & Co., brokers and commission merchants—the only American firm in Puerto Cortez.

We had to remain in port until the next morning, when, at 8 o'clock, our train was due to start for San Pedro Sula. We, therefore, had our baggage removed to the Union hotel, the only lodging house in the town, kept by a Jamaican named Hall. The food was wholesome, the linen was clean, and the price was reasonable, all of which was more than we expected. We were waited upon by two little barefooted children, who anticipated our wants, and jabbered to us in Spanish while we ate and looked wise and from time to time nodded our approval.

RAPID TRANSIT SOLVED.

The town is built on one continuous street, running east and west. On the south is the lagoon and on the north is the bay of Honduras. It has a single line of street railway and the car is drawn by a single mule, which moves along at a snail's pace. By the way of recreation and for protection from the heat of the sun, we decided on a street car ride. The speed of the mule was not, in our opinion, a fair equivalent for the 12½ cents fare charged, and Brach was thereupon deputed to teach the native driver how to "handle the ribbons." This he undertook with alacrity and by dint of warwhoops and incessant application of his riding whip, ably seconded by college yells from the rest of the party, we were carried through the town at a speed almost equal to that obtained here by the steam engine, while the natives, hearing the unusual noise and seeing the car coming with such amazing rapidity, and filled with "Gringoes," concluded that a new revolution had occurred, until they were reassured by the driver, who, for his complacency, received from Brach an extra quarter.

There are several stores in the town, and the proprietors all appear prosperous. One of the best kept, although smallest, stores which we entered was kept by an American from South Carolina, who is a fugitive from justice. Having "killed his man" he fled. Coming here he obtained work on the railroad, where he distinguished himself by brutal treatment of the men under his command and, on being reprimanded, resented the interference and attempted the life of his superior, which attempt was fortunately frustrated by the presence of mind of a native, who dealt him from behind a blow on the head, which felled him to the ground, where he lay stunned. After regaining his senses he apologized and was discharged, and as no proceedings were instituted against him, he opened a store, and now bids fair to become independent, if not wealthy. I conversed with him at length, and was impressed with his quiet manners, his original ideas and the success he has attained as a general merchant on the exceedingly limited capital which he had to begin with.

A HONDURAS RAILROAD.

Four of our party retired to rest and to sleep in due season, while the other four resolved to spend a little while longer of this, their first night on Honduras soil, at that ever fascinating game of whist. And to this resolution we (for I must confess I was one of the latter four) adhered, notwithstanding a vigorous remonstrance from our guide, who endeavored to impress upon us the necessity for rest, in view of the hardships of the journey in store for us on the morrow. The "for awhile" terminated only when we were summoned to breakfast by the doughty colonel, who sadly shook his head as he prophesied an indefinite sojourn at San Pedro Sula.

The arrival of the train for San Pedro Sula was the signal for the instant settlement with our host. The distance from Puerto Cortez to San Pedro Sula is only thirty-seven miles, yet the journey lasts four hours. The cars were crowded with natives loaded with the produce of their country, who evinced much delight and apprehension at the novelty of the ride. The seats were most uncomfortable. They were too wide for one and too narrow for two persons. I therefore, at the first stop, obtained permission of the engineer to ride with him. The fireman surrendered his seat to me, and I assumed charge of the great bell, which I had to ring almost incessantly, as impediments were constantly appearing on the track, sometimes natives, but more frequently deer and cattle. The exercise was invigorating and healthful, inasmuch as it helped to develop the muscles, while the view from the cab was magnificent. On each side, and as far as the eye could reach, our passage was protected from the sun, and girded by seemingly impenetrable walls of palms and ferns and trees of every kind. We reached San Pedro Sula at noon, where we stopped for dinner, and immediately thereafter continued our journey to an obscure village about nine miles distant—the then terminus of the road. We were still three miles distant from the River Ulna, where our mules were to be waiting for us, and Mr. Pearce, superintendent of the road, very kindly allowed us the use of the construction train to convey us and our baggage to the river.

IN THE MOONLIGHT.

Thus, with our baggage for seats and our legs hanging over the side, we completed the remaining three miles of railroad. The train which we had just left, and which had been a target for the wit and sarcasm of the party, was, by comparison with the last conveyance, superior to the best and most luxurious parlor car Mr. Pullman has ever constructed. Mr. Lecklr, the chief engineer of the railroad, met us at the river, and directed his men to assist our cook to carry our baggage from the train and to load it in canoes which were waiting to convey us across the river. I am of the opinion that the American word "hustle" has no equivalent in the Spanish language, for the loading of the canoes occupied fully an hour, during which time we bathed and conversed with Mr. Leckir on the coffee industry. We crossed the river finally, and procured twenty mules—nine saddle mules and eleven pack mules. The people of Honduras all travel mule or horse back, and all freight is carried through the country and over the mountains on the backs of those little animals.

Darkness was setting in. We therefore saddled our mules, gave our cook instructions to superintend the lading of the pack mules, and, preceded by our guide, set out in search of supper. We stopped at a near-by hut, and were served for the first time with the national food—coffee, beans and tortillas. This is the fare for breakfast, for luncheon and for dinner, and so on, infinitum. The coffee is invariably excellent, the beans are sometimes palatable, while the tortillas are always execrable. The tortilla (pronounced torr-teah) is made of pure corn, boiled in ash lye and then washed. During the night it is soaked in cold water, and in the morning ground between two rocks. It is then patted into the shape of a griddle cake, between the palms of the hands, and baked. The tortilla tastes like hominy cakes.

SUPPER BY TORCHLIGHT.

A stalwart native stood at the end of our table, holding in his hand a lighted torch, which served in place of candles. With the aid of our riding-whips and an occasional well-directed kick we succeeded in keeping the poultry and hogs and dogs at a distance, while we swallowed our coffee and ate a few beans.

We were soon in the saddle again and journeying through Honduras, beneath the bright moonlight, in single file. We readily perceived that our mules were sure-footed and careful, and by the advice of our guide we let the reins loose on their necks and trusted unreservedly to them. We rode about six miles and then found shelter for the night in an empty hut, where we slept, stretched on our slickers for a matress, with our saddles for pillows and our clothing for blankets.

In the morning we awoke feeling rather stiff, yet, nevertheless, refreshed. We breakfasted on eggs and coffee at an adjacent hut. Tablecloths, knives and forks are almost unknown luxuries throughout Honduras. Spoons, though not plentiful, can generally be procured, and thus, with the assistance of a pocket-knife, we managed to eat the fare provided. Happily for us we were due that evening in Santa Cruz, where we should have our own cook, provisions, cutlery and china. Thus with a light heart and gay spirits we mounted our spiritless mules.

NEILLY'S BIG STONE.

Experts Think it is Worth About $1,000,000.

Martin Neilly was returning to Rossland, B. C., after an unsuccessful prospecting trip into the Salmon River district, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. He reached the Columbia river at a point about six miles north of Trail Landing, B. C., at noon on that day, and selecting a spot on the bank of the stream at the foot of Lookout mountain, he sat down to eat his dinner. As he did so he noticed a huge boulder half buried in the sand in a dry portion of the river not far from where he sat.

When he was through with his repast he shouldered his pick and sauntered over toward the huge boulder. He examined it at first in a casual way, and then his experienced eye told him that it was promising looking quartz rock. He struck his pick into it several times and dislodged a piece of the decomposed rock. Great was his surprise when upon picking up the fragment he saw traces of gold and copper. He walked around the boulder and knocked off piece after piece, and as he did so his excitement increased with each succeeding disclosure. In speaking of the circumstance to the correspondent he said:

"It was some time before I fully realized what a fortune I had discovered, but when it dawned upon me that at last I was a rich man I am afraid I made such demonstrations as would justify any one who might have seen me in believing that I had lost my senses. For several years I have been 'grubstaked' in prospecting these mountains without success, and many is the time I have gone hungry for the want of the price to get something to eat. Can you blame me for going nearly crazy when I realized that I was no longer poor?"

When Neilly had demonstrated to his satisfaction that the huge mountain of rock before him was full of rich metal, he proceeded to locate his discovery by posting the usual notices taking in the ground upon which the boulder rested. He then selected a number of the specimens of the rock that he had chipped off, and, putting them in his pocket, he started for Rossland, arriving there late in the afternoon. He went to several assayers and left some of the rock to be assayed.

The next morning one assayer's report showed that the ore contained $53 in gold to the ton, besides being rich in copper. The other two assays showed $47 and $58 in gold and also copper.

From the position of the boulder, lying as it does on the dry bed of the river all by itself, and at the foot of Lookout mountain, which rears its crest several thousand feet up in the air, it is evident that at some period this huge body of rock has become dislodged from the mountain and rolled down with fearful momentum to the point where it now rests.

The boulder, as near as can be estimated, contains in the neighborhood of 20,000 tons of rock. As yet Neilly is undecided what he will do with his boulder. He says he may conclude to have it mined and shipped to the Trail smelter for reduction, or he may decide to dispose of it to some syndicate or capitalist for a good round figure. He has set no price on it, and says he will not until he has had time to think the matter over.

A LITTLE DRAGOON.

Yonkers Gazette: "I see, Tremper, that you have a new errand boy at your office."

"Yes, great boy he is, too; we call him that little dragoon."

"Because he is such a warlike fellow, I suppose?"

"Hardly; it's because he has to be booted and spurred before we can get anything out of him."

Board of Health Will Ask That Plumbing Inspection Be Required.

St. Paul Ordinance is Considered Good Enough For Duluth.

West Duluth, Fond du Lac and New Duluth Districts Combined.

The board of health held its regular monthly meeting this morning. There were present, besides Health Officer Routh, F. W. Kugler and Dr. Graham. The necessity for some provision for plumbing inspection was canvassed, the board passing a resolution favoring such a measure. The need of safeguards against defective plumbing are, it was thought, fully met by the St. Paul ordinance covering the matter, and the city attorney will draft an ordinance with similar provisions. It will provide for adequate inspection of plumbing in new buildings, under the supervision of the building department.

Owing to the fact that complete returns were not in, Inspector Rossiter was unable to present a detailed report for the month. The data at hand, however, shows a total of 38 deaths from all causes as against 47 for April. The principal causes and deaths therefrom were as follows: Pneumonia, 5; typhoid fever, 4; heart disease, 3; Bright's disease, 2; capillary bronchitis, 2; consumption, 2; accident and violence, 2; meningitis, 2; diphtheria and scarlet fever, 1 each.

Health Officer Routh reported that during the month 73 complaints had been received and attended to and 511 nuisances abated. The meat and vegetable inspector inspected 268 meat markets, 281 grocery stores, 189 commission houses and 72 cellars. He has condemned during the month 819 pounds of beef, 413 pounds of pork, 178 pounds of mutton, 319 pounds of veal, 40 pounds of fish, 101 pounds of poultry and 2040 pounds of fruit and vegetables, among the latter being included amount condemned in winter stores as well as from shipments newly arriving. The inspector reported that the order for the cleaning of cellars issued by the department had been very generally obeyed.

The board found ample matter of congratulation in the reduction the health department has effected in current expenses, which consist mainly of labor and team hire. The pay roll for the month was $934, against $1417 for May, 1895, a saving of $483. By way of further saving in expense it was resolved to enlarge the territory of the inspector at West Duluth, to cover New Duluth, Fond du Lac and Ironton, by which increase a saving of $60 per month will be secured. The board requested the city attorney to draw up a contract with M. Stewart & Co. for ambulance keep and service, pursuant to the instructions from the council.

ATTORNEYS HAVE WORDS.

J. B. Cotton and W. R. Spencer Exchange Compliments.

The first of the struck jury cases on this term's calendar, Peter Ellsworth against the Mountain Iron company, came up before Judge Morris this morning. Ellsworth claims to have been struck by a rock which rolled off the bank while he was excavating before the steam shovel on the Mountain Iron mine. As a result of his injuries he lost a leg and he demands $25,000 from the company, alleging that its negligence was responsible for the accident. William R. Spencer was plaintiff's attorney, and J. B. Cotton was for the defendant.

The case had no more than got started before the attorneys became involved in a wordy altercation which required the intercession of the court. Mr. Spencer was examining the jurors, and he brought John D. Rockefeller into the case as the reputed mogul of the defendant company in a manner which displeased Mr. Cotton very much. So he asked, with some asperity, that Mr. Spencer leave Mr. Rockefeller out of the case, as he was not on trial. The tone of the request made Mr. Spencer angry, and he retorted that Mr. Cotton had been tried and found wanting.

Mr. Cotton arose to his feet and wrathfully informed Mr. Spencer that if he had said that outside of the court room he would not have said it twice.

Things looked ominous, but the sharp tap of the court's gavel on the desk put an end to the argument and the case proceeded.

When the panel was nearly all completed, it was discovered that James Pilkey, who had been served with a summons by leaving it with Mrs. Pilkey, was not present, nor had he been at any time. An attachment was issued for Mr. Pilkey, and at noon the calendar was still incomplete.

Judge Moer this morning was still hearing the case of the Northern Security company against W. E. Richardson, as assignee of the American Loan and Trust company. The suit is to recover stock in the Vermilion and Grand Rapids Iron company, valued at $1500. The stock was turned over to the trust company in 1893 as security for a note of $3500 made by R. H. Harris. It is claimed that the note was paid, but that the security was never returned. The assignee of the trust company says that the stock was turned over to him with the other assets of the American Loan and Trust company, and that is all he knows about it.

Judge Ensign this morning was still hearing the case of Sam Brusell against Peter Larson.

Wants Large Damages.

Ole Nelson wants $6442 from J. W. Sheridan and the Duluth Fuel company. He alleges that a year ago today he was driving his team peacefully home from Forest Hill cemetery to which home for the weary he had been hauling bricks. He says that one of the defendant's coal wagons came along behind him, ran into his wagon, scared his horses and caused them to jump, throwing him out. I. Grettum is Nelson's attorney.

SAYS HE WAS ROBBED.

Thrilling Story Told By F. R. Bryant, of St. Paul.

F. R. Bryant, a St. Paul traveling man, appeared at the Merchants hotel shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday morning, with a bullet hole in his left arm below the elbow and covered with dust and bruises. A physician was summoned who dressed the wound. It being discovered that the bullet had passed entirely through the flesh of the arm, no bones being broken.

Meanwhile the wounded man told his experience. According to his story, he left the Merchants hotel at midnight, after watching until that time at the bedside of a man named Ray, a friend of his who is lying there very ill, on his way to the St. James hotel, where he has been stopping since Monday. On the street he met some friends, Grand Army veterans as he is himself, and with them he strolled east on Superior street and parted with them in the vicinity of First avenue east, he, for the sake of air and exercise returned toward the St. James hotel by the way of Michigan street. Just as he reached the Lake avenue viaduct a man sprang out of the shadow and struck at Bryant with his fist, and in being resisted by the latter, his assailant covered him with a revolver. Bryant seized the weapon and a struggle ensued for its possession, a companion of the assailant meantime joining in the melee. During the scuffle, the revolver was discharged three times, one of the bullets taking effect in Bryant's arm. Bryant fell on being wounded, but collecting himself, he took his pen knife from his pocket, opened it and plunged it into one of the men, who was kneeling on him. At this, the robbers kicked Bryant violently in the stomach, took his money, $37 in amount and decamped. Mr. Bryant picked himself up and passed on to his hotel. He says that the one of the men of whom he got a view was of medium height, with a red mustache, and he thinks the other man was smaller. During the whole time, but one remark was made, which passed between the robbers and which Bryant failed to catch. Bryant says he is a member of the Grand Army, has smelled powder before, and that if he had been given a little more of a show he would have given his assailants greater cause to remember him.

Will Say Nothing.

The interest in the Rish A. Gray estate and the claim of Miss Kathryn Western that she is his widow is not subsiding by any means. J. C. Bullit, Jr., who represents Miss Western, is not exposing any of his cards and refuses absolutely to give any information. When asked for the year and the month of the marriage he answered, "I will say nothing until the proper time," and nothing further would he say. The date of the hearing is June 9, one week from tomorrow. The administrator asked for is William E. Gray, of Vasselboro, Me., a brother of the deceased. It is said, however, that another one has been agreed upon by the heirs. There is a general determination on their part to fight the case to the end.

In the road race, the Viking was a leader, as usual.

House Rebukes Grover's Action by a Vote of 220 to 60.

Senate Also Has a Busy Day ---Senator Morrill's Speech.

Washington, June 2.—The approaching end of the session was impressed upon the public by several suggestions today. A rule from the committee on rules for meetings of the house at 11 o'clock, an hour earlier than usual, during the remainder of the session was adopted. Then Mr. Dingley called attention to the fact that several appropriation bills were yet in conference, and said he noticed that many members were leaving the city and begged members to remain and keep a quorum. His appeal was reinforced by Chairman Cannon, of the appropriations committee, who said: "In my judgment there is no probability that this session will end before Wednesday of next week, and probably not before Friday or Saturday. If we do not keep a quorum we will not get away for a month.

Mr. Babcock, chairman of the District of Columbia committee, reported an agreement on the gas bill which reduced the price of gas in the district to $1 for the government and $1.40 to private consumers per 1000 feet, which he estimated would save citizens $120,000 a year. The report was adopted—126 to 29.

The report of the committee on rivers and harbors recommending the passage of the bill over the president's veto was made by Chairman Hooker and the report was read.

The hearing of the report was followed by applause, most of it on the Republican side of the house. Mr. Hooker moved the passage of the bill. "Many members have asked me for time to debate this matter," he said, "and to yield to their requests would take much time. Without expressing any opinion on the question whether there should be debate, and to test the opinion of the house on the question whether debate is necessary, I will demand the previous question."

Instantly Mr. Dockery was on his feet demanding recognition, but the speaker told him that debate was not in order. Members were shouting, "Vote, vote," but the voice of Mr. Dockery pierced the uproar, shouting, "The gentleman agreed with me yesterday to have debate on this bill. This is unfair, unjust, unmanly."

The house demanded the previous question—178 to 60, by a rising vote, and only forty-six rose to sustain the request for yeas and nays.

"Under the rules the vote on the passage of the bill must be taken by yeas and nays," the speaker announced.

"Is there no rule by which we can have debate?" asked Mr. Dockery.

"No; if the house orders to the contrary," said Speaker Reed, "and the house has so ordered, to stifle debate," chimed in Mr. Dockery.

The bill was passed, 220 to 60, a wide margin over the necessary two-thirds.

Among the announcements made for absent members was one that Mr. Crisp would have voted to pass the bill over the veto if he had been present. An effort was made by Mr. Hooker to secure the printing of 10,000 copies of the river and harbor veto and the committee reply, but it was blocked by objection.

The river and harbor bill having been disposed of, Mr. Long called up the contested election case from the Eighth New York district, the majority report of the committee being to oust Walsh, the sitting member, and seat Mitchell, Republican.

IN THE SENATE.

Senator Morrill Talks on Dingley Tariff Bill.

Washington, June 2.—The session of the senate began at 11 o'clock today in anticipation of the closing struggle of the final vote on the Butler bill to prohibit the issue of bonds and of a speech on the Dingley tariff bill by Mr. Morrill, chairman of the finance committee. The chaplain's prayer referred to the fact that the vice president would today give an estimable daughter in marriage, and invoked divine blessing on the bride and the man of her choice.

In reporting the militia organization bill, Mr. Hawley said it would not be called up until next session. Among the bills introduced was one by Mr. Cullom for a peace monument at Appomattox, Va.

Mr. Chandler offered a resolution directing the judiciary committee to inquire into certain alleged irregularities in the Southern judicial district of Indian territory. Mr. Chandler called attention particularly to reports that the receivers' certificates had been issued by authority with no capital paid in. No action was taken on the resolution.

Mr. Morrill was then recognized for a speech on the tariff. His earnest manner and strong voice gave no indication of his advanced age. Opening his speech, Senator Morrill referred to the emergency tariff bill passed by the house and said: The Democrats have broken away from the leadership of the president, and while marching to the drum and fife of a North Carolina captain, are in such dread lest the Populists should get control of their party that they seem to be in a hurry to become Populists themselves." He predicted that the platform of the Republican party in 1896 would place every dollar of our money in circulation on a parity with the best dollar in the world, and declared that at present the ground under the Democratic party appears dangerously volcanic.

Continuing, he said: "No doubt had our country been shielded by a sound protective tariff during the hopeless years of the present Democratic administration much of the business distress and woe of unemployed labor might have been averted; but another adverse and sore bewitchery of all business affairs in the United States, hardly less potent than a free trade tariff, has been the unceasing agitation for the free coinage of silver, and on a ratio that would not fail to reduce the standard value of our money, as well as the whole fabric of public and private credit, to one-half of its present value. An invitation from commercial nations to join in a co-operative agreement for a larger money use of silver would be accepted by a Republican administration, but it would be more desirable that the United States should receive than offer the invitation, as the American production of silver is comparatively so large that any initiatory step on our part might subject us to the charge of being inspired by the thrifty purpose of securing a better market for our domestic product.

"Were it true, as some extreme silver advocates represent, that no co-operative agreement among leading nations for a larger use of silver can be obtained, that fact alone would be a cogent and sufficient reason why the United States should decline to stultify itself by embarking single-handed in an experiment so reckless and so distrusted as to be shunned and coldly rejected by the statesmen of every enlightened nation. But this hopeless representation of the silver question in Europe is untrue. The trend of public opinion in Germany and in Great Britain favors tolerance of the question."

In reporting a bill for the construction of the Nicaragua canal, Mr. Morgan asked that Dec. 14 next be fixed for considering the bill, but Mr. Pettigrew objected. Debate was then resumed on the conference report on the Indian appropriation bill, Mr. Vilas and Mr. George opposing the report.

DEFICIENCY BILL.

Conferees Report Nearly Complete Agreement.

Washington, June 2.—After working the greater part of the day Sunday, and well through the night, last night, the conferees on the general deficiency appropriation bill concluded their labors and were able to report an agreement early today on all but twenty-six of the 233 amendments made by the senate to the bill. The house conceded a large number of the amendments on which an agreement were announced, the most important of which were the following, which remained in the bill:

Appropriating $1,542,979 to pay claims of the Southern Pacific railway; $1,137,-082 to pay judgments of the court of claims; appropriating $8750 for Mrs. Eliza Gray, widow of the late Minister Isaac P. Gray; $6157 for the final payment of claims on account of the World's fair; $45,000 for the construction of sampling works for assaying imported silver lead ore; $56,754 for the support of prisoners of the United States courts; $176,134 to pay clerks of members of the house.

The principal items still in dispute are the following: Increasing the appropriation for the customs service from $800,000 to $1,000,000; appropriating $150,000 for payment of injuries on account of the Ford theater disaster; increasing from $50,162 to $104,861 the allowance on account of contests in the house of representatives.

NORTHERN PACIFIC BILL.

Washington, June 2.—The house judiciary committee today decided to report to the house the sub-resolution for the reorganization of the Northern Pacific. Amendments were made to compel the reorganized company to pay all debts of the company and claims against it, and to prevent the company holding a monopoly of timber and iron on its grant lands.

ST. LOUIS RELIEF.

Work of Repairing Damages Going on Steadily.

St. Louis, June 2.—The work of relief and restoration goes on today in the midst of falling rain, which has prevailed more or less during the past week. Contributions of money, clothing, provisions and other necessities are coming in liberally and the destitute are being cared for. Chief Harrigan has issued a written request to the captains of the various police districts asking them to prevail upon the employes of the police department under them to contribute one day's pay to the relief of the cyclone sufferers. It is estimated that the police collections will swell the relief fund at least $1200.

The losses caused indirectly by the tornado are just beginning to reveal themselves. The direct results were at once apparent, but the consequences slightly remote from the first cause will be nearly as cruel as the immediate defects. Because the tornado ruined many mills and factories, a large number of men will be out of employment for weeks and months. How many men have been deprived of their opportunity to earn a livelihood cannot be stated with any degree of accuracy, but it certainly runs into the hundreds in excess of the number employed to clear away the rubbish and repair the damage wrought by the wind.

COLORADO CYCLONE.

Injured Several People and Demolished Buildings.

Wray, Col., June 2.—News has just reached here of a cyclone that caused considerable damage and injured a number of people in Eastern Araphoe county on Saturday last. The school and several farm buildings were blown down. Mrs. Joseph Phillips was quite seriously injured, but will recover. Postmaster Beck and his mother and Mrs. Morris received several bruises.

At Joseph Phillips' place two horses were carried a quarter of a mile by the wind and hurled to the earth and crushed to death. The storm passed off in a northeastwardly direction into Kansas. The path of the cyclone was about 100 yards wide.

KENTUCKY BOURBONS.

Lexington, Ky., June 2.—There is a large attendance here for the Democratic state convention tomorrow. The gold standard men counsel conservative action in the interest of the party and the silver men are disposed to be liberal. Good feeling prevails. The silver men are in such control that there are not the usual contests for control of the convention or the state committee. Senator Blackburn has been holding ovations all day. The silver and gold men both held caucuses. The silver men fixed the nomination for the temporary organization of the convention.

NO MORE

Judge Ozora P. Stearns Died In California This Morning.

No Particulars Received but It Was Probably Rather Sudden.

Sketch of His Eventful Career---Court Adjourned Out of Respect.

At 11 o'clock this morning Victor Stearns received a telegram announcing the death of his father Judge Ozora P. Stearns in California, at his place a few miles from San Diego. The dispatch contained no news of the manner of his death, but it was probably rather sudden, Judge Stearns has never been a well man since he was afflicted with a stroke of paralysis while holding court in the fall of 1891. He seemed to recover to a certain extent, but it left him anything but strong. He had spent a winter in Florida and two in California. He enjoyed better health in the latter place and determined to remove there, which he did last fall. Early this year it was plain that his health was failing and he had several bad attacks. A few weeks ago grave fears were felt, but he seemed to recover. A letter received a few days ago brought the intelligence that he was confined to his bed. Nothing further was heard until the telegram came this morning.

Judge Stearns was not only an old resident of Duluth, but of Minnesota, and no man ever held a greater measure of public respect. In manners he was plain and outspoken, in his business life he was the embodiment of honesty and integrity, and his judicial career was marked for ability and learning. His life has been a busy one, and eventful one, and he has been the servant of the people for many years. Its close finds him with a circle as friends as wide, as true, and as strong as it was ever the lot of any one man to possess.

Ozora P. Stearns was born in De Kalb, St. Lawrence county, N. Y., in January, 1831. While yet a child his parents removed to Northern Ohio, where, from the time he was old enough to ride a horse to "plow corn," until he was 17 years old, he worked on a farm, attending the neighborhood district school during the winter months. When he was 17 years of age his father gave him his time and from that day on he worked his own way in the world without a dollar's aid from any source. He at once determined to obtain for himself a liberal education. To earn money for this purpose he worked on farms, chopped wood, split rails, made his way to California and worked in mines, taught school and did any kind of work by which he could make an honest dollar; and while in school and college, dressed plainly, boarded himself and studied hard to make his limited means go as far as possible. Finally in 1858 he graduated from the literary department of the university of Michigan, and two years later from the law department of the same university. In May, 1860, he landed in Rochester, Minn., his whole earthly possessions consisting of one rusty suit of clothes and 10 cents in money.

In the fall of 1860 he stumped the county for Lincoln and Hamlin, and the following year, by a spontaneous movement of the people and without any effort on his part, he was elected county attorney of Olmsted county. In August, 1862, he raised a company for the Ninth Minnesota volunteers, of which he was made first lieutenant, having voluntarily yielded the captaincy of the company to another for the sake of harmony. He served with his company on the Indian frontier and in Missouri until 1863, when he was commissioned colonel of the Thirty-ninth United States colored troops and took command of his regiment at Manassas, Va., three days before the battle of the Wilderness. He was with the Army of the Potomac during the campaign of 1864, and accompanied both Gens. Butler and Terry on their Fort Fisher expeditions. During these times he was never off duty but once, and that for a short time in hospital. Learning that his regiment was about to be ordered on an expedition in which they were likely to have hard fighting, and fearing lest they might not quit themselves with honor without their accustomed leader, he determined to share the hardships and dangers of his regiment and left the hospital against the earnest advice of the surgeon in charge.

When about to leave his regiment to take command of a brigade, he was presented with a magnificent sword, sash and belt, towards the purchase of which every man in the regiment cheerfully contributed. In December, 1865, he was mustered out of the service, and in January, 1866, he again entered upon the duties of county attorney of Olmsted county, to which office he had been elected while yet in the army.

In the fall of 1866 Olmstead county gave him a complimentary vote as a candidate for member of congress, and in 1868 made a determined effort to secure his nomination for that position, but without success. In June, 1867, he was appointed register in bankruptcy, and in January, 1871, was elected by the legislature United States senator to fill the unexpired term of Senator Norton.

In 1872 he removed to Duluth, and in 1874 was appointed judge of the Eleventh judicial district, to which office he was three times elected without opposition.

In February, 1863, Judge Stearns was married to Sarah Burger, of Detroit. There are three children, Susan, Stella and Victor. Mrs. Stearns and the two daughters are with him in California while Victor is a well-known attorney in practice here.

When the news came to the district court room here court was immediately adjourned to tomorrow morning. Judge Morris appointed the following committee on resolutions: W. W. Billson, D. G.

MISSIONS

The Congregational Societies Meet In New Haven---Their Annual Reports.

Increase In Church Membership and Number of Buildings.

Finances in a Favorable State---A Surplus Over Expenditures.

New Haven, Conn., June 2.—The seventh anniversary of the Congregational Home Missionary society and its three associate societies, the Education society, the Church Building society and the Sunday School Publishing society, began last evening with a meeting of secretaries and superintendents. The number of missionary laborers in the service of the society last year together with those engaged with superintending the work is 2628; of these 1345 were in commission at the date of the last report, and 693 have since been appointed. The number of congregations and missionary districts which have been fully supplied or where the gospel has been preached is 4110.

The number of those who have preached in foreign languages is 208. The number of Sunday school and Bible class scholars is not far from 186,341. The organization of 241 new schools is reported and the number under the special care of missionaries is 2483. The additions to the churches as nearly as can be ascertained, have been 12,138, viz: Eight thousand one hundred and fifty-three on confession of faith, and 3985 by letters from other churches. One hundred and twenty-three churches have been organized in connection with the labors of the missionaries within the year, and twenty-four have assumed the entire support of their own gospel ordinances.

Three chapels are reported as having been built within the year and sixty-nine parsonages have been provided. The receipts of the National society during the year, from contributions, legacies and other sources, were $538,606.33, and the auxiliaries raised and expended on their own fields, $239,141.62, making the total income for the year (including $11,070.45 cash in hand for drafts payable on the first of the year) $788,818.40. The expenditures of the national society for missionary labor and expense during the year have been $460,713.74, and the auxiliaries have expended $239,141.62 in their previous fields, making the total expenditures for the work (including $8,532.38 cash in hand for drafts payable at the end of the year) $708,378.74. The net debt of the society at the close of the fiscal year, March 31, 1896, is $51,700.41.

GERMANY'S TRADE.

Consul Monoghan Shows How it is Growing.

Washington, June 2.—In a special report to the state deparament showing how Germany is reaching out in her competition with Great Britain and France for the control of the markets of the world, United States Consul Monoghan, at Chemnitz, touches upon the importation of cotton which comes to Germany in large quantities from India, Egypt and the United States, Saxony alone taking 5000 or 6000 bales weekly.

But the Saxony merchants buy all their American cotton in Liverpool and Bremen, instead of buying from Memphis, Galveston, Atlanta and New Orleans direct. Letter after letter has been sent to influential men in the South urging them to exploit the German market, but all to no avail.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

OREGON'S PLATES.

Deficient Ones Found in the Big Battleship.

San Francisco, June 2.—In regard to the statement telegraphed to Washington in regard to the defects that had been discovered in the construction of the new battleship Oregon, Irvin Scott, president of the Union Iron works, says: "Upon the return of the Oregon from her famous trip in the Santa Barbara channel we were informed that the superintendent of the shipyard and two of the sub-foremen had made a mistake in the dimensions of some of the plates in the protection deck over the coal bunkers, and to cover it up, had substituted thinner plates of sufficient width, the requisite thickness thus being made up. Instead of three plates of the thickness required by the specifications, there were four, which, though thinner, were in the aggregate the same.

"Upon being summoned before the trial board the three men responsible frankly admitted the truth of the report and testified that they had made the substitution of thinner plates upon their own responsibility and without informing either the Union Iron works or Mr. Stahl, the naval contractor. As neither the strength nor efficiency of the ship was affected, the four plates they inserted being just as thick as the three required by the specifications, they had seen no harm in their action, and hoped by this means to cover up a mistake they had made in the dimensions of the original plates.

"As soon as we could locate the deficient plates and the number, we furnished the trial board with a drawing showing just where and what they were, ordered them removed and others put in their place.

OREGON ELECTION.

Republicans Elect a Majority of Their Candidates.

Portland, Ore., June 2.—Incomplete returns have been received from the elections held in this state yesterday to select a supreme judge, two congressmen and members of the legislature which will choose a successor to Senator Mitchell in the United States senate. The Republicans have elected R. S. Bean supreme judge by about 10,000 plurality. Thomas H Tongue, Republican, has been elected to congress in the first district. Partial returns from seven counties out of fifteen, in the second district, give the following vote: Ellis, Republican, 793; Quinn, Populist, 599; Burnett, Democrat, 501; Northrup, Independent, 432. It will require complete returns to determine the result.

The senate will be Republican by ten majority and the house will probably be close, though the Republicans claim a majority of at least ten, giving them twenty majority on joint ballot. Ex-Governor Pennoyer was elected mayor of Portland by a plurality exceeding 2000. The Populists have made gains throughout the state.

NUPTIALS

Wedding of Miss Julia Stevenson and Rev. Martin Hardin Occurrs Tonight.

Some Idea of the Costumes of the Bride and Her Attendants.

Splendid Gifts from the Diplomatic Corps and Other Friends.

Washington, June 2.—Extensive preparations have been made for the wedding tonight, at the New York Avenue Presbyterian church, of Miss Julia Stevenson, daughter of the vice president and Mrs. Stevenson, and Rev. Martin Hardin, a son of Gen. P. Wat Hardin, of Kentucky. The relatives of the young couple, mainly from Kentucky and Illinois, are nearly all here for the ceremony. The Hardin family group and Kentucky friends, who are already here, number sixteen.

The bride's wedding dress is of ivory white satin of great richness. The bodice is high necked and has chiffon trimmings held by small clusters of orange blossoms. A spray of orange blossoms will be worn with tulle veil.

Miss Letitia Stevenson, the maid of honor, will wear pale blue French muslin. The skirt has two lace edged ruffles. The bodice has a square neck and the ribbons in the girdle are of double faced white satin. Her bouquet will also be of white roses. The bridesmaids, Miss Letitia Scott, Miss Jane Hardin, Miss Julia Scott and Miss Julia Hardin are to wear white French muslin, with fichus of muslin, lace trimmed. They will carry pink roses.

Charles Hardin will be best man. The ushers will be Woodward Longmoor and Richard Hill, of Kentucky; Carl Vrooman, of Baltimore; George Hamlin, of Boston; Capt. Bromwell, United States engineer corps, and Walter Wilcox, Rev. Dr. Radcliffe will officiate.

After the wedding there will be a reception to a large number of invited guests at the Normandie hotel, where the vice president and his family reside.

The wedding gifts are unusually beautiful. The vice president and Mrs. Stevenson have given a large diamond star, which will clasp the veil to the brown hair of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Hardin, the bridegroom's parents, have given the bride a brougham and a pair of horses. The Chinese minsters sent a magnificent roll of white satin brocade; Secretary and Mrs. Lamont, an empire fan with pearl sticks; the Brazilian minister and Madame De Mendonca, a painting, which is a gem of art; the Mexican minister and Madame Romero, a silver tea service, gold lined, each piece bearing the bride's monogram. Mrs. Stevenson, the mother of the vice president, sent two bonbon spoons with a beautiful sentiment; Minister and Mrs. Ewing, an exquisite point lace handkerchief. The Illinois congressional delegates, a large silver pitcher mounted in gold. Others who have remembered the happy couple are Mr. and Mrs. John R. McLean, Assistant Secretary Hamlin, Gen. and Mrs. Black, of Illinois, and Senato and Mrs. Blackburn.

TRAVELING MEN.

Protective Association Meets in Terre Haute.

Terre Haute, Ind., June 2.—The Travelers' Protective Association of America, assembled here in their seventh annual convention today. The address of John A. Lee, national president, shows that the organization has grown in numbers and extent of territory, now comprising thirty-two state divisions, 110 municipal organizations, and 11,090 active members. The cash balance shows a handsome increase and the per capita of expense of conducting the affairs of the organization shows a reduction, being this year $1.44 per member. The indemnities paid during the year for accidental injury and death amounted to $5.41 per capita, while the collections for indemnity fund amounts to $6.23 per capita, showing a safe margin.

In concluding he said: "Our members assembled here today have passed through a year of commercial trials and bitter conditions. We have been compelled to sell twice the quantity of goods which we sold ten or even five years ago in order to make the usual aggregate sales in dollars and cents, owing to the enormous declines of values in nearly all lines of goods. Owing to the great reductions of values of agricultural products and the consequent destruction of the purchasing power of the people, expenses have been but little reduced while margins of profit have been but little better. We have found employment hard to secure and harder to retain than heretofore, and many people are finding their burdens growing almost intolerable.

"We are gathered here of all political creeds and we differ widely as to the governmental policies best adapted to bring relief to the country and to restore the commercial conditions to their former activity and prosperity, but we are all agreed that there must be relief and that a change must come. Whether God in his mercy and wisdom may choose the pillar of silvery clouds by day, or the pillar of golden fire by night with which to guide his people out of this bondage, or happily employ a combination of both, we will be content if the relief comes, provided it comes quickly.

THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Two of the old Deadwood coaches, formerly used by the Medora Stage and Forwarding company, in the palmy days of Medora and the Marquis de Mores, passed through the Mandan yards on Tuesday. They were being shipped to Crookston, Minn., where they will be used for transportation to and from the newly opened Red Lake reservation. The Crookstonites will have in them some genuine stage coaches of the days of road agents and Indians.

Saturday Lakota was arrayed in flags, streamers and bunting everywhere. Long before noon people began to arrive from the surrounding country. The orator of the day, Rev. E. J. Conaty, secured the closest attention of the audience from the first, and time and again the people broke out in hearty applause. The several committees made such perfect preparations that the entire memorial program was carried out without a break. Taken together, the whole occasion was not only an appropriate memorial service, but a sort of intellectual feast day for all.

A well known banker and business man at Grafton, N. D., writes that "it has been raining almost continually for the past forty days and there is not over 35 per cent of the seeding done in this section, and that what is seeded is nearly all flooded. From present indications there will not be over 40 per cent of last season's crop harvested in the spring wheat belt this year."

SOUTH DAKOTA.

The political situation is becoming piping hot at Canton as the Aberdeen convention draws on apace and the various candidates are sizing up their forces. There seems to be an attempt on the part of a certain class to keep the Pettigrew fight warm, some of the "antis" going so far as to declare that any man who supported Pettigrew as a delegate to the St. Louis convention shall not receive recognition at Aberdeen, and given to understand that the party has no use for them.

Canton is the home of O. S. Gifford, a prominent candidate for governor and an ardent supporter of Pettigrew at the Huron convention, and the locality is somewhat interested in these threats against the so-called Pettigrew people. It is questioned here if these politicians remember that every vote is necessary to insure the success of the republican party in the state this year. The Pettigrew fight was dropped, or should have been, the day after the Huron convention, and the attempt to keep it alive will only bring disaster to the party and victory to the opposition.

ALASKA'S DELEGATION.

Not Instructed for Any of the Candidates.

Seattle, Wash., June 2.—C. S. Blackman, of Juneau, one of the delegates elected to the national Republican convention by the Independent Republican convention held at Juneau, arrived in Seattle on the steamer City of Topeka. Speaking of the two candidates he said: "The story about Delamater or anybody else from the outside having any interest in the matter of having done any work to secure the election of a Reed or anti-McKinley delegation from Alaska is all rank nonsense. My delegation goes uninstructed. We are not particularly for Reed, for McKinley or any other candidate. All that we ask is a candidate who will do something for the pressing needs of Alaska."

WEST END

Pearl Hive of the Maccabees Will Give a Ball Tonight.

Outdoor Sports Are Taking the Place of Indoor Pleasure.

Bicycling is All the Rage---Some of the Lady Riders.

The ladies of Pearl hive, Maccabees, will give their dance on Friday evening of this week at Great Eastern hall. Extensive preparations have been in progress for this annual ball, and the ladies are determined to make it one of the best yet given this season. As far as heard from it is the last society ball which will be given prior to the heated term and will be the wind up of the dancing season.

Outdoor sports are already taking the place of indoor pleasures and the young people are now laying plans for boating excursions and other amusements. The exhilarating exercise of bicycle riding is absorbing the evening hours of many West Duluth young people. There are, however, not many lady riders in this portion of the city, but the young men are nearly all supplied with the popular vehicles. A number of the school teachers are expert riders, among the number being Misses Hawks, Dickinson, Ensign and Mars. Miss Lennon, principal of the Irving school, has just purchased a wheel and is learning to ride. The Misses Wood and Miss Neiman are also expects on the "wheel," and Mrs. Follett carries the reputation of mounting and dismounting a wheel with more ease and grace than any other lady in West Duluth.

Lawn tennis promises to be a favorite amusement here this summer. The old club has been reorganized and the ground will be put in proper shape for good work. The teachers of the Irving school have a court in the school yard and frequent tennis parties will be given by them.

A circus party is being arranged among a number of young people, and if the weather is conducive to pleasure quite a number of West Duluth people will enjoy the excursion on the Christopher Columbus next Sunday. It is safe to say that ennui will not be allowed to sit heavily upon the young people this summer even if times are hard and home pleasures must to a large extent be indulged in.

COLD IN HEAD

A business man is not the most patient creature in the world. He cannot wait to hear any long-drawn-out story of the cause of his ailment. He doesn't care two straws about a fine spun theory of how he should treat himself. He may be predisposed to scrofula, or consumption. "That," he will tell you "has nothing to do with the case." He wants to be well. If he can be cured, write out a prescription and send in your bill. So, here's the first part of the proposition. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a microbe hunter and killer. Many persons of scrofulous blood, encourage the breaking out of unsightly sores, to prevent the disease going to the lungs. There is no need of this state of dread and discomfort. Purify the blood. It can be done. "Golden Medical Discovery" will cure 98 per cent. of all consumptive cases, also of all other lingering, bronchial, throat and lung diseases. Sold by all medicine dealers.

MAINE CONVENTION.

Reed Receives a Great Big Boom.

Bangor, Me., June 2.—The Maine Republican convention met in this city today. In calling the delegates, Joseph H. Manley, chairman, named for temporary chairman Harold M. Sewall, whom President Cleveland in his first term appointed as United States consul at Samoa, but who subsequently became identified with the Republican party. In the course of a long address on taking up the gavel Mr. Sewall said:

"The Republicans of Maine join their brethren of other states in presenting a candidate whose platform is already written; written when he declared that the proudest part of the proud record of the Republican party is its devotion to the cause of sound finance; written in the record of his life whose nomination means election, whose election means Republican supremacy, not only for four, but for twenty-four years to come; not only the leader of our party, but one whose masterly power defiant Democracy has been forced to acknowledge a master of men; and not only a master of men, but master of himself. Master of himself, as we have known him, boy and man among us. Master of himself, as the nation has known him, in the full glare of publicity and the heat of early strife. Master of himself as the nation knows him today, his lips not sealed in silence when silence is dishonor; his lofty spirit unswerved from its high purpose, no, not for the price of the presidence itself. I need not name him; he was named by nature in the intellect with which she crowned his magnificent manhood and made him regnant among men. He was named when the people called him to preside over the highest legislative body of the land, the second highest position in its gift, and at the time the very highest gift in our own. He was named by the heroic acts which compels events, when he taught that body its duty to the country was to learn to govern itself; when he broke the irons that fettered it and shattered precedents which violated the principle on which all representative governments must stand and rest. Conservative without compromise, brave without rashness, undaunted today as he has been undaunted ever, I need not name him. He leads in your hearts and there has been no vacancy in the leadership since. broken-hearted, you turned from the deathbed of Blaine; and in the full glory of his record and the promise of great achievements yet to come, you centered your pride of state and party fealty upon Thomas B. Reed. His name your chosen delegates carry to St. Louis, and to guide their action there they need only the instructions of their hearts. What fate shall decree we do not know, but this much we know: we know what hopes those whom we are sent to serve have builded on our efforts and no our party alone, but 10,000 Democrats of Maine, who stand ready to burst the bonds of party at the ballot box in response to that great name. We go to that convention with no second choice in our hearts and only that name upon our lips.

GROWING CROPS.

Illinois Talks of Wet and Hard Storms.

Chicago, June 2.—The Illinois weekly weather crop bulletin issued today says: The violent storm of May 27 devastated a considerable portion of the country in the western part of the state. The storm of May 28 was limited to the extreme south of the state and was less severe. Much of the southwest part of the central section is too wet for cultivation or good growth, and is causing some rust in wheat. The grain is generally in fair condition and practically ready for the binder. Rye also is nearly ready to cut and oats are heading rapidly and clover cutting has begun in southern counties. Corn cultivation continues where fields are dry enough.

VERY MOIST IN IOWA.

Des Moines, Iowa, June 2.—The Iowa weekly weather crop bulletin issued today says: In the larger part of the state the work of planting has been retarded by excessive moisture. The average condition of all field crops, except grass, has been somewhat lowered by excessive rains. Winter wheat and rye appear to be doing fairly well. Oats barley and spring wheat show the ill effects of wet weather, but with favorable weather all crops may regain their former promising condition.

WILL GO TO BERLIN.

Washington, June 2.—The American branch of the Women's International Peace league has selected Mrs. Mary F. Ormsby, of this city, president of the American branch, and Mrs. Lacey Greenbeach, a relative of Vice President Stevenson, as delegates to the International congress for women's work at Berlin, Germany, from Sept 19 to 21 of this year.

CROOKED LEGISLATOR'S TRIAL.

Peoria, Ill., June 2.—This morning Judge Worthington overruled a motion to quash the indictment against Simon Shaffer, of Chicago, an ex-representative in the legislature, for offering to accept a bribe to kill a bill prohibiting the feeding of slop to cattle at the distilleries and the jury is now being chosen.

MR. SIMMONS IS SAFE.

Baltimore, Md., June 2.—Charles L. Simmons, of St. Joseph, Mo., who is given as one of the missing in the St. Louis disaster, is safe in Baltimore. Mr. Simmons is a member of the commercial law firm of Simmons, Kellar & Castle, of St. Joseph, and is visiting Eastern cities in the interest of his firm. He was in St. Louis at the time of the storm but was not injured.

In It To Stay.

The News Tribune's reference to the candidacy of W. C. Sargent for sheriff this morning was anything but pleasing to him. He says he is in this race to stay to the end. He is not out in someone else's interest, and he proposes to get all the votes he can, regardless of race, color or previous condition of servitude.

STRONGER

The Wheat Market Made a Slight Advance After Early Weakness.

Many Selling Orders at the Start Forced Down the Price.

Good Inquiry for Cash Wheat for Shipment Caused the Strength.

The selling movement carried over from yesterday was apparent at the opening of the wheat market this morning. Buying orders were scarce and selling orders were numerous, which resulted in liquidation starting at once. This was helped by the large Northwestern receipts and lower outside markets, some bad Kansas and Indiana crop reports having no effect. Later the selling pressure became less urgent, the early offerings being well absorbed, and prices rallied. The early cablegrams reported a decline of from ½d for spot wheat to 1d decline in futures at Liverpool, and the weather throughout the United States in question of a dividend. Bay State Gas broke 3½ per cent to 26 on liquidation by Boston interests. Sugar fell off a point and the grangers, Louisville & Nashville and other prominent stocks sharp fractions. London prices for Americans were shaded and the foreign houses were prominent in the selling movement.

The market lapsed into dullness after 11 o'clock, but a steadier tone was generated and under continued pressure Manhattan yielded to 102½. The temper of the speculation was improved by the depression in the exchange market, one of the leading drawers reducing the posted quotations for demand one-half cent. The market at midday was steady from the low level in stocks. Bay State Gas was up, an exception, 1 per cent to 27. The sales to noon were 54,800 shares.

Cash, W. B. Phelps, S. F. White, J. L. Wasburn, T. J. Davis, H. F. Green, H. H. Phelps, R. R. Briggs, J. B. Cotton. There will be a meeting of the bar at the court house Saturday morning when the resolutions will be acted upon.

Nothing can be given as yet as to the funeral arrangements but the body will probably be brought to Duluth.

INDUCTED IN OFFICE.

St. Paul, June 2.—F. B. Doran is mayor, and St. Paul is governed by a Republican city council. The wish of the people was formally ratified today, and the new officials inducted into office with all ceremony and eclat. The new council also organized with Arosin presiding over the assembly, Markham over the board of aldermen, and Reardon being made chairman of the joint council.

A ST. PAUL WEDDING.

St. Paul, June 2.—Witt Kennon Cochrane, a well-known newspaper man, son of the late Judge Cochrane, of Toledo, Ohio, and Miss Nan Foley, only daughter of Thomas Foley, the famous billiard and baseball manager and expert, were married this afternoon at the house of the bride's parents in this city.

REMSEY COUNTY DEMOCRACY.

St. Paul, June 2.—The Ramsey county Democrats this morning chose D. W. Lawler chairman of a most harmonious convention, and elected a delegation to the state convention favorable to M. Doran as committeeman and delegate-at-large.

THREE TRAMPS KILLED.

Minneapolis, June 2.—A special to the Journal from Livingstone, Mont., says: No. 4 eastbound passenger train on the Northern Pacific left the track last night fifty miles east of there, wrecking the engine and five coaches. Three tramps were killed and several trainmen were injured. No passengers are reported severely hurt.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Falling Market Greeted the Opening Today.

New York, June 2.—The initial quotations were slightly below yesterday's final figures. In the succeeding operations further concessions were made in which Sugar figured for ¾, Leather preferred ⅝ and Burlington, Louisville & Nashville, Tobacco for ½ per cent. Trading became more active by 11 o'clock, but at the expense of values. Leather preferred was conspicuously weak and declined 2 per cent to 63. The directors' meeting is to be held today and the heaviness is attributed to a belief that action may again be deferred on the question of a dividend. Bay State Gas broke 3½ per cent to 26 on liquidation by Boston interests. Sugar fell off a point and the grangers, Louisville & Nashville and other prominent stocks sharp fractions. London prices for Americans were shaded and the foreign houses were prominent in the selling movement.

The market lapsed into dullness after 11 o'clock, but a steadier tone was generated and under continued pressure Manhattan yielded to 102½. The temper of the speculation was improved by the depression in the exchange market, one of the leading drawers reducing the posted quotations for demand one-half cent. The market at midday was steady from the low level in stocks. Bay State Gas was up, an exception, 1 per cent to 27. The sales to noon were 54,800 shares.

GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 207 Board of Trade.

Chicago, June 2.—The feature of the day was covering of short wheat. Yesterday's severe decline was a temptation which could not be resisted, and at present prices the short seller is inclined to be very cautious, but from Europe the advices are better, and though dry weather still prevails in England and France it is nothing to worry over and recent rains in Spain have cured the fears of a shortage in that crop. Clearances of wheat at the seaboard were better, but new engagements very light. The market closed at about the top price, but a good deal is for sale on the advance and the center action is enough to start the short selling again. Some good buying was noted during the day by parties who are feeling for the bottom and want to be prepared.

Corn and oats shared in the early weakness with free selling for country account but rallied firmer on active buying by local shorts.

Provisions firm and freely bought by local operators, but the advance was met by free selling by the early buyers.

Calls, July wheat, 57-¼c.

THE LOGICAL CANDIDATE.

"Resolved, that we endorse the candidacy of W. E. Lee, of St. Cloud, as the logical representative of the voters of the Sixth district for governor."

This is one of the declarations made in the platform adopted by the C. A. Towne Republican club, which was organizzed in this city last evening. It states in a very few words one of the chief reasons why the Republicans of St. Louis county should send a Lee delegation to the state convention. Mr. Lee is the Sixth district candidate, and as such deserves and should receive the support of this county, especially when even his bitterest opponents are forced to admit that he is able and honest and in every way well qualified to fill the important position of governor of this great commonwealth. Moreover, it is of great political importance to St. Louis county to work in harmony with the rest of the district. We desire to renominate Mr. Towne for congress, and to keep a Duluth man in that body. It is only by the sufferance of the rest of the district that this is possible. No one should shut his eyes to this fact. By uniting, the rest of the district can defeat any Duluth man for congress. Another thing should be kept in view: The next legislature will pass a reapportionment bill. How can this legislative district secure the representation to which it is entitled unless it has the aid of the senators and representatives from the other sections of the Sixth congressional district? Can we expect that aid then, or can we consistently ask them to let us have the congressman again, if we refuse to reciprocate by supporting their candidate for governor, Mr. Lee?

These facts show conclusively that Mr. Lee is the candidate who should receive the vote of St. Louis county Republicans. The C. A. Towne Republican club has stated a self-evident truth.

AN INTERESTING CASE.

A case of much interest to the municipal fraternity in Minnesota is to be tried at the June term of court in Pike county. W. E. McKenzie, proprietor of the Crookston Times, has sued the Great Northern railroad for $1400 for advertising during the past two years. The story, as told by Mr. McKenzie, is that previous to two years ago, General Passenger Agent Whitney refused to do any business with the Times unless it would agree to refrain from telling any disagreeable truths about the road. This the newspaper man declined to do. However, at the expiration of two or three months, the local agent of the company complained that he was not permitted to advertise in the Times as the opposition road, the Northern Pacific, was doing.

After some correspondence, in which the editor of the Times positively refused to recede form the position he had taken—not to allow the Great Northern to have any voice in the editorial policy of the paper—Mr. Whitney reconsidered his decision, and wrote the local agent to have their advertising run, and to honor requests for transportation. There was no contract further than this between the parties. In January, 1895, the company wrote for rates on local notices, display advertising, and for running their time table. In due time a contract was sent, which comprehended only the publishing of the time card, for which there was to be paid $150 a year in transportation. But, besides running the time card, the company used about $700 worth of reading notices and display advertising.

The outcome of the trial will be watched with interest. It would appear that the Cro[illegible] editor is justly entitled to be [illegible] for the advertising which he performed for the railroad. The Great Northern is always trying to get its advertising done for almost nothing, and if Mr. McKenzie can succeed in forcing it to pay its advertising bills he will be entitled to hearty congratulations from most of the newspapers which have transacted business with that road.

THE WATER BOND ISSUE.

The common council last night finally passed the ordinance providing for the issue of 5 per cent bonds to the amount of $1,106,000, to be used in the construction of the new water plant, $200,000 to be delivered on Aug. 1, $100,000 on Sept. 1 and the remainder at later dates. If a sale of this issue of bonds can be effected, the construction of the new plant can be proceeded with as rapidly as the work can be done. Any financial difficulties that now exist will be removed, and the council will be in a position to carry out the wishes of the people, as expressed at the polls last fall.

It is highly important that the construction of the new plant should not be longer delayed, and if it be true that investors are ready to take these bonds on terms favorable to the city, without waiting for the determination of their legality by the courts, the people will be rejoiced. The reputation of the city has been seriously injured by the typhoid epidemics which were ascribed to the impure state of the water supply. So long as the intake remains at its present location, it will be impossible to convince outsiders that the supply is pure and healthy, even if we should be thoroughly satisfied ourselves upon this point.

The aldermen, by their action last night, show that they are thoroughly in earnest in their endeavors to secure funds to build the new intake and pumping station and begin the construction of the new plant, and for this action they are entitled to full credit. It now remains to be seen whether the assurances that these bonds can be placed were based upon a solid basis. With these bonds disposed of, no further serious delay need be anticipated.

MR. TOWNE'S POSITION.

The gold standard advocates are still making great efforts to induce Congressman Towne to declare his position in regard to the platform that will be adopted at St. Louis, but so far Mr. Towne has very wisely declined to commit himself. He will not say now whether he will favor the platform or not, because he does not know what the platform will be. Nor does any one else know at present. All that has been said on this subject is mere speculation.

A Washington correspondent yesterday tried to get Mr. Towne to define his position. The matter was put squarely to him, and he is reported to have replied as follows: "Abe Lincoln formulated an excellent philosophy when he advised against crossing a stream before coming to it, and I will not anticipate. I have heretofore said, and now repeat, that nobody can authoritatively speak for the Republican party but its national convention. I shall recognize its pronouncement as a definite statement of the party's position. Whether I agree with it, I cannot tell till I know what it is. I decline to assume that the grand old party intends to desert any essential tenet of its established faith or predicate any suppositious action of my own on a presumption of such intention. I have never hesitated to face an emergency, but I don't care to cultivate a reputation for going to meet one."

The Crookston Tribune says: "W. R. Merriam, the dictator of Republican politics in Minnesota, wants to secure a cabinet position or go to the United States senate. He is working state politics with both places in view, and if he fails in the first, he will then fall back on the latter. If McKinley is nominated and elected, it is understood that Mr. Merriam will secure a cabinet position—probably secretary of the interior. If he fails in this, then he will make a strong pull for the senate, and the first move will be the nomination of D. M. Clough for governor." No St. Louis county Republican should aid him to obtain either place, and a vote against Clough is a vote against Merriam.

Senator Pugh, of Alabama, predicts that Vice President Stevenson will be nominated by the Democrats at Chicago upon a free silver platform. "He is not an avowed candidate," said Mr. Pugh, "and he has not declared himself upon the currency question, but he would, nevertheless, accept the nomination, and I know that he favors free coinage. He is a man of practical common sense, and if elected would consult with members of congress about matters of policy and patronage. His cabinet would be made up of our ablest men and he could be relied on at all times."

Referring to The Herald's protest against W. R. Merriam being made a member of McKinley's prospective cabinet, the Madison, Minn., Independent-Press says: "There can be no doubt in the mind of any man at all familiar with the political history of the state for the past ten years that the statements of The Herald are true, and if they go unheeded the Republican party of the state may not be surprised at meeting with reverses even in this year of apparent Republican successes on every hand."

The News Tribune says that its information of a meeting between Mr. Lee and ex-Governor Washburn was furnished by an eye-witness, and that it was not wired from Minneapolis. It said in Monday's issue that the meeting occured "yesterday afternoon," meaning Sunday. As the only train which left Minneapolis between Sunday afternoon and the time the News Tribune appeared did not reach here until Monday morning, how did the information reach here except by wire? The News Tribune appears to be mixed on its "facts."

A Washington dispatch says it has been discovered that the protocol negotiated by Caleb Cushing with the government of Spain in 1878, which guarantees trial by the ordinary courts of justice for all American citizens residing on Cuban territory was never ratified by the senate of the United States, and is therefore invalid. It was this treaty which Secretary Olney invoked to protect the persons recently arrested upon the Competitor, and now he can only depend upon the generosity of the government of Spain.

The Citizen is the latest addition to the weekly papers published in Duluth, the publisher being John L. Morrison, who has been connected with the daily press for several years and who has made numerous friends who wish his new venture success. The first number is highly interesting and there is no doubt that succeeding numbers will be equally worthy of attention.

The News Tribune need not worry about any "rebukes" that The Herald receives from outside papers for its political views. Its course receives much more commendation than it does rebuke, and so long as it is fighting for the right it expects to be criticized by those who are against the right.

The Hinckley Enterprise very pertinently asks: "Why shouldn't there be a good deal of blowing for Clough throughout the state, considering the fact that every state official appointed by the governor is a Clough man, working for the machine interests?"

The Clough manager's scheme of a "bunched" convention was knocked out by the county committee. It was a victory for the Lee men, who desired separate conventions.

The colored Republican club, formed last night, very wisely declared for Towne for congress and Lee for governor. It is a winning combination.

No public man was ever more completely repudiated by his own state than was Senator Carlisle on Saturday last. It ends his presidential boom.

Clough is losing ground every day. At the present rate of his progress, he will not have a corporal's guard with him on July 1.

Senator Quay admits that McKinley will be nominated on the first ballot. His admission will not be comforting to Boss Platt.

Towne for congress and Lee for governor would sweep the Sixth district like a whirlwind.

The machine has been struck one blow and it will get a knock-out on June 25.

CLOUGH KEEPS LOSING.

Hubbard County Enterprise: We don't hear so much lately about the way Clough is sweeping the field. Some way that plan didn't work. A few made a lot of noise about it, but the friends of the other candidates sawed wood and saved their wind, and Clough kept losing just the same. Present appearances indicate that Lee has nearly all of the Sixth congressional district, and stands a fair chance in the rest of the state.

CLOUGH'S WANING HOPES.

Stillwater Gazette: People who delude themselves with the idea that Clough will win the nomination for governor in a walk, had better commence pushing that delusion one side. Men who are well informed on the subject are well convinced that Clough's chances for the nomination are disappearing very rapidly and many of the avowed Clough men admit that his chances are not near as bright now as they were a couple of months since.

NO CLOUGH SENTIMENT.

Windom, Cottonwood county, Reporter: The past week Mr. Clough has been writing letters to prominent Republicans begging for their support, yet not one of them has openly announced his friendship for Clough. In spite of this, Clough is reported to have long since had the promise of our delegation. Evidently there is no Clough sentiment in the county, and if the county is pronged to him there will be an effort to send delegates to St. Paul secretly pledged to him, but quiescent at home.

ASK FOR DISMISSAL.

Pittsburg, June 2.—A motion was made in the United States court to have the cases against the Pennsylvania and other railways charged by the interstate commerce commission with discriminating in rates on oil shipped to New York and Boston dismissed. The companies are all said to have disobeyed the interstate commerce law and discriminated in favor of the Standard Oil company. Judge Acheson took the papers and will make a decision in a few days. When the suits were entered the court ruled that the defendants should make a return July 1.

TIRED SALESWOMEN.

EMPLOYERS SHOULD BE MORE CONSIDERATE.

Interesting Statement by a Young Lady in Brooklyn.

In the vast retail establishments of large cities, many women are employed as saleswomen.

Men formerly held the positions that women now hold, and while women's organism is less strong than men's they are expected to do the same work. Their duties compel them to be on their feet from morning to night, and many of them, in a short time, contract these distressing complaints called "female diseases."

Then occur irregularities, suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness, indigestion, leucorrhœa, general debility and nervous prostration.

They are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all-gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, blues and hopelessness.

In such cases there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles. The following is a sample:

"My dear Mrs. Pinkham:—After writing you, and before your answer came, I was too miserable to go to the store, and so lost my position. That was five weeks ago. I am now back again in my old place, and never felt so well in all my life. The bearing-down pains and whites have left me, and I am not a bit nervous or blue. Life looks brighter to me. I don't get tired, my temper is real sweet, and I could scream right out sometimes for joy. Your Vegetable Compound is my standby. You don't know how thankful I am to you for saving me from suffering. Every woman in my position should know of your wonderful remedy. I never saw you, but I love you for being so good to me."—EDITH——W. 6th Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE.—Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by James L. Dow and Mary B. Dow, his wife, mortgagors, to William E. Lucas, mortgagee, dated October first (1st), 1892, and duly recorded in the register of deeds' office for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on October twenty-seventh (27th), 1892, at eleven o'clock and forty minutes (11:40) a. m., in Book one hundred two (102) of mortgages, on pages one hundred seventy-eight (178), one hundred seventy-nine (179) and one hundred eighty (180) thereof, which mortgage, with the debt thereby secured was thereafter duly assigned by said William E. Lucas to Mason Gallagher, by an instrument of assignment dated November fourth (4th), 1892, and duly recorded in said register of deeds' office for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on November fourth (4th), 1892, at 1:40 o'clock p. m., in Book eighty-three (83) of assignment of mortgages, on page two hundred seventy (270); such default consisting in the non-payment of the two semi-annual installments of interest upon the debt secured by said mortgage, which became due respectively on July first (1st), 1895, and January first (1st), 1896, each amounting to the sum of fifty-two and 50-100 dollars, no part of either of which has ever been paid, and also consisting in the non-payment of taxes duly levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, which had become delinquent, and were thereafter paid by said assignee of said mortgage, in accordance with the provisions thereof, amounting to the further sum of forty-four and 27-100 ($44.27) dollars; by reason of which defaults said assignee of said mortgage has, after said defaults, and on the 19th day of May, had continued for more than ten days, elected to exercise the option to him given by the terms of said mortgage, by declaring, and he does hereby declare, the whole principal sum secured by said note and mortgage, with all accrued interest thereon, exchange, and said sum so paid for taxes, to be now due and payable.

And whereas there is therefore claimed to be due, and there is actually due, upon said mortgage debt, at the date of this notice, the sum of one thousand six hundred ninety-two and 22-100 ($1692.22) dollars, principal, interest, exchange and taxes paid.

And whereas said mortgage contains a power of sale in due form, which has become operative by reason of the defaults above mentioned, and no action or proceeding, at law or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described therein, situate in St. Louis County, Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit: All of lot numbered eight (8), in block numbered seventy-two (72), Portland Division of Duluth, according to the recorded plat thereof, in the office of the register of deeds for St. Louis County, Minnesota; which premises will be sold by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the eighteenth (18th) day of June, A. D. 1896, at ten (10) o'clock a. m., at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt, interest and taxes paid by said assignee, and seventy-five dollars attorney's fee stipulated for in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

NEW TACK TAKEN.

City Attorney Wants to Dissolve the Water Company.

City Attorney Benham was in St. Paul yesterday and took the first steps toward beginning quo warranto proceedings against the Duluth Gas and Water company, apearing before Attorney General Childs and requesting that the company's franchise be revoked and a receiver appointed to wind up its affairs. The company will be cited to appear before the attorney general the later part of the week and show cause why quo warranto proceedings should not be instituted.

The allegations made on behalf of the city are that the impure water furnished by the company caused the typhoid epidemic of last winter and that the company was directly responsible for it. The company is accused of having known the character of the water it was furnishing, but continued to pump it up and refused to remedy the defects. This allegation is made:

"That large quantities of surface water containing apple parings and other kitchen refuse, night soil, dead muskrats, dead cats, cinders, large quantities of toilet paper, and large quantities of dead fish, worms and other animals and vegetable substance in all stages of putrefaction and decay, have entered the said intake pipe and have been pumped into the mains of the respondent company and taken from the service pipes and hydrants by said city and the inhabitants thereof, who were consumers of said water."

The situation of the pumping house and intake is described and it is claimed that sewage from the surrounding country has been carried direct to the pumping station and that the company, although knowing this, never screened the entrance of its pipe nor took any means to prevent the filth from getting into the water. Arrangements have been made to have a referee appointed to take testimony this summer and have the supreme court pass on the case at the October term.

A GREAT REMEDY.

For Sufferers From Piles.

Dr. Redmond, a specialist in the study and treatment of piles and rectal diseases, recently stated that the Pyramid Pile Cure, the new discovery for the cure of piles, was the most remarkable remedy he had ever seen or tried in one respect; and that was, the instant relief experienced in all cases, no matter how severe, from the moment the remedy was applied. This was the more surprising to him because he had carefully analyzed the preparation and no trace of opium, cocaine or similar poison could be detected.

Physicians look with great favor upon the Pyramid Pile Cure, because it is rapidly taking the place of surgical operations and because it is so simple, so easily applied and contains no mineral or other poisons so commonly used in pile cures.

Dr. Esterbrook reports that the Pyramid Pile Cure not only cures the various forms of piles, but never fails to give immediate relief on the first application, no matter how severe the pain or discomfo t may be.

People who have suffered from piles for years are often astonished at the instant relief experienced from the first application. Another important advantage is the fact that anyone can use the remedy without detention from business or interference with daily occupation. Sold by druggists at 50 cents per package.

AN UNPARALLELED SUCCESS

Marvelous Growth of Ringling Bros.' Big Show.

The success of the five Ringling brothers, whose world's greatest shows exhibit in this city next Monday, June 8, forms one of the most remarkable pages in the history of amusements in America. In fact there is nothing, the wide world over, that can compare with it. Some idea of its remarkable development may be gained from the fact that within a dozen years this show has grown from a little overland circus, the entire value of which was less than a thousand dollars, to the largest aerial enterprise the world has ever seen. It is evident that a success like this could not have been the result of chance, nor has it been. The Ringling brothers have won their way to their present eminence by qualities which would have gained success in any sphere of life. Each of the quintet has been endowed by nature with characteristics which, in combination, have given them a superiority over all competitors, and ensured them success where less gifted men would inevitably have failed.

There is no doubt that the personal characteristics of these five famous brothers have been the leading factor in their success as showmen. It is really remarkable to what an extent each is adapted to fill the peculiar place in the management which falls to his lot. It is this fact which has made Al Ringling, the oldest of the quintet, the greatest equestrian director in the world, and thus insured to the patrons of Ringling Bros.' circus a better performance than can be seen with any other show. And so it is with Otto, the financier of the show; Charles, the general advertising agent; Alf T., the general press representative, and John, to whose judgment falls the delicate task of successfully managing the show. Each one of the quintet brings to his individual sphere of action qualifications which make success a foregone conclusion.

Apart from the personal characteristics of the Ringling Brothers, the success which has brought their show to the front so rapidly during the past few years, has resulted in a large measure from a clearly-defined policy, which, in its way, has been entirely unique with this organization. This policy embraces several cardinal features, each of which is highly commendable. One of these features is a strict adherence to the truth in advertising. Wherever Ringling brothers' shows exhibit it has become a recognized fact that whatever is shown upon the bill boards will be exhibited in the rings, and this has given the public a confidence in the show which no other circus enjoys. Another feature is a clearly defined purpose of making each season's show superior to that of the previous year. So notably has this been the case that within the past five years the show has been doubled in size four times. Such a phenomenal growth as this was never known before.

TOWNE AND LEE CLUB.

Colored Men Organized One Last Evening.

About seventy-five colored citizens of this city met last night in the club rooms at 25 Fifth avenue west and organized the C. A. Towne Colored Republican club, devoted to Republicanism, Towne and Lee. C. W. Dorsey called the meeting to order, announcing that the object thereof was to organize a club of Republican colored voters, and he proposed the club should bear the name of C. A. Towne, because there was not a colored Republican voter who did not admire that gentleman. No objection was offered, and Mr. Dorsey was elected chairman of the temporary organization, and Robert Newsome, secretary.

When John Duncan moved to make the temporary organization permanent, A. J. Plummer and Mr. Brodie opposed it, and Mr. Plummer moved to table the motion. After a speech by Mr. Duncan, in support of his motion, the opposition was withdrawn, and officers were elected as follows: C. W. Dorsey, president; John Duncan, vice president; L. McDonald, treasurer; Robert Newsome, secretary. A. J. Plumaer, George Wales and W. T. Leebs were made a committee on resolutions, and while they were out Rev. Thornton, of Chicago, made some encouraging remarks, and patted McKinley's back approvingly.

The committee on resolutions returned presently with the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

"Resolved, that we endorse the past record of our able representative in congress as courageous and at all times acting both in the interests of his constituents and the Republican party.

"Resolved, that we will use every legitimate means to secure his renomination and election.

"Resolved, that we endorse the candidacy of W. E. Lee, of St. Cloud, as the logical representative of the voters of the Sixth district for governor.

"Resolved, that the secretary's report was received and referred, and the report of the board of public works on waterworks expenditures was ordered placed on file.

On motion of Alderman Trevillion, the Republican club was given the use of the council chamber on Wednesday evening.

The city pay rolls were approved and ordered paid as follows: City officers, $1981.01; health department, $934.33; board of public works, $351.68; engineers and inspectors, $1136.53; maintenance of streets, $3824.01; water and light, $2332.69; city assessor's department, $1237.50; poundmasters, $200; police department, $4181.60; fire department, $6567.69.

Hole in the Street.

On the lower side of West Superior street, about half way between Second and Third avenues there is a hole in the pavement. An attempt has been made to fill it with sand, but it is still there nevertheless and has caused more than one driver and bicycle rider to use a cuss word or two directed at this great municipality. The hole has been there since last fall or this winter. Besides being injurious to vehicles it presents a very unsightly appearance. This is respectfully referred to the board of public works, street commissioner or anyone whom it may hit.

THERE ARE MORE WAYS OF SKINNING AN EEL

Than one. This, of course, is no news to veteran fishermen who clean their own fish. But there is always a best way in everything. The best way to overcome or prevent malaria, to conquer incipient rheumatism or kidney trouble, and to relieve dyspepsia, biliousness, constipation and nervousness, is to begin without delay, the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a standard medicine endorsed by medical men everywhere. It strengthens the system and improves the appetite and sleep of those who employ it as a restorative, and accomplishes health-giving results which fairly astonish those previously unacquainted with its efficacy. Invalids of all sorts testify in its behalf. It is the leading tonic of this era.

Ordinance Authorizing Issuance of $1,106,000 Water Bonds Was Passed.

Some Changes Made in the Time When Payments Are Due.

Retail Liquor Dealers Make A Complaint Against Blind Pigs.

The council last evening passed the water bond ordinance, providing for the issue of $1,106,000 of 30-year 5 per cent bonds. Two amendments were suggested by the ordinance and judiciary committee and adopted. The first and most important gives bidders the alternative of depositing a bond in the sum of $10,000 in lieu of a certified check for that amount, the amount of the bond to be considered as liquidated damages in event of default. The other amendment is of section 4 of the ordinance, and it provides for the delivery of $100,000 worth of bonds on Sept. 1, 1897, and $106,000 instead of $206,000 on July 1, 1897.

An ordinance was also passed amending the ordinance relating to excavations in public highways so far as the same relates to danger signals. Under the ordinance as amended there is required one red light for an excavation of ten feet or less in length, and an additional light for every additional fifty feet or fraction thereof.

Although the agricultural resources of this section are as yet undeveloped, the fact that certain people in Duluth keep pigs was made the text of a complaint to the council. This species of porker is known as the "blind pig," and the "roar" is emitted by the Retail Liquor Dealers' association, the communication reciting that certain evilly disposed persons, not having the good of the commonwealth at heart, are conducing pleasure resorts and places known as "blind pigs," and also drug stores, whereby the legitimate domain of retail dealers is much infringed upon, which will prove fatal to the liquor business. The association asks that a license inspector be appointed, as in St. Paul and Minneapolis, to inquire into grievances, that the same may be redressed and the dealers protected. The matter was referred.

A communication was received from the fire commissioners asking that the Duluth Heights station be equipped with a combined chemical and hose wagon. The commissioners recommended that the apparatus now at station No. 4, at Second street and Fourteenth avenue east, be transferred to Duluth Heights, and a new machine provided for station No. 4, the total cost, including equipment of Duluth Heights station, being estimated at $1800. Referred to committee on fire department.

The board of public works sent in an estimate placing at $7754 the amount necessary to be expended to place in condition for use for street railway purposes the bridges on Grand avenue west between Seventy-second and Seventy-third avenues and between Fortieth and Seventy-second avenues. Referred to committee on bridges and viaducts.

The council received and accepted an invitation from the fire commissioners to assist in receiving the delegates to the State Firemen's association convention.

The bond of the National Bank of Commerce was approved and that bank designated as a depository of city money.

The city treasurer's report was received and referred, and the report of the board of public works on waterworks expenditures was ordered placed on file.

On motion of Alderman Trevillion, the Republican club was given the use of the council chamber on Wednesday evening.

The city pay rolls were approved and ordered paid as follows: City officers, $1981.01; health department, $934.33; board of public works, $351.68; engineers and inspectors, $1136.53; maintenance of streets, $3824.01; water and light, $2332.69; city assessor's department, $1237.50; poundmasters, $200; police department, $4181.60; fire department, $6567.69.

Do not be hoodwinked. Use no "just as good." Salvation Oil is what you want when in need of a good liniment.

Hole in the Street.

On the lower side of West Superior street, about half way between Second and Third avenues there is a hole in the pavement. An attempt has been made to fill it with sand, but it is still there nevertheless and has caused more than one driver and bicycle rider to use a cuss word or two directed at this great municipality. The hole has been there since last fall or this winter. Besides being injurious to vehicles it presents a very unsightly appearance. This is respectfully referred to the board of public works, street commissioner or anyone whom it may hit.

THERE ARE MORE WAYS OF SKINNING AN EEL

Than one. This, of course, is no news to veteran fishermen who clean their own fish. But there is always a best way in everything. The best way to overcome or prevent malaria, to conquer incipient rheumatism or kidney trouble, and to relieve dyspepsia, biliousness, constipation and nervousness, is to begin without delay, the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a standard medicine endorsed by medical men everywhere. It strengthens the system and improves the appetite and sleep of those who employ it as a restorative, and accomplishes health-giving results which fairly astonish those previously unacquainted with its efficacy. Invalids of all sorts testify in its behalf. It is the leading tonic of this era.

WAS REORGANIZED.

Meeting of the Library Board Last Evening.

The library board as it will be constituted for the coming year met last evening and reorganized. Seven members were present, as follows: Directors Giles Gilbert, R. E. Denfeld, W. H. Smallwood, W. T. Thompson, L. J. Hopkins, P. S. Anneke and R. C. Mitchell. F. W. Lonegren, one of the new members, and D. C. Prescott were absent. The board organized by the election of Giles Gilbert as president, R. E. Denfeld vice president and Miss Angie Neff secretary.

Considerable trouble has been experienced by evilly disposed persons who mutilate books, magazines and papers. It seems to be a favorite occupation with some people to cut pictures from magazines and papers, thus greatly disfiguring them, in fact making them worthless. The board decided to offer a reward of $5 for the detection of any person mutilating any of the library property, and cards to this effect will be posted.

Congressman Towne was asked some time ago by Judge Ensign to secure the designation of the Duluth public library as a repository for government documents, etc. A letter was received from him by Judge Ensign saying that it is customary for the department to limit the number to one in each district, and St. Cloud has already been named. However, he will do what he can, and will place the library on the list for government publications, so that a large number will be received.

Bills aggregating $1200 for the month of May were allowed.

The world moves, science evolutes, and is it not reasonable that a cure should be discovered for the tobacco habit? There is one—only one—No-To-Bac—and it is absolutely guaranteed. Thousands have been cured, and millions will be, if they only know how much good it will do for them. Is your condition any worse than Dr. Robey's? He was cured long ago, and writes under late date as follows:

THIRTY POUNDS HEAVIER NOW.

Sligo, Ill., Sept. 23, 1895.

Gentlemen: I write you a note in praise of No-To-Bac which I took nearly three years ago. I had been using tobacco nearly fifty years. The habit had grown on me to such an extent that it required a pound every ten days. It so affected my nervous system that I could not sleep, had no appetite and was used up generally. On Jan. 19, 1893, I commenced the use of No-To-Bac and gained fifteen pounds the first month. No-To-Bac entirely destroyed my desire for tobacco, and I have not tasted the weed since. I am now thirty pounds heavier than when I used tobacco, and I would like to say to everyone who uses tobacco, "take No-To-Bac and be yourself again." Very respectfully yours, L. D. ROBEY, M. D.

Are you a sufferer from disease that you long to cure, and all the time using tobacco? No-To-Bac is sold by your druggist under absolute guarantee of cure. Start your new manhood today. THE DISTRICT COURT.

May Term is Rapidly Coming to an End.

The May term of district court is coming to an end very quietly. The last of the regular jury cases will soon be on trial, and there are but three struck jury cases remaining to be tried. In Judge Morris' court this morning the struck jury case of Peter Ellsworth against the Mountain Iron company was still on trial, and it had but fairly begun at noon, when the plaintiff was still on the stand undergoing cross-examination.

In Judge Ensign's court the case of Sam Brusell against Peter Larson will be given to the jury in the morning, and the next case is that of John S. Rollin against the St. Louis Lumber company, to recover for the loss of two fingers and a thumb in defendant's sawmill. The jury was drawn and sworn last week.

Judge Morris this morning gave the case of the Northern Security company against W. E. Richardson to the jury.

Court adjourned at noon until tomorrow out of respect for Judge Stearns.

The following call of court cases has been made for this week:

Wednesday—2, 3, 8, 12, 14, 22, 24, 25.
Thursday—26, 29, 30, 31, 35, 40, 41, 43.

The struck jury case of Michael Vail against the Chandler Iron company has been set for next Monday.

MEETING

Royal Court of Catholic Order of Foresters Is in Session.

Forty Delegates From All Over the Northwest in Attendance.

Are Meeting in Catholic Association Hall---Proceedings This Morning.

The annual convention of the Royal court of Catholic Order of Foresters opened there this morning. Forty delegates are in attendance. The meetings are being held at Catholic Association hall and the delegates are making the St. Louis their headquarters. The local lodges are looking after their entertainment and will give them a ride on the lake this evening. The session will continue two days.

This morning the delegates attended mass at the cathedral at 9:30 o'clock. Rev. Father Buncher celebrated solemn high mass assisted by Rev. Fathers Corbett, McKeon and Grandchamp. The sermon was preached by Father Grandchamp.

He spoke of the benefits of social union and said it satisfied a craving of the human heart. Man seeks the society of his fellowmen. He longs for association with another fellow being to whom he can speak the feelings which, if pent up within, seem to burst every fibre of his heart. He congratulated the order upon the nobility of its purpose. Its mission is sublime. It is the defender of virtue and truth. He urged upon all to be fearless in the profession of their faith, to be true to their order, to their duty and thus receive the blessing of God for themselves and their families.

The business session was opened after the church services. The committee on credentials was composed of Thomas Gelley, of Duluth; Peter Loskiel and Frank Erling, of St. Paul. They reported the following delegates present and entitled to seats:

George H. Blanchard and Frank Erling, St. Peter; Joseph Taubert, Minneapolis; Thomas Gelley, Duluth; Peter Hartogh, Wahpeton, S. D.; Andrew J. Meloe, St. Paul; Antoin Chouinard, Minneapolis; J. Hillesheim, Madelia; J. C. Koelfger, Fairfax, W. J. Lewis, Staples; C. E. Vasaly, Little Falls; M. P. Walls, Minneapolis.

The state chief ranger, M. C. Egan, of St. Paul; State Secretary G. W. Stenger, of St. Paul, and State Treasurer C. C. Belanger, of Minneapolis, were appointed to wait on Rev. T. Corbett and request him to honor the meeting with his presence, and in the absence of the bishop to address the order.

An adjournment was then taken to 2 p. m.

The state officers are: Chief ranger, M. C. Egan, of St. Paul; vice chief ranger, Edmund Peltier, of Minneapolis; secretary, G. W. Stenger, of St. Paul; treasurer, C. C. Belanger, of Minneapolis; trustees, J. D. McCormack, of Rush City; P. L. Dawson, of St. Paul; J. B. Rosenberger, of St. Cloud; J. T. Rowan, Winona; F. W. Russell, of Winnipeg.

What Mr. Benham Said.

City Attorney Benham returned this morning from St. Paul, whither he had been to attend to taking the initial step in the quo warranto proceedings against the Duluth Gas and Water company for the annulment of its franchise.

In regard to reports emanating from press correspondents in St. Paul to the effect that he had stated that it was the plan of the city to purchase the plant of the company after it had been wound up, Mr. Benham stated that in conversation with the author of the dispatch, he said the company would have to remove its pipes from the street or sell out to the city. To remove the pipes, the company would have to give heavy bonds to cover damages, and the expense would be more than the material would be worth to the company. Under these circumstances, Mr. Benham told the correspondent it was possible that the city might, under authority of the legislature, if it needed the plant, purchase it as a favorable figure, as it could do.

Peter's Sad Fate.

Peter Phelan was just full enough to be gay yesterday. He walked up to Court Officer Jensen in front of the Chamber of Commerce building and tackled him for 10 cents. He said he had enough to eat, but he wanted the money for the other purpose. Peter had already devoted several dimes to the other purpose, apparently, and Jensen thought rest was what he needed.

"Just step down to my office," remarked the officer, "and I will let you have half a dollar."

"You must be a real estate man," remarked Peter.

At the patrol box, Peter conceived some suspicions and when the wagon arrived he was bitter in his reproaches. This morning Peter made promises to leave town if he were given his liberty, but Judge Edson had the splintered fragments of several of Peter's promises on hand, and sent him to the rock pile for five days.

"I hope this will be a lesson to you," remarked the court.

"Never too late to learn, judge," responded Peter cheerily, as he waved a battered straw hat in adieu.

Found a Corpse.

A dead body stretched on the floor at police headquarters met the horrified gaze of Chief Hansen this forenoon, as he returned after a brief absence. Jailer Drannen had been called to the cage for a moment, leaving the office temporarily deserted, and during this interval the unknown had wandered in. The news rapidly spread, and those in the vicinity called to assist in identifying the body. It was stated that an individual of similar appearance had been seen at the West End, and an alderman from that locality, who happened to be at the city hall, was sent for, but he was unable to throw any light on the subject.

As the problem of identity seemed hopeless of solution, Jailor Drannen tenderly lifted the mouse by the tail and bore it to the ash pile.

Likes Day Labor.

The mayor expressed himself as being much pleased at the passage of the bond ordinance last evening, and the ensuing probability that the building of the water plant will be carried on without interruption.

The mayor regards that the results in the way of economy accomplished by carrying on the work by day labor amply justify the completion of the project on the same plan.

"There have been objections raised, most of them by contractors," said the mayor, "on the ground that political considerations would have a bearing should the work be carried on by the city. My answer is that there will be no politics in it. Ability to work will be the only test of applicants for jobs, and I intend to be on the ground every day to see that every man earns his pay."

A PRETTY WEDDING.

Schneider-Larpenteur Wedding This Morning.

The marriage of Eugene Charles Larpenteur, of Minneapolis, to Miss Mary Schneider, was solemnized at 8:30 this morning at St. Anthony's church, Rev. Father Kosmerl officiating. The church was prettily decorated with flowers and there was a very select party of invited guests present.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Larpenteur and the members of the families of the contracting parties sat down to a wedding breakfast at the residence of the bride's parents, 410 First avenue west.

The bride was handsomely gowned in a pearl grey dehut-traveling costume and carried white roses while the groom had on the conventional attire. The maid of honor was Miss Emily Cecil Schneider, sister of the bride, and Gustav Zenzius, of St. Paul, was best man. Among the visitors from Minneapolis were C. M. Larpenteur and wife, Miss Margie Larpenteur, and Miss Emma Larpenteur, the father, mother and sisters of the groom, and Wilson Schneider, brother of the bride arrived in the city in time to witness the ceremony.

The bridal couple left on the Eastern road for St. Paul, where they will take the Burlington route to Chicago and thence extend their tour to the Eastern cities, returning to Minneapolis about the end of the month. They will be at home at 1811 Portland avenue, Minneapolis, after July 1.

Seventeen Alarms in May.

The fire commissioners held their regular monthly meeting yesterday afternoon at the city hall. The chief's report for May shows that during the month the department responded to seventeen alarms. The value of property destroyed was $2855, the total insurance on which was $317,050. During the month the tug Lyon was fitted with 3½-inch hose pipe and twenty feet of hose, with a 2¾-inch nozzle. With this addition there are now available two large streams in case of fire on the water front. It was resolved to invite the mayor and council to assist in receiving delegates to the state firemen's convention.

SALVATION SCRAP.

Stillwell's Resignation Had a String to It.

Minneapolis, June 2.—Commander Booth-Tucker has succeeded in checking an important defection in the Salvation Army in the Northwest. He has persuaded Maj. Stillwell, commanding the Northwestern division, to withdraw his resignation and retain his command. The presence here of Capt. Winchell, of the training school at Chicago, under orders from Booth-Tucker, caused Maj. Stillwell to feel that he was not trusted and he therefore resigned and announced that he would ask for a commission in the Volunteers. Capt. Winchell has succeeded in convincing the major that he is held in high esteem at headquarters and the resignation has been withdrawn.

Senate Decisively Affirms the River and Harbor Bill Today.

Senator Vest Roasts the President in a Speech This Morning.

Sustaining His Veto of River and Harbor Bill.

Washington, June 3.—The senate has passed the river and harbor bill over the president's veto, by a vote of 56 to 5, and the measure is now a law. Those voting in the negative were Senators Rate, Chilton, Hill, Smith and Vilas, all Democrats.

VEST SCORES CLEVELAND.

Washington, June 3.—A contest for the right of way arose as soon as the senate met today. Mr. Vest who, in the absence of Mr. Frye, is in charge of the river and harbor bill, sought to have the president's veto of that measure taken up. This was opposed by Mr. Pettigrew, in charge of the Indian appropriation bill conference report. Mr. Vest urged that the suspension and possible destruction of the work of improvement of internal waterways was of more moment than any other one subject, save that of the national honor. It was imperative that the question be settled now, so that if the veto was sustained it could be determined whether any other river and harbor bill was to be framed. The bill and veto were taken up—yeas 38, nays 10. The negative vote was cast by Democrats.—Bate, Chilton, Harris, Palmer, Vilas, 5. Republicans—Brown, Morrill, Pettigrew, Pritchard, Teller, 5. Total, 10. The veto message was then read.

Mr. Vest said the veto contained statements which, however much he might respect the high office of president, ought not to go unchallenged. The senator did not question the president's veto prerogative, but the constitution never had intended that this power should be exercised in the ordinary affairs of the government. It was to be a power to meet extraordinary emergencies, when popular passion had led to hasty legislation, or when a constitutional question was involved. The early presidents who stood nearest to the constitution, exercised the veto power but seven times; twice by Washington, five times by Madison and never by Jefferson or John Adams.

Mr. Vest then analyzed the statements of the veto concerning extravagance. The president had, he said, stated that the bill made direct appropriations of about $14,000,000, while in fact they aggregated $12,608,900, a difference of $1,391,100. This was hardly characteristic of the exactness of the emanations of Mr. Cleveland, who never had served in a legislative body and seemed to have a tendency to minimize the responsibility of a legislator to his constituents. Mr. Vest took up other items, showing that the totals were less than the president's statements would indicate. The senator says as to the general charge of extravagance, that in view of the vast interest involved, the extent of the country, and the fact that the river and harbor bill covered two years, this measure was comparatively reasonable.

Mr. Vest said he had addressed a letter to Gen. Craighill, chief of engineers, asking for the facts as to that statement of the president that he had learned from official sources that the bill contained appropriations intended to serve private interests. The senator says Gen. Craighill made no reply, but, in response to a telegraphic query, answered that the letter had been referred to the secretary of war for instructions." Up to date no information had been given. "So for that reason, best known to the administration," said Mr. Vest bitterly, "it is considered best not to go into details on these charges, but to indulge in general and rhetorical declamation as to the alleged extravagance and favoritism contained in it."

Mr. Vest said he believed one of the president's charges applied to the Brunswick, Ga., harbor, one of the best and most economical improvements in the country. The senator spoke of the cheaper rates of transportation resulting from improvements at the Soo, New Orleans, Baltimore, New York, Boston and elsewhere. In the platform on which Mr. Cleveland was first nominated was a strong plank for waterway improvements, and his early messages endorsed these improvements. Mr. Vest prophesied that in the near future legislation would be directed to further developing internal commerce and cheapening transportation.

BOND BILL IN THE HOUSE.

Washington, June 3.—The bill prohibiting the issue of bonds, which passed the senate yesterday, was considered by the house ways and means committee today. Representative Wheeler moved to report the bill favorably, but no action was taken at the time the committee adjourned. The sentiment of the committee seemed to favor making an adverse report.

EX-EMPRESS EUGENIE.

French Monarchists Asked to Meet at Brussels.

Paris, June 3.—A dispatch from Brussels to the Eclair says that a confidential notice has been addressed to the Belgian government announcing that ex-Empress Eugenie has summoned a meeting of French monarchists to take place in Brussels during the coming month of August.

SPANISH CABINET SOLID.

Madrid, June 3.—The reports of a cabinet crisis here seem to be devoid of foundation.

KENTUCKY BOURBONS.

State Convention Assembles With Silver in Control.

Lexington, Ky., June 3.—It was raining during the afternoon as the delegates assembled in Woodland Park, where the music was continuous and the decorations were elaborate. It was after 2 o'clock when Chairman Long rapped for order at the Auditorium, where prayer was offered by Dr. Bartlett, of the First Presbyterian church. Hon. Charles R. Long, chairman of the state Democratic central and executive committees, selected last year when the gold standard men controlled the organization of the state convention and committees in calling the convention to order gave an interesting history of the Hardin-Bradley campaign, and contest for control of the legislature, concluding as follows:

"While I, with other Democrats, differ with you greatly on the money issue, and regret it as the issue of supreme importance to our country, I, as a Democrat, submit the issues and results to the party. The issue will be met by the Democratic party in our national convention, where your position and views may prevail and be approved, but my candid judgment is that you will be most grievously disappointed. We hope that the action of the party here and in Chicago may be tempered with wisdom and sound judgment for the best interests of the party and for our country, and we shall await the result, after which the people will pass judgment at the November election, 1896, and render their verdict accordingly.

"Before I conclude, I beg your kind indulgence to state that Grover Cleveland stands today as the equal in devotion to the best interests of our government in faithful service of any president that has preceeded him in office, and the country is indebted to the Democratic party for his election, and I doubt not that you will give him your support. John J. Carlisle stands before the American people today as one of its purest and ablest statesmen and patriotic public servants. He today embodies the elements of political character, and official capacity, and faithfulness that would make him next Democratic president of the United States if our party could have and exercise that clearness of political foresight that lies before us."

There were some cries of dissent during Chairman Long's address. When the speaker reached that part of his address referring to President Cleveland there was a storm of hisses and the demonstration kept up so that few of the delegates heard what Chairman Long said about Carlisle or the conclusion of his adress. Chairman Long read his speech, and stated that he did so instead of speaking extemporaneously, as has been his custom, because he wanted to be correctly understood at this crisis of affairs of the party and of the nation. There was no applause up to this time or during the reading of the speech and unusually close attention was given to the address.

There was a change of the scene to one of continuous applause when John H. Rhea, the champion of free silver presented the name of Senator Charles J. Bronston, of Lexington, for temporary chairman, and absolute silence prevailed when Bennet Young presented Judge Alexander Humphreys, of Louisville, on the part of the gold standard men for temporary chairman. Rhea made a short, brilliant presentation of Bronston's name, while Young made an exceptionally strong and lengthy speech in presenting Humphreys' name. He commanded attention till he referred to Judge Humphreys as an able representative of those great statesmen, Cleveland and Carlisle, and then he could not be heard on account of hisses and yelling. Young had the floor, attempting time after time to proceed.

Ollie James, a free silver leader, mounted a chair and begged his fellow delegates to let Young proceed, when the latter was able to conclude. Numerous seconding nominations were made amid confusion.

Chairman Long made a most caustic speech in appealing for order and insisted that there would be no call of counties until order was restored, and announced that no one would be recognized pending the call for appeals or anything else.

OHIO SILVERITES.

Will Elect Delegates to the St Louis Silver Convention.

Columbus, Ohio, June 3.—A small meeting of silver men, who propose, if necessary to act outside of the old leading parties in the coming presidential contest, are in session here. Speeches are being made by Judge Oliver, of Cincinnati, and Gen. A. J. Warner, of Marietta. The meeting will appoint Gen. Warner, Judge E. J. Bland, of Cleveland, and Benjamin Butterworth, of Cincinnati, and no doubt Henry T. Niles, of Toledo, as delegates-at-large from Ohio to the St. Louis convention to be held July 22. A committee is to be appointed to select two delegates from each of the Ohio congressional districts to attend the St. Louis convention.

In the event of the platform of the old parties being unsatisfactory, the silver convention will put up a ticket for president. If, however, one of the old party platforms is satisfactory, the silver party will not put up a ticket. Silmen men in Ohio, who are active politicians in old parties, were not at this meeting today. The meeting opened at 2 p. m. and with the speeches and consultation, the latter to be of a conversational turn, to elicit opinions upon proposed plans, will last during the afternoon.

A SUGAR PROBLEM.

The Foreign Sweets Displace American in Matamoras.

Washington, June 3.—United States Consul Gorman, at Matamoras, Mexico, reports to the state department that best sugar is shipped from France and Germany to New Orleans and sold on board the Havre and Bremen ships to merchants at Matamoras at 3⅝ cents per pound, the freight from New Orleans to Matamoras and all duties on the same bringing the price up to 4¾ cents. It is classed as cut loaf and is hard and beautifully white.

Consul Gorman says: "How this sugar can pay such long hauls and undersell the same article with a finer sugar is a question." American refined sugar, he thinks, should control this market, as United States goods do in almost every other instance.

TACOMA PAYS HER BILLS.

Tacoma, Wash., June 3.—The interest due today on $2,080,000 for the Tacoma light and water bonds, the legality of which has been called in question by certain law suits, was paid by Tacoma in New York yesterday.

WILLING TO AID ST. LOUIS.

Los Angeles, June 3.—The Manufacturers' association at a meeting last night unanimously adopted a resolution expressing sympathy for St. Louis and East St. Louis and offering to join in giving financial aid to the cyclone sufferers of the two cities.

TARIFF

Detroit's Non-Partisan Commercial Tariff Convention Ends Its Session.

Another Convention to Be Called Early in Next December.

Majority Report of Committee Favored Taking Tariff Out of Politics.

Detroit, Mich., June 3.—The National Commerce Tariff convention adjourned at 12:40 this afternoon, after having effected a provisional organization, to continue until the next convention, which it was decided to call on the first Monday in December. The affairs of the association are left meanwhile in the hands of an executive committee composed of the same delegates who formed the convention.

At today's session the committee on organization recommended that the name of the association be the National Commercial and Industrial association, and detailed plans for its management. A long discussion ensued concerning the advisability and propriety, in view of the small attendance, of forming a permanent organization. Secretary Archer, whose letters were the means of bringing the delegates together, explained the steps which had led up to the convention. He could not explain why so few delegates had appeared, since he had received credentials from so many business organizations. Afterwards an amendment to the committee's report was adopted, amending it so as to make the organization provisional instead of permanent, and that the next convention be held Dec. 1, provided a third of the members here represented sign a call therefor.

The majority report of the tariff committee was submitted. It simply declares in favor of taking the tariff question out of partisan politics, and requests the provisional committee to investigate the subject and frame a bill for the accomplishment of that purpose, and to present the same at the next convention of the association.

Charles H. Leonard, of Grand Rapids, offered a minority report in the nature of a bill for the establishment of a national tariff commission, whose members shall represent agriculture, commerce, manufacture and labor organizations, who shall ascertain the differences between the labor and material costs of products in foreign countries and in the United States, and make recommendations to congress as to schedules in proportion therewith. Mr. Leonard argued that his bill was for a compromise between free trade and protection. The other delegates, however, unanimously opposed having the present convention declare itself on any measure to be presented to congress, and the minority report was quickly voted down and the majority report adopted.

The committee on consular service recommended in general terms the placing of that service in the hands of men having knowledge of business and of international law, and their compensation to be based upon exports to the United States to their respective countries, as well as amounts of imports therefrom. The report was adopted.

The committee on department of commerce and trade recommended the establishment of such a department by the government. After continuing the president and secretary in office until the December meeting the convention adjourned sine die.

MILLERS' ASSOCIATION.

Annual Convention Held in Chicago Today.

Chicago, June 3.—The third annual convention of the Millers' National association was held at the Auditorium hotel today. Charles A. Pillsbury, of Minneapolis, presided at the morning session and reported on the business transacted by the association during the past year. President Pillsbury said the association had taken high ground on reciprocity, and much of the national legislation according reciprocal trade to other countries was due to the influence of the millers. He said the association would seek to secure better export laws from the next congress. This afternoon the officers were elected.

Among those present were: C. J. Martin, Minneapolis; W. A. Coombs, Coldwater, Mich.; J. W. Haywood, Minneapolis; B. Stein, Milwaukee; A. R. James, of Ogden; George Urban, Jr., Buffalo; H. S. Kennedy, Minneapolis; P. H. Ritchfield, St. Louis; A. Butler, West Superior; F. H. Madgeberg, Frank Burry, Milwaukee; J. B. Cole, Chester, Ill.; E. L. Bordick, Buffalo; Proctor Taylor, Quincy, Ill.; C. S. Clark, J. F. Miller, Chicago; H. W. Davis, C. E. Angle, Rochester; J. Hewitt, Waukesha.

BETTER THAN BEFORE.

Rebuilt St. Louis Will Be More Substantial.

St. Louis, June 3.—Building Commissioner R. Randall predicts that within the next two or three months, the only outward sign of Wednesday's tornado in the devastated districts will be fine substantial new buildings standing in contrast to the old dingy ones that were repaired.

He adds: "One thousand will not cover the number of houses damaged by the tornado. I calculate that at least half of that number will have to be built anew. I have seen and talked with many of the property-owners, whose houses were destroyed, and all express the determination to rebuild them on an enlarged and more substantial plan."

SMALL GOLD SHIPMENT.

New York, June 3.—L. Von Hoffman & Co. have engaged $500,000 in gold coin at the sub-treasury for shipment to Germany tomorrow.

MR. TOWNE RETURNING.

He Will Leave For Duluth Tomorrow Afternoon.

Washington, June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representative Towne has practically completed his work at this session and will leave for home tomorrow afternoon. He says that if the Butler bond resolution is reported from the ways and means committee and is brought up tomorrow he will vote for it, but he will first endeavor to have an amendment adopted authorizing the president to order the issue of exchequer certificates or short time bonds anticipating the estimated revenues. This provision is similar to the authority vested in the English chancellor of the exchequer. He denounced the assumption by the president of authority to issue bonds under the acts of 1875 and 1878, and said that this power should be cut off by imperative legislative enactment.

LEE IN HAVANA.

New Consul General to Cuba Reaches His Post.

Havana, June 3.—Gen. Fitz Hugh Lee, recently appointed United States consul general here, arrived here at 5:30 this morning by the Ward liner Mascott. He was met by a gaily decorated tug upon which were Messrs. Williams and Springer, Dr. Burgess and Senor Sealdo, representing the captain general. The party boarded the Mascott and extended a cordial welcome to Gen Lee and Gen. Bradly Tyler Johnson. A number of other Americans welcomed him on the wharf. Gen. Lee was received most respectfully. There were no demonstrations, and he entered a handsome carriage and was driven to the Hotel Inglaterra, where Mr. Williams had previously secured a fine suite of rooms for his successor.

Gen. Lee partook of coffee and retired for a short rest, as he was tired by the rough passage from Key West. Gen. Lee has already made a favorable impression by his quiet and pleasant manner.

TELEGRAPH FACILITIES.

They Will Be Ample at St. Louis Convention.

Chicago, June 3.—In view of the statements today to the effect that there was danger that the telegraphic facilities at St. Louis during the national convention might be inadequate, Col. Clowry, vice president and general manager, of the Western Union company, was asked concerning the facts. "There need be no fear," said he; "we shall be as well off as if the tornado had never occurred. The truth is, the Western Union has today as many wires into and out of St. Louis as before the storm.

"There has been more or less misstatement in the press on this subject, all doubtless unintentional, yet sometimes amusing. On the night of the storm we were never for a moment without communication with St. Louis. Of course we lost some wires, and of course we could not handle all the business offered, but by using the Wheatstone we did transmit matter continuously, and the volume was nearly up to the normal point."

A FENIAN FIND.

Munitions of War Hidden Away in Dublin.

Dublin, June 3.—The police here have made an extraordinary discovery of military rifles, bayonets and ammunition. This war material was found yesterday in a house in Lower Tyrone street. But all the articles are out of date and appear to have been hidden there for a considerable time.

OREGON POPULISTS.

Appear to Have Elected Both Congressmen.

Portland, Ore., June 3.—Returns received this morning indicate that the Populists have elected both congressmen from this state. The Republicans control the legislature. In the first congressional district returns from thirteen counties give Tongue, Republican, 14,233; Vanderburg, Populist, 15,048. In the second district ten counties give 12113, Republican, 7033; Quinn, Populist, 7287.

The legislature stands: Senate, Republicans 25; Democrats 13; Populist 3. House, Republican 13; Populist 9; Democrats 5; Bimetallic 3; doubtful 10.

ARTHUR RE-ELECTED.

Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Chooses Him Again.

Ottawa, Ont., June 3.—P. M. Arthur was re-elected chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers by a vote of 326 to 86 for Haberstick, of Wisconsin.

GENEROUS BREWERS.

Give $50,000 to St. Louis Cyclone Sufferers.

Philadelphia, June 3.—The National Brewers' association, at their meeting in this city today, voted to contribute $50,000 toward the St. Louis storm sufferers.

FATAL ELEVATOR FALL.

Baltimore, June 3.—Thirteen people were more or less seriously injured, two probably fatally, by the fall of an elevator in the building occupied by the Friedenwald Printing company in this city today. Those who will probably die are: Mary Jackson, whose back and both legs were broken, and Thomas Knapp, internally hurt. All of the injured were employes of the Friedenwald company. The elevator fell from the fourth floor to the basement.

DERBY

Epsom Downs' Big Race Was Captured By Persimmon This Afternoon.

St. Frusquin Was Second and Earwig Was the Third.

An American Horse Won in a Minor Event Amid Enthusiasm.

Epsom, Eng., June 3.—This was the second day of the Epsom summer meeting and Derby day. The weather was hot and oppressive, although there were some showers during the morning. But rain has not affected the course to an appreciable degree, and it is pronounced to be the hardest on record. There was the customary procession by road and the familiar gathering of non-descriptive vehicles and of people, sights so frequently described as to need but brief mention, but like last year the majority of the people present came here by train, specials leaving Victoria and Waterloo railroad stations every few minutes for this place.

On the Downs, from daybreak, the crowds assembled and the always joyous scenes were enacted. But the holiday element proper was largely eliminated, as the round-abouts, shooting galleries, etc., were no; allowed to hold forth. Many people witnessed the early work of the prince of Wales' entry. Persimmon, as well as the preliminary gallops of the other favorites, and it is safe to say that everybody was pleased to find that the report circulated yesterday by the Pall Mall Gazette that Persimmon, the second favorite for the blue ribbon of the turf, had been injured was entirely unfounded. The prince's colt did well and looked fit to give St. Frusquin, the first favorite, a hard push for the event.

As the morning wore on the crowd promised to beat the record in point of number. The prince of Wales arrived by train from Victoria station just before the first race and was greeted with much enthusiasm. His party included the Princesses Victoria and Maude, his daughters; Prince Charles of Denmark, the duke and duchess of York, the duke and duchess of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, the duke of Cambridge, Prince Christian and Princess Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein, the duke of Westminster, the marchioness of Salisbury, the duke and duchess of Devonshire and the marquis of Londonderry.

As the prince of Wales entered his carriage at the Downs station someone shouted: "Good luck to you." The prince smilingly acknowledged the expression of good will and drove to the course amid cheers of the crowd assembled. In the opinion of the oldest racegoers there never was so little betting on the Derby as there was this year. The duke of Westminster's Regret was scratched at noon owing to the hardness of the course.

The betting at 1:30 this afternoon was 13 to 8 on St. Frusquin, 9 to 2 against Persimmon and 9 to 1 against Teufel. Among the Americans present on the course or about it were Marshall P. Wilder, James Murray, James Harris Hearn, all of New York; S. H. Kauffman, of Bath, Va.; Washington; Mr. McKinley, of Chicago; Henry Rose, of San Francisco; Mrs. M. H. Campbell and a party of friends who arrived on a private coach; Arthur Armour, of Toronto; G. S. Chamliss, of Cincinnati; Dr. M. Evans, of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hillyard, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Barrymore, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Brady and the Fuller sisters.

The Americans became enthusiastic when Mr. Wishard's Helen Nicoll, ridden by Reiff, won the Epsom town plate. The conditions were: The Epsom town plate of 102 sovereigns, for 3-year-olds and upwards; distance five furlongs; entrance fee 3 sovereigns. Helen Nicoll was first, Royal Flush second and Marble third. Eight horses ran. The betting was 100 to 8 against Helen Nicoll and Royal Flush and 2 to 1 against Marble. Helen Nicoll made the whole of the running and won by half a length; a head separated the second and third horse.

Eleven horses came to the post for the Derby stakes of 6000 sovereigns, by subscription of 50 sovereigns each, for 3-year-olds; colts to carry 126 pounds and fillies 121; the nominator of the winner to receive 500.

The horses got away at 3:22 and the prince of Wales' bay colt Persimmon, by St. Simon, out of Perdita, won. Leopold de Rothschild's St. Frusquin, brown colt, by St. Simon, out of Isabel, was second, and H. E. Beddington's colt Earwig, by Hampton, out of Wriggle, was third. The first was ridden by J. Watts, St. Frusquin by Lolles and Earwig by Abdoy. The betting at the post was 5 to 1 against Persimmon, 13 to 8 on St. Frusquin, and 33 to 1 on Earwig. The prince was greatly pleased, and it was with difficulty that the police and others were able to make way for him to meet the returning horse. The prince of Wales personally led Persimmon to the weighing room, amid the greatest excitement and loud and hearty cheering. He started racing in 1877, but was never successful until 1895, and 108 years have elapsed since any prince of Wales' horse won a derby. Curious to add, when, upon the last occasion Sir Thomas won, there were also eleven starters.

Persimmon won by a neck; two lengths separated St. Frusquin, the second horse from Earwig the third horse, and Tuefel was fourth. The time was 2:42, which is very fast, considering that the course was the hardest on record. Lord Rosebery's Sir Visto won last year over a much better course in 2:43 2-5. Of recent years, from 1867 down, Persimmon's time has only been beaten once, in 1893, when W. H. McAlmont's Isinglass carried off the blue ribbon in 2:33.

Glisten led to the top of the hill and then Bay Ronald showed in front. On entering the stretch St. Frusquin headed the string, but was challenged by Persimmon, and a most exciting finish was the result. In fact, the finish was so close as to cause much comment, and only the judge was in a position to tell accurately which horse was the winner. Many persons thought St. Frusquin had crossed the finish line first.

THOUSANDS OF WOMEN.

How Many Suffer in Silence and Miss the Happiness They Might Easily Obtain.

There are thousands of women married and unmarried, to whom life is full of sorrow and sadness. Instead of feeling light-hearted and happy, they find a dreary monotony in existence. Do you know why? It is because they suffer from cares that break down the health, and from tired, miserable feelings, that steal away youth and beauty. No wonder they feel unhappy! But there is fortunately a way for these weak, sickly women to regain lost health and strength, as can be seen by the following opinions of some ladies who speak from personal experience.

Miss Anna Maxey, of South Solon, Ohio, says: "I suffered from nervous prostration, indigestion and sleeplessness following a spell of sickness, until my life was despaired of. I took the best tonics my physician prescribed without receiving the least benefit. Finally he advised me to try a course of Duffy's pure malt whisky. I did so, and am now able to sleep well and am rapidly gaining strength."

Mrs. L. C. Miller, 524 North Twenty-third street, Philadelphia, says: "I used to suffer very much from weakness and debility, but I now use Duffy's pure malt whisky and keep up my health. By taking it, I find that my appetite is better, I sleep well and do not have that tired, weary feeling I formerly experienced. It is certainly the best thing I ever tried."

Thousands of ladies have passed through a similar experience, and have testified to the same effect. They have also found out that the best thing to take for this purpose is Duffy's pure malt whisky, because it is unequalled for its restorative powers. There is nothing like it for driving away blue, despondent feelings, and making weak, sickly people strong, healthy and well.

A BIG METEORITE.

Lieut. Peary and Prof. Dyche Both After It.

Topeka, Kas., June 3.—A local paper says: "It is possible that there is an object that does not appear on the surface, in the sudden departure of Professor L. L. Dyche, of the Kansas State university. During his northern trip last summer the professor paid a visit while in Greenland, to the largest meteorite in the world, and immediately announced his determination to possess it. Lieut. Peary, however, claimed the meteorite by right of discovery and warned the professor not to attempt to remove the

"As the meteorite weighs dozens of tons, Peary's warning was, of necessity, heeded at the time, but Professor Dyche stated distinctly that he intended within a few years to return to Greenland for the meteorite. Last week the dispatches announced that Lieut. Peary would sail from Greenland this summer to secure the meteorite.

"As soon as Professor Dyche can reach Seattle, he too will sail for the North, and it is quite possible that his destination is neither Alaska or the North Pole, but the point in Greenland where the meteorite lies. The meteorite is roughly estimated to be worth $50,000."

IMPORTANT DECISION.

Private Parties May Not Use City Streets.

Jefferson City, Mo., June 3.—The supreme court, sitting en banc holds in the case of the St. Louis Underground Service company against the street commissioner of St. Louis, that all city ordinances granting corporations the right to lay conduits and sub-ways for electric wires and other similar uses, are void. The city holds the streets in trust and cannot grant their use for private purposes. This opinion is of great importance, in view of the proposed subway system, now contemplated by St. Louis.

STATE SUPREME COURT.

Justice Canty Hands Down Several Decisions.

St. Paul, June 3.—Yesterday Justice Canty in the supreme court handed down the following decisions:

In the Colby River case the supreme court modifies the judgment of the lower court and gives an interesting rule for the guidance of counsel. "Hedvig A. Colby, respondent, vs. Christian M. Colby, appellant. Order modified."

Innocent purchasers of negotiable promissory notes are entitled to receive notice of facts that may put them on their guard. "Helen Glover, respondent, vs. Thomas F. Birmingham et al, appellants. Order affirmed.

When the owner of a piece of land is present at a meeting when a road is ordered to be laid out over his premises, he cannot set up as defense that he received no notification in writing. "Charles F. Kickenapp, appellant, vs. the supervisors of the town of Wheeling, respondents. Order affirmed.

The court hold that inquiries as to when a deed was to be delivered do not constitute a demand for such deed. The purchaser, when misled by vendor, can recover his purchase money. Charles McNamara, respondent, vs. John Pengilly, appellant. Order reversed and a new trial granted.

SILVER

It Will Loom Up In Two State Conventions This Afternoon.

Kentucky Democrats Almost Solid in Line For the White Metal.

Kansas Democrats Will Probably Give Iron Clad Silver Instructions.

Lexington, Ky., June 3.—The Democratic state convention meets here today in the large auditorium on the Chatauqua grounds. The occasion is more than the usual state convention, as there were eleven district conventions held in the forenoon to select delegates to national Democratic convention at Chicago, the silver men controlling nine out of the eleven districts, so that the Kentucky delegations, with its four free silver delegates-at-large, stands almost solid for the white metal. Senator Blackburn continues today, as yesterday, the hero of the occasion, many addressing him as the Kentucky favorite for president. When the eleven convention district meetings were held, the Blackburn men, or the free silver advocates, secured control of the committees of the convention, as well as of the state committee, but Senator Blackburn counselled for conservative action in the district convention, as well as in the state convention. The gold standard men, except in the Louisville districts, took little part in the proceedings in the district conventions, but proposed to contest in the convention this afternoon some parts of the program decided on at the silver conference last night.

A KANSAS FORECAST.

Topeka, Kas., June 3.—The Democratic state convention assembled here today to name delegates to the Chicago convention, and was very slow in getting together. At 10:30, half an hour after the time, a committeeman was scurrying around for a preacher to open with prayer. It may be late this afternoon before the delegates, six at large, two from each congressional district, are chosen. A thorough canvass among the delegates seems to indicate that a delegation will be selected with ironclad instructions for silver and against the single gold standard. The national administration may receive a mild endorsement on the Venezuela and some other measures, but is likely to get no crumb of comfort on the money question.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

The Butler bill prohibiting the president from issuing bonds without further authority of congress, passed the senate last night by a vote of 32 to 25. All proposed amendments were defeated.

Deaths from cholera yesterday in Egypt were forty; total since September 2523.

David Belasco has sued N. K. Fairbank, of Chicago, for $25,000 for preparing Mrs. Leslie Carter for the stage. Fairbank makes a counter claim of $50,000, and asks judgment for that amount.

Cincinnati race winners were White Frost, Commoner, George Rose, Le Banjo, Moylan and Fred Barr.

St. Louis race winners were Grogan Etta, Alex, Minnie W. Magnel, Braw Scott, Jane.

Andrew N. Henderson, a Chicago board of trade operator and commission merchant, shot himself yesterday on account of past heavy losses.

Ten years ago yesterday President Cleveland was married in the White House. There was no formal celebration for the wedding, Dr. Sunderland, the minister who united the pair, called and paid his congratulations to the president and Mrs. Cleveland and the members of the cabinet did likewise.

The marriage of Miss Julia Stevenson, daughter of the vice president, to Rev. M. N. Hardin, was celebrated in Washington last night. Many prominent people were present, including the president and cabinet.

The state convention of the Roman Catholic Order of Foresters met at Appleton yesterday with 100 delegates and alternates present. A banquet and entertainment was given last night, at which Bishop Messmer, of Green Bay, delivered an address.

A letter from the insurgent commander Maximo Gomez has been received at Cuban headquarters in New York. He recounts recent triumphs and says Spain is now entering on the most critical point of her Cuban troubles.

By an explosion of gas in a mine at Rochelle, France, twenty-five miners were killed.

In the case of N. P. Clarke, at St. Paul, Justice Canty of the supreme court yesterday handed down a decision holding that Mr. Clark was a manufacturer, even though his goods were made by a third party. The logs involved in this case are consequently to be taxed in Hennepin county, where they are sawed, although they are scattered along the river from Minneapolis to Brainerd. About 15,000,000 feet are involved.

The trial of Walling at Newport has been adjourned to next Tuesday morning in order to give the Kentuckians time to attend to political conventions.

Massia, the famous renegade Apache, has been killed in Southern Arizona. He killed three scouts before he received his death wound.

A special one mile match race has been arranged between Walter Sanger, Tom Cooper and Eddie Bald to take place at Manhattan beach, July 25. Zeigler and Hamilton, the Western bicycle cracks, have been asked to participate. The purse is $200.

Seven persons in a Chicago bagnio were poisoned last night by drinking poisoned wine, and it is expected four will die. Atropine was the drug used and an ex-lover of one of the inmates is suspected.

LADY SOMERSET.

Annual Address at Woman's Temperance Meeting.

London, June 2.—In her annual address at the British Woman's Temperance association Lady Henry Somerset said: "The platform we have laid down is surely broad enough for any and all. It seeks only to harmonize the home relations and the world environment of men and women. It clearly demonstrates that dominance of the mother heart mated to the master of the brain, by which the Cornelias of Christianity and the Jeanne D'Arcs of the twentieth century shall "hold their own" in equal step with sons and brothers; less they will not accept, more they will not desire.

"The first question asked will naturally be, 'What good is it expected to accomplish?' First, it will give that added sense of power that comes of numbers. A women's International Woman's Christian Temperance union, such as we are trying to develop, will in ten years have acquired by its helpful work a position that will make it the strongest organized force in the world against war. The British Medical association, most of the poor law graduates and many of our ecclesiastical bodies are unanimous in considering that compulsory legislation for the detention of inebriates is the only means of dealing with the evil.

"We hold as strongly as ever to the belief that the grace of God in the heart is the most searching and radical of all remedies. The public house, as such, must exist for a while. Let us do all we can to draw the poisoned fangs, wherever it is practical, in order to see the time when the people will see that alcohol is a destructive agent and not a constructive agent in our lives.

"I must confess that while I believe that Sunday closing in England would be of great value, I should prefer our friends to limit their efforts in the cities, at any rate, to close the public houses save for one or two hours on Sunday. I should like this exception made because I believe that otherwise we should have what would be distinctly class legislation, and so long as it is not practicable to close the club of the rich man, which is in effect his public house, I do not think that we have any right absolutely to close the public house of the working classes except by their own vote.

"You and I, my comrades, are workers in this cause, because we feel that a new standard has been raised; because we feel that the new woman will demand from a man the purity that he asks of her. We are here because we believe that in this dawning century the economic independence of woman will be a fact and not a fiction; that woman will hold in her hand the bread-earning weapon by which she will be able to maintain herself until the day comes when, not from necessity, but from choice, she links her life with that of the one whom she loves best; when we shall no more talk of whether a man can make a good provision, but rather whether two souls meet in that divine sympathy and that mutual understanding that alone makes marriage sacred.

"It is because of these considerations that we believe there shall yet pass away the figure that is the most sorrowful of all from the stony streets of shame which she now treads—the woman, by delegation seems to indicate that a delegation will be selected with ironclad instructions for silver and against the single gold standard. The national administration may receive a mild endorsement on the Venezuela and some other measures, but is likely to get no crumb of comfort on the money question.

WEST END

Contagious Diseases Are Entirely Stamped Out in West Duluth.

The Sanitary Condition of the City Is Very Good.

Odd Fellows Will Have a Memorial Service Next Tuesday.

Inspector Debow, of the helath department, reports that West Duluth is at the present time entirely free from contagious disease. The members of the Young family which have been afflicted for some time past are all well, and there is not a case of diphtheria, scarlet fever or typhoid in this portion of the city. The health department has been on the alert to stamp out the infectious germs, and there is very little sickness of any kind reported by the physicians. The sanitary condition is also well looked after, and although the lack of a sewerage system is badly felt, the streets and alleys are comparatively free from an offensive disposal of garbage.

WILL RESTORE RAIL RATES.

Chicago, June 3.—Executive officers of the Western roads met yesterday in an effort to agree upon some line of action in regard to the war in lake and rail rates that is being waged between the Michigan Car Ferry company and the Lakes Michigan and Superior Transit company. The general feeling was that the lake transportation companies will be compelled to fight the matter out between themselves, and the chief effort of the meeting today was directed toward keeping the demoralization from spreading outside the territory between Chicago and St. Paul. It was finally decided to restore the rates on June 15 to the old basis of 60 cents.

The Soo line has announced its withdrawal from the Trans-Continental Passenger association, to be effective June 26.

What a great quantity of work a "good housekeeper" finds to do! There are so many little time-and-strength-taking chores that have no names. If a woman is in good health there is no more healthful employment than housework. Generally speaking, there is no happier woman in the world. But how different when every breath is pain, every step torture! This state of health, in nine cases out of ten comes from derangements of the delicate, feminine organs of generation. The family doctor inquires first concerning these. He most usually insists upon an "examination." From this the modest woman naturally shrinks. She is right. Excepting in very unusual cases of "female weakness" examinations are unnecessary. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a simple, natural remedy for these ills. It cures safely, permanently.

THE PRODUCE MARKET.

God market, plenty of everything and prices well up kept the commission men in good humor yesterday. Frash blackberries, the first of the wholesale season, were in today and went off lively. Nice egg plants and lots of garden truck followed suit. One grade of cheese tumbled a little.

TIM BYRNES BUSY.

Lots of Applications For Convention Positions.

St. Louis, June 3.—Sergeant-at-Arms Byrnes, of the Republican national convention, has opened permanent headquarters at the Southern hotel, where he will remain continuously until after the convention. Mr. Byrnes said he would be kept busy from this time on with the selection of his assistants, and would have very little time to devote to another business. He has the appointing of 1500 men who will serve in one capacity or another during the convention, and for these places he has received probably 15,000 applications. Another big job will be the distribution of 5000 badges. Seven days hence the national committee will meet at the Southern hotel to take up the matter of the contested seats in the convention. There are 170 seats of delegates from the forty-eight states and territories that are in dispute, and the committee will have to sit as a court and hear all the evidence of both sides and determine who are the rightful delegates.

ALASKAN MAIL SERVICE.

Washington, June 3.—The entire mail service of British Columbia will be greatly expedited by the establishment, by the postoffice department, today of an exchange between the postoffice at Victoria and the Seattle and Sitka steamboat postoffice service. This action allows the British mails for the Alaska to be transferred to the seaport service at Victoria, instead of sending them, as always heretofore has been done, by a long and indirect route to Seattle. The steamboat touches at Victoria, and by the new procedure later mails arriving at Victoria can be forwarded twice a week, which formerly were only dispatched once a fortnight.

HIGHER

The Wheat Market Scored an Advance After a Lower Opening.

Cables Were Not Encouraging to the Bulls and Receipts Large.

The Reports in Regard to the Weather Were Rather Favorable.

Wheat opened slightly lower this morning. Cables were disappointing, showing no response to the rally on this side yesterday. Northwestern receipts were also large and weather conditions were generally favorable. There was some selling at Chicago of September by brokers and buying of July by outside houses but business there was dull and listless.

The Duluth market was comparatively stronger and business was fairly active, the trading being divided about equally between July and September, July opened ⅛c lower at 57c but soon advanced to 57¼c. Then it slowly declined to 56¾c, but after 11 o'clock became stronger and advanced steadily, selling up to 57⅜c at last sale being at that figure. The mills bought 350,000 bus to arrive at ¼c over July, and shippers took 50,000 bus at the July price. GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 307 Board of Trade, Chicago, June 3.—After a season of early weak markets caused by tame cables and big Northwestern receipts the wheat market began to show the effect of crop news which came as bad or worse than ever and a good deal of it. Kansas reported harvest in progress and in sections a very small yield of very low grade wheat. Michigan sent more damage reports and the Ohio state report was rumored to show as low as 40 per cent. The Orange Judd Farmer report of a 500,000,000 bus crop which helped break the market a few days ago was rehashed today as bullish on account of its showing of reduced state averages. A good deal of short wheat was covered and many early sellers of today bought at the close. The feeling at the close was firm and the trade is hopeful that the advance will continue. Some good buying was noted today for long account which was unquestionably inspired by the situation in Kansas.

Corn and oats scored an advance partly in sympathy with wheat.

Provisions met with renewed short selling but the general impression of well posted traders is that they should be bought on the declines from now on.

Puts, July wheat, 56¾@56c.

Calls, July wheat, 57⅝@58c.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Weak Market With Values Somewhat Lower.

New York, June 3.—The stock market opened weak and fractionally lower with more noteworthy concessions in the grangers and industrials. The pressure to sell incidental to the passage by the senate of the Butler bond bill, was exhausted, and a better tone became apparent, which was supplemented by almost general improvements in values. Under a moderate inquiry for both accounts Leather preferred was well supported, rising 1 per cent to 63¾, the gains otherwise being slight.

Trading was quiet and without feature in the second hour, aside from a resumption of strength and activity in silver certificates; $125,000 was dealt in at 69@69½, as against 69, last night's closing. The general list was easier in tone at noon, but quotations were generally on a parity with yesterday's sales. The sales to noon were 69,100 shares.

MR. VAN HORNE HERE.

He Paid Duluth a Flying Visit Today.

Sir William C. Van Horne, president of the Canadian Pacific railway, T. G. Shaughnessy, vice president of the same road, and Sir William's secretary, G. H. MacDonald, arrived over the St. Paul & Duluth this morning in the president's private car.

A part of the morning was spent in the Duluth & Winnipeg general offices in consultation with W. F. Fitch, who had come over from Marquette to meet the party. Their breakfast was taken at the Spalding, and immediately thereafter the pary lef for the East over the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railway, drawn by a special engine. Sir William has been in St. Paul, and it is said that his visit to this section has something to do with the sale of the Duluth & Winnipeg road.

FOURTH HOSPITAL.

Commission is Hampered By Supreme Court.

St. Paul, June 3.—Chief Justice Start, of the supreme court, this morning handed down an order denying the petition of the attorneys for the fourth hospital commission in the appeal from the order of the Ramsey county district court, dissolving the injunction argued during this term of court.

The petition was the work of Harris Richardson, the attorney of the hospital commission, who saw therein a chance of opening the way for the commission to go ahead and prepare plans for the asylum, so that they can make their report and go to work at once next winter to secure the appropriation for the building of the hospital which is badly needed.

The chief justice decided that as the calendar for this term is already overcrowded, and other cases have to be denied advancement, that this case could not be taken up. This means that the injunction against the commission will hold good until the case can be disposed of during the October term.

The Northern Pacific Steamship company's steamer Olympia, to sail from Tacoma, June 21, will connect at Hong Kong with the steamer Congello, sailing from that port about July 25 for Port Natal, East London, Delagoa Bay and Cape Town, in South Africa. Freight will be carried on this steamer and through bills of lading issued to cover. For freight and passenger rates call on R. A. Eva, general agent Northern Pacific railroad, Spalding Hotel block, Duluth.

MERRIAM'S BARREL OPEN.

The Merriam "machine" is having a hard struggle to maintain its power. The people all over the state are aroused as they never were before, and the machine is forced to make the fight of its life. All the power of the state machinery has been employed to force the politicians into line for Clough. Threats of dismissal from state offices and offers of state patronage have been freely made in order to keep the recalcitrant workers in line for the machine's candidate, and now the "barrel" has been opened and the old corrupt methods of the machine are being employed. The "barrel" is on tap in Ramsey county now where Moses E. Clapp is leading the machine a merry dance in its efforts to capture that county for Clough. Mr. Clapp is a power in Ramsey county, and the machine is finding that it has a herculean task on its hands to defeat him. The contest is really between Merriam (who in this fight hides behind Dave Clough) and Clapp. If the primaries were held today, Clapp would win. Whether his great personal popularity will be able to withstand the corrupt power of the "barrel" which the machine has tapped remains to be seen, but it is confidently believed that all the money which the Merriam machine can pour into Ramsey county cannot defeat him.

"It is practically the old fight under new forms and changed conditions," says the Minneapolis Times. "When William R. Merriam entered the arena of politics ten or twelve years ago, he introduced several new features into the politics of the state. First, he gave it the energy of business enterprise. He possesses enormous wealth and firmly believes that to conserve and perfect wealth only wealthy men—or worse, the poverty-stricken tools of the money power—should be allowed to fill all the higher positions in the state. Intelligence, character, honesty, patriotism, should be tolerated in the political band wagon, perhaps, but only the man with millions should be allowed to play leading instruments. He introduced a system of organization and constructed a political machine unparalleled for the perfection of its mechanism in the history of Minnesota. He was chosen speaker of the house, then governor for two terms, and before he retired from the office of chief executive he had his engine completed. His objective point was the senate of the United States, and every move upon the chess board of politics from 1886 to the present has had that goal in view.

"The machine never slipped a cog in the program, but on one occasion, and that was when one of the salaried agents of the machine drew back, and when the head of the procession himself grew faint-hearted through fear of a public scandal. And that scandal would have come and somebody been landed in the penitentiary if Senator Davis had lost instead of gained his seat in the United States senate by one vote in 1893. This year Clough leads the Merriam procession in Ramsey county. His headquarters are in the German-American Bank building, with Eli Warner, of St. Paul, in charge. Here the sinews of war are stored and here dispensed. Since these headquarters were opened the atmosphere of the state capitol has purified a little, but there still needs to be some ventilation before decent citizens can visit the political center of the state without offense to their nostrils."

In view of these facts, which are undeniable, can any honest, self-respecting, patriotic Republican in St. Louis county aid in the scheme to send to St. Paul a delegation favorable to Clough—the candidate and tool of the Merriam machine?

DANGER OF OVERHEAD WIRES.

It is stated that outside the damage done directly by the recent storm in St. Louis, the greatest damage was done by the falling of the overhead wires. The great poles loaded with tons and tons of metal snapped like pipe stems and came crashing down, carrying all beneath them. On one avenue fully two-thirds of the damage done was by the falling of the telegraph, telephone and electric light wires, particularly the latter. It was a striking object lesson in the danger of overhead wires. Fortunately the destruction was of such a character as to render the electric systems entirely useless, and as a result the power was shut off and the wires killed. But had any portion of the wires in the southern portion of the city been available for use there is no knowing how many people might have been killed.

Referring to this feature of the storm, the St. Louis Star said: "Any man who had to walk two or three miles out home and pick his way in the rain through the network of wires which filled the streets—as hundreds did—will appreciate the truthfulness of the statement that it was almost as much as a man's neck was worth to walk, except when the street was lighted up by the lightning's flash. Men tripped and fell headlong, buggies were overturned and lots of damage done which would have not been done had the wires been underground." Now that the wires are down as the result of the storm, and most of the poles are broken and useless, there is a strong movement in St. Louis to force the companies to put them underground. Other cities would do well to profit by the object lesson furnished by St. Louis and compel all wires to be put underground as soon as possible.

THE TROLLEY'S RIVAL.

A revolution is promised in the method of propelling street cars. It seems but a few days ago that the mules and horses which formed the motive power of the street railway systems were supplanted by the trolley, after the cable had been tried and found too expensive and otherwise unsatisfactory. Now the trolley is threatened with extinction. Electrical power on the street railways is to give way to compressed air, if the claims of the inventors and advocates of the new system hold good. For four years past the Metropolitan Traction company, of New York, which operates 130 miles of track and is about to acquire additional lines, has been unceasing in its efforts to find some motive power that would be devoid of the objections that are raised to the cable and the overhead trolley. The cable has been in use by the company, but it was costly to install and it has proved costly to keep in repair. Public opinion and legal safeguards do not permit the use of an overhead trolley on Manhattan island.

The company has been busy for nearly three years with all manner of inquiries and trials in its quest for a satisfactory motive power. Last year The Herald described the underground trolley which it was testing. It was thought at first it would be a success. It was all right in fine weather, but it has been found that in foul weather the slot in the track through which the trolley runs and the power reaches the motor is liable to become obstructed, while the electricity goes to waste, especially if the day be damp or rainy. Delays have been frequent and the machinery too often in need of repair to satisfy the directors that the underground trolley has been sufficiently developed to serve as a permanent motive power on all their lines, though it does give unusual smoothness of movement and ease of control. Its cost to install and operate is said to be less than that of the cable; but not enough less to compensate for its disadvantages.

Disappointed in the underground trolley, the directors seemingly forsook electricity and turned to compressed air. For some months past they have made inquiries and set afoot tests concerning its utility for their purposes. Hitherto they have kept the utmost secrecy, but recently William C. Whitney, formerly secretary of the navy, who is one of the men who direct the affairs of the company, made a public statement regarding the nature of the investigation and the company's satisfaction with the results. But since that time the company's secrecy has been redoubled.

It has been learned, however, that an engineer of long experience in surface traction, Hoadley by name, has devised a practicable motor, using compressed air as the source of power, and that it favorably impressed the directors of the traction company. In part through their assistance, a sort of trial factory has been built at Worcester, Mass., hidden from the world by a high, close fence, and lighted by windows far above the ground. A neighboring engine company has supplied the necessary machinery. Within the enclosure, on a spur of track, very thorough tests of the compressed-air motor have been made. They have so far satisfied the traction company that it has sent ten of its cars to Worcester to be equipped with the new motor.

The specific nature of the compressed-air motor is, of course, kept secret, and the most trustworthy general statements to be obtained run substantially as follows: Since no conduit or wire is necessary, the system is easy to install, with absolutely no interference with street traffic. Each car practically carries its own motive power. The estimated cost of installation and operation is not so low as that of the overhead trolley; but it is less than that of the cable or underground trolley. Each car carries its supply of compressed air in a reservoir or storage chamber under the floor between the trucks. The reservoir is necessarily very strong but light. The pressure successfully obtained in the trials at Worcester is said to be 2000 pounds to the square inch, sufficient to meet all requirements as to speed, even over heavy grades, in this city. By thorough tests of metal and machinery the danger of accident has been reduced to a minimum. The pressure is controlled by comparatively simple mechanical means on the front platform, so that the cars are easier for the motorman to operate than those moved by the cable. They can be quickly stopped and as quickly set in motion again. Once in motion, they run smoothly, making little noise or dirt. The reservoir can be charged at the power house with sufficient air to propel the car twelve or sixteen miles (according to the capacity of the storage chamber), with allowance for stops. Presumably, if need be, the reservoir could be quickly charged anew at stations along the route.

The results of the trial of this new system in actual service on the streets of New York will be awaited with interest. Should it prove a success, it is altogether probable that it would in course of time be applied to all the surface roads in the country.

JUDGE STEARNS' DEATH.

The news of Judge Stearns' death was received with deep sorrow in Duluth and throughout the state in which he had resided for many years. It may truly be said that among the citizens of Duluth there was none who did more for the upbuilding of the city and to spread a knowledge throughout the country of the great natural advantages which are presented here for the creation of a mighty commercial metropolis, Judge Stearns' faith in Duluth's great future was strong and abiding, and though ill health compelled his recent removal to a milder climate, there is no doubt that his heart still beat warmly for Duluth and that his thoughts frequently reverted to the place where the most active years of his life were passed.

Although his time was largely occupied with his duties on the judicial bench of this district, Judge Stearns took an active part in all matters pertaining to Duluth's advancement and was interested in numerous enterprises which added to the city's business and population. The people of this county would have been glad to send him to congress from the old Fifth district, but the western end of the district always opposed recognition of Duluth's claims. For a short time Judge Stearns occupied a seat in the United States senate, being elected to fill an unexpired term. It was an honor worthily conferred, and the legislature would have done well to have continued him in that position. To the bereaved family the people of Duluth will extend their sincerest sympathy.

There are two sides to bicycle road races, and one of them—the darkest side—was experienced by an Ohio bicyclist in a race last Saturday from Columbus to Portsmouth. His wheel collapsed and he was compelled to walk fourteen miles. He arrived in Portsmouth with both feet blistered. On the way he was run over by a team. Shortly afterward he thrashed a farmer who made an uncomplimentary remark about his bloomers, getting a black eye in the operation. He then celebrated his victory by rolling up his abbreviated trousers to such an extent that the moment he reached Portsmouth he was arrested, fined $10 and costs and locked up in jail.

For a minute or so the other day the emperor of Russia was czar and the empress was not czarina. In other words, after he had formally received his crown from the high church official, the czar ascended the dais and took his seat upon the throne while his wife remained standing. Then he went back to her, and after taking off his own crown, touching her forehead with it and then putting it comfortably back on his own head, he put on the czarina's crown, and then she was led to her own throne, and the dramatic moment was over.

The Crookston Tribune puts the situation in a nutshell in these words: "Ex-Governor Merriam, who ran the party to the verge of political bankruptcy, will use his influence and his money in the interest of Governor Clough. The people of the state are against this political bossism, but if they do not turn out to their caucuses and county conventions, the bosses will be in the saddle again." Every true Republican should vote against Clough and thus smash the machine.

Concerning the political situation in Stearns county, a St. Cloud paper says there is no doubt there are three Lee Republicans to one for Clough. There, as in Duluth, the "machine" is for Clough, but the people propose to handle the caucuses this year and select Lee delegates.

Some person has sent to The Herald a marked copy of a paper suggesting as the Republican presidential ticket "McKinley and McAlpin." Every one, of course, has heard of McKinley, but who in thunder is McAlpin? His name is unknown in this section of the country.

A New York physician has discovered "the tongue rest cure for nervous disorders." Since the county committee meeting on Monday, the Clough managers in Duluth have evidently been trying this cure.

A Kansas editor has given notice that he is preparing an illustrated issue of his paper that will contain pictures of all the prominent men and women of the place "and a sprinkling of the prominent babies."

And now the News Tribune says that Messrs. Lee and Washburn had a meeting at noon on Sunday instead of afternoon, as it first stated. Let it think again and see if it was not before noon!

The "scorching" bicyclist must be suppressed. There are too many "scorchers" in Duluth, and the police should make an example of a few of them.

The defeat of the "bunched" convention idea was a surprise to the Clough "machine." It thought everything was fixed for one convention.

The presidential booms of the "sound money" Democrats have flattened out completely.

THE ROUNDER.

M. C. Egan, of St. Paul, chief ranger of the Royal court of Catholic Order of Foresters, which is in session here now, was identified with one of the great events of Duluth's history and consequently feels that he ought to be no stranger here. He came into Duluth on the first engine that ever entered the city and the one which carried the construction crew that connected the iron near Thomson. The road was built both ways, from and toward Duluth and the connecting point was at the place named. He has visited the city a number of times since then and has a warm spot in his heart for Duluth.

He sat in the public reading room and a more dejected object the Rounder never saw. His clothes were old, dirty and ragged, his hair was long and matted, and his face was covered with a thick, stubbly growth of dirty brown beard. A rear view of this specimen was sorrowful indeed. The book he had been reading lay unheeded on his lap. His attenuated legs were crossed, and the fringe on the bottom of his trousers was long and pathetic. His head was bowed on his breast, and he looked the picture of couple failure.

The sight was a pitiful one, and the Rounder's sympathies were deeply touched. Plainly this pathetic figure was revolving in an awful kaleidoscope the events of his life of failure. Perhaps, he was confronted with the question: "Is life worth living?" But the picture was spoiled. A drunken snore from his own nose awoke the man, and as he turned the Rounder saw a red whisky nose and caught a whiff of a decidedly whisky breath. The secret of the failure was plain and the Rounder decided to save his pity.

A WELL-OILED MACHINE.

Redwood Gazette: The band plays merrily on. The recruits around the flag staff of boodle Bill Merriam and Usurper David Clough continue to shout for those two moneyed Republicans, and they will continue to shout for them as long as there is a dollar left in the barrel. The machine is kept well-oiled for them, but it is probable that people will take a hand in politics and tear down the machine on July 1.

LOADED AT BOTH ENDS.

Minneapolis Journal: A gentleman lately returned from a political tour of Goodhue county, expresses the opinion that the Clough boomers there are on the run. He says that Senator Knute Nelson is writing scores of letters into the county to men whom he never saw and who do not know him personally, asking them to stand by Clough, and that these letters are really hurting Clough, the Scandinavians of Goodhue county feeling that they can look after this matter without dictation from Washington. The mailing list of names was evidently furnished the senator in St. Paul, through the Republican state central committee, which has a complete poll of the state, revised and brought down to date. If this work is going on in Goodhue county, it is fair to assume that other counties having heavy Scandinavian populations are not being neglected. Mr. Clough may awaken some fine morning to find out that the help which he is getting from Nelson is loaded at both ends and has been touched off with him in the middle of it.

A BLAST AGAINST DORAN.

Minneapolis Times: Mike Doran, who once upon a time gladdened the hearts of thousands of Democrats by his announcement through the invaluable columns of the Times that he was out of politics, has recanted his solemn promise to abstain from annoying the community with his pole cat presence, and gives it out cold that he is a candidate to succeed himself on the national committee. Well, the announcement will give the Democrats something to fight about, something more inspiriting than assaults upon their own president. If there is to be a Doran element in the next Democratic state convention, there should also be an anti-Doran element, and the latter, in the opinion of the Times, should have a two-thirds majority of the delegates, just to make sure that the old man of the sea does not fasten himself upon the party organization for four years more.

A GOOD CANDIDATE.

Albert Lea Standard: Gen. E. M. Pope, of Mankato, would be a good man for the silver forces to unite upon for congress in the Second district. He is a man of distinguished ability, a close and intelligent student of economic questions, has a clean personal record and is immensely popular in the great pivotal county of Blue Earth. Besides all this he has had extensive experience in a legislative capacity and performed well and bravely his duty on the field of battle in the hour of his country's peril. Although he has generally affiliated with the Democratic party he is extremely liberal in his views and not infrequently throws off the party harness when by so doing he can subserve the cause of the people as against monopolies. If the Republican congressional platform is constructed on a gold foundation Gen. Pope would, as a champion of silver, make it exceedingly interesting for either Somerville or McCleary.

LAST AND LEAST.

St. Cloud Times: Last and least of all comes "Dave" Clough. Some time ago an anti-Clough paper challenged any editor to explain what illness Clough possessed for the governorship. So far no response. Like Sarah Bernhardt's son, he is "la petite accident"—(one little accident.") He does not possess one single qualification for the office. Never has the position been filled by a man of so mediocre ability. Nor one against whom so many reasons for his defeat might be urged. He was made governor by the "machine," which pledged itself to re-elect him, and the "machine" is now working night and day to carry out its pledge.

And look at the clothes that are washed with Pearline. They're brighter, and fresher, too. They haven't been rubbed to pieces on the washboard. They may be old, but they don't show it. For clothes washed with Pearline last longer.

THE RUBBER HOSE IDEA.

Duluth's Method of School Punishment is Criticized.

Chicago Times-Herald: Up at Duluth, the city which Proctor Knott snatched from oblivion and which Joaquin Miller said would some day be "bigger than Chicago," they have a new-fangled way of flagellating refractory juveniles in the public schools. In her geographical isolation the city on the rocky bluff has acquired a happy disdain for old-fashioned things. Her public schools are built on a scale of lofty grandeur and maintained with a breezy indifference to those prudential and economical considerations that prevail in such towns as New York and Philadelphia.

Being strikingly original in everything, it was to be expected that Duluth school-teachers would employ some novel method of castigating the rebellious juveniles that make life a weary waste of worry to the luckless pedagogue. And they do. Instead of pummeling the anatomy of the incorrigible youngster with a wooden ruler or a rawhide, the stern-visaged schoolma'am merely turns the hose on him. That is, she flogs him with a piece of rubber tubing.

It has been found that the bounding resilience of the rubber tubing when applied to the well-cushioned posterior of a youth is such that the muscular exertion required to make a robust rascal pneumatically tired is so slight that it has become the officially authorized method of punishment in the Duluth public schools.

The secret was let out in a suit for damages for assault brought against one of the feminine wielders of the rubber hose. The court decided that scourging a pugnacious juvenile belligerent with rubber tubing is not an assault, no matter what evidences of concussion may be found on the anatomy.

Now that a court has rendered a decision the rubber hose idea of leading the wayward youth along the jagged and precipitous highways of knowledge is bound to spread to the public schools of other cities. The bicycles are already making a heavy demand on the rubber tube factories. But more factories must be built. The course of popular education must not languish because of any rubber tube famine. Stretch the tube or spoil the child.

THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

J. A. Baker, ex-county commissioner of Ward county, was shot and killed yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock by his son, William, a boy of 17 years of age, at his ranch twenty miles north of Minot. Just before the killing, Baker had given his son a hard whipping, after which he started to abuse the boy's mother, which was more than the boy could stand, and he took his rifle and shot his father twice, killing him instantly.

The second annual Catholic laymen's convention began yesterday morning at Fargo, with high mass at St. Mary's church. A large number of delegates is present from all over the state. Today all the bishops of the St. Paul archdiocese will meet with Archbishop Ireland and a public reception will be tendered later in Bishop Shanley's park.

At Grand Forks, Normanden, the leading Scandinavian paper of the state, has been sued for $5000 by its former publisher, H. A. Foss, for alleged criminal libel. Two cartoons furnish the basis for the suit.

The annual session of the Odd Fellows grand lodge for North Dakota assembled in Lisbon yesterday. About 300 of the representatives of the various grand lodge bodies are present. The visitors were met at the Northern Pacific depot by the First regiment band and citizens at noon, and escorted to the various lodge rooms throughout the city. An interesting program has been arranged by the local committees, to be rendered at the opera house this evening, after which a banquet and ball will be given in honor of the city's guests. Today several candidates will be taken over the goals by competing teams. The session will be one of particular interest to the entire fraternity in this state.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

The annual meeting of Haugen Norwegian Lutheran synod convenes in the new Lutheran church, twelve miles south of Beresford today. Some thirty ministers and delegates have already arrived. The church is one of the largest in the state and all accommodations for the northwestern branch of the national synod are complete. The purpose of the meeting is to dedicate the new church and establish an orphan's home at Beresford, and to elect president and officers of the synod. They will be in session one week. It is estimated there will be 4000 or 5000 people in attendance at the dedication Sunday.

R. W. Brown, a one-legged bicyclist, started yesterday morning from Madison for a trip on his wheel around the world. He goes by way of Sioux City, Omaha and Denver to San Francisco.

For years Sioux Falls saloons have been paying a monthly license of $50 to the city, while drug stores have done a larger business and paid nothing. The city council last night passed a resolution instructing the chief of police to make the drug stores selling liquor pay the same license as saloons. It will probably precipitate trouble, as drug men do not care to be classed as disorderly houses.

Fire broke out in the C. C. Eves & Co.'s drug store at 3:20 yesterday morning at Vermillion, but was quickly gotten under control by the fire department. Henry and Pick Eves, who room over the store, narrowly escaped suffocation. Loss by smoke and water will amount to over $1000; fully insured. The origin of the fire is a mystery.

NOT WANTED.

Big Stone County Journal: Several of Clough's supporters remain oppressively silent when asked why he should be nominated for governor. No, David is not wanted.

THE FARMERS AGAINST CLOUGH.

Hutchinson Leader: Whenever we talk with politicians or men who dabble more or less in politics, we find those who are for Clough or who will be if they think he is likely to win. Whenever we talk with farmers we find them, to a man, against his re-election.

A SCORNFUL DOUBTER.

Railway Age: It is mysteriously announced in behalf of a newly projected "air line" railway from Duluth to the Red river, that "it is the intention to build and equip a double track road and the promoters claim it can be done for the price of an ordinary single track road"—which would be a trick well worth knowing. Moreover the promoters "propose to use a new system of transport, but resolutely decline to make public what it is. They assert that by using it they will be able to move 25,000,000 bushels of wheat in thirty days." A "new system of transport" that can handle daily an average of 833,333 bushels of wheat, or about 25,000 tons, or say 1250 cars, averaging twenty tons to the car, on a double track road, is certainly an important discovery, and there will be anxiety on the part of the old-fashioned roads until the secret is revealed.

HE WILL PATENT IT.

How Capt. Stevens Released His Grounded Tug.

Capt. Stevens, of the Stevens tug line, has made an innovation in working methods that stamps him as being original and equal to any emergency. On Saturday last the captain who, when not engaged in helping navigate the ship of state in the council chamber, occasionally takes the wheel on one of his vessels, was steering the tug Brower with a tow down the river from Fond du Lac.

The captain had just laid his course by the southeast corner of Sam Perkins's hencoop, at the big elbow, and squared away for Duluth. The signal had been given for forced draught, the fireman was frantically fanning the fire with his hat in obedience thereto, and the concern was gaining on the current fast, when she went "bump." Instantly all was confusion, one frantic individual casting himself headlong into the turbid waters and wading ashore. Investigation showed that the Brower was hard and fast on a gravel bank. There was the paralysis of surprise but for a moment.

"Tear up the engine house floor," came the order, audible above the hoarse roar of a train passing on the St. Paul & Duluth tracks, just under the port bow of the wrecked vessel. The crew grabbed a hatchet, and with herculean efforts, tore up a plank. In obedience to succeeding orders, a cable was passed down and around the propeller shaft, and, in response to signals to the shore, by the international system, aided by a few from the captain's private vocabulary, some of the natives were induced to pass the other end of the hawser around a tree.

"Go ahead, full speed," was the next signal, and the shaft commenced to take up the rope. The gallant craft rolled and strained, three rivets flew out of the steam cylinder, but the fireman clapped his hat over the end, and with a grate and a crunch the Brower sidled over the bank and took the water on the other side like a carload of brick.

"Truly the captain has a head," muttered the men of the crew, who have literary tastes, somewhat in the language of Victor Hugo.

The captain says he is going to have his device patented. Hereafter every one of his tugs will carry a tree and a long rope.

HAVE NO MAIL.

Rainy Lake Carrier Has Stopped Carrying.

There is war on the Rainy Lake mail route, and Charles Tengrove, the contractor, and George Moulton, his driver, are both under arrest for cruelty to animals. It appears that Tengrove has used six horses on the Crane Lake road for his mail carrying, and it is alleged that those horses are old, dilapidated and ill. This condition of things had aroused much talk in Tower, according to Humane Henry Haskins, and there had been talk of compelling Tengrove to relegate his live stock to the boneyard in which it belonged.

Last Friday Archie Phillips, deputy sheriff, and the humane officer told Tengrove's driver, George Moulton, that he could not work his superannuated beasts any more. Moulton remarked that he had a gun and would go, and Phillips said that he had a gun, too, and that Moulton would not go.

Finally permission was granted to take two of the best horses out, but the contractor refused and accused Phillips of interfering with the United States mails. On this troubled state of affairs the doughty Humane Haskins made his appearance, and caused the arrest of Tengrove and Moulton, who were released Monday in municipal court at Tower after putting up $100 bail each.

As the situation stands now, the people of the Rainy Lake country are without mail service, having had none since last Friday. Tengrove's bondsmen are figuring on assuming the contract themselves.

TO THE ST. LOUIS CONVENTION WITH THE CELEBRATED REPUBLICAN FLAMBEAU CLUB.

A special vestibuled train of sleeping cars, dining and baggage cars, will be run from Minneapolis and St. Paul to St. Louis, June 14, via the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway (the popular "Hedrick route"), to accommodate the Republican Flambeau club and their friends throughout the Northwest.

Leave the Twin Cities afternoon of June 14 and arrive at St. Louis next day.

This train will be side-tracked at a point within two blocks of Auditorium convention hall and six minutes walk to the principal hotels. Passengers desiring to do so can occupy the sleepers during the convention at low rates.

The service, in every particular, will be absolutely first-class and all may depend upon thoroughly comfortable and pleasant accommodations, both going and returning, and while occupying the cars in St. Louis.

The Republican Flambeau club is composed of leading business and professional men in Minnesota, and their trips to former national conventions and inaugurations have always done great credit to the Northwest.

The railroad rate is one fare for the round trip. For exact information as to sleeping car rates and accommodations, meals, etc., address Frank P. Nantz, secretary Republican Flambeau club, 604 Oneida block, Minneapolis, or J. T. Conley, assistant general passenger agent, C. M. & St. P. Ry., St. Paul.

HIS SCALP

Supt. Denfeld's Opponents Are Still After His Official Cranium.

Will Meet Tonight in the Chamber of Commerce Building.

Committee Will Report Upon the System Used in the Schools.

There will be a pole raising at the chamber of commerce rooms this evening. The pole to be raised is the one on which Superintendent Denfeld's scalp will dangle in July, according to the program which his opponents have arranged, and which will be carried out—subject to change at the ballot box, it being, of course, understood that it is quite possible that Superintendent Denfeld has more friends than enemies.

The dark, cumulous clouds significant of cyclonic conditions have been gathering for some time, and it is fondly hoped by those who desire a change in present conditions that, ere the dog days are upon us, a gyratory motion will have been generated of sufficient force to root up the present head of the school system and toss him clear over into the next lot.

The meeting tonight will be strictly secret, and it has been so given out by the bureau of publicity and advertising appointed at the last meeting. And so as the hour approaches for the gathering of the conspirators, the close observer will note figures with coat collars turned up ascending the fire escape from the Michigan street side, or from the Superior street approach, edging toward the building and passing in at the side entrance.

Word has been passed along the line that the scalp dance will take place positively as advertized, and it is expected that a large and relentless band will be gathered to pledge themselves to take the warpath. Orators of ability will lash the spirits of those present to the highest pitch of fury. The committee, consisting of one from each ward, which has been appointed to feel the public pulse will report the number of beats to a minute, and if it is too slow, measures will be taken to accelerate it.

The committee appointed to investigate and report as to the system at present in vogue in the schools will report the defects in the same developed by the touch-stone of the faith and practice of the times when they went to school. The first note has been courageously sounded in a campaign, the ripping and buzzing of which can be plainly heard above even the diapason of the national struggle.

Do not be hoodwinked. Use no "just as good." Salvation Oil is what you want when in need of a good liniment.

Mr. Ely is a photographer of long experience, and was associated with Haynes, the well known St. Paul artist, for a number of years. FILED HIS ANSWER.

In the equity case of E. M. Fowler et al. vs. W. F. Vandervoort et al. the separate answer of W. F. Vandervoort has been filed in the United States court. This is the case involving the ownership of the Adams mining property. Vandervoort denies the ownership of the plaintiff and asserts that the property was unjustly taken from him.

SAMUEL O. STONE.

Grass Lake, Mich., Dec. 28, 1894.

I have been troubled with heart disease 15 years or more. Most of the time I was so bad it was not safe for me to go out alone, as dizzy spells would cause falling. I had severe palpitation, shortness of breath and sudden pains that rendered me helpless. All physicians did for me was to advise keeping quiet. In August last I commenced taking and before I had finished the first bottle I found the medicine was a God-send. I have now used four bottles in all and am feeling entirely well. I am 73 years of age and have held a grudge against patent medicines all my life, but I will not allow this to prevent giving my testimony to the great cure your valuable remedy has wrought in me. I do this to show my appreciation of Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure. SAMUEL O. STONE.

Mr. Lachmund's Pupils.

The Lachmund pupils are rehearsing diligently for Tuesday night's concert. As an exceptionally large number of novelties are to be given this year it necessitates much extra practicing. One of the daintiest numbers will be the three piano pieces by Thome, the French composer. This work is extremely dainty and frenchy. It abounds in all sorts of peculiar rythms, at times even two, three, four and six notes being played in the same beat. Another decided novelty is a 4-piano arrangement by Czerny, written expressly for some of the nobility of Vienna. In 1830 four countesses played this composition with great success at a concert given at the royal palace for the benefit of the sufferers of an inundation of the Danube.

WORSE THAN USELESS.

Do Not Use Cathartics For Indigestion.

The commonly used remedies are worse than useless, as they do not remove the cause. Cathartics are injurious, for although they move the bowels for a time, their action weakens the digestion and thus increases the difficulty they are intended to cure.

Persons using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will not be disappointed as their use not only properly digests the food, but gives proper assimilation and cures constipation by producing the proper quantity of bile.

The fact that they are used so largely by physicians is a great point in their favor, and many physicians treat their cases of indigestion almost entirely by these tablets or the same ingredients. The only difference being that when dyspeptics apply to a physician for them he charges you two or three prices for them besides his advice. Whereas if you go to your druggist he will sell you Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets for only 50 cents per box.

They may also be had by mail by enclosing price to the F. A. Stuart company, chemists, Marshall, Mich.

PUNISHMENT IN SCHOOLS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The morning paper intimates that the Braithwaite incident is closed and the abolishment of corporal punishment is to follow. It used to be a very common saying at sea on shipboard that a bad crew made bad officers, and that was invariably the case, and the officers as invariably had to take all the blame. I always noticed that the best ships with the best discipline always had the best officers, and any infringement of the rules, however slight, always met with punishment, not promises. I am one of those who believe that if children have the right bringing up at home there will be no need of corporal punishment in the schoolroom. J. W. Miller.

IF YOU WILL USE A LITTLE REASONING

And not be influenced by the claim that catarrh is a blood disease, you can easily prove that catarrh is climatic. Have you not the severest catarrhal attacks during winter and spring, and have you but little evidence of catarrh during the summer? Yes. Well, this proves it is a climatic disorder, inflaming the membrane of the nasal passages. It is a waste of time and money to invest in blood remedies. The proper treatment is a local application, and the most prompt to cure is that popular remedy, Ely's Cream Balm.

CLAIMS THE ESTATE.

A Woman Claims to Be E. E. Pinkman's Wife.

On June 9, the day set for the hearing in the Ilish A. Gray matter in probate court, there will be another estate over which there will be something of a fight. E. E. Pinkman, who committed suicide not long ago by jumping into the lake, left personal property valued at about $700 as well as some mineral interests which may be of value. His brother, Fred E. Pinkman, who keeps a hotel at Lester Park, took out special letters of administration soon after the death, and the hearing on his application to be appointed administrator was set for June 9. The woman who had been living with Pinkman for about twelve years will oppose the application on the ground that she was his common law wife, and she will make an effort to get the property which he left. Her attorney has stated that he would continue the case, and he probably will do so on the day set for the hearing.

There is a possibility also that the Gray case will be continued. The heirs have agreed upon F. O. Harris as temporary administrator.

CREDITORS PROTEST.

Object to the Allowance of John G. Howard's Claim.

Seven creditors of the insolvent firm of Howard & Haynie, have appealed to the district court from the action of Monroe Nichols, the assignee, in allowing the claim of John G. Howard, as a creditor of the firm. His claim was on a note for $20,000. The creditors who have appealed are Joseph Belfeld & Co., F. Siegel & Bros., Henry A. Newland & Co., Duluth Printing & Publishing Co., Eben Sugden, Telegram Printing Co., and Joseph Musser & Sons. They are represented by H. S. Mahon.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway company has sued Taylor Brothers to recover $294.61 for handling barley at Minneapolis. Billson, Congdon & Dickinson are the attorneys.

Needlessly Alarmed.

David Emerson, a homesteader, residing about fifty miles north of Duluth, appeared at the central station today and complained he had been robbed of his money last night by his roommate at the lodging house at No. 17 West Superior street. Detective Troyer started out with Emerson to find the suspected party. At the suggestion of the detective, a search of the room was made, the missing wallet and its contents, amounting to the sum of $25, being found under the mattress. Upon the discovery of his treasure, Emerson remembered that he had put it there himself on retiring. Mr. Emerson had been seeing the sights yesterday, and when he sought his couch he was not in a condition to take very much notice of trifling occurrences, and the hiding of the pocketbook had escaped his memory.

RODE A VIKING.

"The Viking" is a winner, and those who were fortunate enough to see the road race on Saturday, were convinced of the fact, when John Locking won the race so easily in 29 minutes 15 seconds. He says: "I never could have done so well had I not ridden a Viking, the smoothest, easiest running wheel made." In a field of forty-two, there were three Viking wheels entered, and they finished in first, fifth and sixth place, a pretty good record, and very satisfactory to the agents.

COUNTY CANDIDATES.

The Scramble For Office is on In Earnest.

With the nominating convention yet many days away and election still farther away, there are enough Republican candidates for the county offices in the field to settle the Cuban question in a short time if they could only be drafted into the Cuban army. However, they cannot be disposed of that way, as they insist upon remaining here to make the campaign lively up to the convention at least. After that, in all probability, a majority of them will retire to private life to muse over their experience.

The most significant and straightforward fact so far apparent in the campaign is that the present occupants of county offices have formed themselves into a mutual admiration society for the preservation of their jobs. In a measure, that straightens out the kinks in the situation, but outside of this there is plenty of confusion. The advantage of this combination seems to be questionable. To begin with, there are undoubtedly several incumbents whom nothing short of a miracle is likely to return to office. These will act as a millstone about the necks of the officers who have earned another term, it is said. Then, too, a good many voters like the idea of retaining the whole bunch of jobs for another term might look selfish.

The fight of the campaign is likely to be on the sheriff's office, naturally, as there is more in it, which is a sufficient excuse for most political fights. It is said tha; there are a good many workers who are making a fight against W. W. Butchart because of Amos Shephard, his under sheriff. There is no personal attack upon the latter, but they say that he has now had an 8-year stand at the public trough, and that he should have been filled up enough by this time to stand aside and let the hungry have his chance.

COMBINATION ALLEGED.

The newest story about the auditorship is that J. E. Cooley and George N. LaVaque have combined on the office, instead of running in opposition to each other, and that Mr. Cooley is to be auditor and Mr. LaVaque deputy on the state at least. The story is receiving a good deal of circulation. Any candidates who may appear will have a hustle ahead to get away from O. Halden, the incumbent. He has made a good officer, and the routine of his office has run like clockwork while he has been in office.

J. W. Nelson denies the printed story that he wants to be commissioner from the West End district. There are a small army of candidates for that district, but Mr. Nelson says he is out of it, and he should know.

There is probably one exception to the statement that the court house crowd will herd together. Probate Judge Ayer does not believe in combines, and he will probably run on his own merits.

BLANTHER'S LETTER.

Peculiar Communication From an Alleged Murderer.

San Francisco, June 3.—The Chronicle has received a letter from Atlanta, Ga., purporting to have been written by Joseph Blanther, the Austrian knight, accused of the murder of Mrs. Philopena Langfeldt, of this city, in which the writer denies that he committed the murder and says he is willing to come to San Francisco and stand trial on the charge. Blanther says Mrs. Langfeldt was murdered by Dr. Scott. No such person is known in this city.

The letter was shown to several people who are positive that it was written by Blanther. Investigation shows, however, that many statements made in the letter are not corroborated by facts. Blanther's singular communication is not dated, but the postmark on the envelope shows that it was mailed at Atlanta, Ga., on May 28, shortly before 5 p. m.

Weyler.

LABOR LOCKED OUT.

Chicago, June 3.—There is a lockout at the works of the Illinois Steel company, Ashland avenue and Thirty-second street, and 1500 men are thrown out of employment. The color line is said to be the direct cause of the lockout, although officers of the company do not admit it. They charge it entirely to a question of labor.

Not a Vessel Now Offered For Contracts to Carry Ore.

An Advance in Ore Freights Seems to Be Almost Inevitable.

Repair Bill of the Ketcham Estimated at Six Thousand Dollars.

Cleveland, June 3.—(Special to The Herald).—Ten days ago everybody in the vessel business was scared, and many owners who did not enter season contracts to carry ore were wishing they had done so. Today there is not a vessel offered for contracts on ore, and a continuance of even the light demand in the grain trade will result in advanced ore freights.

THE KETCHAM'S REPAIRS.

A large amount of tearing away is being done on the steamer V. H. Ketcham in order to repair the damage which resulted from the recent collision with the steamer St. Louis and her own consort Wadena, but more particularly the latter. From a point abreast of the boilerhouse forward on the starboard side the upper sections of at least thirty-five frames are being renewed, and the outside planking also as a matter of course. The force of the blow delivered by the Wadena pushed the upper hull over to port, and it will have to be forced back into line with jackscrews. A new smokestack has reached the yard for the steamer, as the Wadena ruined the old one by punching a hole into it. The repair bill of the Ketcham can safely be estimated at from $5500 to $6000.

PORT OF DULUTH.

Arrived—J. Emory Owen, Michigan, Yakima, City of Genoa, Phillip Minch, C. B. Lockwood, W. F. Sauber, Iron Duke, Iron State, Lake Erie, coal; J. C. Ford, Avon, Buffalo, mdse; Japan, Buffalo, pass and mdse; Aurora, Aurania, Iron City, Lake Erie, light for ore.

Departed—Arabia, Portage, Buffalo, grain and flour; Mahoning, Buffalo, flour; Charles A. Eddy, Thomas Wilson, barges 109 and 129, Vega, Lake Erie, ore; R. L. Fryer, Two Harbors, light for ore.

MARINE NOTES.

The schooners Moonlight and H. A. Kent are at Cleveland for repairs. Calking is the principal work to be done on them.

The Bay City Tribune states that Capt. Davidson has the timbers all sawed for a large steamer which will be built during the summer.

A gas buoy has been placed at the mouth of Maumee bay. It substitutes the second-class can buoy No. 1.

The June supplement of the Inland Lloyds gives the new steamer City of Buffalo a valuation of $250,000. The valuation of the steamer Henry Chisholm is increased $5000. The new steamer George N. Orr is valued at $200,000. The Russell Sage is given an increase of $5000. The barge Connelly Brothers has a valuation of $40,000, and the new barge George N. Hartnell $125,000.

The grain rate is still stiffer today, and it is probable that shippers would pay 2¾ cents for boats to arrive soon, though no business at that rate is yet reported.

Duluth clearances—Arabia, 18,000 bushels rye, 13,000 bushels flax, 6000 barrels flour, C. W. Elphicke, 1950 tons ore, Servia, 1300 tons ore, Wilson, 2200 tons ore, T. W. Palmer, 2100 tons ore, Moravia, 1600 tons ore, 109, 2200 tons ore, 129, 2300 tons ore, Buffalo, Unadilla, 500,000 feet lumber, Tonawando.

HOUSE BOATS GONE.

Sixty-Seven Destroyed and 300 Lives Lost.

Chicago, June 3.—A special from St. Louis says: Although it is one week since the disastrous tornado struck St. Louis and the East Side, it was not noticed until today that all the house boats on the river had disappeared. Between the chain of rocks and Choteau avenue last Wednesday there were sixty-four of these floating shanties. Not one was left by the fury of the tornado. But few of them were safe, even in calm weather, and three-fourths of them were totally destroyed.

An old riverman said: "The denizens of the house boats are real nomads. They drift, or are towed, wherever their fancy directs. They are the gypsies of the great rivers. They know but few people in the cities and are known by few. I was figuring last Sunday week on how many of them were in this harbor for the June rise, and figuring five to each boat, there were over 300 here last Wednesday. I believe most of them were drowned, because I know it is both tradition and instinct with them to stick to their floating homes till the last. No one of these floating houses is left. I have been patrolling the river now for five days since the tornado and I am sure that over 500 of these people, including women and children, are lost. The lower river will give up this summer over 100 dead that have not, as yet, been counted among the victims of Wednesday's tornado."

ROCK ISLAND ROAD.

Chicago, June 3.—At the annual meeting of stockholders of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railroad held here this morning the following officers were elected: R. R. Cable, president; Benjamin Brewster, first vice president; W. G. Purdy, second vice president, treasurer and secretary; W. H. Truesdale, third vice president. George T. Boggs was appointed assistant treasurer; J. F. Phillips, assistant treasurer, and assistant secretary at Chicago.

The annual statement of accounts for the year ending March 31, 1896, showed that the gross earnings were $17,359,653, of which $4,445,952 was passenger and $11,159,100 freight, a decrease of $61,163, as compared with last year. Operating expenses were $10,977,321, a decrease of $868,046. Taxes were $889,272. Net earnings were $5,493,059, an increase of 754,504. The total number of passengers carried increased 220,270. The freight tonnage carried showed an increase of 167,417 tons. Out of a total of 461,560 shares of stock, 314,247 shares were represented.

The following directors were elected: H. H. Porter, Marshall Field, John DeKoven, Chicago; David Dows, Jr., New York. F. H. Griggs, of Davenport, was elected director to succeed the late Judge George G. Wright, of Des Moines, Iowa.

EADS' BRIDGE.

Temporary Repairs at St. Louis Are Made.

St. Louis, June 3.—A movement has been inaugurated to raise a fund of $250,000, or more, to aid those who lost their homes, in their efforts to rebuild. At the first meeting, an impromptu one, held at the Noonday club, $35,000 was contributed by prominent business men, and this will be increased. It is proposed to loan tornado sufferers money on second mortage.

S. D. Webster, general claim agent of the Terminal Railroad association, announced that the upper roadway of the bridge has been completed so as to admit passengers. The roadway was torn up a distance of 550 feet. Part of the debris was piled on the railroad tracks, and all the next day after the storm was occupied in clearing away the rocks and other wreckage. When this was finished, the trains were allowed to cross. The work of erecting a temporary roadway and supports was then commenced. This has been carried on steadily ever since, but the work progressed slowly, owing to the fact that workmen were obliged to keep the railroad tracks clear. A large amount of timber has been used in the repairs, which are temporary. The masonry will be replaced later.

WATCH YOUR LUGGAGE.
Washington, June 3.—European travelers are warned by United States Consul General Judd at Vienna to obey the railroad regulations excluding certain articles from luggage under severe penalties. He cites the case of a young American who was fined 312 florins for having some cartridges in his trunk.

PENNOYER'S SALARY TOO LARGE.

Portland, Ore., June 3.—In speaking of his policy as mayor of this city, ex-Governor and Mayor-elect Pennoyer today said: "I shall endeavor to reduce expenses wherever I can to meet the existing conditions, and I will now say what I could not well say and what I did not say before election, that while endeavoring faithfully to discharge my duty as mayor, I shall take but one-half the salary. That salary should come down with the general decline of prices and values, and I shall see that it does come down. The mayor's salary now is $5000 per annum."

ENGLISH REVENUE RETURNS.

The total revenue of the United Kingdom for the year ended March 31, 1896, was £100,329,046, says the Spectator. At first sight these are undoubtedly figures to be proud of. That the sum is enormous is in itself nothing. It might be wrung from a people whose powers of earning in the future were crippled by the cruel taxation laid upon them in the present. But this is not our case. It is too much, indeed, to say that we hardly know that we are taxed—that is a proposition which every income tax payer at least would meet with a categorical denial. But of the immense majority of the population it is not too much to say this on most days in the year. Taxation does press lightly on Englishmen. They grumble at it but they are not injured by it. They do not feel it, for example, as the Italians feel it. You cannot point to one industry after another and say: "That would flourish if it were not for the crushing burden which the necessities of the government lay upon it."

G. A. R. FARE RATES.

One Cent a Mile Conceded By Another Association.

Indianapolis, June 3.—A notice was today received at the national headquarters of the G. A. R. in this city from F. C. Donald, chairman of the Central Passenger association, of Chicago, stating that the roads of the Central Passenger committee will, for the Grand Army encampment, sell excursion tickets to St. Paul at the rate of one cent per mile by all lines of the committee, plus eight dollars, basing fare from Chicago to St. Paul, on August 30, 31 and September 1.

Tickets will be for continuous passage in both directions and good only on date of sale. This is subject to ticket conditions established by St. Paul Chicago lines. This means the rate of one cent per mile is granted to Chicago and the round trip thence to St. Paul is eight dollars, which is less than one cent per mile.

RATIFIED AT LAST.

Bering Sea Convention is Officially Approved.

London, June 3.—The Bering Sea convention was ratified this afternoon by United States Ambassador Bayard and the Marquis of Salisbury as minister for foreign affairs.

CLIFF RUINS.

Interesting Reminders of a Forgotten Race.

The cliff ruins of the San Juan and the Mancos have been the center of attraction. Have been viewed from all sides and their wonders have been told and retold to the world time and time again, says the Denver Field and Farm. Scientific men have visited the region, have penetrated Southwestern Colorado, and have considered that section a place of especial interest, because the cliff and cave dwellings are probably the oldest in this strange land, being the first built in that mysterious journey southward of a great but unknown people. For twenty years the prospector has followed the San Juan river and gazed with careless unconcern on the rough and broken walls, so full of interest to the archaeologist.

But the mind of the prospector has no room for curios, and he has no time for archaeological investigation. He sees only the glitter of the gold in the sand, and thinks only of the time when he shall have made his stake. In November of last hundreds of gold hunters rushed madly into the canon north of the Navajo mountain, travelled 200 miles over bleak, desert tablelands, suffering terribly from the cold, hunger and the long, wearisome journey. In a few days they had staked off all the available land for fifty miles up and down the river, and then returned home without having obtained so much as a color of gold, and today have nothing to show but the stakes.

It is one of the most wildly picturesque and beautiful regions in the world. The bleak old Navajo mountain rises abruptly and towers like a grim sentinel over the surrounding mesas, while in a canon gorge, more than 3000 feet below its base, the Rio San Juan appears like a silver thread. The canon is several miles wide, and a descent can be made to the river only by a precipitous trail; but as the river approaches the great Colorado the canon becomes more narrow and the wall more perpendicular and when it merges into the grand canon it is scarcely more than a deep, dark channel.

A few miles from the Colorado river, where the canon is not more than 800 or 1000 feet from wall to wall, and where the walls are perpendicular and smooth, on the right wall are the pictures of seven warriors with bows drawn to the last notch, while across the river on the opposite side are the pictures of seven antelope apparently in full run to escape the hunters. These pictures are well executed, and are in the most inaccessible places. Evidently the artist was lowered from a ledge, hundreds of feet above the picture, and held suspended while he performed his tedious task. There are many places in the mystic Southwest where such paintings are to be found.

REID'S QUESTION ANSWERED.

Before Whitelaw Reid became minister to France he devoted a good deal of his time to the conduct of his paper, the Tribune, says the New York Mercury. The copy editors who put up the headlines of stories of the day fell into the habit of making most of them interrogative, as, for instance, "Was It Murder or Suicide?" or "Did She Kill Him for Love?" or "Will the President Sign It?" etc.

The entire paper was specked with interrogation points. This thing had been going on for weeks till one day a postal card arrived addressed to Mr. Reid, and marked personal. It read as follows:

"I'm getting awful tired of your questions. Why don't you find out something? A great newspaper is supposed to know everything, and ought not to annoy its readers with needless inquiries. This morning you ask 'Will Mr. Platt consent?' How the h—l do I know?"

That night an order came that the Tribune must ask fewer questions.

INFERENTIAL.

Texas Siftings: Col. Yerger and several of his friends were talking about the intoxicating qualities of the various liquors.

"In my opinion, champagne is less intoxicating than any other liquor," remarked McGinnis.

"How do you make that out?"

"Because so feepopwaneie shrdlu "Because so few people can afford to drink it."

TESTED.

Harper's Bazar: "Since my daughter has given her consent, Mr. Sutor," said the Old Man, "I am inclined to look with favor upon your suit. But I must be satisfied as to your financial conditions and prospects. Would you be prepared, now, to lend me, say $100?"

"No, sir," answered the young man.

"Fifty?"

"No."

"Ten?"

"No."

"Five?"

Mr. Sutor wavered slightly, but answered in the negative, as before.

"Take her, my boy," said the old man, vainly striving to conceal his emotion. "Take her, and God bless you! You've got a lot more sense than I thought you had."

FEAR OF THUNDER.

"Electric storms are far less dangerous than the majority of people imagine," writes Edward W. Bok in 'June Ladies' Home Journal. "That a severe lightning storm is terrifying admits of no question, and will sometimes bring uneasiness to the heart of the strongest man. But the real danger is slight. The chance of lightning striking a house, for example, is not one in a million. Particularly is this true in cities, strung as most of them are with electric wires. The greater danger from electric storms is in the country, and even there the danger may be lessened if the simplest and most common sense of precautions are exercised. The surest electric conductor is a draught, and if, when a thunder storm approaches, it is seen that all windows and doors liable to occasion a draught are kept closed, the danger is at once reduced to a minimum.

"If a woman is caught out in a thunder storm the safest shelter is a house, the most dangerous a tree, particularly an oak tree. It is a peculiar, but nevertheless a proven fact, that the oak is the most susceptible of all trees to a current of electricity. Over 50 per cent of trees struck by lightning storms during one summer, the government statistician tells us, were oaks, while the beech tree was the least harmed. Therefore, the worst possible place of shelter in an electric storm is under an oak tree, while by all odds, the safest place is in a house, and out of a draught. * * * The actual danger (from an electric storm) is, in truth, not from the lightning nor the thunder, but from the nervous condition into which women allow themselves to fall. And this is a danger which they can avoid. A little calm thought and a few grains of common sense will do it."

The Strongest Argument We Can Make in Favor of our Men's Furnishings
Is THEIR GOODNESS!
Other stores sell Furnishings. Maybe they sell 'em as cheap as we do, but price is not the only thing; it's the quality, the style, that tone of "the proper thing," that sense of having just the correct garment, giving a person a feeling of comfort and satisfaction when he wears them. That is just the kind of Furnishings we sell.
We sell them right, too, because we buy them right. We know our business. We are first and all the time a complete outfitting establishment for men and boys. We devote our entire capital, our energy and our brains to nothing else but clothing the male sex economically and properly. We think of it all day and lots of times dream about it at night. This is an age of experts. We are experts in our business.
The Furnishing Dept.
Is one of the largest in the store. Selling furnishings in connection with our other lines of goods. The saving thus made over exclusive houses is a satisfactory profit to us.

PROVIDING FOR THE ISSUE OF WATER AND LIGHT BONDS OF THE CITY OF DULUTH TO THE AGGREGATE AMOUNT OF ONE MILLION ONE HUNDRED SIX THOUSAND ($1,106,000.00) DOLLARS.

The Common Council of the City of Duluth do Ordain:

Section 1. Whereas the common council of the city of Duluth has heretofore duly caused a special election to be held within the limits of said city for the purpose of authorizing the common council of said city to issue water and light bonds of said city; and,

Whereas, at said election which was duly held within said city on the 24th day of September, A. D. 1895, a majority of the voters present and voting at said election cast their votes in favor of authorizing said common council to issue water and light bonds of said city to the extent of one million eight hundred and fifty-six thousand dollars ($1,856,000) for the purpose of erecting a water plant; and,

Whereas, a majority of the voters present and voting at said election did also cast their votes in favor of authorizing said common council to issue and sell said bonds as the same might be needed to pay for erecting such water plant; and,

Whereas, it is deemed necessary by the common council of said city that such bonds to the amount of one million one hundred six thousand ($1,106,000) dollars should forthwith be authorized and sold for the purpose of providing a fund with which to pay for the erection of said plant:

Now, therefore, pursuant to such election and to the authority thereby given, the common council of the city of Duluth does hereby authorize and direct the issue of water and light bonds of the city of Duluth to the amount of one million, one hundred six thousand dollars, all of said bonds to be of the denomination of one thousand dollars ($1000) each, with interest coupons attached to the same at the rate of five per cent per annum, payable semi-annually on the first day of January and of July in each year, the principal thereof to be made payable in thirty years from the first day of July, A. D. 1896, both principal and interest to be made payable in gold coin of the United States of the present standard of weight and fineness at the American Exchange National bank, in the city of New York.

Section 2. The city clerk of said city is hereby ordered to cause notice to be published in The Duluth Evening Herald of this city and the Daily Pioneer Press, of St. Paul, Minnesota, once in each week for three successive weeks, notice of the time and place when thereafter the common council of said city of Duluth will receive and examine sealed proposals for the purchase of said bonds, the sale thereof to be awarded to the highest responsible bidder at a sum not less than the par value thereof, with interest accrued to the date of delivery. The right to reject any and all bids to be reserved by the said city of Duluth.

All bids for said bonds shall be accompanied by a certified check or certificate of deposit on a national bank, payable to the order of the city of Duluth, without conditions, for the sum of ten thousand dollars ($10,000), or by a good and sufficient bond in said sum to be approved by the common council of said city, and conditioned that the party making said bid will, if awarded the sale, take the said bonds and pay for them according to the terms of such bid and this ordinance, and that in case of failure so to do, the city of Duluth shall have the right to sue upon said bond and to recover the full face thereof, which shall be, and in said bond shall be stated as being the sum agreed upon as liquidated damages in case of a breach thereof.

In all cases of bids received and not accepted the check or certificate received therewith shall forthwith be returned. In case said bonds are awarded to any bidder and the said bidder refuses to accept said bonds legally issued or refuses to accept any part of them when so legally issued, said amount of ten thousand dollars ($10,000), in case a certificate of deposit or a check for such amount shall have been furnished, shall be retained by the city of Duluth as liquidated damages for the breach of contract on the part of said bidder.

In case any bidder furnishing such certificate of deposit or check shall take the said bonds, said sum shall be credited to him on account of the payment therefor in the manner following, that is to say: Said City of Duluth shall retain said sum of ten thousand dollars ($10,000) until the delivery of the last installment of said bonds, at which time said amount of ten thousand dollars ($10,000) with interest thereon at the rate of five per cent per annum, from the first day of July, A. D. 1896, shall be credited to said purchaser on the last installment as part of the price thereof.

MORE FUN

The Democratic Forces Are Hopelessly Divided on the Money Question.

The "Gold" Wing of the Party in Session Last Evening.

Red Hot Fight Will Be Made to Control the Convention.

If there is any one in Duluth or elsewhere who thinks the Republicans are going to have a monopoly of the fun and excitement this year that individual is badly mistaken. There is a nice little row brewing in the Democratic camp, and the sachems are already stirring the paint pot preparatory to daubing the colors on and going on the warpath. It will be no battle of pigmies, either, but a fight to a finish, and some very peculiar complications will be and in fact are already presented.

The manner in which the situation has been brought about is easy to understand. As is well known, C. d'Autremont, Jr., and E. C. Gridley are candidates for the honor of being delegates to the Chicago convention. Both are free silver men. For either one of them to be elected would be equal to a rebuke to the Cleveland administration because of its financial policy. The officeholders and the men who believe in that policy have finally discovered this, and have come to realize that an effort is necessary, for the primaries are to be held next Monday evening. It will have to be a vigorous effort, too, for the free silver sentiment is strong.

A MEETING HELD.

Accordingly the word was passed around that a meeting of the "gold" Democrats would be held at the office of E. P. Alexander, 400 Burrows building last evening, and it was held. A number of the faithful were on hand, and matters were talked over. One of the government officeholders officiated as inner guard, and whenever a free silver Democrat wandered in, quietly escorted him to the corridor with the explanation that a prayer meeting was being held and he might feel out of place in the company of such spirits as he would find assembled therein.

It was unanimously agreed that something must be done and quickly, too. The question of favoring a candidate for the delegateship was not touched on. The whole talk was that the silver men must be prevented from controlling the convention. Arrangements were made to obtain the feeling in the different precincts, and secure committees that will work to save the day. Another meeting will be held in a few days.

And last but not least it was unanimously agreed and all but sworn to that no one was to know anything about the meeting. Of course this assured its publicity.

The complications which this movement presents will cause no little amusement and goes to show how hopelessly the party is divided on the money question. Messrs. Hudson, Brown and others are supposed to favor the candidacy of Mr. d'Autremont. To their influence has been due the appointment of almost every man now holding office in Duluth, but now these officeholders appear to be arrayed on the opposite side of the fence.

There is fun ahead, and when the Republicans get tired of their own fight, they can rest awhile and enjoy themselves at watching their Democratic friends.

Not Yet Repaired.

The hole in the pavement on Superior street in front of the Providence building is still one of the principal objects that attract the attention of visitors and sightseers. The members of the board of public works say that the agents of the owners of the building were notified early last fall, and that, in order to make it more binding, another notice was served, the fifteen days allowed by the ordinance expiring on Monday next. The board is hampered in such matters by the fact that, under the regulations as they at present exist, there are so many loop-holes through which property owners may escape liability, which is then shouldered onto the city.

Health Officer Routh says that his department can take steps, under the authority conferred on it, that will bring the delinquent parties to time, but it would be necessary for the board of public works to take the initiative in referring the matter to the department of health, which it has not yet done.

TO TAX PAYERS.

Auditor's Office, St. Louis County:
Duluth, Minn., June 2, 1896.

A large number of our taxpayers and real estate owners seem to think if they pay taxes each year to the county treasurer that they have settled all obligations that may be assessed against their property.

That is not always true, and we wish to caution all such persons who own property in the city of Duluth that they must also make inquiries of the city comptroller in order to ascertain if there are any special assessments charged against their lands or lots, as the case may be.

Under the laws of this state the county treasurer collects all general taxes, but the city of Duluth collects all special assessments, such as street, sewer and sidewalk assessments.

For information regarding current taxes, address your inquiries to the county treasurer.

For information regarding delinquent taxes address the county auditor.

Make all checks and drafts, given in payment of taxes, payable to L. H. Whipple, county treasurer.

O. Halden,
County Auditor.

Benson's Trial.

Detective Benson appeared before Judge Boyle this afternoon and pleaded not guilty to a charge of assault preferred by Editor Morrison, of the Citizen. Attorney J. H. Norton, on behalf of Benson, demanded a jury trial, which was refused. By agreement between the attorneys, the trial was set for June 15, Benson being released on his own recognizance.

Detective Benson and J. L. Morrison Met Today.

John L. Morrison, editor of the Duluth Citizen, and Detective Benson met on the same track in front of the postoffice building today, and as a result of the collision each is nursing sundry spots in his physiognomy where the enemy landed. The engagement had only got fairly under way when an undismayed Grand Army man, who is used to scenes of carnage, intervened and the combatants separated.

The affair occurred about 8:30 o'clock. Benson approached Morrison and took the latter to task for "roasting" him. The detective asked the editor if he thought it was manly to continue his attacks after the former had retired from public service. The latter replied that it was no worse than the mean things the detective had said about him.

The lie passed about this time and the detective struck at the editor landing on his forehead and the editor countered with a blow under the detective's left eye, breaking a small artery, from which the blood spurted. They then clinched and hauled and backed around the sidewalk for awhile until a bystander interfered.

"Come down on the dock and have this out, and then we can shake and be friends," said the detective to the editor.

"I'm a little particular whom I choose for my friends—this matter will be settled in the municipal court," replied Morrison. Both parties were breathing hard and glaring. It was noticed that the editor's circulation had been greatly increased by the exercise.

After they had left the field the editor went down to the municipal court and swore out a warrant for the detective, and it was placed in Officer Forgy's hands for service.

When the war correspondent of The Herald visited the detective, he found the latter in dry dock repairing the leak in his countenance caused by the broken artery. The trial was set for this afternoon.

One Body Found.

The body of Ed Postal, one of the two boys who were drowned in the Cloquet river last Saturday, was found yesterday and taken to Bayha & Tibbett's undertaking rooms, where the funeral services will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment will be at Forest Hill cemetery.

The father of the boys was seen this morning. He said the body was found in an eddy about eighty feet below the spot where the boys were drowned. The search for the body of Ben is being prosecuted as fast as possible. The work is impeded a good deal by the necessity of opening the flood gates of the dam at short intervals to prevent an overflow.

First Length Laid.

The first length of pipe of the intake at Lakewood was laid at noon today, in the presence of Mayor Truelsen and D. A. Reed, of the board of public works. The proceedings were marked by democratic simplicity, there being no ceremony aside from a few remarks by Mr. Reed, who unwittingly intercepted a shovelful of dirt from the trench.

KENTUCKY

The Silver Men Carry All That They Desire in Lexington.

Majority Report on Credentials Carries By a Great Majority.

Some Louisville Delegates Get Mad and Leave the Hall.

Lexington, Ky., June 4.—The Democratic state convention reassembled at 9:30. It was after 10:30 before the committee could report on credentials, having been in session continuously all night. Senator Blackburn was accorded a rousing ovation on entering the hall. The committee on permanent organization supported a complete reorganization of county committees, as well as state organization, silver men being put in charge, with Maj. P. P. Johnston, of Lexington, chairman of both state, executive and central committees. This removes state headquarters from Louisville to Lexington.

Col. W. C. P. Breckinridge, after being repeatedly called for, had the distinction of being the only gold standard man to address the convention, except Chairman Long, in what was called yesterday his farewell address. Col. Breckenridge was given close attention, although he told the convention the recent silver victory was due to distress and discontent, and its results would be temporary.

The committee on credentials reported for an equal division of the vote between the contestants in Kenton county, the home of Carlisle, and for seating the silver delegates, in place of the music hall, Mr. Haldeman delegation, from Louisville. The report gave the silver men forty votes more than they cast yesterday for Bronson for temporary chairman.

A long discussion ensued on that part of the majority report unseating the gold delegates from Louisville, Col. Sone leading for gold, and G. T. Quinn for silver. Interruptions and disorder protracted the consideration of the report. The last effort of the Louisville delegates was to demand a call of the 119 counties on the adoption of the majority report.

The majority report on credentials was adopted—yeas, 678; nays, 214. Some counties did not vote, whereupon the delegates from the Forty-eighth legislative district, at Louisville, retired. G. K. Wheeler, of Paducah, was then introduced as the permanent chairman, and addressed the convention.

A fight was precipitated by a resolution to compliment Senator William Goebel, of Covington, by adding his name to the list of state committeemen from the state at large. Goebel is a neighbor of Carlisle, and a gold standard man. He opposed Blackburn until the latter secured the caucus and thereafter stood by him to the last. The object of the resolution was an expression for Goebel as against "the gold standard" members of the legislature who did not support Blackburn after he had the caucus nomination. The Goebel resolution, after another long interrupted call of counties, was adopted by a motion to make it unanimous before the call was completed.

Some delegates in the Fourth district objected to Senator George S. Fulton being on the state committee. It was charged that his brother was a revenue collector, although Senator Fulton is a silver man and was among those voting for Blackburn for senator in the legislature, yet certain delegates objected to any one being in the new organization who was even indirectly connected with the administration. Many speeches were made in support of the people controlling the organization.

After the convention had been greatly disturbed for over an hour, it was voted that delegates from the Fourth district retire and settle their dispute.

The Fifth district delegates, as well as those of the Fourth district retired. The Fifth district made no change. The Fourth district retained Senator Fulton.

KATE FIELD BURIED.

Body at Honolulu But May Come Home.

Honolulu, May 28, per steamer Alameda.—The funeral of Kate Field, who died here on the 19th inst., took place the day following. The body was embalmed and placed in a temporary vault. Final disposition of the remains will depend entirely upon the news which Consul General Mills receives from the United States. About the time she was preparing for her visit to the Islands, a coast paper published a statement to the effect that Miss Field had said she was going to Hawaii and might die there; if she did, she wanted her remains taken back to the United States and buried by the side of John Brown, at North Elba, New York.

The funeral was attended by President Dole, the members of the cabinet and a large number of leading citizens. Miss Field was taken ill on the 13th, at Kaliua, a small hamlet on Hawaii. She complained of feeling pains in her chest, but did not consider the matter serious. She took a bad turn, and a few days later was placed on board of an island steamer. She died half an hour after the vessel reached this port. Pneumonia was the cause of death.

M'GUFFEY IS DEAD.

London, June 4.—J. B. Robinson, the South African millionaire, has received a telegram from Pretoria saying that the four leaders of the Johannesburg reform would be released on Friday morning.

SCIENCE OF WAR.

New Publication By the War Department.

Washington, June 4.—The military information division of the war department has just issued a compilation of "Notes on Organization, Armaments and Military Progress," embodying all obtainable information from abroad touching the year's developments in the science of war.

The full strength and system of organization of armies of every country are given in detail, the kind and characteristics of their arms, with particular notes upon the small bore rifle and the results so far attending its use, the practical results of the many experiments made in Europe and in our own country with aluminum as a substitute for heavier metals used in the equipments of soldiers and lastly full drawings of the new Mannlicher and Bergemann automatic repeating pistols, which promise to entirely replace revolvers for military use.

THEY ARE MARRIED.

Frank Magowan and Mrs. Barnes' Little Romance.

Chicago, June 4.—F[illegible] Magowan, of New Jersey, and Mrs. J. A. Barnes were married last night. What was a rumor then was verified today in the office of the county clerk. It appears that Robert H. Winn, of New York, made application for and received the license, and that he carried it to the couple at the Victoria hotel, where the ceremony was performed in the presence of Mr. Winn and one or two other friends.

The wedding is the latest development in the domestic drama that has caused lively interest in Toronto, Cleveland, Trenton and New York.

MILWAUKEE STRIKE.

Company Has All the Men it Needs.

Milwaukee, June 4.—As a result of the frequent attacks on National avenue cars, beyond the city limits, the street railway company today decided to withdraw all cars from that line, beyond the limits, until such time as peace prevails, or sufficient protection is given by the county authorities.

The ranks of the street car strikers have been considerably reduced during the past week or ten days. A large number of the single men have left the city to secure work in other cities. The company has all the men it needs.

HOME MISSIONS.

Congregationalists in Session at New Haven Today.

New Haven, Conn., July 4.—The last day's session of the seventh anniversary of the Congregational Home Missionary society opened with the usual devotional exercises. At the conclusion of this part of the program President-elect Howard took the chair and the work of the convention proper began. Today's session was taken up mainly by the delivery of addresses and the reading of papers treating of various branches of the society's work. Among the most interesting features of the morning meeting was a paper by Secretary Joseph B. Clark on "A Look Backward" and an address by Rev. Epriam Adams, of the Andover-Iowa band. Other addresses were made.

THE VIRGINIA DEMOCRATS.

Silver Men in Control of the Convention.

Staunton, Va., June 4.—The Virginia state Democratic convention met today and selected delegates to the national convention at Chicago as follows: First district, J. W. G. Blackston, of Accomas, and Thomas E. Blakey, of Essex; Second district, M. Gleanan, of Norfolk, and J. F. West, of Nosemond; Third district, Thomas B. Murphy, of Richmond, and A. J. Bradley, of Manchester; Fourth district, Robert Turnball, of Brunswick, and Albert G. Southall, of Amelia; Fifth district, D. L. Belt, of Danville, and W. H. Sutherlin, of Carroll; Sixth district, Carter Glass, of Lynchburg, and William P. Barksdale, of Halifax; Seventh district, N. H. Walker, of Warren, and J. R. Wingfield, of Albemarle; Eighth district, S. R. Donahue, of Fairfax, and Wall, of Culpepper; Ninth district, W. E. Addison, of Wise, and Thomas Lynch, of Tazewell; Tenth district, C. M. Patterson, of Buckingham, and F. T. Glasgow, of Rockridge.

Chairman Ellison called the meeting to order and named J. Bell Bigger, of Richmond, for temporary chairman. In assuming the position, Mr. Bigger expressed the hope that harmony would characterize the proceedings of the convention. He also paid a compliment to Senator Daniel.

The committee on resolutions is composed almost entirely of silver men and Senator Daniel is the chairman. After the committees had been announced the convention took a recess until 3:30 p. m. Senator Daniel will write the platform that will be adopted. The gold men will put in a minority report and Hon. B. Munford and possibly Solicitor General Holmes Conrad will advocate it on the floor of the convention.

KILLED BY DOGS.

Horrible Fate of a Racine School Child.

Racine, Wis., June 4.—An 8-year-old son of Henry Acklam was torn to pieces by two bull dogs while returning from school last evening. A companion, who escaped from the beasts, reported the fact and directed the party which recovered the remains.

SEATED A COLORED MAN.

Washington, June 4.—The house by a vote of 153 to 33 today seated George W. Murray, a colored man, who has been contesting the seat of Mr. Elliott, Democrat, from the Shoestring district of South Carolina. Party lines were drawn save that Mr. Parker, a Republican, voted in favor of Mr. Elliott. Mr. Murray was escorted to the bar and sworn in amid vociferous Republican cheers.

REDUCED

Senate Cuts the Battleship Bill Down to Two Vessels.

Motion to Recede From Indian School Position is Defeated.

A Busy Day Among Congressional Members at the Capitol.

Washington, June 4.—The conference report of the naval appropriation bill was taken up in the senate, the pending question being Mr. Quay's motion that the senate recede from its amendment reducing the number of new battleships from four to two. Mr. Gorman said that two questions were involved: One, whether it was wise to order four battleships when defects in those already ordered had been disclosed, and when a board was in session considering improvements in construction; the other question was as to the expediency of this large expenditure at a time of financial stringency. "I am always in favor of a fair increase of the navy," said Mr. Gorman, "but I am unalterably opposed to building four ships, considering the condition of the treasury and the improvements made in naval construction."

The senator spoke of the charges made in the senate by Mr. Chandler, Mr. Tillman and others that the armor manufacturers were "robbing the government unmercifully." If this charge was true, the officers of the government were derelict in their duty in not reporting the fact to congress, and the work of shipbuilding should be stopped. Mr. Gorman did not believe any investigation had shown that Secretary Whitney or Secretary Tracy, the two great secretaries of the navy, who contracted with the Carnegie and Bethlehem works, had made improvident agreements. The senator considered the contracts wise and beneficial. Today the United States stood ahead of the world in its product of armor, the speed of ships and perfection of naval machinery.

Mr. Chandler asserted that information before the naval committee showed that the cost of production of armor plate at the Carnegie and Bethlehem works was less than $300 a ton, and that by a combination the price charged the government was $550 and $600 a ton.

Mr. Quay's motion to recede from the battleship amendment was defeated—17 to 33. The effect of this vote was to emphasize the disagreement between the house and senate, the former insisting on four and the later on two battleships. The items of ships and armor were committed again to conference.

A partial conference report on the Indian appropriation bill was agreed to—27 to 20. It covers a plan of establishing Indian citizenship, in the Indian territory, to be executed by the Dawes resolution.

Mr. Pettigrew, in charge of the Indian bill, then sought to have the remaining items of disagreement, including that of Indian schools, sent back to conference, but Mr. Lodge moved to recede from the senate amendment on sectarian schools. The house suspended appropriations to sectarian schools, but the senate amendment gave until July 1, 1898, for a change from contract to government schools. The motion to recede was defeated—yeas, 15; nays, 31, as follows:

Yeas—Republicans: Brown, Chandler, Clark, Dubois, Ballinger, Lodge, Mitchell (Oregon), Morrill, Platt, Quay, Sewell, Teller, Warren, Wilson—14. Democrats: George—1. Populists: Butler and Peffer—2. Total, 17.

Nays—Republicans: Allison, Carter, Davis, Hansbrough, Hawley, McBride, Pettigrew, Sherman, Shoup—9. Democrats—Bate, Berry, Chilton, Cockrell, Faulkner, Gorman, Harris, Hill, Jones (Arkansas), Lindsay, Mills, Mitchell (Wisconsin), Morgan, Palmer, Pasco, Pugh, Smith, Turpie, Vest, Vilas, Walthall and White—22. Total, 31.

The bill was passed granting a right-of-way through Fort Bliss military reservation to the El Paso and Northeastern Railroad company. At the request of Mr. Morgan his resolution calling on the president for information as to what, if any, demands had been made in the case of the Competitor, seized by the Spanish authorities, went over until tomorrow.

A joint resolution was reported by Mr. Morrill from the finance committee and passed, authorizing a scientific inquiry into the condition of the fur seals in the North Pacific. The resolution appropriated $50,000 for the inquiry, and authorizes the president to detail governmental officials to conduct the inquiry and a vessel for the needs of the commission. In connection with the resolution a letter was read from the treasury department stating that two British scientists were in the city with a view to prosecuting such an inquiry, and urging the need of an American inquiry.

Mr. Gear, chairman of the Pacific railroads committee, rose to make a statement as to the Union and Central Pacific railroad funding bill. He says $115,600,000 was due the government, and the debt would mature at an early day. It was incumbent on congress to take some action to protect the interests of the government. For this reason he moved that the bill now on the calendar be taken up on the eighth legislative day of the next session, and made the continuous order of business until action was secured. Mr. Morgan, who has made a minority report on the bill, says he cordially favored the motion, as the subject ought to be disposed of at the next session, as it was of great importance. Mr. Berry objected to any agreement, and raised the point of no quorum. Before a quorum could be summoned the morning hour had expired and the filled cheese bill was taken up. Mr. Gear stated, however, that he would renew the motion tomorrow.

THE DEFICIENCY BILL.

Washington, June 4.—The house has agreed to the final conference report on the general deficiency bill.

NO SIEGE DECLARED.

Constantinople, June 3.—(Delayed in transmission.)—A state of siege has not yet been declared in the island of Crete.

A BIG RACE.

Saturday's Handicap Event in St. Louis.

St. Louis, June 4.—President Saffitt and Secretary Aull, of the St. Louis Fair association, are supervising the reconstruction of the roof of the grand stand, which the recent cyclone carried off. It will be completed by Saturday, in time for the celebrated club members handicap race, the $6000 stake event, in which the cream runners of American thoroughbreds are entered. The big card Saturday with $6000 club membership handicap, is attracting general attention in turf circles, and a delegation from Chicago, Cincinnati, Louisville, Memphis, Nashville, Detroit, Kansas City, Cleveland, New Orleans and other racing centers will be here to witness this national event.

Among the celebrities that are likely to go to the post may be mentioned Buck Massi, Magno, Flyi[illegible] Dutchman, Ben Eder, Assignee, Simo[illegible] W.; Ben Brush. The race is conceded by followers of the turf to be the premier struggle, barring the national derby of 1896, and speculation will be lively. The work of the handicappers in assigning weights will bring the starters together on even terms.

SHOT THEIR FATHER.

Two Boys Fatally Wound Their Parent.

Clay Center, Kas., June 4.—Last evening John McCoy's two sons, Robert and Angus, shot and probably fatally wounded their father, a farmer. The boys then rode to town and gave themselves up and are now in jail. One year ago the parents were divorced. Later the father shot at his wife through a window and was afterward tried and acquitted on the ground of insanity. Lately the boys have been carrying revolvers with the knowledge of the county attorney for the express purpose of defending themselves if attacked by their father.

Tuesday night the old man took a horse from the home place, some distance south of here, where the mother and children were living. The boys then came up and took the horse from the place where their father was stopping. He mounted another horse and followed the boys, both of whom opened fire. A bullet passed through the father's lung, lodging near the back bone. Doctors say he cannot live.

BOOMING JAPAN.

Her Manufactures Are Increasing Very Rapidly.

Washington, June 4.—Some idea of the rapid progress Japan is making towards the object of her ambition—to become the manufacturing center of the far East—is conveyed by a report received at the state department from United States Consul General McIvor, at Kanagawa, on the present condition of cotton spinning industry in Japan. Using figures prepared for publication by the Japanese minister of agriculture, the reports show that all of the coarse threads formerly imported in great quantities from England and India are being displayed by home produced Japanese threads.

The finer qualities of English thread are still required, as the Japanese productions of these grades is still very limited. Before the end of the present year there will be a million spindles in operation in Japan. The imports of raw cotton have increased from 8,213,786 pounds in 1893, to 14,994,820 last year, while the imports of cotton from China and India increased in about the same proportion.

ECUADOR'S REVOLUTION.

Practically Ended By a Big Battle Last Tuesday.

New York, June 4.—A special from Panama to the Herald says: According to the news just received from Ecuador, the revolution was practically ended by a battle which was fought Tuesday at El Engel. Alfaro's forces defeated the rebel troops under the command of Gen. Rivadenira.

The battle lasted for more than three hours, and eighty rebels were killed and wounded, and then they fled, leaving behind three field pieces, arms and ammunition. Many of them were captured. Alfaro received a great ovation in Quito last night.

KRUEGER IS FUNNY.

Oom Paul Speaks in a Characteristic Way.

London, June 4.—A dispatch to the Times from Capetown says that President Krueger, replying to the thanks of the released reformers, made a characteristic simile, saying: "If my little dogs are naughty at times I must whip them, but I am always sorry to do so. The next time I must get hold of a big dog. My little dogs bark, but a big one bites."

This reference to Cecil Rhodes and the reformers shows accurately, the Times correspondent says, the feeling of the Boers on the subject.

FRANCE IS SYMPATHETIC.

New York, June 4.—A dispatch to the World from Madrid says: Among the reasons that have encouraged the Spaniards to look to France for assistance is the fact that at every stage of their difficulties with the United States and Cuba in the last seventeen months the French press has shown them more sympathy than the press of any other European nation. The Spaniards argue that even if France and Spain had not so many common interests in Morocco, in Mediterranean questions, and in Egypt, their financial and commercial connections alone would justify a close understanding.

STOPPED THE DUEL.

Madrid, June 4.—Marshal Martinez de Campos and Gen. Borero have not been arrested, as was reported yesterday. They met at a hotel in order to settle a personal difference regarding Cuba. A duel between them was about to commence when the captain general of Madrid appeared and stopped it.

LIGHTER THAN EXPECTED.

Minneapolis, June 4.—The fire early this morning in the Edison building was extinguished with a loss of $5000 on the building, and $15,500 on the contents, all fully covered by insurance.

HANDICAP

Brooklyn's Great Turf Event Transpired at Gravesend This Afternoon.

Track and Conditions Were the Most Favorable Known There.

Emperor William's Yacht, the Meteor, Wins Its First Race.

New York, June 4.—Better weather could not be desired for the opening day at the Gravesend race track for the Brooklyn handicap, which is one of the most important races of the year in this neighborhood, its only rival being the suburban, which will be run off on the opening day of the Coney Island Jockey club, the latter part of this month. The sky early in the day was clear and the rays of the June sun were tempered by a cool breeze which blew across the track and the prospects for a large attendance were exceedingly good. All through the morning hours the track was filled with horses at exercise. The candidates for the handicap were cantered slowly and then breezed a furlong through the stretch to put them in good condition. Every one of the candidates for the $10,000 was fit to run for his life, the latest list of horses, weight and jockeys being as follows:

Clifford, 125, A. Clayton.
Keenan 121, Griffin.
Counter Tenor, 120, Hamilton.
Sir Walter, 113, Taral.
Nanki Pooh, 112, Daggett.
Hornpipe, 111, Sheedy.
St. Maxim, 108, Simms.
Lake Shore, 103, J. Hill.
Paladin, 93, O. Leary.

The Brooklyn Jockey club has never been particularly fortunate in its choice of a day for the big race, as more than a majority of the days on which it is to be run have been anything but pleasant. The track has frequently been heavy, from some recent rains, or else the day been overcast with more or less rain. The day and conditions are changed. The track is neither deep in mud or in dust. There was rain recently enough to put it in a good condition, and when the last of the horses had completed their morning exercises, the harrows were put to work, and the dusty spots were wet down occasionally with hose to keep the track as fast as it has been for a day or two. Superintendent Brush thought that with such a good lot of fast horses entered there was no reason why the winner should not have to make under 2:07 to win and if he was hard pressed, as seemed likely, the track record ought to be broken.

While some of the interest in the race has departed owing to the absence of Henry of Navarre, Clifford has many admirers who have stuck to him ever since he was favorite in the suburban a few years ago. His splendid running at Morris park in his two races with Keenan have made him a strong favorite, and if he does not win there will be many disappointed. Few trainers at Gravesend this morning were willing to concede a possibility of his defeat. In spite of his bad showing in the Metropolitan handicap, Sir Walter had many followers. St. Maxim was considered to have a chance, in view of his race in the Metropolitan handicap, while there was a general opinion that Counter Tenor, the winner of the Metropolitan is handicapped too heavily at five pounds.

Keenan is not considered dangerous owing to his bad showing against Clifford, and if he is sent to the post it will only be because of the desire of August Belmont to see his colors in the race. Lake Shore and Paladin are the extreme outsiders, the former having run badly at Morris park, and the latter being a Western horse, and not the one recently disposed of by the Morris stable. Nanki Pooh is an unknown quantity, but the owners are clever people, and when it comes to a finish, the dickey legged colt may be heard from. Hornpipe is a very dangerous horse at the weights, for he is in good condition and Lakeland made no secret of his hopes this morning. He declared that he was afraid of nothing in the race and that the club-footed colt would be there or thereabouts at the finish.

At 2 o'clock Paladin was scratched from the handicap. At that time the grand stand was practically filled and the crowds were surging through the gates as fast as they could. When the horses went to the post in the first race, the lawn was packed, as well as the seats of the stand.

ENGLISH YACHTING.

Emperor William's New Cutter an Attraction.

London, June 4.—There was considerable interest taken today in the river matches of the Royal London Yacht club, in view of the fact that the new cutter Meteor, the property of Emperor William of Germany, was to be ready, with Lord Lonsdale on board, for the first time.

The course for the big cutters, open to all yachts exceeding forty rating, for a purse of £80 ($400), was from the lower hoop to and around the Mouse lightship and return to Gravesend, about fifty miles. In anticipation of witnessing the contest there was a big turnout of yachtsmen. The weather was warm and light winds prevailed.

The Meteor won the race for the big yachts in the regatta of the London Royal Yacht club. The Britannia was second.

NORTHWESTERN MILLING.

Minneapolis, June 4.—The Northwestern Miller says: The flour output at Minneapolis last week was 203,815 barrels against 219,575 for the same week last year. The market was pretty tame last week. Export shipments 53,000 barrels against 42,200 for the same week in 1895.

Constantinople, June 3.—(Delayed in transmission.)—The plague has broken out among the various Hamieh cavalry stationed at Cazoghnas in the villayet of Bitlis.

MISSIONS

The Seventieth Anniversary of the Congregational Home Missionary Society.

An Eloquent Address Delivered By Rev. C. H. Patton of Duluth.

Presents the Opportunities Here Offered For Missionary Work.

New Haven, Conn., June 4.—The seventieth anniversary of the Congregational Home Missionary society was held here last evening. After an address by Secretary Choat, Rev. C. H. Patton, of Duluth, spoke on behalf of Minnesota. Mr. Patton said:

I am glad to follow such an inspiring address as that of Secretary Choat, especially as he calls emphatic attention to the home missionary opportunity of Northern Minnesota. It was in obedience to the call of these opportunities that a year and a half ago I settled in Duluth, the key to the northern half of the North Star state, and to an immense territory beyond. If you will look at a map of Minnesota you will see that Lake Superior is in the shape of a great hand, with the index finger pointing to Duluth. That finger proved as irresistible to me as the hand of the man of Macedonia to the Apostle Paul. With this difference, however, when Paul crossed the Aegean sea, he found that it was not the hand of a man, but of a woman. In Duluth the manisall predominant—the man of business who has come from the East and from the West and the South, seeing the rare opportunities of the most western port on the great lakes. At a banquet given in Duluth some time ago the business men were addressed by one of their number, who began his remarks by saying: "When God Almighty, in the exercise of His creative Omnipotence, dashed from the hollow of His hand the sparkling waters of Lake Superior He meant business." This may not be a fair specimen of Western eloquence, but it does indicate the sentiment which draws men of business to our part of the country.

Let me, before proceeding farther, describe more exactly that part of the country we are in. In starting for Duluth I supposed I was going to the Northwest. But when I reached Chicago I found the people there considered that the Northwest gathered about the lower end of Lake Michigan. In St. Paul and Minneapolis they were equally certain that the Northwest was the territory immediately tributary to the Twin Cities. But this was nothing compared with the vehemence of the claim of Duluth to be the sole owner of all Northwestern territory. Then soon after arrival, the news came that the Northwest was on the Pacific coast, in the region of Seattle and Portland. In my bewilderment, I concluded to box the compass until I came to some quarter where I could rest secure. So I began: "N., N. by W., N. N. W.," and there I stopped, saying to myself, "That is where we are; to us belongs the North, North West." And it was not long before I found that our part of the country and more especially our part of the state of Minnesota deserved a title all her own by reason of developments scarcely equaled in the history of all the great Northern and Western regions. Let me indicate briefly some of the movements of population in Northern Minnesota.

The southern half of the state, with its rich farming lands, is nearly as well built up as Ohio or Illinois. Everything is prosperous down there. They have felt no hard times. The northern half of the state, however, is practically new territory, so scarcely settled that there has been room for a great tide of immigration of late. The immigration during the past year has been larger than for any year since 1886. You will probably be surprised to know that the government land offices at Crookston, St. Cloud and Duluth report nearly double as many homesteaded entries in 1895 as in any previous year. When we come to inquire of the railroads the flood of recent immigration appears even more marked. The land commissioner of the Great Northern railroad system writes me that the various railroads having land grants have sold in 1895 three or four times the amount of land disposed of in the year previous. An interesting fact as to this immigration is that it is not made up of foreigners to any great extent, but is largely of our native people. They come from all parts of the country, but more especially from Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois and Wisconsin. Of late there has been a considerable immigration from the manufacturing centers, and especially from those of Pennsylvania. This is to be explained in this way. When the panic came in 1893 there were thousands of laborers in manufacturing companies thrown out of employment who had laid by money in savings banks, not a few also owning their own homes. They have held on hoping for the revival of manufacturing or through inability to sell their homes. But with the continuance of the depression in business they have seen their savings rapidly dwindling. These men, now in middle life, were for the most part raised on farms. And now they argue that while they have any money left it will be wise to buy a little land or take out a homestead and go to farming. Twenty-five years ago Sir Thomas Hughes recently gone to his reward, raised the cry in behalf of the suffering laboring men, "Back to the soil," and it was with this in mind that he instituted the co-operative farming community in Tennessee. This cry is now being taken up by the laboring men themselves. Thus God is making the financial depression to work good to thousands in the way of correcting unhealthy social and economic conditions. Thus the cities are in a measure being relieved of their over-crowding. Thus a new and rich part of the country is being developed, and thus the Congregational Home Missionary society finds one of its grandest opportunities.

Another movement of population in our North Northwest it that of the great iron region, seventy-five miles north of Duluth. Within three years this has become the greatest iron producing region in the world. High grade Bessemer ore lies in great beds almost on the surface of the ground, and so soft in many places that it is mined with steam shovels. Last year the two leading companies spent $6,000,000 in developing and carrying on their mines. New mines are being opened rapidly, and towns are springing up like mushrooms. On the St. Louis river back of Duluth is a mighty water power which is bound soon to be turned into electricity and the electricity applied to the reduction of iron ore and to sundry industries. We think we have the seat of a future great manufacturing center at the head of the lakes. In the meantime wheat is being shipped as from no other port. Between 8,000,000 and 9,000,000 bushels were shipped during the first two weeks of navigation this spring. Add the lumber and Iron ore going out, and the coal and the other products of the East coming in, and you see the meaning of that index finger pointing to the North Northwest.

Let me mention one other section. One hundred miles to the north of the iron ranges is the Rainy Lake gold country, just beginning to open up. It may or it may not prove to rival Cripple Creek, but what I am sure of is that the explorations in the extreme north of the state will result in settlers developing that region for agriculture, lumbering and fisheries. Last fall I paddled in a birch bark canoe for 200 miles through those northern waters emptying into Hudson's Bay. I found a river flowing north along the state line as large as the Mississippi at St. Paul, and with falls at the foot of Rainy Lake as fine as those which have made Minneapolis the great flour center of the world. I noticed that the American bank of that river was wild forest land, but that the Canadian side was entirely occupied with productive farms, and has been for twenty years. The reason is that on the American side the immense Red Lake reservation stretches to the Lake of the Woods. But now the vacant parts of this reservation are being thrown open, and crowds of settlers are pressing in as in Oklahoma a few years ago.

Brethren, you see these three lines of opportunities: The general immigration from the manufacturing centers, the development of the Iron Range towns and the opening of the Red Lake reservation. These, to my mind, mark the Northwest as offering the very best home missionary opportunity in the country. Secretary Choat has well said that it amounts to the settling of a great region as large as the state of Ohio. What are we doing to enter into these new fields? Nothing practically in the way of new work. We have no missionaries on the Iron range. One has just begun. One of them shut up a saloon, a gambling den and a variety theater of the vilest kind at one stroke by buying them out and turning the place into a Congregational church. The saloon is now a reading room, the gambling den a lodging place, and the theater a meeting house. Within stone throw, however, of this institutional church are ten saloons. We have a new little work started in the Leech Lake region. We have three home missionary churches in Duluth of several years' standing, a line of scattered outposts along the Northern Pacific, and this is all. We are utterly unable to undertake new work, and these great openings staring us in the face, and these new communities are left to the gospel of the saloon, the brothel and the gambling hell. One year ago the society cut down our appropriation $1000. The cheering news just reaches us that this reduction must be continued for the current year. Imagine how this strikes us out there. We cannot help feeling that the index finger pointing to our grand opportunities is also a finger of shame pointing to the lethargy and selfishness of our churches in leaving these new villages without the gospel.

Let me say, as one who has lived East and now has moved West, that the East must keep on helping the West, and especially the North Northwest for some time to come. It is your Eastern capital which is building up our cities and towns. Yours are the mines, yours, to a large extent, the factories and mills. Eastern men receive the dividends of our prosperous companies and the interest from our mortgages and bonds. The rental from our great office buildings goes East every month. When our fair city of Duluth was last winter stricken with a fearful epidemic of fever it was through foul water sold us by a company whose stock and whose bonds were owned in New York, and whose manager was more concerned for the dividends and interest of his employers than for the lives of his neighbors. I mention this, not because there is any ill feeling towards the East. There is not, but only deep gratitude for the capital which has built up our churches and our colleges. But since we are owned so largely by Eastern men, naturally we must look in that direction for help. In the meantime we will work and we will give to our utmost ability and trust that you will supplement our efforts. In behalf of my brethren in the field I lay this great North Northwest region upon the consciences of this society, and pray you to see your opportunity.

Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup has always been kept up to the standard. It is the same it was forty years ago, the best sold.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

OREGON

Later Election Returns Show Two Populist Congressmen Are Elected.

There Are, However, Several Counties Yet to Be Heard From.

One of the Successful Candidates Drives a Laundry Wagon.

Portland, Ore., June 4.—According to the latest returns the Populists have elected C. D. Vanderburg congressman in the First district, and Martin Quinn in the Second district. The vote in the First district is complete with the exception of Curry county, and gives Vanderburg a plurality of 422. Curry county is expected to give a Republican plurality of about 100, making Vanderburg's plurality about 300 in the district.

In the Second district Quinn has 463 plurality over Ellis, Republican, with Grant, Harney and Malheur counties yet to hear from. Two years ago Grant county gave 300 Republican plurality; Malheur 90 Republican, and Harney, 40 Democratic. If a similar vote was cast Monday in these counties Quinn would still have 100 plurality.

The Republicans control both branches of the legislature and have 250 majority on joint ballot.

Mr. Quinn, who is probably elected to congress, was born in Pittsfield, Mass., in 1860. He learned the trade of a weaver and worked at it for a number of years. He came to Oregon about ten years ago, and for the past five years has been employed by a laundry company in this city as driver of a delivery wagon.

THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Drillers on Buttke farm, southeast of Buffalo, have just struck what is probably the strongest artesian water flow in the state, quite a shallow one in the Northwest. The water has burst the pipes far below the surface and gushes out for many feet around the original opening, heaping up immense quantities of sand and debris. Efforts to enclose it have so far been unavailing.

At the close of the Populist convention at Fargo the stockholders elected to start the establishment of a Populist paper to succeed the defunct Independent. Finlay Grant was chosen editor, and if sufficient encouragement is given by the state convention a paper will be started in Fargo.

The case of Mrs. G. F. Merchant vs. A. T. Cole has been concluded and judgment returned for $800 in favor of the plaintiff at Ellendale. Cole was alleged to have circulated slanderous reports regarding Mrs. Merchant, who instituted suit for defamation of character.

The time is rapidly passing and the question of an encampment for the militia boys is not settled, and the members of the different companies are getting a trifle anxious over the matter. There seems to be a lack of funds available for the event and it is stated that Governor Johnson announces that he will not order an encampment if there seems to be any likelihood of a deficit in the treasury in that particular fund. A meeting of the board has been called for Devil's Lake this week and the matter will undoubtedly then be determined finally.

Judge Sanborn, of the United States circuit court, held a special session at Fargo Tuesday and entered an order regarding the sale of the undisposed Northern Pacific lands, appointing Attorney Hamilton special master to dispose of the same. He also made an order for Judge Lochren to open court here June 9, in the absence of Judge Thomas, who is ill in New York.

George K. Hamilton has brought suit for an absolute divorce from his wife, Jeanette Hamilton, at Grand Forks. The parties were married in 1873 and lived together until 1892, when the wife and mother deserted him. They are parents of six children, the oldest 21 years of age and the youngest years. In the complaint the father asks for an absolute divorce and the custody of the minor children, claiming that the mother is an unfit person to have the care of the children and to look after their education. The case will come up for a hearing at the present term of the district court.

Archie Middleton, James Ferguson, James Middleton and Roley Middleton, the men who reside on Turtle river, in this county, who are charged by their neighbors with damming up a branch stream and thereby damaging their farms by the overflow, will be arraigned on Saturday before Judge McLaughlin on that charge at Grand Forks. Tracy R. Bangs has been retained by the quartet, and the case will be hotly fought in the courts. It is claimed that damage has been done to at least 5000 acres of valuable lands owned by the neighbors.

Henry Lokkeby, at Spiritwood lake, has been sold to William H. Seward post, G. A. R., of Jamestown, by the state, for $286.45, at the rate of $10.05 an acre. A year ago this same tract was sold to J. Winslow, for $4446, or at the rate of $156 an acre. A few months ago the contract was thrown up by Winslow after he paid one-third of the purchase price, and was readvertised for sale. The sale was conducted rather precipitately and is claimed to have occurred before the regular advertised hour and will be contested.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

There is considerable doubt at Yankton whether Dr. Coney, from a bite by whom Commodore Coulson died, can be held responsible. However, he has been rearrested and bound over. After Coulson was injured in his encounter with Dr. Coney his finger was dressed by a druggist. A couple of days later it was dressed by a physician. A few days later still his hand began to pain him and the family physician was called in. Even then the injury was regarded as of little consequence, and it is said simple remedies were applied. A few days later the family physician was requested to call counsel, and was soon relieved of the case by Mr. Coulson's family. It was at this time that the serious nature of the case was discovered. It was held by Coney that in the early treatment the case was misunderstood and the wrong treatment applied.

Thomas J. McDonald was killed at the Kildonan mill at Pluma, one mile from Lead City yesterday morning. He was oiling the main shaft, which is eight feet from the floor, and in order to reach it he mounted a scaffold. In so doing he had to stoop, and while passing from one bearing to another his clothes caught and threw him around so violently that he died two hours later. He was single and about 35 years of age. He was oiling to accommodate a friend. The question will be whether the company was negligent in not boxing the shaft.

H. B. Wynn, cashier of the American State bank, of Yankton has announced himself a candidate for governor on the Populist ticket. The field is practically clear for him. Great dissatisfaction exists over the indifference of Andrew Lee, from whom the party once had great hopes.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Duluth, Pierre & Black Hills railroad at Pierre, officers and directors were elected as follows: J. C. Eager, president; H. R. Horner, vice president; L. B. Albright, secretary; A. E. Ewert, treasurer; Coe I. Crawford, general manager. The other directors are James A. Ward and W. S. Wells, of Huntsville, Ala.

A barn belonging to J. M. Peasle was burned and Peasle's 4-year-old son, who was playing in the barn, perished, near Newark.

At a Philadelphia fire last night Mrs. Mary Emmet and Mrs. Mary Sullivan leaped from third story windows to the street. Mrs. Emmet is dead and Mrs. Sullivan is dying.

MANY DROWNED.

East St. Louis Cyclone Victims in the River.

St. Louis, June 4.—It has been feared that a large number of the people now reported missing from East St. Louis found watery graves. In the light of recent developments it seems as though these rumors were not unfounded, for in the past two days two bodies have been dragged from the Mississippi. A boy and an unknown woman were taken from the water near East Carondolet. A man named Messing, who formerly lived at 1636 North Nineteenth street, was found in the water near the dyke near the East St. Louis elevator. Messing was employed in the Donk Bros.' coal yards, and was known to have been near the river front the night of the storm. It was supposed that he was blown into the river.

In addition to this a large number of horses and other animals have been found in the debris which has collected on the banks. A number of these horses were fully harnessed and as the storm occurred at a time when the river front was crowded with teams going to and from East St. Louis with the last load of the day, it is thought that a number of drivers have been swept into the stream. There is no way to fully determine the number of missing. William Hartingan, of Birmingham, Ala., who was reported dead, is alive and is not hurt.

Contributions of money and clothing continue to pour in and thousands of people have received aid in one shape or another. The total amount of contributions received is $161,658.

WEST END

Marriage of Miss Kirby and John Forin Next Tuesday Evening.

Wedding of E. L. Prescott and Miss Crosby is Announced.

Hoyt & Barnes Have Dissolved, Mr. Barnes Continuing the Business.

The month of roses will see the marriage of several West Duluth young people, some of whose weddings have been announced, and others who have not. The most immediate one to take place is that of Miss Frances Kirby and John Forin, who is connected with the firm of Wells-Stone. The nuptials will take place at St. James Catholic church, next Tuesday evening. The church will be beautifully decorated, and the services will be most impressive. Miss Kirby has officiated as organist and teacher of the choir for some time, and has often taken a prominent part in musical entertainments in this part of the city, and in church and society matters as well.

Cards have been received for the wedding of Edward Lang Prescott and Miss Helen Bates Crosby, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Francis M. Crosby, of Hastings. The ceremony will take place at the Presbyterian church at Hastings on June 17, at 5:30 p. m. They will make their home in West Duluth after July 15.

DISSOLVED PARTNERSHIP.

The well known insurance firm of Hoyt & Barnes has dissolved partnership. Mr. Barnes has purchased the interest of C. W. Hoyt in the business, and will hereafter carry it on in his own name. This makes the third advancement in the business for Mr. Barnes since his coming to West Duluth, he having previously purchased and consolidated two other prominent insurance firms.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Maji Sharp and wife and Miss Sharp arrived home last evening from an extended visit at Fort Leavenworth, Kas.

Services preparatory to communion will be held in Westminster Presbyterian church tonight and tomorrow night.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cowen celebrate this afternoon and evening their paper wedding at the home of Mrs. Cowen's parents on Fourth avenue. About forty invited guests joined in the festivities.

Michael Flynn, of the West Duluth fire department, and Miss Molston, of the West End, were married at St. Clement's church yesterday morning. Father George officiated. They have taken up their residence on Fifty-sixth avenue.

A Druggist Arrested.

Robert O. Sweeney, proprietor of the Museum drug store at Lester Park, was arrested this afternoon on a charge of selling liquor without a license. The hearing was set for tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. The complaint charges Sweeney with selling whisky in pints to three persons. The penalty is a fine of not more than $100, and imprisonment for not more than ninety days.

Berg a Candidate.

The fight for the commissionership in J. C. Helm's district is becoming more complicated, new candidates coming forward every day until there are now about eight or ten out for the nomination. Ole Berg has come forward now and will endeavor to clean out the Helm-Swanstrom and any other crowds that may get in his way.

ENGLISH DERBY.

Still Glorying Over the Prince's Success.

London, June 4.—The prince of Wales and a large party left Victoria station by train today for Epsom, this being the third day of the summer meeting there. The victory of the prince's colt, Persimmon, yesterday, when he captured the derby stakes, aroused a degree of enthusiasm that had not subsided today and attracted a large crowd about the depot to witness the departure of the royal party. The prince was most enthusiastically cheered and the crowd closed so tightly around his carriage that the police had great difficulty in clearing a passage for the vehicle and in restraining the people.

Fourteen horses started in the race for the Royal stakes handicap of 1000 sovereigns, Mr. Rutherford's Break of Day won, Lord Scotland's Keelson was second, and Leopold De Rothschild's Grig third.

A BOND BILL BACKSET.

Washington, June 4.—The house committee on ways and means, by a vote of 13 to 2, decided to report the senate bond bill adversely. The vote was as follows: Republicans—Dingley, Payne, Dalzell, Hopkins, Grosvenor, Russell, Dolliver, Steele, Johnson, Evans, Tawney; Democrats—Turner, Cobb. For a favorable report — Democrats — McMillan and Wheeler. Absent, Crisp and McLaurin, both of whom it is supposed would have voted for a favorable report.

There was little discussion of the resolution. Republicans spoke of it as a Populist measure. Mr. Grosvenor made the motion for an adverse report, which was carried, after Mr. Wheeler's motion for a favorable report had been voted down. Chairman Dingley has prepared the majority report and Mr. Wheeler will make one for the minority.

HOME-SEEKERS' EXCURSION.

South and West, June 9 and 23, via "The North-Western Line" (Omaha railway). Very low rate. Full particulars at 405 West Superior street.

COCKROACHES are a nuisance. Exterminate them. ROACHLINE will do it. 25c, extra size 75c, at all druggists.

The big, hearty, healthy man is a continual irritation to his dyspeptic friend. Constipation is the root of nine-tenths of the sickness of men, and of a large proportion of the sickness of women. It can be cured easily, naturally and quickly. Nature is continually working as hard as she can to throw off impurities, and to force out poisonous refuse matter. When there is an impediment, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets set the wheels working again without any trouble. They assist nature in a gentle, healthful, efficient way. There is nothing violent about their action, and yet it is just as certain as if it were twice as violent. "You do not become a slave to their use." They are different and better than any other pill for the cure of constipation, headache and kindred derangements. Almost all druggists understand this, and are conscientious enough to tell you so. The druggist who tries to sell you a substitute is not a safe man from whom to buy medicine.

THE PRODUCE MARKET.

There was not much of interest in the market on Michigan street today, except that supplies were plentiful. Some Wisconsin berries were in the market, but they were extra fine and were snapped up right away.

NORTHWESTERN ROAD.

Fine Showing Made at the Annual Meeting.

Chicago, June 4.—The stockholders of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad held their annual meeting here today. Among the notable stockholders present were Oliver Ames and D. P. Kimball, Boston; H. McK. Twombly and M. L. Sykes, New York, and Benas Crane, Dalton, Mass. The statement of operations was one of the most satisfactory ever presented. It showed that after paying 7 per cent dividend on the preferred and 5 per cent on common stock, there remained nearly $2,000,000 to be added to the surplus, these figures not including receipts from land sales.

The statement for the year ending May 31, showed: Gross earnings, $31,426,341; operating expenses, $28,328,545; net receipts, $3,107,796; income from investments, $257,969; total net income, $3,365,767; dividends 7 per cent on preferred, $1,563,975; 5 per cent on common $1,963,982.

The following retiring directors were re-elected: W. K. Vanderbilt, F. W. Vanderbilt, H. McK. Twombly, New York; Byron L. Smith, Cyrus H. McCormick, Chicago, and John I. Blair, Blairstown, N. Y. The officers of the company are: Marvin Hughitt, president; M. L. Sykes, first vice president, treasurer and secretary; H. M. Kirkman, second vice president; W. H. Newman, third vice president; Lloyd W. Bowers, general counsel. Prior to the stockholders' meeting the board of directors met and declared dividends of 1¾ per cent for the quarter on preferred and 2½ per cent for the half year on the common stock.

RICH GOLD MINES.

Vancouver, B. C., June 4.—A Vancouver syndicate has just completed negotiations for the purchase of ten rich claims accidentally discovered in Cayuse Creek, in the Lillooa district, by a half breed, while hunting mountain sheep a few days ago. Lillooa has long been known as a rich gold district, and especially near Cayuse Creek. Miners and prospectors have for a long time searched for the mother vein, which it is believed has at last been discovered. The vein of the strip is 120 feet deep, and is shown to be 8 feet wide. Assays run 605 to the ton.

BULLISH

News of the Wheat Market Today Was Decidedly Bullish.

Yet the Market Ruled Weak All Morning and Sold Lower.

Towards Noon it Braced Up and Assumed a Stronger Tone.

The large Northwest receipts, over 425 cars, were somewhat against the wheat market this morning and July opened a little weaker. Cables came higher and the Price Current report was bullish, but there was considerable selling on the belief that a small short interest now existed and the price gradually eased off. In fact notwithstanding the most stimulating news has come to hand in months the market was heavy almost to sinking clear out of sight all forenoon and not until after 12 o'clock did it show the slightest inclination to respond to the encouragement it continued to receive. The deterioration in the condition of growing winter wheat was emphasized early in the session when the Ohio state report was found to make its present status 19, as compared with 55 on May 1. The Liverpool market was quoted firm and ½d higher at the opening. The clearances of wheat and flour from the Atlantic seaboard were very much heavier than they have been since last fall. Boston showed shipments of 317,000 bus of wheat, New Orleans 60,000 bus, Baltimore 96,000 bus and New York 132,000 bus. That was all known without preventing the price of wheat from declining. It was not until the Michigan state report made the condition for that crop 62, as compared with 92 a month ago, that the market began to give signs of returning animation, and not till a lot of 200,000 bus of wheat was reported worked at Chicago for shipment that it became braced up to the point of an aggressive return.

July opened here unchanged but weak at 57⅝c, declined to 57¼c, reacted to the opening figures but again fell off and sold down to 57¼c. Towards noon it began to get firmer, and sold up to 58¼c during the noon. Towards the close it eased off to 58¼c, but closed at 58¾c asked. Trading was quite active. The mills bought 30,000 bus at ¼c over July and shippers took 20,000 bus at the July price. The close was ⅛c higher all round than yesterday. Following were the closing prices: Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 58¾c; July, 59¼c. No. 1 northern, cash, 58¼c; June, 58¼c; July, 58¾c asked; September, 58¾c asked. No. 2 northern, cash, 55¼@57¾c. No. 3, 52¾@54¾c. Rejected, 50¾@54¾c. To arrive—No. 1 hard, 59¼c; No. 1 northern, 58¼c. Rye, 32c. No. 2 oats, 18½@19c; No. 3 oats, 18@18½c. Flax, 82c.

Car inspection—Wheat, 231; oats, 15; rye, 11; barley, 27; flax, 3. Receipts—Wheat, 194,952 bus; oats, 47,059 bus; rye, 13,131 bus; barley, 23,246 bus; flax, 2931 bus. Shipments —Wheat, 82,715 bus; oats, 133,310 bus; barley, 18,259 bus.

NEW YORK GRAIN.

New York, June 4.—Closed: Wheat, 64½c; July, 64⅝c bid; August, 64c; September, 64¾c asked; December, 69¼c asked. Corn, July, 34⅝c asked. Oats, July, 23¼c.

GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 207 Board of Trade.

Chicago, June 4.—After an easy opening wheat relied dull and weak in the absence of buying orders and declined in the face of very bullish news. Seaboard clearances, wheat and flour, figured up about 750,000 bus. French cables quoted higher markets and gave crop conditions which might be construed as bullish. St. Louis quoted weak market for cash wheat and advices of the movement of new wheat. Some export business here and some covering of short wheat for foreigners. But the action of the day came with rumors of very low averages in the crop reports of Michigan, Indiana and Ohio. These caught the local interest short and brought out a good deal of covering as well as fresh buying from outside points and with the added help of two or three leading local operators on the bull side a quick advance occurred with rapid fluctuations. Outside prices were not maintained but the feeling at the close was strong and if the state reports are confirmed by the government report on June 10, we are apt to have active and advancing markets.

Corn and oats advanced under good buying by shorts and a better shipping demand.

Provisions met with good demand and were firm despite the efforts of the bears to break the market.

Puts, July wheat, 56¾@57¼c.
Calls, July wheat, 58½c.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Nothing Very Striking Seen in the Opening.

New York, June 4.—The stock market opened irregular with variations slight. The railways displayed an improving tendency under the news of a rally in the London prices for Americans. The Industrials, however, were inclined to sag, with Sugar ¾ lower, on news of reductions in foreign grades for the product. Silver certificates were strong on speculative buying, $71,000 changing hands at 69¼@⅝.

The general market displayed a reactionary tendency after 10:15, under pressure from the traders who are disposed to operate on the short side. London operations were slight, and embrace sales of Louisville & Nashville and St. Paul and New Jersey Central. Tobacco and Sugar declined a point. Reading was more freely traded in at 11 o'clock, and yielded to 9¼ on the official declaration of foreclosure proceedings. The speculation in silver certificates continues to attract attention, with further purchases of $3000 at 69¼.

Missouri Pacific was conspicuous in the trading of the second hour, and broke 1⅜ per cent on the statement showing a decrease of earnings for May. The other shares were quiet, and but little changed, although a subsidence of the earlier figures was noted. The market at noon was steady, and at a fraction above the low point.

The Northern Pacific Steamship company's steamer Olympia, to sail from Tacoma, June 21, will connect at Hong Kong with the steamer Congello, sailing from that port about July 25 for Port Natal, East London, Delagoa Bay and Cape Town, in South Africa. Freight will be carried on this steamer, and through bills of lading issued to cover. For freight and passenger rates call on R. A. Eva, general agent North-ern Pacific railroad, Spalding Hotel block, Duluth.

EGYPTIAN COTTON CROP.

Washington, June 4.—Inspired by the high prices realized by the cotton crop of 1895-96, Egyptian planters have this spring increased the area to the maximum limit permitted by the country's irrigation facilities. Exact figures are not procurable, but it is estimated that the increase is from 5 to 8 per cent, and that this season's area approximates 1,150,000 acres. The greatest percentage of increase is in the provinces south of Cairo.

ANOTHER DEFICIT.

The Washington correspondent of the Chicago Record says that the financial statement for May was a great disappointment to the president, Secretary Carlisle, Postmaster General Wilson and others who have been predicting and hoping for an increase in revenue. Last summer the receipts reached $29,000,000 a month for two successive months, and a similar phenomenon was expected this year, but the corrected figures show that the total receipts for May were but $24,643,717, while the expenditures were $28,426,592, leaving a deficit of nearly $4,000,000. The deficit for the fiscal year thus far is $26,981,874. Still the secretary of the treasury says that we have revenue enough. The present year shows a slight improvement over 1895, but it is an unfavorable feature that the improvement was all at the beginning of the year. The total receipts for eleven months up to the end of May have been $299,536,450. If the receipts for June are $25,000,000, as they ought to be, the total for the year will be $324,000,000. In 1893 they were $389,000,000; in 1894, $293,000,000, and in 1895, $309,000,000.

"Secretary Carlisle," adds the correspondent, "explains that the general depression of business and the disturbing effects of the silver agitation are to blame for the small income of the government, although the receipts from tobacco, beer and other luxuries are running well up to their usual average. The old clerks in the treasury, however—those who have been at the receipt of customs for a generation—are very free to say that the secretary is deceived by his own theories, and that the present amount of revenue is all that could be reasonably expected under the Wilson bill."

The secretary is right in the conclusion that the government's small income is due to the depression of business. This is the only cause. It is absurd on his part to assert that another cause of the deficit is "the disturbing effect of the silver agitation." How could that agitation have any adverse effect on the government's revenue, particularly when state convention of the Republican party declared against silver and in favor of the gold standard, and when it is almost a certainty that a strong gold plank will be inserted in the St. Louis platform? The secretary might, with as much reason, ascribe the trouble to the tariff agitation, which has crystallized in the wonderful popular movement in favor of Maj. McKinley for president. Equally astray are the treasury clerks who blame the Wilson tariff law because no more revenue has been secured. The tariff law is not justly entitled to blame. A higher tariff would not produce more revenue. The trouble is that the people have little money and are buying less of the luxuries of life, and it is from the duties levied on these luxuries that the greater part of the customs revenue of the government is derived. The basis of all our troubles is the currency system, and there will be no radical change in the right direction until this country returns to the policy of bimetallism.

BISHOP WHIPPLE ILL.

The St. Paul Dispatch reports that Bishop Whipple, the venerable bishop of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Minnesota, is very ill at Faribault and grave fears are entertained respecting his recovery. The following tribute paid by the Dispatch to the distinguished and beloved bishop will be heartily re-echoed by the members of the Episcopal church in Duluth and by hundreds of others here who have learned to admire "the grand old man" whose life has been largely devoted to missionary work in the Northwest:

"No prelate in any Christian hierachy in the United States is more endeared to the people than this venerable bishop, whose whole life nearly has been spent in the work of the Christian church on the frontier, and whose missionary labors among the Indian tribes of the Northwest, as well as among the pioneer whites, in that region, have become an essential and important part in the religious history of the great group of new states that, in the past forty years, has been carved out of the wilderness. Bishop Whipple has more than completed the psalmist's three-score years and ten. His face, form and gentle voice are familiar to thousands of men, women and children, who have been the object of his wise and Christian ministration, and his loving and apostolic counsel and direction. To the Christian church of the Northwest, where he has labored with zeal, Christian piety and effectiveness, he appears as one of the early fathers, in teaching and example, and his death will carry profound sorrow into nearly every household in the great field of his missionary and truly Christian work."

THE TROUBLE IN CRETE.

There is a probability that the troubles in Crete may have serious results. The Eastern question is always raising its head at unexpected times and in different forms. The relations of England and the Triple Alliance are now likely to be put to the test by this latest trouble. Crete belongs by kinship to Greece, but England has long cast covetous eyes upon it, being desirous of completing her chain of influence on the Mediterranean, which now extends from Gibraltar through Malta and Cyprus to Alexandria, where it is prolonged by her domination of the Suez canal. With Crete as one of her possessions, English influence would dominate the Mediterranean entirely. To those in this country who keep posted in regard to foreign affairs and the constant but quiet struggle that is proceeding between the various European countries to extend their territory and power, the situation presents many interesting aspects.

The Boston Transcript takes the view that the Triple Alliance, which is endeavoring to smoke England out and compel her to openly cast her lot with them, may be expected to antagonize England's aspiration. Russia is ostensibly pledged to maintain the integrity of the Turkish empire, and this pledge she will faithfully keep until the time shall come when all Europe is embroiled. Then will arrive the opportunity for her long cherished design for a dash on Constantinople. Still, if she had to choose between Greece and England holding Crete, Russia's policy and interests would move her to cast her vote for Greece, for the latter is comparatively weak, while England holding Crete would block Russia's exit from the Black sea through the channels and waters that lead into the Mediterranean. Russia's policy and England's, though opposed to each other, have practically the same effect of keeping up the Turkish empire. Each is biding its time in the hope of getting all. No one can tell when one or the other may conclude that the time is ripe, and may strike the first blow that will embroil all Europe in a tremendous war.

The catalogue of Hamline university for the year 1895-6 is at hand. This institution of learning has become a university in fact as well as in name. A fully equipped medical department was added during the past year, and a divinity school has been organized and will open this fall. A school of law is one of the probabilities of the immediate future. There were enrolled this year in the college of liberal arts 156 students; in the preparatory department, 124, and in the college of medicine, 82. The increase particularly in the college of liberal arts is very encouraging, the number of students there having more than quadrupled in the last eight years. The graduating class of 1896 numbers twenty-five.

If the St. Paul Globe thinks that its uncalled for and ungrammatical sarcasm directed at Congressman Towne is appreciated even by Democrats in Duluth, it is sadly mistaken. Mr. Towne may be guilty of the sin of being comparatively young, but he is old enough to have acquired a pretty good knowledge of public questions, in which particular the Globe is frequently exhibiting the densest ignorance.

The premium list of the state fair to be held at Hamline from Aug. 31 to Sept. 5 has been issued. It shows that special efforts are being put forth to make the exhibition, in variety, magnitude and interest, the greatest ever attempted by the society. Because of the national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic and other important events of general interest to be held at the same time, an enormous attendance is expected, not only from Minnesota, but from all the states of the Union. Unusual efforts, therefore, will be made to secure large exhibits in each department—exhibits that will fittingly represent the varied resources and industries of the state. The premiums offered are large, aggregating over $15,000.

In view of the attacks made upon Congressman Towne by the goldbug press and the political representatives of Wall street, from William R. Merriam down, it is proper that Duluth Republicans should give him an enthusiastic reception on his return from Washington, and thus show to the whole country that his course in congress is endorsed at his own home.

The St. Paul Dispatch of last night printed an excellent picture of "Maj. Fielder B. Chew, of Duluth." Why it did this does not appear, unless it be that the major's pulchritude caught the eye of the Dispatch's artist. Or possibly it is the entering wedge of a boom for governor or president.

A letter to The Herald from a Duluth gentleman now visiting in the East says that nobody in New York, except the Tribune, believes that McKinley will be nominated at St. Louis. There is, therefore, a great surprise in store for the Gothamites.

The meeting of the Republican league last night showed very clearly that the silver sentiment is stronger than ever among Duluth Republicans, even if the News Tribune preaches goldbug doctrines.

There was a story afloat that Senator Cullom would present the name of Col. Fred Grant as a candidate for vice president at the St. Louis convention, but the senator says the idea never entered his head.

There are symptoms that Mr. Platt now desires to follow Mr. Quay's example and make peace with Maj. McKinley. A pilgrimage to Canton by the New York boss would create a sensation.

St. Louis county Republicans cannot consistently support the Merriam-Clough machine. Political wisdom dictates that they should send a Lee delegation to St. Louis.

The McKinley managers still insist that Tom Reed will be nominated for vice president, but Joe Manley asserts that Reed will not accept.

The river and harbor bill has become a law, in spite of the president's veto. The vote in the senate was as emphatic as that in the house.

It is stated that Lord Dunraven will not race the Valkyrie this year. Perhaps nobody will go into a race with him.

As the date of the St. Louis convention draws near "the original McKinley man" becomes more numerous.

Senator Quay now has a front seat on the McKinley band wagon. The Pennsylvania boss never gets left.

There has not been a single valid reason presented why Dave Clough should be nominated for governor.

IT IS PLEDGED.

An Outside View in Regard to This County.

Little Falls Transcript: There has been some discussion as to how St. Louis county would go in the contest between Lee and Clough for the governorship, and it is evident that the desire of the question is to be given out. And from certain sources the expressions are all one way. For instance, last Friday's St. Cloud Journal Press contains the following:

"State Boiler Inspector Larson, of Duluth, is in the city and will inspect the boilers in this section of his district. He says Clough will carry St. Louis county dead sure, and that The Herald is not at all posted on the situation."

The St. Paul Pioneer Press contains an article in which it is announced that:

"Deputy Dairy Commissioner Snyder called at the capitol this morning and declared that Clough will carry St. Louis county in the coming contest."

"The St. Paul Pioneer Press of the same date contained an interview with William Getty, of Duluth, chairman of the St. Louis county Republican committee, in which Mr. Getty is quoted as declaring Clough to be the leading candidate for governor. Mr. Getty being a representative state office of surveyor general of logs and lumber for the Duluth district. The state employes have doubtless received proper instruction to claim their counties for Clough, and these appointees at least did their duty that day.

That ought to convince any reader that Lee was not in it in St. Louis county! By the way, supposing Lee was in the lead in St. Louis county, would the state appointees sing their song just the same? Do state appointees have rule or "duties" to perform outside of their official lines—one is to claim their counties for Clough, and the other is to work to carry their counties for Clough. The Republican party of this state has not yet fallen entirely into the control of the feeders at the public crib.

WONDERFULLY UNSELFISH.

Crookston Tribune: The Pioneer Press tried to run a two-edged sword into Mose Clapp last Saturday, by printing a very cunningly constructed editorial. Clapp is given due credit for his ability and integrity, but the P. P. says that Ramsey county has had too many governors already, and has a state senator and a clerk of the supreme court, and must not ask for anything more. Such unselfishness on the part of the P. P. is simply past belief, and would be past understanding were it not known that the P. P. is largely owned by Merriam, and is fighting Clapp in the interest of Clough. They can't say anything against Clapp and they haven't got gall enough to say very much in favor of Clough, so they evolved this grand idea of unselfishness. It's wonderful.

OTTER TAIL FOR CLAPP.

Perham Bulletin: The people of this end of the county, without regard to party, would like to see Moses E. Clapp receive the Republican nomination for governor. Mose wears no corporation collar, and he could be relied upon running the office to the interest of the people. Otter Tail county will undoubtedly send a solid delegation for him.

BRAVE SPIRITS BROKEN.

How often women wake up in the morning cheerful and happy, determined to do so much before the day ends, and yet:—

Before the morning is very old, the dreadful BACKACHE appears, the brave spirit sinks back in affright; no matter how hard she struggles, the "clutch" is upon her, she falls upon the couch, crying:—"Why should I suffer so? What can I do?"

Lydia E. Pinkham's "Vegetable Compound" will stop the torture and restore courage.

All such pains come from a deranged uterus. Trouble in the womb blots out the light of the sun at midday to a vast number of women.

Be advised—do as many others have done and are doing—procure Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, and commence without delay to realize the relief it is sure to bring you.

JUDGE STEARNS' CAREER.

St. Paul Pioneer Press: The death of O. P. Stearns, of Duluth, takes away one of the most active and influential of the builders of that city. Judge Stearns was formerly a law partner of Judge Start at Rochester, and he had the pleasure two years ago of nominating his old associate to the office of associate justice of the supreme court. Judge Stearns, a quarter of a century ago, by appointment served out the unexpired term of Senator Norton made vacant by the death of the latter. He was a man of considerable ability, and his loss will be seriously felt at Duluth, to whose interests he was always loyal.

Minneapolis Penny Press: The death of Judge Stearns, the eminent Duluth jurist, will be deeply felt throughout the Northwest. His eminence on the bench, his signal fairness and fearlessness, his fidelity to the public interest under all circumstances, his long residence in Minnesota and wide acquaintance among all classes, made him generally revered and beloved. For years he was one of the regents of the state university. He has been prominent and active in many public movements, and he has been sought through his popularity to accept various positions of honor. The friends of the free coinage cause in Minnesota remember him as the first member of the Minnesota bench to espouse their cause. It was his decision with that of Senator Morgan, on the platform committee of the Republican convention of Minnesota in 1894, that committed that platform so strongly to silver, that the gold press of the state repudiated it. It was in large measure the influence of his sterling integrity and sound judgment, that built up in Duluth and the Sixth congressional district that strong free coinage sentiment which has enabled Congressman Towne to take his courageous stand and in doing it retain the support of his district. The country loses seriously in the death of Judge Stearns.

EATS CROW GRACEFULLY.

Minneapolis Journal: The Duluth News Tribune, commenting on the action of the St. Louis county Republican committee in refusing to bunch the conventions there, says that "while the prevailing sentiment among the citizens was undoubtedly in favor of a bunched convention, the committee wisely chose, in the interest of harmony, to keep them separate." It would be hard to guess from reading the News Tribune now that it was not among the first in Duluth to demand separate conventions. Instead of being, as it was, the persistent advocate of the "bunched" idea.

THE NEW MAN LULLABY.

Sleep, baby sleep,
In slumbers sound and deep;
Thy mother's on the battlefield
Amid the cannon's shocks,
While father watches by thee, dear,
And darns thy little socks,
And darns thy little socks;
While father sings his babe to sleep
And darns thy little socks.

Sleep, baby sleep;
Sweet watch the angels keep
O'er mother on the battlefield,
The bravest of the "vets,"
While father rocks thy little crib
And mends his pantalets,
And mends his pantalets;
While father sings his babe to sleep
And mends his pantaltes.

PEASE OBJECTS AGAIN.

Anoka Union: For a paper that is neither he, she or it, The Duluth Herald has more to say what the Republican party should do or not do, than any in the Sixth district.

PROSPECTS GOOD.

Minneapolis Tribune: The indications are favorable for a successful and profitable immigration convention for the Sixth district at Grand Rapids, on June 24. This is one of the most highly favored regions of this rich state, and once homeseekers are brought face to face with its beauties and advantages it will be only a question of short time when it will become thickly settled and generally prosperous.

COLORED WOMEN.

Address to Federation Friends is Issued.

Washington, June 4.—The National Federation of Afro-American women, which was organized in Boston last July, will hold its first annual convention in this city beginning July 2 next and continuing three days. In an address to the women of the country President Mrs. F. E. Ridley, of Brooklyn, said that Washington was selected as the place of meeting in order to give colored women an opportunity of attending the Christian Endeavor convention, and to enable them to take advantage of our cheap rates.

"During the past few years," the address says, "most earnest efforts have been put forth to arouse the colored women of the country to the great necessity of organizing in the interest of much-needed reforms in all things touching our home and national life, and the fact has been established that our women are thoroughly alive to the possibilities of a powerful body of Afro-American women influencing public sentiment and legislation in favor of the race at large."

GONE TO GRAY GABLES.

Mrs. Cleveland and Children Seek the Seaside.

Washington, June 4.—Mrs. Cleveland, with her children, left Washington this morning over the Pennsylvania railway for the president's summer home at Gray Gables. With her was Mrs. Olney and Mrs. Minot, and the children of the latter, with maids. The party will go direct to Massachusetts without change, their car being transferred by ferry at Jersey City. Mrs. Olney and her daughter will accompany Mrs. Cleveland almost to their destination, branching near the end of the route to go to their own home at Fallmouth.

The president will join Mrs. Cleveland at Gray Gables soon after the adjournment of congress and his private secretary, Mr. Thurber, will again take up his residence with his family near by at Marion. Secretary Olney will not leave the city for at least a month yet, owing to the many matters of business requiring his personal attention just now in the state department.

HONORED

Banquet Given For J. C. Eden By the Jobbers Last Evening.

Handsome Cane and Umbrella Presented to Him With Compliments.

Happy Speeches Made and Many Complimentary Things Said.

The informal banquet at the Spalding last evening in honor of John C. Eden, who has been general agent of the Eastern Minnesota railroad in this city for several years and has just been advanced to the position of general freight agent and removed to St. Paul, was a very happy affair. It was arranged by the jobbers to express their appreciation of Mr. Eden and the high esteem in which they hold him. The banquet was held in the ordinary. The table was arranged in the form of a T with J. A. Ferguson, toastmaster, at the head and on his right the guest of the evening, Mr. Eden. A fine repast was served and when the post prandial exercises were reached everyone was in good humor.

The after dinner portion of the program was opened by the presentation to Mr. Eden on behalf of the jobbers of a handsome cane and umbrella. D. G. Cutler made a happy little speech which caused considerable merriment. Mr. Eden expressed his thanks and the pleasure that he felt in receiving the gift in such a manner.

J. A. Ferguson and W. Buchanan alternated in the capacity of toastmaster with the result that every man around the banquet board had to speak. Even the reporters were not allowed to escape.

R. F. Fitzgerald, in responding to "The Jobbing Interests," said the jobbers were sorry to lose Mr. Eden, but rejoiced at his promotion. He felt that although removed from Duluth Mr. Eden would be able in his new position to do much for the Duluth business interests.

A. H. Comstock, as an old banker, was asked to tell the best method for evading the usury laws, but respectfully declined to enlarge upon that subject. He spoke happily of Mr. Eden and hoped that some future day would find him back in Duluth.

Howard James, in responding to "The Railroad Interests," made some pleasant remarks which were heartily enjoyed. He expressed his gratification at Mr. Eden's promotion and hoped that it was but the first of many advancements.

N. S. Coffin was called upon by Mr. Buchanan to talk of "The Coal Industry" and tell how 1900 pounds constitute a ton. Mr. Coffin did not throw much light upon that problem, but spoke some complimentary words for Mr. Eden.

Mr. Ferguson then called on T. D. Merrill to tell how many feet make 1000 feet of lumber. Mr. Merrill said his experience had been that it was about 700. Mr. Merrill spoke in a humorous manner and created considerable laughter.

W. G. Conklin and P. S. Amoke told some good stories applicable to the occasion and said kind words of Mr. Eden.

James Kenny, manager of the Standard Oil company, was asked to tell how to become a monopolist and caused great laughter by gravely announcing that the Standard Oil company is not a monopoly. He rejoiced in Mr. Eden's promotion although regretting his departure from Duluth.

W. E. Magner hoped to see Mr. Eden come back owner of the Great Northern road instead of general freight agent.

B. Heller was asked whether potatoes or old boots make the best whisky. He pleaded ignorance on the ground that he is not a distiller. He spoke of the growth of the wholesale liquor traffic here.

C. H. Sagar spoke of the necessity for a North Dakota railroad and the securing of better freight rates. He told some funny stories and spoke highly of Mr. Eden.

F. A. Brewer made a few facetious remarks in reference to lumber matters and spoke very highly of Mr. Eden.

W. H. Blades was called on to resound to "The Marine Industry." He spoke of its great growth which never ceases but increases with each year. He felt that Mr. Eden with his knowledge of the situation here could and would be a valuable man to Duluth in his new position and cautioned him not to become too much of a St. Paul man.

Mr. Buchanan made a little explanation at this point. He said the executive committee of the Jobbers' union had considered the propriety of inviting the other railroad men of the city to be present, but finally concluded that it would be very hard to determine where to draw the line. Consequently after due deliberation it was decided best to ask only the Great Northern associates of Mr. Eden. He complimented the railroad men of the city very highly and said no city of this size had a better class of them. They have hard work before them. It is hard to get concessions and they do not always have as pleasant a time as they might.

C. Schulze and C. A. Eddy responded gracefully to the toast of "The Ladies," and C. D. Skillings spoke gracefully of "The Press."

Mr. Ferguson endorsed Mr. Buchanan's sentiments as to the able representatives in Duluth of the different roads, but he thought they were no better than Duluth deserves because of the immense tonnage here. It is handled here, but the Twin Cities get the glory. The time is coming when the rights of this city will have to be conceded. A direct road to the West is coming soon and he hoped Mr. Eden would be associated with the first road to enter that country from Duluth.

The banquet closed with three cheers for Mr. Eden. The guests all accompanied Mr. Eden to the Eastern Minnesota train and he left for St. Paul.

A GREAT REMEDY.

For Sufferers From Piles.

Dr. Redmond, a specialist in the study and treatment of piles and rectal diseases, recently stated that the Pyramid Pile Cure, the new discovery for the cure of piles, was the most remarkable remedy he had ever seen or tried in one respect; and that was, the instant relief experienced in all cases, no matter how severe, from the moment the remedy was applied. This was the more surprising to him because he had carefully analyzed the preparation and no trace of opium, cocaine or similar poison could be detected.

Physicians look with great favor upon the Pyramid Pile Cure, because it is rapidly taking the place of surgical operations and because it is so simple, so easily applied and contains no mineral or other poisons so commonly used in pile cures.

Dr. Esterbrook reports that the Pyramid Pile Cure not only cures the various forms of piles, but never fails to give immediate relief on the first application, no matter how severe the pain or discomfort may be.

People who have suffered from piles for years are often astonished at the instant relief experienced from the first application. Another important advantage is the fact that anyone can use the remedy without detention from business or interference with daily occupation. Sold by druggists at 50 cents per package.

WHO FOR CONGRESSMAN?

Why Should Not Gubernatorial Candidates Explain?

To the Editor of The Herald:

I notice that you are somewhat persistent in your demand that Congressman Towne should define his position on the gubernatorial question. This suggests the query, "In which is Duluth most vitally interested—who shall be governor, or who shall represent us in congress?" With the exception of a certain proportion of the politicians, who are hoping for recognition by appointment to some of the positions which the governor has at his disposal, either directly or indirectly, I take it that the universal verdict of our citizens, were the proposition submitted to them for determination, would be that our commerce is paramount to all other interests, and that we look more particularly to congressional action for its protection than to any other source. Ever since the commencement of our existence Duluth and her true friends have battled manfully for the election of members of congress who would give our interests due consideration, but without success, except in two notable instances, and those were in the election of Hons. Knute Nelson and Charles A. Towne. Without exception, during this time no one has been elected to congress from our district who has not professed to be our friend, and who, in fact, proved by his acts to be our friend in all matters where our interests did not conflict with those of some other portion of the district; but when it came to placing Duluth first they all signally failed us, except in the two instances named. I assume that there is no question as to the preference of the Republicans of Duluth for Hon. C. A. Towne as his own successor. His persistent and arduous efforts during his first term in the interest not only of Duluth but of the entire district, have been crowned with phenomenal success, while his brilliancy has gained for him an eminent position in the literary and oratorical ranks of the country.

Taking it for granted that your loyalty to Duluth will force you to concede that I am correct in my position, I submit this query: Would it not be more pertinent to require the candidates for the Republican nomination for governor to define their position on the congressional question? Let us know whether they favor Charley Towne's renomination for congress before we give or promise our support to any of them. It would be particularly pat to propound this inquiry to Mr. Lee, for the reason that he is a resident of this congressional district and is conceded to be influential with the Republicans in the western portion of the district. The persistency with which his friends seem to demand that Towne shall express his preference for governor is apt to create the suspicion that if he does not come out and favor Lee, that Lee and his friends will espouse his renomination—and this is the question that those of us who occupy places in the rear rank of the rank and file of the party would like to have settled. It is not often, I admit, that we have much to say in primary politics, but once in a while we manage to break away from the influence of self-constituted leaders and vote as we really think and believe. Let Mr. Lee and the other aspirants for gubernatorial honors stand up and answer our question, viz.: Who do you favor for congress from the Sixth district?

RECEPTION FOR TOWNE.

Republican Club Decided to Notice His Home Coming.

The St. Louis County Republican club met last evening with about seventy-five members present, and it was decided to give Congressman C. A. Towne a rousing reception upon his return from Washington. George R. Laybourn introduced the subject on behalf of a number of Republicans whom, he said, were absent. He said that while the club's rules did not permit demonstrations in favor of candidates in the party before the nomination, they did not apply in this case, as there seemed to be no other candidate. Mr. Laybourn moved that a committee of five be appointed to make arrangements for the reception.

R. S. Munger, J. L. Dow, Ray T. Lewis and others spoke in favor of the plan, and the general opinion seemed to be that the band should be hired and sent to meet Mr. Towne at the train. R. S. Munger, E. S. Radcliffe, A. B. Lange, J. W. Rowley and C. E. Richardson were appointed members of the committee on arrangements by President Norton, and J. C. Rush, R. S. Munger and Ray T. Lewis were appointed on a committee to solicit funds for the demonstration.

President John H. Norton called the meeting to order, and in the absence of the secretary, C. E. Holliday was appointed to fill his place temporarily. It was decided to use the city hall for meetings and to receive returns from the St. Louis convention until the county committee gets organized and provides permanent headquarters.

George R. Laybourn again brought up the question of having six vice presidents instead of two, and argued in support of the idea, which he put in the form of a motion to amend the constitution, that it was no more than just that the ranges should be represented among the club's officers. The motion was carried, and the constitution was so amended.

After the business of the meeting was concluded, speechmaking was in order, and J. L. Dow was first called upon. He made an earnest talk on the moral phases of politics, which he seemed to think had sometimes been lost sight of. He thought the country was in some such state as that which preceded the convulsion giving birth to the Republican party. He though it was the clear duty of the party to remonetize silver, and he thought, too, that this country can manage its financial interests independent of other nations.

C. E. Lovett, Ray T. Lewis, C. H. Hoyt and R. S. Munger were called upon, but they passed, so Bartlett Mixer filled the breach in a manner that brought back the fury of the Truelson campaign. He thought that it was impossible to drive the American people, though they might be coaxed, and he was heartily in favor of free silver.

J. E. Cooley agreed with the other speakers on the silver question, and he argued in favor of bimetallism. He also thought that the United States could manage its finances about as it pleased.

J. H. Norton then waltzed up and down on "disjointed, disgraced and disappointed" Democracy's mangled carpse, after which he calmed down and remarked that the "silver question would not down, and the people will rule in the end, if you please." He said that Mr. Towne has represented the people, and he graciously endorsed every utterance Mr. Towne had made. After roasting Cleveland, and accusing him of cleaning up $6,000,000 out of the last bond deal, he announced that he approved of McKinley. He then said he would entertain a motion to adjourn. The motion was forthcoming, and it was carried.

GRAND ZOOLOGICAL DISPLAY

Ringling Bros' Menagerie, the Finest in the World.

Among the educational features of Ringling Bros.' world's greatest shows, which exhibit in Duluth next Monday, especial attention has been given to the menagerie, which now embraces the largest collection of rare wild animals ever brought to this country. It is a magnificent zoological display which time, money and patient pertinacity have combined to perfect, and no student of natural history, however exhaustive his researches into the marvels of zoology, can fail to discover in this colossal collection of carnivorous, herbivorous and man-destroying wild beasts, something so unique and rare as to excite his wonder and admiration. Ringling Bros.' menagerie is memorable this year from the fact that it contains a large number of animals that have either become almost entirely extinct in their native state, or which are so valuable as to preclude the possession of specimens by other amusement enterprises. This is true of the giant giraffe owned and exhibited by this great show. This towering beast is over eighteen feet high, and is undoubtedly the tallest animal that lives.

Another rare wild beast embraced in Ringling Bros.' menagerie is the gigantic 4-ton hippopotamus the heaviest beast in captivity and the only genuine blood-exuding behemoth now in this country. Ponderous and unwieldly as he is, the great hippopotamus is an intelligent brute, capable of instruction, and many of the tricks he performs at the command of his keeper are astounding. The giraffe and hippopotamus are, however, only two of the many features for which this grand zoological display is noted. Of surpassing interest, because of its rarity, is a monster bi-horned gnu. A pair of ibexes also attract unlimited attention. Then there are pretty, striped zebras, sacred cattle, llamas of a dozen species, ferocious lions and tigers, leopards, hyenas, kangaroos from Australia, baby lions, a drove of camels, three herds of quadrille dancing and performing elephants, including the only troupe of performing baby elephants in the world, and scores of other curious specimens of the wild animal kingdom.

The mammoth dens and cages used to exhibit Ringling Bros.' menagerie are the largest, handsomest and most beautifully decorated of any circus in the world, and those who have seen them this season are unqualified in their expressions of admiration.

Do not be hoodwinked. Use no "just as good." Salvation Oil is what you want when in need of a good liniment.

Claim the Title.

Barbara Trader, John Trader, Barbara Daiki, Magdalen Trader, Maryanna Nowack and Simon Sullivan, squatters on Norton's division, have begun suit in district court to clear title to lots 4, 10 and 13 of that division on the ground of adverse possession for twenty-five years. The property is situated between Sixth and Ninth streets and Seventh and Eighth avenues east, and is on the outskirts of the residence portion of the city.

Piano Recital.

A piano recital by the pupils of Mrs. K. A. Ostergren, assisted by Master Hawkins Jacobson, the boy soprano, and G. Plaaten, violinist, delighted a large audience at the First Baptist church last evening. The numbers of the program not only amply demonstrated the wide scope and excellent character of the instruction given, but reflected the greatest credit on the pupils as well.

MUNYON'S COLD CURE

Colds lead to coughs, coughs to pneumonia and consumption; therefore, it is all important to check a cold before it reaches the lungs. Munyon's Cold Cure will positively break a cold inside of twenty-four hours if taken as soon as the cold manifests itself. When the cold reaches the lungs or bronchial tubes the Cough Cure should be used alternately every half hour with the Cold Cure. The Cold Cure is guaranteed to prevent pneumonia if used in the beginning of a cold. Pneumonia, or inflammation of the lungs, can be controlled by the use of these two cures.

The Cough Cure positively cures bronchitis, tickling in the throat, hoarseness, loss of voice, soreness of the chest, difficulty in breathing, hacking cough and all pulmonary diseases where the lungs are not too far consumed by disease or covered with tubercles.

A separate cure for each disease. At all druggists, mostly 25 cents a vial.

Personal letters to Professor Munyon, 1505 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa., answered with free medical advice for any disease.

STREET OBSTRUCTIONS.

Eighty-Five Miles of Debris in St. Louis.

St. Louis, June 4.—There has been just eighty-five miles of streets obstructed by debris as a result of the tornado. All of these streets have been made passable and will be cleaned up in ten days. In the city there are 480 miles of improved streets, so it can be seen to what extent the tornado interrupted traffic. The storm district, on its outside lines, extended from the river on the east to Tower Grove on the west, and from Oliver street on the north, to Lynch street on the south. This comprises an area of six square miles. The extreme limits were three miles east and west and two miles north and south.

An adequate idea of the damage can be formed when it is stated that if all the houses damaged and blown down were on both sides of the one street, that street would be just eighty-five miles long. The figure is given by the street commissioner, who has been through the entire distance, and from the reports of his general superintendent, who has cut a roadway through the eighty-five miles of streets. In addition to this there were many more streets obstructed by wires and the like which are not counted in the total.

Birthday Surprise Party.

Miss May Murphy was agreeably surprised last evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Lanigan. It being her birthday a number of her friends planned to give her a very pleasant surprise. The visitors took possession of the house and proceed to carry out their program. After the usual greetings on such an occasion were over there was a series of card games and vocal and instrumental music, followed by a general social time. Refreshments were served and a most pleasant evening was spent by all. Those present were: Mrs. O. S. Humes, Misses Humes, Fitzpatrick, Scanlon, Dunn, Shanley, Halpin; Messrs. Kelley, Powers, Lanigan, Hunt, McGrath, Shanley, Murphy, Mrs. Humes chaperoned the party.

WILL BE SETTLED.

Duluth & Winnipeg Troubles Are to Be Adjusted.

President Van Horne, like other railroad men, is not given to exposing his plans and did not say much publicly on this trip West. In a conversation here, yesterday, however, he did say that the Duluth & Winnipeg trouble would be settled within a very short time. He allowed it to be understood also that the construction of a line to the West from the present terminus would quickly follow, and, furthermore, that the construction of a connecting line north to the Iron range was a strong probability.

The people of Duluth will be more than pleased to hear this, and will undoubtedly be glad to see the Canadian Pacific again control, if it will secure the building of such extensions.

THE BONDS

Probability That the County Will Receive No Bids at Par.

Suggestion That a Portion Be Taken Up With the Sinking Fund.

Commissioners Will Consider This if Bids Are Not Satisfactory.

The board of county commissioners met this afternoon in regular monthly session. The most important matter to come up was the bids for the issue of $150,000 in 4 per cent bonds authorized by the vote of the people this spring for the purpose of constructing a wagon road to the Iron ranges and to furbish up some of the old roads which need improvements and extension. The interest on the bonds is low, and it was not expected that there would be many tempting offers for the bonds.

Indeed, it was understood that what bids there were would not be at par, but would demand commissions. In that case some other way of disposing of the bonds might prove to be more advantageous, and County Auditor Halden suggested that the county take up a portion of the bonds itself with the sinking fund. Half the amount could be taken up this way and the work of building the roads proceeded with, and then when more money is required the county can advertise again for bids and sell the remainder of the bonds to better advantage.

In case the bids submitted at this meeting were not satisfactory, the commissioners expected to consider this plan.

A few of the reports of county officers were in this morning to be submitted to the board. The county physicia reported 23 cases in hospital May 1, 23 admitted during the month, 24 discharged and 2 died, leaving 25 in hospital June 1. The county physician also reported 35 cases investigated, 60 visits to the hospital, 4 to the jail, 2 to the poor house, 20 to private addresses and 24 office cases.

The register of deeds reported receipts of $710.62 and $490 for salaries. The district clerk reported $3674.40 earned, of which $3187.25 due from city and county is uncollected, $738.35 collected from the month, and $1225.50 turned over to the county treasurer. The salary list was $510. The county treasurer's salary list was $650 and the auditor's list was $940.

The overseer of the poor farm reported 37 inmates April 30, 7 admitted and 12 discharged during the month and 32 inmates May 31. The superintendent of roads presented a report to the effect that $40,950 is needed for roads.

There was but one bid for the bonds, that of Lamprecht & Co., of Cleveland, at par and 4 per cent commission. It was referred to the finance committee.

THE DISTRICT COURT.

The Hibbing Butcher's Case Being Heard Today.

Judge Moer this morning was hearing the case of John Clark against the village of Farwell, Mich. It may be remembered that about a year ago Clark, who was a butcher at Hibbing, was arrested and taken back to Farwell to answer to a charge of embezzlement. It was alleged that a number of years ago, while Clark was marshal of the village, he had collected about $900 in taxes and skipped out. When Clark was taken to Farwell, the matter was settled, Clark transferring to the village title to his store and lot in Hibbing.

Now Clark wants that transfer annulled on the ground of fraud in its procurement. He alleges that he was coerced by threats and duress, the village officers telling him that unless he made arrangements to settle the matter he would have to go to jail. He says that he is innocent of the charge, and that the officers who extorted the deed from him were well acquainted with that fact.

The case of A. W. Comstock et al against John McKinley et al was dismissed yesterday on motion of the defendant, whereupon the plaintiffs dismissed another and similar case against the same parties. In the case of Charles Stroebe against Willard Stekney, judgment for the plaintiff was entered by default.

In Judge Ensign's room yesterday afternoon the jury in the case of Sam Brusell against Peter Larson returned a verdict of $389 for the plaintiff. At noon the damage case of John S. Rollin against the St. Louis Lumber company was on trial. Judge Morris was still hearing the case of Peter Ellsworth against the Mountain Iron company.

GRADUATING EXERCISES.

St. Luke's Hospital Nurses Receive Their Diplomas.

The graduating exercises of the class of trained nurses at St. Luke's hospital were held last evening at St. Paul's Episcopal church. The graduates were: Misses Flora Nesselroad, Ethel Clark, Adele Ernst, May Buckingham, Amonita Heath and Margaret Powell. The church was beautifully decorated with ferns, palms and roses.

The graduates entered the church from the parlors, followed by the choir and several former graduates, and seated themselves near the chancel. An address was made by Dr. Speier, after which Miss Taylor, superintendent of the hospital, presented the class to Dr. Ryan, who addressed them and delivered the diplomas.

Secretary Hubbard read a report of the hospital, and it presented a very encouraging condition.

A reception for the graduates was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Stone, 108 West Third street, after the exercises.

THE SCHOOL MEETING.

Report of the Committee Received Last Evening.

A meeting of those interested in the school campaign was held last evening in chamber of commerce rooms. About twenty were gathered to gether in communion. Those having the grip and password occupied nice comfortable seats inside, while the press representatives were accommodated on the door mat, where they organized a bolt—that is to stay, a bolted out—convention.

There were some recruits present in the ranks, and, on the other hand, there were a few pictures turned toward the wall, those who were not willing to enlist "for three years or the war" having staid away. Although some of those present were not primarily hostile to Superintendent Denfeld, being moved in the first instance by their friendship for teachers who have been dropped, and yet others were animated by a desire to effect a change in the personnel of the board because of dissatisfaction solely with the administration of the state of affairs by that body, still, as a whole, the assemblage presented a united front "again the government," and the gathering was called and dominated by those who seek, through the election to the board of members favorable to their interests, the ousting, ultimately, of the superintendent.

It is hardly fair, however, to call it an anti-Denfeld campaign. Some of those who have been at the meetings are favorable to the superintendent; some are dissatisfied with the manner in which the board conducts the school affairs; some want to see Mr Denfeld stay and want Mr. Lohr retained. In fact, there seems to be little unanimity of opinion.

L. J. Hopkins and H. S. Mahon, of the committee appointed to investigate the schools, submitted a report that was not as inimical to the superintendent as the extremists could have wished. In fact, it was said to be decidedly favorable. Among the schools selected for visitation were the high school and the Washington school. Some of the committee appointed to agitate the question of a change in the administration reported progress and the committee was continued.

A general discussion of the situation and what was advisable to be done followed and the meeting adjourned.

L. J. Hopkins, who reported to the gathering the conclusions he had drawn from a tour of inspection of the schools undertaken at the request of H. S. Mahon, said today that while he found some things he would criticize in the schools he visited, on the whole he was pleased with the manner in which they were conducted.

"So far as my observation goes, our schools are admirably conducted," said Mr. Hopkins, "although there are some respects in which the methods are open to criticism. It would be hard to so conduct a system such as we have here that could not be criticized in some of its details. I started out with the idea that our schools are well conducted and I found no reason to alter my opinion."

Mr. Hopkins visited the Washington, Jefferson, Adams and Endion schools.

Mrs. Butler the Most Distinguished Guest Today.

A. Nelson pleaded guilty in the municipal court this morning to a charge of drunkenness. He will sojourn on the hill for a period of ten days.

Mrs. Butler, who resides at Pike Lake, and who is very apt to pick up a jag if she finds one around handy, tried to take home too large a one yesterday and got into trouble. She was arrested by Officer Gillis for fast driving and passed the night at the police station as the city's guest. She was let off with a suspended sentence today.

Dan McDonald, a plain drunk, was allowed to go on promise of good behavior in future.

John Fraser and Thomas O'Brien, "vags," went up on the hill for five days. William Morell, Albert Blair, Joseph Babeck and George Thomas, box-car lodgers, were let off with suspended sentences.

The east-bound freight was as follows: Copper, 21,277 tons; coarse grain, 3,698,098 bushels; building stone, 1907 tons; flour, 760,916 barrels; iron ore, 1,263,968 tons; pig iron, 3083 tons; lumber, 110,312,000 feet; wheat, 12,187,704 bushels; unclassified freight, 16,592 tons. A GRAIN BLOCKADE.

Ogdensburg, June 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is a complete grain blockade here and at Prescott. The elevators at both points are full and there are no orders for shipment to receive them. Four boats of the Ogdensburg line are waiting for a chance to get rid of their cargoes.

DUE TO A DEFECTIVE LAW.

Sheboygan, Wis., June 4.—The sinking of the Sheboygan schooner Sunriss in midlake a week ago is due to a collision with the McDougall pig 133 is likely to cause consoderable condemnation among mariners and shipowners toward the lawmakers at Washington. The sinking of the Sunrise is due more to a defective law than any one other reason, and it will not be surprising if the government should hear from the owners of the Sunrise; in other words, the government may be held responsible for the loss of the vessel. Years ago there was a law in effect that compelled vessels having tows to give three blasts to warn other vessels of the existence of the tow, single vessels only giving one blast. This law worked with perfect success. Then some one had the law changed to compel all vessels to give three blasts. The result is well exemplified in the Sunrise collision.

IS BADLY INJURED.

The steamer St. Louis, which was in collision with the V. H. Ketcham last week, has been surveyed at Tonawanda by Frank Williams, of Bay City, and C. F. Strasmer, of the Anchor line. The steamer is pretty badly injured, as her stern is not only smashed, but her steel arches are buckled several inches. It is figured out at Buffalo that when the St. Louis heard the Ketcham she turned sharply away from her, thus exposing her stern, but the Ketcham must have made direct for the St. Louis and thus gave her own consort, the Wadena, a chance to strike her amidship.

The captain of the St. Louis attaches blame for the collision to the Ketcham and legal proceedings must result. The cost of repairs on the craft is estimated at $4000.

THE ROCKEFELLER FLEET.

It is expected that during the season of 1897 the fleet of the Bessemer Steamship company will be able to handle the entire output of the Rockefeller mines at the head of Lake Superior, or about 1,500,000 tons. The addition of two more towbarges of large size is contemplated. The first of the new steamers, the Sir Henry Bessemer, will be ready for business about June 10. She is to be commanded by Capt. E. M. Smith.

MARNE NOTES.

Capt. Gilchrist, of Cleveland, yesterday bought the schooners Moonlight and Kent from Capt. Hurley. They will be thoroughly overhauled and will be ready for sea in two weeks. Gilchrist is also having the old steamer V. Swain rebuilt.

An Escanaba dispatch says the schooner R. Kanters, formerly Terry of Woodstock, went on the rocks on the south side of Pilot island, and has been abandoned.

The Sault canal officials recommend a draft of 14 feet ½ inch.

Duluth clearances—Aurora, 1550 tons ore, Aurania, 2750 tons ore, J. C. Lockwood, 1857 tons ore, Lizzie A. Law, 1225 tons ore, Mabel Wilson, 1800 tons ore, Buffalo; Norwalk, 1500 tons ore, South Chicago; J. C. Pringle, 475,000 feet lumber, Tonawanda.

The grain rate remains unchanged at 2½ cents to Buffalo, but it is firm, and shippers will get but few boats at that rate. A charter was made yesterday at 2¾ cents and one this morning at the same rate. The party who chartered yesterday will take no more at that rate. The one today held out for 2¾ cents this morning, but let go at 2¾ cents later.

H. B. MOORE RESIGNS.

Relinquishes the Receivership of the Great Western.

Horace B. Moore, whom Judge Lewis appointed receiver for the Great Western Manufacturing company in 1894 upon the petition of the Atchison Water, Light and Power company, offered his resignation to Judge Morris yesterday afternoon and it was accepted. Judge Morris appointed in his place the Duluth Trust company, and set the hearing on his application for the allowance of his report and accounts for June 27. The resignation states no reason, nor do any of the papers in the case.

In his final report Receiver Moore says that he received personal property worth $27,810.81 and real estate valued at $150,000 to $350,000, subject to an $80,000 mortgage, the validity of which is involved in a suit by the receiver to set it aside on the ground that it constitutes a preferred payment. No sale of the real estate is immediately possible, but he has sold personal property for which he received $5952.74. He has collected $91.95 and disbursed $2546.34. His charge as receiver is $4350, at the rate of $250 per month, and his attorneys, Cotton, Dibell & Reynolds, have a claim of $4624.60 for fees and expenses.

WILL HOLD MEETINGS.

Mr. Hines Will Conduct a Number of Them.

D. W. Hines, the promoter of the Farmers' railroad, or rather the Duluth & North Dakota railroad, was in the city today, having come down from Deer River. He has ordered a lot of hand bills for a series of meetings to be held in the territory along the route in the near future. Mr. Hines will be assisted by E. C. Gridley, of this city. The first meeting will be held June 18 near the boundary line. Mr. Hines expects to have 1000 people present.

Mr. Hines says work is progressing splendidly on the road. He expects to begin laying track west from Deer River in about a month, and has secured C. J. Stone and another Duluth surveyor to make the survey across the reservation. He has no trouble in securing all the workers he needs, and pays them with stock in the road. J. C. Carey, of Lakeside, will superintend the grading.
